Key Findings

Poliquin Is An Out-Of-Touch, Self-Dealing Multi-Millionaire

Time again, Bruce Poliquin has sided with the same wealthy special interests that have fueled his political career and chosen self-enrichment at the expense of Maine’s taxpayers and working families. Even with a net worth of up to $60 million, Poliquin hasn’t been above taking another $800,000 in taxpayer-funded government salaries. Still, when it came time to pay his fair share, Bruce Poliquin felt significantly less urgency than he did in accumulating his vast wealth. Poliquin and his companies were delinquent on their property tax bills at least 48 times between 1993 and 2019. He exploited tax loopholes – intended to promote commercial forest products – in order to get away with paying only $30 annually on 10 oceanfront acres of his $3.4 million property between 2004 and 2012. After criticism, Poliquin simply enrolled in another tax loophole program to continue taking advantage of the tax code to reduce what he pays on his multi-million dollar estate. And he hasn’t just used his power to enrich himself: Poliquin has repeatedly voted to cut taxes and regulations for the same financial industry special interests that have funded his political career.

Poliquin Pioneered And Promoted The Big Lie

Not only did Bruce Poliquin promote Trump’s Big Lie about a stolen 2020 election, he even pioneered some of the same lies and nonsense in falsely claiming his 2018 defeat was improperly determined. When then-Representative Poliquin went down to defeat in the 2018 general election after the second round of ranked choice votes were allocated, he could have accepted his loss and bowed out gracefully. Instead, he spent months pushing lies and nonsense, calling into question not just the ranked choice system but the integrity of the vote-counting process itself. Poliquin attacked vote by mail, even as records indicated he has voted absentee twelve times. The Portland Press Herald said Poliquin “attacked[ed] the honesty and trustworthiness of the election process itself.” Poliquin wasted public resources, including the time of Maine State Police troopers and taxpayer money on legal expenses, on a doomed lawsuit and a hand recount he demanded and then abandoned.

After needlessly casting doubt on Maine’s electoral process without a shred of evidence of impropriety, it’s no surprise Poliquin eagerly promoted Donald Trump’s Big Lie about a stolen election in 2020. Poliquin directly compared his situation to Trump’s, saying he and Trump had a “responsibility” to litigate election results. Now, his campaign is funded – to the tune of over $60,000 – by the same Washington politicians who voted to overturn the results of the 2020 election.

Poliquin Is Wrong For Maine

Everyone from women to seniors to the hardworking families that keep Maine’s shipyards, manufacturing, and lobster industries running stand to suffer if Bruce Poliquin returns to Washington. Poliquin has consistently stood against a woman’s right to choose, supporting a Constitutional amendment to completely ban abortion, even in cases of rape and incest, and voting against exemptions in cases of rape, incest, or when a woman’s life was on the line. While in Washington, Poliquin voted to limit seniors’ access to affordable health care – including votes to end Medicare as we know it and against lowering prescription drug costs under Medicare. His votes to strip protections for Mainers with pre-existing conditions and for massive tax cuts for the wealthiest corporations and individuals were a fitting cap to his career of consistently voting against the interests of his constituents while in Washington.

Poliquin has been a disaster for the industries that form the backbone of Maine’s economy, leaving working families in the cold. Poliquin endorsed Trump’s trade war with China after it caused lobster sales to China to drop dramatically and millions in losses for the Maine lobster industry. He voted to incentivize the outsourcing of Maine jobs and spent weeks refusing to take a position on TPP even as local industries came out against it. Poliquin even used taxpayer dollars to tout his supposed success keeping the Madison Paper Industries mill open – 2 years after it had already closed, costing 200 Mainers their jobs. As an investment firm manager, Poliquin’s mismanagement of the Bath Ironworks pension fund allowed him to profit – and fund his campaigns – at the expense of shipyard workers. One Bath Ironworks union member said Poliquin “managed our pensions in a way to rob us of a fair retirement.”
Thematics
Poliquin Is An Out-Of-Touch, Self-Dealing Multi-Millionaire

Significant Findings

✓ As of 2021, Poliquin disclosed a net worth as high as $56 million, owned $6.2 million in corporate and personal real property, owned a yacht, and had received more than $800,000 in taxpayer-funded salaries.

✓ Poliquin voted repeatedly to give tax breaks to multi-millionaires like himself.

✓ Poliquin voted for the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act, which reduced taxes on income from his estimated $7 million worth of real property and granted millionaires more than $60 billion in tax cuts, while ultimately raising taxes on middle class families.

✓ Poliquin voted to repeal the estate tax, which would exclusively benefit multi-millionaires with estates of at least $5.4 million, and supported Paul Ryan’s FY 2015 budget, which would have given millionaires a tax cut while raising taxes on families making less than $200,000.

✓ Poliquin voted to protect the corporate interests that funded his campaigns, including executives of firms that managed his own investments, and weaken protections for consumers.

✓ As of 2021, Poliquin accepted $2.5 million from the finance, insurance, and real estate industry.

✓ Poliquin accepted more than $103,000 from employees of Zweig-DiMenna Partners and $14,450 from executives of CK Capital LP; Poliquin was a limited partner in both partnerships until at least 2019.

✓ Poliquin repeatedly voted to roll back Wall Street reforms, championed a measure to exempt mutual funds from stress tests, and repeatedly attacked the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau.

✓ Poliquin was a serial tax delinquent who paid property taxes late at least 48 times and continued to exploit tax loopholes to avoid paying taxes on his $3.4 million oceanfront mansion as of 2021.

✓ Poliquin and his companies paid property taxes late at least 48 times between 1993 and 2019.

✓ Poliquin exploited the Maine Tree Growth program, which was intended to boost the development of “commercial forest products,” to pay $30 in taxes annually on 10 oceanfront acres of his $3.4 million property between 2004 and 2012.

✓ After he faced criticism for exploiting the loophole, Poliquin enrolled his property in the Open Space Program, which reduced the assessed value of land that conserved “scenic resources” or wildlife.

✓ As of 2021, Poliquin’s was enrolled in the Open Space Program.

✓ Poliquin ran a real estate business, requested tax abatements, and petitioned a planning board while serving as Maine’s State Treasurer, which critics said “thumbed his nose at the Maine Constitution” and made him “the most ethically challenged member of Gov. Paul LePage’s administration.”

✓ Poliquin dodged his constituents and reporters while in office.
Poliquin’s in-district offices were only open to constituents by appointment, and “some constituents” accused Poliquin of opening an office in Bangor that was not ADA-compliant.

In 2016, Poliquin repeatedly refused to tell constituents whether he planned to vote for Trump.

Poliquin refused to publish his schedule, said it would be “stupid for [him] to engage the national media,” and accused two major Maine publications of bias against him.

Poliquin walked into a women’s restroom to escape a reporter who asked him about the AHCA in 2017 and removed his support for Affordable Care Act repeal from his website in 2018.

Poliquin touted his “understand[ing of] the importance and tradition” of hunting and fishing, but has never had a Maine hunting license and did not have a fishing license in Maine as of 2021.

In 2018, Poliquin’s campaign failed to verify that Poliquin created a single job during his entire business career, despite his claims to have spent 35 years creating jobs.

From 2006 to 2015, Poliquin developed and ran the exclusive Popham Beach Club in Phippsburg, Maine.

Poliquin personally managed memberships, which sold for $2,000 each, before 2015.

Poliquin had a feud with the campground that neighbored the club, whose patrons he called “not my kind of people.”

Poliquin refused to tell police whether he stole 124 feet of fencing from the campground in 2003.

In 2015 Poliquin sold the land where Popham Beach Club was located to Laurel and Jeffrey Harris, whom he issued a $1.3 million mortgage for the property which had an assessed value of $914,800.

Jeffrey and Laurel Harris contributed $1,100 to Poliquin’s campaign between 2013 and 2015.

In 2015, Poliquin sponsored an amendment that made businesses at Brunswick Landing, where the Harrises operated a golf club, eligible for preferential consideration for federal contracts.

Poliquin refused to develop affordable housing at the requests of his neighbors and municipal leadership at two separate Dirigo Holdings developments.

In 2006, Poliquin refused to consider developing affordable housing in his Phippsburg project when a neighbor asked him about it at a Phippsburg Planning Board meeting.

In July 2021, Poliquin attempted to rezone a site in Bath, Maine for “pricey condominiums;” the zoning board advocated for affordable housing or rentals for Bath Iron Works employees.

As of September 2021, Poliquin called local police to watch his multi-million dollar mansion more than 20 times and to report “unfounded” suspicions of a vehicle near his house, a periwinkle harvester, and kids whom officers described as “causing no problems.”
Poliquin’s House office paid Littlefield Consulting, run by Poliquin’s “longtime media consultant” Brent Littlefield, more than $290,000 in taxpayer money over three years for printing, advertisements, and more.

Poliquin’s congressional office spent nearly half a million dollars on franked mail between 2015 and 2018, more than 16 times what the average U.S. Representative spent during that time period.

Candidates and Members of Congress Did Not Have To Disclose The Values Of Their Personal Properties That Were Not Rented. “Reportable real estate includes any interest in land (including mineral rights) or commercial property (such as office buildings, shopping malls, or apartment buildings) held in a trade or business or for investment or the production of income. You are not required to disclose a personal residence (or any gain from its sale) unless it generated rental income, including, for example, from the rental of the basement or a single room (in which case you must report the value of the entire residence). A second home, vacation home, or other property that is held purely for recreational purposes and is not rented at any time during the reporting period need not be reported.” [House Committee on Ethics, 2020]

[Maine Department of Inland Fisheries & Wildlife, Boat Registration History, received 9/29/21]
According To Its Website, Novurania Was “The Leading Manufacturer Of Luxury Yacht Tenders.” “In 1989, as Novurania of America, Inc., the company built its first fiberglass hull in the USA and rapidly gained attention as a first-class producer of reliable tenders in the yachting industry. Novurania has since built its impeccable reputation by hand-building one vessel at a time to the precise specifications of highly discerning clientele. As the leading manufacturer of luxury yacht tenders, innovation is apparent in every model of our comprehensive line of boats. Our in-house engineers, equipped with the most advanced hardware and software applications, continue to introduce new models based on the needs of our direct clientele. Leading the industry through innovation has always been paramount at Novurania.” [Novurania, accessed 10/28/21]

1999: Novurania Manufactured Tender Yachts With Outboard Motors That Were Up To 22 Feet In Length And Sold For Up To $35,000. “After Rio Mar Yachts sunk under the weight of financial problems last year, Novurania, a Miami-based manufacturer of high-end, rigid inflatable yacht tenders, moved into Rio Mar’s old quarters on south U.S. 1 by the county line. […] The company produces 16 different models of its outboard tenders, ranging in length from 12 feet to 22 feet. They cost between $10,000 and $35,000. It also produces a line of four different, inboard diesel tenders for ‘super-yachts.’ These range in length from 22 feet to 25 feet. They cost between $ 55,000 and $ 70,000.” [Vero Beach Press Journal, 6/13/99]

• Poliquin’s Yacht Was Manufactured In 2000. According to its registration, Poliquin’s boat’s serial number was PKD130701001. According to Novurania, “US-PKD is our USCG assigned builder code. ‘US’ for country code. ‘PKD’ for Novurania of America. XXXXX is the five digit serial number, assigned by Novurania which follows the Sales order and Work order during production. X correlates to the month the boat is built. ‘A-L’, works out to January thru December. XXX is the production year, and the model year of the tender. ‘415’ would be a boat built in 2014, and sold as a 2015 model year boat.” Since the last three digits of Poliquin’s boat’s serial number was 001, it was manufactured in 2000 and purchased in 2001. ### Poliquin Supported Giving Tax Breaks To Himself And Other Multi-Millionaires At The Expense Of Maine Families

Poliquin Voted For The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act, Which Cut His Own Taxes While Raising Them On His Middle-Class Constituents

Poliquin Voted For House And Final Passage Of The Republican Tax Scam Bill
Poliquin Voted For Adopting The Conference Report Of The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act. In December 2017, Poliquin voted for: “adoption of the conference report on the bill that would revise the federal income tax system by lowering the corporate tax rate from 35 percent to 21 percent; lowering individual tax rates through 2025; limiting state and local deductions to $10,000 through 2025; decreasing the limit on deductible mortgage debt through 2025; and creating a new system of taxing U.S. corporations with foreign subsidiaries. Specifically, it would repeal personal exemptions and would roughly double the standard deduction through 2025. It would raise the child tax credit to $2,000 through 2025, would repeal the alternative minimum tax for corporations and provide for broader exemptions to the tax for individuals through 2025. It would double individual exemptions to the estate tax and gift tax through 2025, and would establish a new top tax rate for "pass-through" business income through 2025.” The conference report was adopted 227-203. [HR 1, Vote #692, 12/19/17; CQ Floor Votes, 12/19/17]

Poliquin Voted For Final Passage Of The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act By Concurring With A Senate Amendment. In December 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Brady, R-Texas, motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the tax overhaul that would revise the federal income tax system by: lowering the corporate tax rate from 35 percent to 21 percent; lowering individual tax rates through 2025; limiting state and local deductions to $10,000 through 2025; decreasing the limit on deductible mortgage debt through 2025; and creating a new system of taxing U.S. corporations with foreign subsidiaries. Specifically, it would repeal personal exemptions and would roughly double the standard deduction through 2025. It would raise the child tax credit to $2,000 through 2025, would repeal the alternative minimum tax for corporations and provide for broader exemptions to the tax for individuals through 2025. It would double individual exemptions to the estate tax and gift tax through 2025, and would establish a new top tax rate for "pass-through" business income through 2025. It would effectively eliminate the penalty for not purchasing health insurance under the 2010 health care overhaul law in 2019. It would also open portions of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to oil and gas drilling.” The motion was passed 224-201. [HR 1, Vote #699, 12/20/17; CQ Floor Votes, 12/20/17]

- The House Was Forced To Vote For A Second Time On The Final Bill After Small Changes Were Made To Comply With Senate Budget Rules. “The House, forced to vote a second time on the $1.5 trillion tax bill, moved swiftly to pass the final version on Wednesday, clearing the way for President Trump to sign into law the most sweeping tax overhaul in decades. House lawmakers approved the tax bill 224 to 201 on Wednesday, after being forced to vote on the bill again after last-minute revisions were made to it in the Senate, which passed the measure 51 to 48 early Wednesday morning. The final House vote was essentially a formality, as the changes, which were made to comply with Senate budget rules, did not significantly alter the overall bill.” [New York Times, 12/20/17]

Poliquin Voted For Passage Of The House Version Of The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act. In November 2017, Poliquin voted for: “passage of the bill that would revise the federal income tax system by: lowering individual and corporate tax rates; consolidating the current seven tax income rates into four rates; eliminating the deduction for state and local income taxes; limiting certain deductions for property taxes and home mortgages; and creating a new system of taxing U.S. corporations with foreign subsidiaries. Specifically, it would eliminate personal exemptions and would nearly double the standard deduction. It would raise the child tax credit through 2022, repeal the alternative minimum tax, repeal the estate tax in 2025 and reduce the gift tax rate in 2025. It would establish a new top tax rate for pass-through business income and would modify tax credits related to energy production.” The bill passed 227-205. [HR 1, Vote #637, 11/16/17; CQ Floor Votes, 11/16/17]

Tax Cuts And Jobs Act Included Reduced Taxes For Dozens Of Members Of Congress – With Poliquin As One Of The Largest Beneficiaries, Despite His Claims To Support Maintaining Top Tax Rates For Millionaires

HEADLINE: “Dozens Of Lawmakers Stand To Reap A Tax Windfall Due To A GOP Loophole.” [CNBC, 12/20/17]

- Four Dozen Members Of Congress Stood To Benefit From A Change In Tax Treatment Of Real Estate Income Under The Republican Tax Scam Bill. “The provision, which gives favorable tax treatment to a common form of real estate income, would also create generous tax saving for President Donald Trump, who derives much of his personal fortune from real estate. The measure — added late Friday to the $1.5 trillion package of tax cuts — reduces the tax rate on ‘pass-through’ income derived from real estate. Owners of such businesses are allowed to ‘pass through’ the profits from these enterprises to their individual tax returns, which lowers the amount of tax they owe. Those benefits will now go to roughly four dozen Republican House and Senate members who voted for the bill, according to an analysis of personal financial disclosures for CNBC by the Center for Responsive Politics.” [CNBC, 12/20/17]

- The Pass Through Tax Cut Gave An Estimated $60.3 Billion Tax Cut To Americans Making Over $1 Million Between 2018 And 2024. “The wealthiest Americans will benefit the most from President Donald Trump's tax deduction for owners of ‘pass-through’ businesses, according to a congressional report released Monday. […] In 2018, the lion's share of the benefit — $17.4 billion, or 44.3 percent of the total — will go to roughly 200,000 Americans making $1 million or more who claim the pass-through deduction, the committee said. Another $3.6 billion, or 8.9 percent, will go to a similar number of taxpayers who earn $500,000 to $1 million. By 2024, the tax deductions will amount to $60.3 billion, and those making $1 million or more will account for $31.6 billion (52.4 percent) of that.” [NBC News, 4/24/18]

- CNBC: Poliquin Had Up To $7 Million In Real Estate Assets, The Eighth Most In The House. [CNBC, 12/20/17]

November 2017: Poliquin: “I Support Maintaining A Progressive Tax Code And Therefore I Support Maintaining The Current Top Rate For Million Dollar Plus Earners.” “As the Tax Foundation noted, the top 1% of earners reported just over 20% of total income but paid nearly 40% of the total income taxes collected in the nation. So the top 1% paid 39.5% of all income taxes collected in the country. In their last study year, 2014, the Tax Foundation reported that the upper 50% of all earners in the United States paid over 97% of all income taxes in the nation. This means that the bottom 50% of income tax payers paid less than 3% of all taxes. I support maintaining a progressive tax code and therefore I support maintaining the current top rate for million dollar plus earners. Our primary focus must be how we help our Maine small businesses grow and create more jobs. Our focus needs to be on Maine.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 11/2/17]

Portland Press Herald: “Poliquin Voted To Give Away Trillions Of Dollars To Extremely Wealthy Individuals And Corporations” While Cutting “Programs That [His] Middle-Class Constituents Rely On”

Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: Poliquin Should Have “Had The Guts To Stand Up For Their Constituents And Vote Against” The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act. “This isn’t tax reform – it’s a publicly funded reward for the handful of wealthy donors who have bankrolled the Republican takeover of Congress. Still, 13 Republican House members had the guts to stand up for their constituents and vote against the bill last week. Maine’s Poliquin should have been one of them.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 11/19/17]

- Editorial Board: “Poliquin Voted To Give Away Trillions Of Dollars To Extremely Wealthy Individuals And Corporations” While Cutting “Programs That [His] Middle-Class Constituents Rely On.” “Rep. Bruce Poliquin had a big week. The representative for Maine’s 2nd District voted to bankrupt graduate students, add $1.7 trillion to the federal deficit and cut $25 billion out of next year’s Medicare budget. And he did it all with a single push of a button. […] Poliquin voted to give away trillions of dollars to extremely wealthy individuals and corporations. The cuts would be partially offset by the elimination of most tax deductions, and what that wouldn’t cover would be added to the deficit ($1.7 trillion), triggering cuts to the programs that Poliquin’s middle-class constituents rely on, including Medicare, Social Security and financial aid for students.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 11/19/17]
The TCJA Gave Significant Tax Breaks For The Wealthy And Corporations While Increasing The Deficit And Taxes On Middle Class Families

Washington Post Fact Checker: “No Matter How You Slice It, The Superwealthy Do Rather Well Under The House GOP Proposal.” “Contrary to the president’s claim, the tax plan is not ‘so bad’ for the wealthy. In fact, no matter how you slice it, the superwealthy do rather well under the House GOP proposal. As we have said, that’s because they already pay a large chuck of income taxes already. Trump could actually make the distribution tables look better if he pushed to keep the AMT in place for incomes above $1 million and the estate tax in place for estates larger than $11 million. The failure to do so underscores the fact that this tax plan is not only for the middle class.” [Washington Post, 11/9/17]

Washington Post: Final Tax Bill Included A “Significant Tax Break For The Very Wealthy” And “A Massive Tax Cut For Corporations.” “A new tax cut for the rich: The final plan lowers the top tax rate for top earners. Under current law, the highest rate is 39.6 percent for married couples earning over $470,700. The GOP bill would drop that to 37 percent and raise the threshold at which that top rate kicks in, to $500,000 for individuals and $600,000 for married couples. This amounts to a significant tax break for the very wealthy, a departure from repeated claims by Trump and his top officials that the bill would not benefit the rich. [...] A massive tax cut for corporations “A massive tax cut for corporations: Starting on Jan. 1, 2018, big businesses’ tax rate would fall from 35 percent to just 21 percent, the largest one-time rate cut in U.S. history for the nation’s largest companies.” [Washington Post, 12/15/17]

New York Times: “Financial Institutions Are Among The Biggest Winners So Far, Reaping Benefits From A Lower Corporate Rate And More Preferable Tax Treatment For So-Called Pass-Through Companies.” The nation’s banks are finding a lot to love about the Trump administration’s tax cuts. The $1.5 trillion tax overhaul signed into law late last year provided deep and lasting tax cuts to all types of businesses, but financial institutions are among the biggest winners so far, reaping benefits from a lower corporate rate and more preferable tax treatment for so-called pass-through companies, which include many small banks. While some of the biggest banks are reporting fourth-quarter earnings hits stemming from the new tax law, they see rich benefits over the long term, including effective tax rates that are even lower than the new 21 percent corporate rate.” [New York Times, 1/16/18]

PolitiFact: GOP Tax Bill Would Raise Taxes For The Middle Class After Individual Tax Cut Provisions Expired In 2025. “Gillibrand said the Republican ‘tax [plan] raises middle-class taxes.’ That's not true during the first years of the new tax provisions. If not for the sunset for the tax changes for individuals, we likely would have rated Gillibrand's statement False or perhaps Mostly False. Middle-income taxpayers will either benefit or see no change in their tax liability through 2025. But her claim could hold up after the bill's individual provisions expire that year. There's no guarantee a future Congress will extend those parts of the bill.” [PolitiFact, 12/22/17]

April 2015: Poliquin Voted For Repealing The Estate Tax, Which Benefitted Multi-Millionaires Like Himself

Poliquin Voiced Support For Repealing The Estate Tax

October 2016: Poliquin Supported Repealing The Estate Tax. “Poliquin argued that energy costs and taxes are the two biggest factors holding back rural Maine’s economy. ‘The cost of energy has to go down, and taxes need to go lower,’ he said, adding that he supports repealing the estate tax.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/19/16]

PolitiFact: False – “Estate Tax ‘In Many Cases’ Forces Family Farmers And Small Business Owners To Sell Their Holdings. “The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates only 6 tenths of 1 percent of estates with farms qualified for the tax in 2013. The nonpartisan Tax Policy Center estimates that there were 20 small, closely held farms and businesses that were subject to the tax that year. It’s unknown how many of them, if any at all, were sold to pay the levy. So Hurt’s statement comes up empty. We rate it False.” [PolitiFact, 5/3/15]

Poliquin Voted To Repeal The Estate Tax

Poliquin Voted For Repealing The Estate Tax. In April 2015, Poliquin voted for repealing the estate tax. “The measure also would repeal the generation-skipping transfer tax and reduce the top marginal rate for the federal gift tax from 40 percent to 35 percent.” The bill passed, 240-179. [HR 1105, Vote #161, 4/16/15; CQ News, 4/16/15]

The Bill Impacted Fewer Than 6,000 Families. “This tax is levied on the portion of estates exceeding $5.43 million per person or $10.86 million per married couple, and because of those exemption levels, it affects less than 1 percent of estates, or fewer than 6,000 families in 2014.” [Philadelphia Inquirer, 4/19/15]

The Bill Would Add $269 Billion To The National Debt. “Voting 240 for and 179 against, the House on April 16 passed a GOP-sponsored bill (HR 1105) that would permanently repeal the federal estate tax in a way that would add $269 billion to national debt through fiscal 2025.” [Albuquerque Journal, 4/19/15]

Poliquin Supported Ryan’s FY 2015 Budget, Which Would Have Given Corporations And Millionaires Like Himself A Tax Cut While Raising Taxes On Families Making Less Than $200,000

July 2014: Bangor Daily News Editorial Headline: “Bruce Poliquin Supports The Paul Ryan Budget. But What’s Actually In It?” “Poliquin, the Republican former state treasurer, says he supports the Ryan plan. He told the BDN editorial board in May that he would like to see the plan balance the federal budget more quickly.” [Bangor Daily News, Editorial, 7/25/14]

CBPP: Families Making Less Than $200,000 Would Face Average Tax Hike of $3,000 Under Ryan’s Budget. “Families with children that have incomes below $200,000 would have to face tax increases averaging more than $3,000 a year, if policymakers were to avoid increasing the deficit while reaching Chairman Ryan’s 25-percent top-tax-rate goal… If policymakers enacted the same extremely ambitious reductions in tax expenditures for filers with incomes above $200,000…, filers with incomes of $1 million or more would lose tax breaks totaling about $90,000 on average – still leaving them with an average net tax cut of about $245,000…” [Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, 3/17/13]

CBPP: Millionaires Would Likely Experience A $245,000 Net Tax Cut Under Ryan’s Budget. According to an analysis of the Ryan Budget conducted by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, “If policymakers enacted the same extremely ambitious reductions in tax expenditures for filers with incomes above $200,000 that TPC assumed when it analyzed Romney’s tax plan, filers with incomes of $1 million or more would lose tax breaks totaling about $90,000 on average – still leaving them with an average net tax cut of about $245,000. Households with incomes above $200,000 would get a net cut of about $16,000.” [Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, 3/17/13]

- 2014: Poliquin Reported He Had An Estimated Net Worth Between $9,971,062 And $37,690,000. [Poliquin 2014 Public Financial Disclosure Report, Candidate Report, filed 5/15/14]

Ryan Budget Would Slash The Corporate Tax Rate From 35 Percent to 25 Percent. “Under the Ryan plan, the corporate tax rate would also fall, from 35 percent to 25 percent – although all those tax changes are supposed to be crafted to bring in the same amount of revenue as the current tax code, a tall order.” [New York Times, 3/12/13]

After an academic career at Phillips Academy followed by an economics degree from Harvard University, Poliquin helped build a New York City-based asset management firm called Avatar Investors Associates Corp., which handled $5 billion in worker pension funds for Bath Iron Works and International Paper, among others, according to the campaign’s website.” [Bangor Daily News, 5/17/10]

Zweig-DiMenna Cofounder Martin Zweig Was A Principal Of Avatar Associates, Which Poliquin Called An “Affiliate Company” Of Zweig/Avatar Group

1988: While Vice President Of Avatar Associates, Poliquin Called The Zweig/Avatar Group “Our Affiliate Company.” “[Byline: Bruce L. Poliquin, Vice president, Avatar Associates, New York] To the Editor: We appreciate Pensions & Investment Age recognizing our 1987 performance of 23% as one of the best in the business (March 7 issue). Our asset allocation style produced this return by remaining nearly fully committed to stocks during the market rise through August, and then systematically shifting heavily into cash during early September before the October crash. The article, however, was incomplete by not listing the 36.1% performance of our affiliate company Zweig/Avatar Trend Timing Services. This ranked No. 2 of all the managers surveyed. Zweig/Avatar practices our same asset allocation strategy, but uses no-load equity and money market mutual funds instead of individual securities to implement the portfolio stocks/cash mix decisions. This service is designed primarily for middle-market tax-exempt funds.” [Bruce Poliquin Letter to the Editor, Pensions & Investment Age, 5/30/88]

- Avatar Associates Was “An Original Division Of The Zweig/Avatar Group.” “Prior to joining Schwab in 2002, Sonders was a managing director at U.S. Trust (a division of Schwab, 2000-2007) and a member of its Investment Policy Committee. Before U.S. Trust, she was a managing director and senior portfolio manager at Avatar Associates (1986-1999), an original division of the Zweig/Avatar Group which employed a tactical asset allocation investment approach.” [Plus Company Updates, 6/6/16]

1984: Zweig Founded Zweig-DiMenna Partners. “Zweig wrote ‘Winning on Wall Street’ and published stock-picking newsletters such as the Zweig Forecast for 26 years, helping start his career in hedge funds and philanthropy. He co-founded Zweig-DiMenna Partners in 1984 and, according to the New York Post, bought a 16-room apartment at Manhattan’s Pierre hotel in 1999 for $21.5 million. He also had a residence in Fisher Island, Fla.” [Newsday, 2/19/13]

Andrew Kern Was A Portfolio Manager And Executive Vice President At Zweig-Avatar And Avatar Associates. According to his LinkedIn, Andrew Kern was a Portfolio Manager and Executive Vice President at Zweig-Avatar and Avatar Associates during an unspecified timeframe. In 1987, The Miami Herald reported, “‘There had been a lot of fear about rising rates,’ observed Andrew Kern, executive vice president of Avatar Associates, a money management firm in New York. ‘Today's news indicated the economy remains sluggish and there's no fear of more inflation or higher interest rates. That's the best explanation I can offer. This thing shocked me.’” [Andrew Kern LinkedIn, accessed 9/15/21; Miami Herald, 4/4/87]

Poliquin Voted Repeatedly To Roll Back Wall Street Reforms

2018: Poliquin Voted For A Bill That Would Raise The Minimum Asset Level At Which The More Stringent Bank Regulation Provisions Of The 2010 Financial Overhaul Applied From $50 To $250 Billion. In May 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would apply the more stringent bank regulation provisions of the 2010 financial overhaul to banks with $250 billion in assets, instead of those with at least $50 billion in assets. It would also allow banks with less than $10 billion in assets to trade with depositors’ money. The bill would lift the threshold for disclosure requirements to $10 million for employee-owned securities and would allow venture capital funds to have up to 250 investors and be exempt from certain registering requirements. It would provide consumers with the right to request a ‘security freeze’ on their credit reports, which would prohibit a consumer reporting agency from releasing information from the consumer’s credit report without express authorization. It would define a ‘qualified mortgage’ as any residential mortgage loan held by a bank, removing the requirement that for a ‘qualified mortgage,’ a bank must determine that a mortgage recipient has the ability to repay.” The bill was passed (thus cleared for the president) by a vote of 258-159. [S. 2155, Vote #216, 5/22/18; CQ, 5/22/18]

- Critics Said The Bill Created Loopholes That Larger Banks Would Exploit. “Rothfus made his claim after voting in favor of the Economic Growth, Regulatory Relief, and Consumer Protection Act, S. 2155, which supporters said will lessen the Dodd-Frank burden on community banking institutions — defined as those with less than $10 billion in assets — and which critics argue creates wiggle room and loopholes that larger banks will exploit. The rollback was signed into law by President Donald Trump on May 24.” [PolitiFact, 5/31/18]
• The Bill Contained Policies Which Would Roll Back Or Eliminate Key Parts Of Wall Street Reform.
  “Late last year the Economic Growth, Regulatory Relief and Consumer Protection Act, which was sponsored by Banking Committee Chairman Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, with nearly 20 co-sponsors on both sides of the aisle, was introduced in the Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs […] The bill contains policies which would roll back or eliminate key parts from the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act.” [Housing Wire, 3/6/18]

2017: Poliquin Voted For The CHOICE Act To “Overhaul Financial Industry Regulations And Repeal Many Provisions Of The 2010 Dodd-Frank Law.” In June 2017, Poliquin voted for: “passage of the bill that would overhaul financial industry regulations and repeal many provisions of the 2010 Dodd-Frank law. It would convert the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau into an executive agency funded by annual appropriations and would modify operations at the Federal Reserve and at the Securities and Exchange Commission. It would repeal the prohibition on banking entities engaging in proprietary trading and would modify regulations governing the amount of capital that banks are required to maintain. It would also nullify the Labor Department’s April 2016 “fiduciary” rule regarding standards for individuals who provide retirement investment advice to act in the best interests of their clients.” The bill passed 233-186. [HR 10, Vote #299, 6/8/17; CQ Floor Votes, 6/8/17]

• HEADLINE: House passes Choice Act that would gut Dodd-Frank banking reforms [CNBC, 6/8/17]

• New York Times: CHOICE Act “To Erase A Number Of Core Financial Regulations,” Including Limits On Risk Taking Enacted After The Financial Crash, And “Would Weaken The Powers Of The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau.” “The House approved legislation on Thursday to erase a number of core financial regulations put in place by the 2010 Dodd-Frank Act, as Republicans moved a step closer to delivering on their promises to eliminate rules that they claim have strangled small businesses and stagnated the economy. […] The Choice Act would exempt some financial institutions that meet capital and liquidity requirements from many of Dodd-Frank’s restrictions that limit risk taking. It would also replace Dodd-Frank’s method of dealing with large and failing financial institutions, known as the orderly liquidation authority — which critics say reinforces the idea that some banks are too big to fail — with a new bankruptcy code provision. In addition, the legislation would weaken the powers of the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau.” [New York Times, 6/8/17]

• Poliquin Claimed The CHOICE Act Would “End Big Wall Street Bank Bailouts” And “Create Stronger Safeguards For Consumers.” “Poliquin and all but one other House Republican voted for the Financial Choice Act. He said the legislation would ‘end big Wall Street bank bailouts, impose the most severe penalties in history for financial criminals, relieve Maine's community banks and local credit unions of smothering regulatory burdens and create stronger safeguards for consumers.’ […] Poliquin also said the measure would keep ‘very strong’ protections in place for consumers, ‘while at the same time imposing the toughest penalties ever for fraud and inside dealings for folks that participate in this industry.’ He called it ‘a great bill for rural America’ that the huge banks and Wall Street oppose despite its reduction in regulations.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 9/18/17]

2017: Poliquin Voted For Consideration Of The CHOICE Act That Would Repeal Many Provisions Of The Wall Street Reform. In June 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Adoption of the rule (H Res 375) that would overhaul financial industry regulations and repeal many provisions of the 2010 Dodd-Frank law. It would convert the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau into an executive agency, modify operations at the Federal Reserve and at the Securities and Exchange Commission, modify regulations governing the amount of capital that banks are required to maintain, and repeal the prohibition on banking entities engaging in proprietary trading.” The rule was adopted, 231-188. [H Res 375, Vote #291, 6/7/17; CQ, 6/7/17]

2015: Poliquin Voted For A Bill To Deregulate Wall Street. In January 2015, Poliquin voted for: legislation that combined the text from eleven bills and would roll back or delay a number of regulations in the Dodd-Frank financial reform law. “The most serious attack of the bunch came in the form of a partial two-year delay of the Volcker Rule, which would ban banks from speculating in securities markets with taxpayer money. The bill would have allowed Citigroup and JPMorgan Chase to hold onto almost $50 billion in risky corporate debt packages known as collateralized loan obligations through 2019.” The bill passed, 271 to 154. [HR 37, Vote #37, 1/14/15; Huffington Post, 1/10/14]

2015: Poliquin Voted For Weakening Wall Street Reform And Roll Back Rules Limiting Risky Bank Investments. In January 2015, Poliquin voted for: a bill “to relax some requirements under the 2010 Dodd-Frank financial regulatory law. The measure would delay until July 2019 a provision of the law’s Volcker Rule intended to limit risky investments by banks, and make other changes.” The vote failed to reach a 2/3 majority, 276 to 146. [HR 37, Vote #9, 1/7/15; Bloomberg, 1/7/15]

December 2017: Poliquin Introduced A Bill To Exempt Certain Financial Institutions From Stress Tests Mandated By Wall Street Reform

12/6/17: Poliquin Introduced HR 4566, The Alleviating Stress Test Burdens to Help Investors Act. [Congress.gov, HR 4566, 12/6/17]

- Poliquin’s Bill Would Exempt Certain Nonbank Financial Institutions, Including Mutual Funds, From Stress Tests Mandated By Dodd-Frank. “Asset managers and other nonbanks would be spared from Dodd-Frank Act stress tests under legislation passed March 20 by the House, but the bill faces a much tougher path in the Senate. Lawmakers voted 395-19 for H.R. 4566, sponsored by Rep. Bruce Poliquin (R-Maine). The bill exempts nonbank financial institutions, such as mutual funds, that are not under supervision by the Federal Reserve and whose primary regulator is the Securities and Exchange Commission or Commodity Futures Trading Commission from Dodd-Frank stress testing requirements.” [Bloomberg Law, 3/20/18]

- Lewiston Sun Journal: Stress Tests “Try To Assess The Stability Of Assets Held By Managers And Banks.” “Complicated stress test scenarios that try to assess the stability of assets held by managers and banks, the lawmaker said Tuesday, do not fit every type of institution.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 3/20/18]

- Poliquin Said Current Stress Test Regulations Were “Costly, Cumbersome And Unnecessary” And Reduced Returns On Investments. “Calling the existing law ‘costly, cumbersome and unnecessary,’ Poliquin told colleagues that changing the ‘one size fits all’ law benefits everyone who relies on mutual funds and other places where people put their money besides banks. The extra testing adds costs that aren’t needed, he said. ‘The higher the expense, the lower the rate of return,’ Poliquin said. What that leads to, he said, is a smaller nest egg.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 3/20/18]

3/20/18: HR 4566 Passed The House By A Margin Of 395-19. [HR 4566, Vote #119, 3/20/18]

Poliquin Voted To Allow Risky Mortgage Lending Practices

Poliquin Voted For Allowing Lenders With Fewer Than $10 Billion In Assets To Forego Mortgage Escrow Requirements. In December 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would exempt lenders with assets of $10 billion or less from the 2010 financial regulatory overhaul requirement that such lenders establish escrow accounts for the first five years of so-called "high-priced" mortgage loans, if the lenders hold the loan on its own balance sheet for three years after the loan is made, and it would exempt companies that service up to 20,000 mortgage loans from current loan servicing and escrow account administration requirements.” The bill passed 294 to 129. [HR 3971, Vote #675, 12/12/17; CQ, 12/12/17]

- Maxine Waters: HR 3971 Could “Set The Stage” For Another Financial Crisis. “A bill opponent, Rep. Maxine Waters, D-Calif., said dropping the regulations would ‘set the stage for a return of the harmful practices of the subprime meltdown and the worst financial crisis since the Great Depression.’” [Concord Monitor, 12/17/17]
Poliquin Voted For Exempting Home Manufacturing Companies From Mortgage-Related Regulatory Requirements And Increasing Threshold For “High Cost Mortgages.” In December 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would change the definitions of ‘mortgage originator’ and ‘loan originator’ to exempt companies that manufacture homes and sell manufactured homes from various mortgage-related regulatory requirements. It would increase the maximum allowable rates and fees that may be applied to a manufactured home loan before the loan is classified as a high-cost mortgage.” The bill passed 256 to 163. [HR 1699, Vote #651, 12/1/17; CQ, 12/1/17]

Poliquin Voted For A Bill That Created An Exception To Rules Meant To Reduce Risky, High-Cost Mortgages. In February 2018, Poliquin voted for: “passage of the bill that would exclude insurance paid at closing into escrow, as well as fees paid for related services to lender-affiliated companies, from the three percent cap on points and fees imposed on qualified mortgages by modifying the definition of ‘points and fees.’” According to the Center for Responsible Lending, “the Mortgage Choice Act would allow many more risky, high-cost loans to qualify as Qualified Mortgage (QM) loans by creating exceptions to the points and fees threshold.” The bill passed, 280-131. [H.R. 1153, Vote #64, 2/8/18; CQ, 2/8/18; Center for Responsible Lending, 11/13/17]

Poliquin Voted Against Protecting The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau

Poliquin Voted For Limiting Funding For The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau. In April 2015, Poliquin voted for: a bill that limited funding for the CFPB. “Passage of the bill that would formally establish three advisory boards with which the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) that must consult on matters regarding small businesses, credit unions and community banks. The measure is offset by limiting funding for the CFPB in future years. As amended, the bill would encourage the CFPB to ensure the participation of veteran-owned small-business concerns as members of the Small Business Advisory Board.” The bill passed 235-183. [HR 1195, Vote #167, 4/22/15; CQ News, 4/22/15]

Poliquin Voted Against Prohibiting Individuals Or Companies Convicted Of Predatory Lending From Serving On CFPB Boards. In April 2015, Poliquin voted against: a motion that protected military bases and veterans from predatory lenders. The motion would “prohibit individuals from serving as members of the any of the advisory boards if within the last ten years they have been employed or acted as an agent of a company whose been subject to a state or federal enforcement action for predatory lending or fraud against veterans or servicemembers.” The motion was rejected, 184-234. [HR 1195, Vote #166, 4/22/15; CQ News, 4/22/15]

April 2017: Kennebec Journal Editorial Board Called Poliquin One Of “The [Consumer Financial Protection] Bureau’s Biggest Critics” And Wrote That He Should Have Fought “Efforts To Defang The Bureau”

Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: Poliquin Was Among “The [Consumer Financial Protection] Bureau’s Biggest Critics” But Should Have Fought “Efforts To Defang The Bureau.” “Officials who credit their election to a wave of populist resentment are now doing their best to gut the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, which has won back billions of dollars for millions of bilked Americans. Some of the bureau’s biggest critics — including 2nd District Rep. Bruce Poliquin, who started attacking the bureau during his first term and hasn’t let up since — are Wall Street’s biggest champions, because they get a lot of money from the financial sector. But if they were truly committed to acting in the interest of the people who President Donald Trump has called ‘forgotten Americans,’ these lawmakers would fight efforts to defang the bureau and work to strengthen it instead.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 4/7/17]

Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: Poliquin Would Benefit From A Weakened CFPB Since He “Received Hundreds Of Thousands Of Dollars In Contributions From The Financial, Insurance And Real Estate Sector.” “Who’d benefit from a neutered Consumer Financial Protection Bureau? Not just the financial sector but also the politicians who barraged Cordray with questions and often-vague accusations at what was supposed to be a routine Financial Services hearing Wednesday, including Committee Chairman Jeb Hensarling of Texas and Ann Wagner of Missouri, as well as Maine’s Poliquin. Hensarling, Wagner and Poliquin each have received hundreds of thousands of dollars in contributions from the financial, insurance and real estate sector. Undoubtedly, so have their committee colleagues, given how much all politicians depend on the finance industry to fund their campaigns. Everyone wins except ordinary Americans — and dismantling the bureau will take away the only champion they have in Washington.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 4/7/17]

March 2018: Poliquin Signed A Brief Supporting Mick Mulvaney, Who Insinuated He “Would Like To Get Rid Of” The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, As Its Interim Director

March 2018: Poliquin Signed A Brief Supporting Mick Mulvaney As Interim Director Of The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau. “Late last week, a group of 113 congressional Republicans filed an amicus brief in English’s case, declaring their support for Trump’s authority to name Mulvaney as the interim CFPB director. […] The brief was submitted by the following Republicans: […] Representative Bruce Poliquin (R-Maine)” [HousingWire, 3/5/18]

• February 2018: Mulvaney “Pulled Back From A Full-Scale Probe Of How Equifax Inc Failed To Protect The Personal Data Of Millions Of Consumers” As Interim CFPB Director. “Mick Mulvaney, head of the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, has pulled back from a full-scale probe of how Equifax Inc failed to protect the personal data of millions of consumers, according to people familiar with the matter. Equifax (EFX.N) said in September that hackers stole personal data it had collected on some 143 million Americans. Richard Cordray, then the CFPB director, authorized an investigation that month, said former officials familiar with the probe. But Cordray resigned in November and was replaced by Mulvaney, President Donald Trump’s budget chief. The CFPB effort against Equifax has sputtered since then, said several government and industry sources, raising questions about how Mulvaney will police a data-warehousing industry that has enormous sway over how much consumers pay to borrow money.” [Reuters, 2/5/18]

• 2014: Mulvaney Called CFPB A “Joke” In A “Sick, Sad Kind Of Way” And Said “Some Of Us Would Like To Get Rid Of It.” “‘It’s a wonderful example of how a bureaucracy will function if it has no accountability to anybody,’ Mulvaney, a former South Carolina representative, said in a 2014 interview with the Credit Union Times. ‘It turns up being a joke, and that’s what the CFPB really has been, in a sick, sad kind of way, because you’ve got an institution that has tremendous authority over what you all do for a living.’ In the same interview, he called the CFPB ‘extraordinarily frightening.’ He said that ‘some of us would like to get rid of it’ altogether but acknowledged that it was unlikely, instead proposing reforms such as replacing the single director with a five-person commission.” [Vox, 11/16/17]

2014: Poliquin Op-Ed: Poliquin Claimed To Have Always Paid His Property Taxes In Full. “My opponent, Emily Cain, and her agents have spent nearly $2 million on nasty TV ads and mailers personally attacking me. For months, she has attacked my successful professional career, which was earned with many years of hard work and sacrifice. She’s even attacked my record of always paying all property taxes in full (thousands of dollars), always!” [Kennebec Journal Poliquin Op-Ed, 10/31/14]

October 2016: Poliquin Campaign Website: “Congressman Poliquin Has Always Paid His Taxes – In Full! Don’t Believe The Lies On TV.” “False Attacks on Congressman Poliquin’s Taxes First and foremost, Congressman Poliquin has always paid his taxes – in full! Don’t believe the lies on TV. Congressman Poliquin did not break any tax rules or tax laws and he did not violate any program. He has paid literally THOUSANDS of dollars on the particular property extreme Emily Cain and her liberal allies are attacking him on. Again, his taxes are always paid and are always paid in full.” [Poliquin for Congress, 10/13/16]

April 2013: Poliquin Filed For A Homestead Exemption For His Out-Of-District Georgetown, ME Property.
In April 2013, Poliquin filed a homestead exemption for 186 Ledgemere Rd, Georgetown, Maine. On the document, he did not list a location where he had previously asserted a Homestead Exemption. [Town of Georgetown, Application for Homestead Exemption, 4/01/13]

- 186 Ledgemere Rd Was Located In Maine’s 1st Congressional District. [House.gov, accessed 7/29/21]

- Poliquin Indicated That He Had A Homestead Property Within The Last Twelve Months In Another Municipality On His April 2013 Homestead Exemption Application, But Did Not List Its Address. [Town of Georgetown, Application for Homestead Exemption, 4/01/13]
Homestead Exemption Was Claimed On Poliquin’s Georgetown, ME Property For The 2013 Fiscal Year. [186 Ledgemere Road Property Card, Town of Georgetown, updated 2015; 186 Ledgemere Road Property 2013 Tax Bill, 12/17/13]

Note: The Maine Tree Growth Program did not result in direct exemptions, but likely drastically changed the property valuation of the 10 acres enrolled in it instead, resulting in much lower property taxes. The Maine Tree Growth Program was not recorded on this property card as a tax exemption.

2004: Poliquin Applied For The Maine Tree Growth Program After The Town Of Georgetown Denied His Request For A Reduced Tax Assessment

January 2004: Poliquin Requested A $1.1 Million Tax Abatement On His Georgetown, Maine Property. In his 2004 tax abatement application for his property in Georgetown, Poliquin wrote, “Assessed valuation of real estate: $1,768,568 Requested abatement in value: $1,136,962. […] I believe that it is fair and reasonable to conclude that the cumulative effect of these restrictions and easements is to further reduce the value of my land by 20% resulting in the proposed final value of $631,606.” [Poliquin’s Application for Abatement of Property Taxes, Town of Georgetown, 1/21/04]

In His Application For The Tax Abatement, Poliquin Claimed He Was Being “Unfairly Discriminated Against” Because Comparable Properties Were Valued Lower Than His. In his 2004 tax abatement application for his property in Georgetown, Poliquin wrote, “Specific reasons for abatement: The total 12.3 acres of my land is designated as the much higher-valued Homesite class. Two other comparable Georgetown properties which I have identified are designated partly as the lower-valued Rear Lands. Therefore, I believe that I am being unfairly discriminated against.” [Poliquin’s Application for Abatement of Property Taxes, Town of Georgetown, 1/21/04]

Poliquin Claimed Restrictions On Subdivisions And Construction On His Land, As Well As Upkeep He Was Required To Maintain For A Nearby Nature Conservancy, Reduced The Value Of His Land. “I further believe that I am being unfairly discriminated against in the Town’s property valuation process because apparently no consideration has been given for the severe deeded restrictions/easements imposed on my land. Specifically: (a) my lot cannot be subdivided; (b) my lot cannot be used for any commercial purposes; (c) there cannot be any additional structure on my land; (d) the sizes of the current structures are limited; (e) the Nature Conservancy can require me to maintain its satisfaction of the .7 mile road through its nature preserve to my property; and (f) the thousands of members of the Nature Conservancy have the right to traverse my land.” [Poliquin’s Application for Abatement of Property Taxes, Town of Georgetown, 1/21/04]

April 2004: The Town Of Georgetown Rejected Poliquin’s Request For A Reduced Tax Assessment. In January 2004, Poliquin asked the town of Georgetown to reduce his tax assessment by more than $1.1 million. Both the town and the Sagadahoc County commissioners rejected his appeal. In a letter to Poliquin dated April 7, 2004, Georgetown’s Chair of Selectmen wrote, “On the basis of Mr van Tuinen’s recommendation, we voted unanimously to deny your application for an abatement.” In a letter to the Board Assessors dated March 24, 2004, Bill Van Tunien wrote, “Bruce Poliquin, Map R10 Lot 34A has requested an abatement from a land value of $1,768,568 to a land value of $631,606, a reduction of $1,136,962. The request states that this parcel has been valued entirely as shorefront land compared to two other similarly situated peninsula parcels of land. […] I discussed this property with Mr. Poliquin yesterday. At the time, I could not explain the discrepancy between the number of shorefront acres assigned with his property compared to the Long Island property and I indicated that an adjustment might be called for. However, I do think it was reasonable to value the island properties the way that I did. I do not recommend an abatement.” [Letter, Town of Georgetown, Bill Van Tuinen to Board of Assessors, 3/24/04]

July 2001: Poliquin Purchased Property Located At 186 Ledgemere Rd In Georgetown, ME. [Sagadahoc Registry of Deeds, Deed, Instrument # 1892-0250, Recorded 7/25/01]
After The Abatement Was Denied, The Chair Of The Board Of Selectman Suggested Poliquin Apply For The Maine Tree Growth Program. In an April 2004 letter to Bruce Poliquin, the Chair of the Board of Selectman wrote to Poliquin, stating, “We reviewed your application for an abatement of the taxes on your lot […] at our last meeting. We asked our professional assessor, Bill Van Tuinen, how to deal with the property such as yours, with water and water views on three sides. He said that, after looking carefully at the lot, he did not think putting some land into a rear category would be appropriate. Instead, he recommended that you consider seeking tree-growth status for much of the lot, and we agree.” [Letter, Town of Georgetown, William F. Plummer IV to Bruce Poliquin, 4/07/04]

- Maine Department Of Agriculture: The Maine Tree Growth Program Gave Tax Breaks To Owners Of “Land Managed Primarily For The Production Of Commercial Forest Products.” “The Maine Legislature enacted the Tree Growth Tax Law in 1972 to help Maine landowners maintain their property as productive woodlands, and to broadly support Maine’s wood products industry. By choosing to develop a Woodland Management Plan designed to realize the value of your timber (and meet other goals for your forest) through well-planned harvests over time, your property may be eligible for enrollment. You should be sure you understand all of the benefits and obligations of Maine's Tree Growth Tax Law, as well as the penalties for removing your land from the program. To enroll your property in the Maine Tree Growth Tax Program, you must have at least ten acres of forest land managed primarily for the production of commercial forest products. You may benefit from a reduction in property taxes, making it more affordable for you to own and manage your woodland. The decision to enroll land in the Maine Tree Growth Tax Program is a long term one. The penalties for removing land from the program can be high, so consider all the aspects before enrolling.” [Maine Department of Agriculture, Conservation, and Forestry, accessed 8/23/21]

4/14/04: Poliquin Received Approval To Enroll 10.3 Acres Of His Georgetown Property In The Maine Tree Growth Program From Georgetown’s Assessor. In a letter to Mary McDonald, Town of Georgetown Assessor, dated March 6, 2012, Poliquin wrote, “In applying for and maintaining my L0.3-acre lot in the Tree Growth Program, I have relied on the following: 1. A letter dated April 7, 2004 from the Town of Georgetown Board of Selectmen recommending that I consider enrolling the property in the Program. According to the letter, the recommendation originated from the Town's outside professional assessor, to which the Selectmen agreed. 2. The approval of my land being enrolled in the Program by the Georgetown Assessor dated April 14, 2004.” [Letter, Town of Georgetown, Bruce Poliquin to Mary McDonald, 3/6/12]

The Deed For Poliquin’s Property At 186 Ledgemere Rd Prohibited Tree Harvesting

Poliquin Received A Tree Harvesting Tax Credit For His Georgetown Property, Despite Having A Deed Restriction On Tree Harvesting. “Bruce Poliquin, former state treasurer and Republican nominee, was asked whether it was ethical for him to enroll his Georgetown oceanfront property in Maine’s Tree Growth Tax Program, even though there were restrictions on the property that largely prevented tree harvesting. The program gives tax cuts to landowners whose property can be used for commercial harvesting.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/23/14]

Poliquin Claimed A Timber Tax Credit On His Property, Despite A Deed Restriction That Prohibited Timber Harvesting. “Problem is, when then-state Treasurer Poliquin’s use of the loophole came to light in 2012, inquiring minds quickly discovered that a deed restriction on his property largely prohibited any timber harvesting or other forestry activities the Tree Growth program was designed to encourage.” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 10/26/14]
Covenant Of The Deed Expressly Prohibited The “Excessive Cutting Of Trees.” The deed for his property in Georgetown states, “Trees may be thinned only for purposes of view, and the environment shall be completely protected at all times from the excessive cutting of trees.” [Sagadahoc County Registry of Deeds, Instrument # 1892-0250, 7/25/01]

In His 2004 Tax Abatement Application, Poliquin Admitted His Property “Cannot Be Used For Any Commercial Purposes.” In his 2004 tax abatement application for his property in Georgetown, Poliquin wrote, “I further believe that I am being unfairly discriminated against in the Town’s property valuation process because apparently no consideration has been given for the severe deeded restrictions/easements imposed on my land. Specifically: … (b) my lot cannot be used for any commercial purposes.” [Poliquin’s Application for Abatement of Property Taxes, Town of Georgetown, 1/21/04]

Between 2004 And 2012, Poliquin Received A Reduced Tax Assessment On His Georgetown Property And Paid Only $30.53 Per Year In Taxes On The Estate’s 10 Oceanfront Acres

After Enrolling In The Maine Tree Growth Program, Poliquin’s Georgetown Property’s Assessed Value Dropped From $1.7 Million To $725,500. “Financially, it worked out rather nicely for Poliquin. By putting 10 of his 12 acres in tree growth in 2004, he dropped the overall assessed value of his land from $1,768,600 to $725,500 with the simple stroke of a pen. For the 2011-12 tax year, that land has a total value of $943,500 – of which the 10 acres in tree growth account for a paltry $4,300.” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 10/26/14]

Poliquin Paid $30.53 Per Year In Taxes On 10 Acres Of Oceanfront Property. “According to Georgetown’s property records, Poliquin’s tax bill is $6,668 on the two acres directly beneath his humble abode. (Taxes on the house and other structures total just over $13,000). And the annual tax on the 10 acres of prime oceanfront land just behind the mansion? That would be $30.53. You read that right.” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 10/26/14]

2012: After Facing Backlash Over Possible Misuse Of The Maine Tree Growth Program, Poliquin Surrendered It And Applied For A Different Tax Break

February 2012: Bangor Daily News Headline: “State Treasurer Poliquin Under Fire For Possible Misuse Of Tax Abatement Program. “Questions have arisen about State Treasurer Bruce Poliquin enrolling the majority of his 12-acre oceanfront property in the state's tree growth tax relief program. At the same time, lawmakers on Thursday tentatively approved a bill that tightens the standards for those who are enrolled in the tree growth program so it can't be used simply as a tax shelter. … According to Mary McDonald, who is the assistant to the Georgetown Board of Selectmen, Poliquin enrolled in the program in 2004 when he applied to set aside 10 acres of his property for tree growth. By doing so, he reduced the assessed value of his property from about $1.75 million to $725,000 and saved $5,000 annually in property taxes, according to Maine's Majority, which cited town tax records.” [Bangor Daily News, 2/02/12]

3/6/12: Poliquin Applied For The Open Space Land Program After Surrendering The Tree Growth Tax Break. [Town of Georgetown, Poliquin Open Space Land Application Schedule, dated 3/6/12, received 11/17/21]

• The Open Space Tax Program Was Intended For Land That “Provide[s] A Public Benefit” By “Conserving Scenic Resources,” “Enhancing Public Recreation Opportunities,” “Promoting Game Management.” Or “Preserving Wildlife Or Wildlife Habitat.” “WHAT IS OPEN SPACE Land that is preserved or restricted in use to provide a public benefit in any of the following areas: a Conserving scenic resources a Enhancing public recreation opportunities a Promoting game management a Preserving wildlife or wildlife habitat” [Maine Revenue Services, 10/12/17]

• In His Application, Poliquin Wrote His Property “[Met] The Public Benefit Test” Because Its “Open Space And Scenic Natural Resources Will Help Maintain The Unique Georgetown Landscape Which Is Important To Attracting Tourism And Commerce To The Area.” “[Application:] List the factors, as appropriate, to demonstrate this parcel meets the public benefit test. [Poliquin:] Preserving my land’s open space and scenic natural resources will help maintain the unique Georgetown landscape which is important to attracting tourism and commerce to the area.” [Town of Georgetown, Poliquin Open Space Land Application Schedule, dated 3/6/12, received 11/17/21]

- Poliquin Wrote That He Applied To Transfer His Property To The Open Space Program Because His Property Became “An Unfair Distraction To The Georgetown Municipal Officials, My Neighbors, And Me.” “Although my 10.3-acre lot is only one of the 23,000 state-wide properties, totaling 11 million acres, enrolled in the Maine Tree Growth Program, it has become an unfair distraction to the Georgetown municipal officials, my neighbors, and me. To avoid further distractions concerning my property going forward, I have decided to withdraw my aforementioned lot from Tree Growth and to apply for its transfer to the Open Space Program. […] My goal to permanently preserve the land’s open space and conserve scenic resources is a good match with the public benefits of the Open Space Program targeted by the Town and State.” [Poliquin Letter to Town of Georgetown Assessor Mary McDonald, dated 3/6/12, received 11/17/21]

6/27/12: Tax Assessor Bill Van Tuinen Recommended Approving Poliquin’s Application For Open Space Tax Break And It Was Accepted The Next Day. In a 2012 letter to the Georgetown Board of Assessors, the tax assessor, Bill Van Tuinen, wrote, “In my opinion, the application for open space taxation from Bruce Poliquin is completely in order and should be accepted by the Board of Assessors for taxation under open space. … Accordingly, I recommend that the Board accept the application for open space taxation of the Bruce Poliquin parcel.” The application was approved by the Board of Assessors the next day. [Memorandum, Town of Georgetown, Bill Van Tuinen to Board of Assessors, 6/26/12; Letter, Town of Georgetown, Mary F. McDonald to Bruce Poliquin, 6/27/12]

- June 2012: Portland Press Herald Estimated Poliquin Would Save Approximately Half Of His $943,000 Valuation Through The Open Space Land Tax Break. “However, critics like Freeman believe Poliquin has avoided tens of thousands of dollars in property taxes. He’ll still receive a significant property-tax break in the Open Space program, approximately 50 percent of his most recent valuation of $943,000.” [Portland Press Herald, 6/27/12]

- Portland Press Herald: Landowners “Typically” Have To Pay Back Taxes After They Withdraw Properties From The Tree Growth Program. “Poliquin paid about $30 a year in property taxes for a 10-acre parcel of oceanfront forest he had enrolled in the program. He was later able transferred the land in question into another open space conservation program that provides less of a tax break. Typically landowners who withdraw their properties from tree growth program are then required to pay a penalty often in the form of back taxes on what the land would have been valued at had it not been in the program.” [Portland Press Herald, 7/26/12]

- June 2012: Poliquin Denied That His Open Space Tax Break Application Was Related To Any Misuse Of The Tree Growth Program And Called The Story “An Unfair Distraction.” “Poliquin said Tuesday that his decision to transfer the property to Open Space had nothing to do with an inappropriate use of the Tree Growth program. ‘It’s an unfair distraction to Georgetown municipal officials, my neighbors and me. End of story,’ he said in a phone interview Tuesday afternoon.” [Portland Press Herald, 6/27/12]

2016: When Asked If He Took Advantage Of the Tree Growth Program, Poliquin Said He “Scrutinize[d]” His Tax Bills

When Asked Whether He Got A Lower Tax Rate Through The Main Tree Growth Tax Abatement Program, Poliquin Said That He, As A Real Estate Businessman, Scrutinized His Tax Bills With A Business Manager. HOST: “[21:20] Are you saying here today that you did not put any of your land in the Tree Growth tax abatement program, that you never put any land, waterfront land into that program?” POLIQUIN: “What I am saying, Jennifer, is that I’ve paid every single tax I’ve owed always in full.” HOST: “But did you get a lower tax because you took advantage of that program?” POLIQUIN: “Jennifer, I’m in the real estate business. I have properties in different parts of the state. And when I get a tax bill, I look at it, I scrutinize it my business manager does with me. And business, rather property is tax different ways. Depending on the parcel it is. And this happens to be a parcel along the coast, there are other parcels that are not, and I’ve paid every dollar I've owed in taxes. Always.” [CSPAN, 2018 Maine Public ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/19/16] (VIDEO)

As Of November 2021, Poliquin’s Property Was Still Enrolled In The Open Space Program

As Of November 2021, Poliquin’s Property Was Still Enrolled In The Open Space Program. As of November 2021, a note on the property card for 186 Ledgemere Road read, “WVT 2012, PARCEL ACCEPTED INTO OPEN SPACE VALUATION FOR 10.1 ACRES. 2 ACRES IS A SHOREFRONT HOMESITE, NOT IN OPEN SPACE. 0.2 ACRES IS A ROAD-DRIVEWAY, NOT IN OPEN SPACE. 10.1 ACRES IS WATERFRONT IN OPEN SPACE ADJUSTED 50%, 20% FOR ORDINARY OPEN SPACE AND 30% FOR PERMANENT PROTECTION. THE PERCENT GOOD FACTOR OF 65.8% APPLIED TO THE SEPARATE 10.1 ACRES OF SHOREFRONT HOMESITE IS TO BRING THE VALUE OF THIS PORTION OF THE PARCEL DOWN TO THE SAME LEVEL IT WOULD HAVE BEEN AS PART OF THE VALUE OF THE ENTIRE FRONTAGE UNDER REGULAR VALUATION.” As of November 2021, the Valuation Report for 186 Ledgemere Road included a reference to “10.1 ACRES OPEN SPACE 2012” [186 Ledgemere Road Property Card, Georgetown Tax Assessor, received 11/17/21; Valuation Report, received 11/17/21]

Poliquin Voted For Making Individuals With Severely Delinquent Tax Debt Ineligible For Federal Employment

Poliquin Voted For Making Individuals With Severely Delinquent Tax Debt Ineligible For Federal Employment. In April 2015, Poliquin voted for a bill that would make individuals with “seriously delinquent tax debt” ineligible for federal employment, and would include existing federal employees. The bill failed, 266-160. A two thirds majority was required to pass the bill, under suspension of the rules. [HR 1563, Vote #157, 4/15/15; CQ News, 4/15/15]

- Bill Opponents Noted That The Tax Compliance Rate Was 97 Percent For Civil Servants. “Opponents noted in debate that the tax compliance rate for civil servants was 97 percent in 2014, compared to 95 percent for House members and their staffs and 91 percent for the public at large. Civil servants owed $1.14 billion in delinquent taxes last year.” [Bakersfield Californian, 4/18/15]

2011 – 2012: While Maine State Treasurer, Poliquin Ran A Real Estate Business, Requested Property Tax Abatements, And Petitioned A Planning Board

Poliquin Claimed He Was Not Attached To His Businesses While In Office, But Actively Sought Reduced Tax Abatements On Corporate Properties And Petitioned A Planning Board As State Treasurer

2011 – 2012: Poliquin Was Maine State Treasurer

December 2011: Poliquin Claimed He Was “Right By The Book” While Maintaining Ownership Of His Businesses While Serving As Maine’s Treasurer

December 2011: Poliquin Claimed He Was “Right By The Book” In Maine Ethics Law Regarding His Businesses, Which He Said Were “Run By Professionals [He] Trust[ed].” “Then-Attorney General Janet Mills, now vice chair of the Maine Democratic Party, said Tuesday that her office told Poliquin it could not give him legal advice until he actually took over as treasurer. ‘I think we encouraged him to seek his own private legal counsel if he had any questions – because he wasn’t a public official,’ Mills said. Whether he did isn’t clear. But in that interview last month – which he put off until he was driving home that night because ‘this deals with a private-sector thing … (and) I’m right by the book’ – Poliquin told me that his various businesses now ‘are run by professionals I trust and I’ve worked with for a number of years.’” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 1/18/12]

2011: Poliquin Requested Tax Abatements On Two Of His Phippsburg Properties And Successfully Obtained $1,833.88 In Tax Abatements

9/18/11: Poliquin Sought A Tax Abatement From The Phippsburg Town Assessor For His Two Business Properties Using His State Government Email. In September 2011, Poliquin corresponded with the Phippsburg town assessor via email about having both the Popham Beach Club property and 106 Sagamore Dr reassessed. Poliquin represented himself as one of the active contacts for the Popham Beach Club and the Popham Woods development. Poliquin also included his title, Maine State Treasurer, in his signature and sent the emails from his official state email address (bpol@maine.rr.com). [Email, Bruce Poliquin to Juanita Wilson, 9/18/11]

9/9/11: Poliquin E-Mailed The Phippsburg Assessor To Request A Meeting About His Property Taxes. On September 9, 2011, then-State Treasurer Bruce Poliquin sent an e-mail to Juanita C. Wilson-Hennessey, the “Contract Assessing Agent” for the Town of Phippsburg, stating the following: “I’d like to take you up on your offer to meet regarding my Phippsburg property taxes … I’m concerned about all the properties, especially Popham Woods Condominium and the Popham Beach Club.” [Phippsburg Assessor’s Office e-mail, 9/9/11]

- The Assessor Responded That “Certified Appraisal” And “Firsthand View” Would Be The Only Factors In A Potential Adjustment. On September 14, 2011, Wilson-Hennessey responded with the following: “The only paperwork that will be relevant is a certified appraisal for any of the units, which I am willing to review with an open mind, but my first view is likely to whether I see room for further value adjustment.” [Phippsburg Assessor’s Office e-mail, 9/14/11]

- Poliquin Replied With Concern Over The Assessed Value’s Impact On Condo Fees And Selling Units. On September 18, 2011, Poliquin responded with concern over the impact the high assessed values were having on the monthly condominium fees and, therefore, Poliquin’s ability to sell the units. “Besides the Popham Woods Units and the Popham Beach Club, a real concern of mine is the common land value at Popham Woods. As you know, it’s now values at several times the assessed value a few short years ago … This spiking common land value has driven up the monthly maintenance fee at PW to $303. This, in turn, is a major reason why we haven’t been able to sell the Units. Comparable condo homes in Brunswick, for example, have monthly fees roughly $150 – 200. The $303 per month fee scares potentials [sic] buyers away. It happened again last week. Without a more realistic common land value, the Town will not receive the full tax benefit of building out the project and selling the homes. Lastly, I’d welcome you taking another look at Wood Island.” [Phippsburg Assessor’s Office e-mail, 9/18/11]

- Poliquin Used His “Maine State Treasurer” Signature In Both E-Mails To The Assessor. In both the September 9 and 14 e-mails, Poliquin indicated in his signature that he was the “Maine State Treasurer.” [Phippsburg Assessor’s Office e-mail, 9/18/11, 9/9/11]

December 2011: Poliquin Petitioned The Phippsburg Planning Board To Expand Operations At His Beach Club, Which He Later Admitted Was “A Dumb Thing To Do”
December 2011: Poliquin Personally Petitioned The Phippsburg Planning Board To Expand Operations At His Beach Club. “Last month, Poliquin appeared before the Phippsburg Planning board seeking to expand allowable uses for his beach club from a $1,950-per-season, members-only facility to ‘year-round catered functions including but not limited to corporate meetings, family, church, civic gatherings and health retreats.’” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 1/18/12]

- Poliquin Later Called His Petition Of The Phippsburg Planning Board “A Dumb Thing To Do.” “In December, Poliquin went before the Phippsburg Planning Board to expand operations at a beach club near a residential development he built. Poliquin now admits that was a mistake, telling a Portland radio station, ‘That was a dumb thing to do.’” [Portland Press Herald Editorial Board, 2/14/12]

February 2012: The Maine State Attorney General Suggested That Poliquin “Disassociate” Himself From His Business Entities While In Office

January 2012: Maine State Rep. Mark Dion Requested Maine’s Attorney General Opinion On Whether Poliquin’s Business Dealings In Office Violated The State Constitution. “Maine legislative Democrats say a second request is being filed with the state attorney general on whether Treasurer Bruce Poliquin’s private business dealings violate the state Constitution. Portland Democratic Rep. Mark Dion made a second request for a formal opinion on Poliquin’s business dealings as owner of the Popham Beach Club. Dion sent his initial request for an opinion to Attorney General William Schneider on Jan. 17. The Attorney General’s Office is investigating. Democrats say the Constitution bars the treasurer from engaging in any business of trade or commerce while serving in that office.” [Portland Press Herald, 1/30/12]

February 2012: Maine Attorney General Suggested That Poliquin “Disassociate” Himself From His Business Entities While In Office. “[Republican Attorney General of Maine William Schneider] did offer an opinion of what Poliquin should do next. ‘With respect to the Treasurer, any activities related to the active management of stock or other ownership interests should be handled by third persons in the absence of any authority suggesting that such activities are acceptable when undertaken directly,’ Schneider wrote. ‘During the Treasurer’s term in office he should take steps to disassociate himself from the active management of any of the entities in which he is invested and any entities in which he is the sole owner or principal or agent.’” [Bangor Daily News, 2/10/12]

Maine State Democrats And Opinion Writers Criticized Poliquin’s Handling Of His Real Estate Business While Serving As Maine’s State Treasurer

Maine State Senator Phil Bartlett Called For Poliquin’s Resignation Over His Conflicts Of Interest: “[Poliquin] Has Thumbed His Nose At The Maine Constitution”

May 2012: Maine State Senator Phil Bartlett Called For Poliquin’s Resignation Over His Conflicts Of Interest: “[Poliquin] Has Thumbed His Nose At The Maine Constitution.” “Maine families are struggling in these tough economic times. They are concerned about putting food on their tables, making sure their children have health care and a decent education, and maybe someday having the means to retire. Maine’s public servants are tasked first and foremost with safeguarding the interests of our working families. Time and time again, Maine State Treasurer Bruce Poliquin has chosen not to answer this call. He has kowtowed to special interests and squandered state resources on a political witch hunt. He has exploited loopholes for personal gain, forcing his neighbors to pay more for services that he uses. He has thumbed his nose at the Maine Constitution by engaging in prohibited personal business dealings. For these reasons, he must resign.” [State Senator Phil Bartlett, Press Release, 5/30/12]

4/1/12: Elliott Epstein Op-Ed: Poliquin Was “The Most Ethically Challenged Member Of Gov. Paul LePage’s Administration.” “It seems appropriate that State Treasurer Bruce Poliquin, the most ethically challenged member of Gov. Paul LePage's administration, has declared his candidacy for the U.S. Senate, probably the most ethically challenged legislative body in the United States.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Elliott Epstein Guest Column, 4/1/12]

• Elliott Epstein Op-Ed: Poliquin’s Dealings With His Real Estate Company While State Treasurer Were “Particularly Egregious.” “Poliquin has been criticized for failing to disclose his business ties on a state conflict-of-interest form (a lapse he has since cured by amending his filing), for improperly using Maine’s ‘tree growth’ tax break to reduce his real estate taxes on 10 acres of waterfront property (a lapse he has also cured by taking the land out of ‘tree growth’) and for running a real estate development business while acting as state treasurer. The last item involves Poliquin’s ownership of Dirigo Holdings LLC, which runs Popham Woods Condominiums in Phippsburg that includes memberships in Poliquin's Popham Beach Club. Poliquin even appeared last year before the Phippsburg Planning Board on behalf of the Beach Club. Poliquin’s participation in this business venture is particularly egregious. It violates more than just an inconsistently enforced and difficult-to-interpret legislative statute like the ‘tree growth’ law. It runs counter to a fundamental provision of the state’s highest law, the Maine Constitution.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Elliott Epstein Op-Ed, 4/1/12]

Elliott Epstein Op-Ed: Poliquin’s Leadership Of A Real Estate Company While Maine State Treasurer “Runs Counter To A Fundamental Provision Of The State’s Highest Law, The Maine Constitution.” “Poliquin's participation in this business venture is particularly egregious. It violates more than just an inconsistently enforced and difficult-to-interpret legislative statute like the ‘tree growth’ law. It runs counter to a fundamental provision of the state's highest law, the Maine Constitution. Article V, section III of the Maine Constitution states: ‘The Treasurer shall not, during the treasurer's continuance in office, engage in any business of trade or commerce, or as a broker, nor as an agent or factor for any merchant or trader.’ It seems a reasonable requirement to impose on the official responsible for the state's finances. Unless ‘business of trade or commerce’ is read extremely narrowly to mean only the sale of goods (the kind you can bag or box and walk away with), it's hard to make a straight-faced argument that Poliquin is not engaged in the kind of business barred by Article V.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Elliott Epstein Op-Ed, 4/1/12]

March 2012: The Maine Supreme Court Declined To Rule After The Maine House Of Representatives Voted Unanimously To Request They Issue An Opinion On Whether Poliquin Had Violated The Maine Constitution By Engaging In Commerce While In Office

3/1/12: The Maine House Of Representatives Voted Unanimously To Request That The Maine Supreme Court Issue An Opinion On Whether Poliquin’s Business Dealings While In Office Violated The Maine Constitution. “The Maine House of Representatives unanimously passed an order Thursday requesting the state’s highest court to issue an opinion on whether Treasurer Bruce Poliquin has violated the state constitution by engaging in commerce while in office. By a 122-0 vote, lawmakers approved House Order 41, offered by Majority Leader Philip Curtis of Madison, that asks the Maine Supreme Judicial Court to weigh in Poliquin’s situation. Curtis’ order reads, in part: ‘If it is determined that the ‘Treasurer of State has engaged in any business of trade or commerce, or as a broker, or as an agent or factor for any merchant or trader, does that finding affect or have an impact on the validity of the actions taken by the Treasurer of State in the performance of his official duties as used in the Constitution of Maine, Article V, Part 3, Section 3?’” [Bangor Daily News, 3/1/12]

3/29/12: The Maine Supreme Court Declined To Rule On Poliquin’s Potential Constitutional Violation. “Maine’s highest court has declined to issue a ruling on a complaint that state Treasurer Bruce Poliquin violated the state Constitution by engaging in commerce while in office. [...] ‘The record contains no findings or adjudication regarding the nature of any alleged constitutional violation; no facts have been presented to the Justices through the communication from the House of Representatives; the questions themselves are presented in the abstract and do not indicate the context in which they should be evaluated; and the record is silent with regard to the need for the discharge of any duties of the House of Representatives or the proposed commencement of any action by the Executive or Legislative Branch or any other governmental entities,’ the opinion reads. ‘Absent clear facts on which to opine, the questions present too broad a range of potential factual and legal possibilities. Given the procedural posture of this matter, we cannot conclude that an unusual exigency exists concerning a matter of live gravity.” [Bangor Daily News, 3/29/12]

<td>As Of June 2017, Poliquin’s Bangor Office Was Only Open To Constituents By Appointment And Rerouted Calls To Its Presque Isle Branch. “A photo with the post shows the door to the new office, which lists the hours as 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. Le, who said she visits the Bangor offices of Poliquin and of Maine's senators every week, said those hours were removed from Poliquin's within the past week. She said that when she walked into the building on Tuesday, she was greeted with a note that states Poliquin's office is now open by appointment only. When she called the number listed on the note, the call was routed to the lawmaker's Presque Isle office.” [Bangor Daily News, 6/20/17]</td>

As Of October 2018, All Of Poliquin’s In-District Offices Were Only Open To Constituents By Appointment. “All three of Poliquin’s challengers have said they will open the doors on district offices that Poliquin has closed. His policy is for constituents to schedule appointments with his staff rather than having the option of walking in during business hours. Maine’s two senators and its other member of Congress, U.S. Rep. Chellie Pingree, a 1st District Democrat, all have open-door policies. ‘Only Bruce Poliquin locks the doors of his state offices,’ Golden’s campaign said. Poliquin’s staff has said many times that the way they handle constituents allows them to focus on problems more efficiently and to provide more assistance than they would otherwise have time for.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/6/18] |

As Of February 2017, Poliquin Banned Photography And Audio Recording At An In-District Office, Which His Spokesperson Said Protected Constituents’ Privacy

February 2017: A Letter To The Editor Questioned Why Poliquin Banned Photography And Audio Recording At His In-District Office. “Why has U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, the self-anointed "Our Congressman," placed a notice at his Lisbon Street office banning photography and audio recording? Is this his modest contribution to the growing Republican ban-fest -- immigrants, health insurance, a woman's right to choose, a woman's right to speak on the Senate floor? Has he joined the growing ranks of his Republican colleagues who are avoiding transparency and are increasingly afraid of their constituents? David Das, Auburn” [David Das Letter to the Editor, Lewiston Sun Journal, 2/16/17]

Poliquin’s Spokesperson Defended The Practice As Beneficial For Constituents’ Privacy. “Editor’s note: Bendan [sic] Conley, Press Secretary for U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, offered the following statement: Congressman Poliquin wants to ensure his office is as welcoming and safe as possible for all constituents of Maine’s 2nd Congressional District, including by protecting constituents’ privacy. This policy is fully compliant with the guidance from the nonpartisan Office of General Counsel of the U.S. House of Representatives. Congressman Poliquin welcomes and encourages all constituents to visit his office and to share their diverse viewpoints, be active in our communities, and respectfully express their opinions.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 2/16/17]

2017: Poliquin Moved Bangor District Office To Be Only Accessible By Stairs And Denied Constituents’ Allegations That It Violated The ADA

May 2017: Poliquin Announced A New Location For His Bangor Office That He Said Was Needed “Due To Size Constraints And Increased Staff.” “Congressman Bruce Poliquin’s (ME-02) Bangor office has moved to a new location at 4 Union Plaza, Suite 7. The office will maintain the same phone number (942-0583) and fax number (942-7101) and will continue providing casework services for constituents, as always. Due to size constraints and increased staff, the office has been actively seeking a new space since early Fall 2016.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 5/17/17]

The New District Office Space Was Less Physically Accessible Space, Causing “Some Constituents” To Accuse Him Of Violating The Americans With Disabilities Act. “Having an office in downtown Bangor will mark a departure from Golden's predecessor, former U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, who began his two-term tenure in Congress with an office on the first floor of 6 State St. But two years ago, Poliquin angered some constituents when he relocated the office to a space at 4 Union Plaza, near the Bangor waterfront, that was less physically accessible. The office suite's location forced visitors to walk up a small set of stairs, prompting accusations that the office didn't comply with accessibility standards set by the Americans with Disabilities Act, a claim Poliquin's staff disputed. At the time, Poliquin's staff responded that they would meet with constituents at other locations if they couldn't reach the office.” [Bangor Daily News, 1/17/19]

- Bangor Resident Samantha Le Said Poliquin’s Office Was “Not ADA Compliant” And Added, “He Says He's All About Veterans. Well, A Lot Of These Vets Are In Wheelchairs.” “‘It's four steep steps down into his office,’ Bangor resident Samantha Le said Tuesday. ‘His office is not ADA compliant,’ she said, referring to the Americans with Disabilities Act. Poliquin's new office is in Suite 7 inside 4 Union Plaza, a building under the Bangor side of the Joshua Chamberlain Bridge. ‘He says he's all about veterans. Well, a lot of these vets are in wheelchairs,’ Le said.” [Bangor Daily News, 6/20/17]

June 2017: A Group Of Poliquin’s Constituents Gathered At Poliquin’s Bangor Office To Demonstrate Its Three Steps Made It Inaccessible To Wheelchair Users. “A group of disabled constituents represented by a Maine congressman say his Bangor office is inaccessible to them and others. WABI-TV reported that the group gathered Tuesday at U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin's office to demonstrate the difficulty they have in accessing his office. The group said the building's broken doorbell and three steps leading to the office space present problems for them. Marianna Fricke, a constituent who uses a wheelchair, said she feels left out and powerless.” [Associated Press, 6/21/17]

Poliquin Spokesperson: “We Are Confident That The Office Is In Compliance With Our Accessibility Obligations Under The Americans With Disabilities Act.” “‘We have consulted with legal counsel and we are confident that the office is in compliance with our accessibility obligations under the Americans with Disabilities Act,’ Conley said.” [Bangor Daily News, 6/20/17]

- Poliquin’s Spokesperson: “We Have A Longstanding Policy To Meet Individuals With Mobility Disabilities At Alternate Locations That Meet Their Specific Needs.” “Poliquin spokesman Brendon Conley told the BDN in an email, ‘Our [Bangor] office DOES have signage on the building for those who require assistance when entering for an appointment.’ He added, ‘Our office has been, and remains, firmly committed to providing members of the public with equal access to the office's services and assistance.’ This ‘equal access’ includes meeting people who can't get into the office at other locations, Conley said. ‘We have a longstanding policy to meet individuals with mobility disabilities at alternate locations that meet their specific needs,’ Conley said.” [Bangor Daily News, 6/20/17]

2016: Poliquin Refused To Tell Constituents How He Would Vote In The Upcoming Presidential Election Or Maine’s Five Referenda

October 2016: Poliquin “Declined To Comment” On Any Of Maine’s Referenda, Including Question Three. “Poliquin also declined to comment when asked for his thoughts on Maine's five referendum questions. Cain said she opposes marijuana legalization, but supports ranked-choice voting, expanded background checks for gun sales and raising the minimum wage.” [Kennebec Journal, 10/18/16] contested 2nd District, has made it clear to this point he will not say whether he supports GOP standard-bearer Donald Trump. […] Poliquin has refused on many occasions to say whether he endorses Trump.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/1/16]

Poliquin Dodged And Disparaged Reporters

August 2017: Poliquin said “It Would Be Stupid For Me To Engage The National Media To Give Them And Everybody Else The Ammunition They Need And We Lose This Seat.” “In the audio, Rep. Poliquin can be heard saying he intentionally avoids the national media. Here is the full transcript: ‘We must win these seats. Flashback to 2016 last year. How many times did a newspaper reporter, Joe, put a microphone in my nose and say, ‘Yeah I know you just had a great event. New balance shoes, 900 jobs, American made jobs in Norway, Skowhegan and Norridgewalk. But by the way, Mr. Trump, your nominee, just said this. What's your reaction?’ As soon as you go down that path, Mark, you are in the swamp. You are exactly where they want you to be. Do not take the bait. […] You think the press is bad in Maine? They are - it's unbelievable. And they are dying to get you on record to say whatever. And that becomes the next. So I used to think that folks in Congress like me because I'm a big hearted Frenchman like Norman. I'm a happy guy. And I'm always walking around knowing exactly where we're going. The reason is because they need our seat. There are two dozen – that's it – two dozen swing districts in the country. […] So we've got to be incredibly careful. Now do I talk to the national media? Not often. I've been dying to do what you want me to do. Dying to do it. We've got to be very... It would be stupid for me to engage the national media to give them and everybody else the ammunition they need and we lose this seat. You have to be really careful.’” [News Center Maine, 8/25/17] (AUDIO) 00:58

- Poliquin: “The Socialist Group, Maine People's Alliance, Secretly Recorded Bruce Saying What Everyone Already Knows To Be True...Many National Media Outlets Push An Agenda That Is Biased.”

“The socialist group, Maine People's Alliance, secretly recorded Bruce saying what everyone already knows to be true...many national media outlets push an agenda that is biased. That is no shock to anyone that reads the Portland Press Herald or BDN or listens to MPBN radio. However, what they fail to mention is that just this past week alone, Bruce had WVII join him for an event in Penobscot Co., WABI joined him for an event in Hancock Co., and every Bangor station joined Bruce to announce his new Veterans Advisory Panel, composed of Veterans all across Maine's Second Congressional District. The reality is that Bruce would rather spend his time actually working for our Maine Seniors, Veterans, small business owners and families than get sucked into the accomplish-nothing drama that surrounds DC.”

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 8/26/17]

- Boston Globe Editorial Board: “Poliquin Campaigns Like An Undercover Candidate,” Without Posting His Schedule Or Returning Calls And Emails From Reporters. “Poliquin campaigns like an undercover candidate. His office doesn’t put out an advance schedule of where he will be. His campaign spokesman doesn’t return calls. Or e-mails. Or texts. Constituent visits to his Bangor and Lewiston offices were, until recently, by appointment only.” [Boston Globe Editorial Board, Boston Globe, 11/2/18]

- Boston Globe Editorial Board Called Poliquin A “Duck-And-Dodge” Who Used “Scare Tactics To Stave Off A Formidable Contender.” “All of which is to say, Poliquin is a poor fit for Maine, a party-line — and duck-and-dodge — Republican using scare tactics to stave off a formidable contender. Jared Golden would be a far better choice.” [Boston Globe Editorial Board, Boston Globe, 11/2/18]

February 2018: Poliquin “Is Refusing Most Interview Requests” And “Attempting To Maintain A Low, Hyper-Local Profile And Avoid The Inevitable Questions About Trump’s Chaotic Presidency.” “In his bid to hang on and buck the anti-Trump tide, Poliquin is attempting to maintain a low, hyper-local profile and avoid the inevitable questions about Trump’s chaotic presidency. He employed the same strategy in his successful 2016 reelection campaign. And again he is refusing most interview requests — a key part of his under-the-radar approach — and would not talk to the Globe for this article. ‘I drove the press crazy for nine months because I stayed on message’ and avoided questions about Trump in 2016, Poliquin said, in audio recorded at an event sponsored by the Maine Heritage Policy Center. ‘And it worked.’” [Boston Globe, 2/10/18]

Bangor Daily News: Poliquin “Has Taken Flak For Avoiding The Media Or Carefully Scripting His Interactions With Reporters.” “From last year when he consistently dodged questions about whether he supported Republican presidential nominee Donald Trump to this spring, when he scooted into a bathroom to avoid saying how he would vote on a health care bill, U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, a Republican who represents Maine’s 2nd District, has taken flak for avoiding the media or carefully scripting his interactions with reporters.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/19/17]

September 2018: Poliquin “Rarely Makes Himself Available To The Press.” “Poliquin, who rarely makes himself available to the press, paused for a while after talking to seniors in Canton to talk to the Sun Journal, to explain why he enjoys serving in a Congress that only one American in six thinks is doing well and even fewer actually trust.” [ Lewiston Sun Journal, 9/22/18]

Portland Press Herald Editorial Board On Poliquin: “Has There Ever Been A Public Official In Maine Who Gets So Much Attention For Saying So Little?” “Has there ever been a public official in Maine who gets so much attention for saying so little? Poliquin has been characteristically busy in recent months, sending out frequent news releases about his activities. He’s posted photographs of his name plate on his Veterans Affairs Committee room desk, and he’s announced the winners of the 2nd District high school art contest. What he hasn’t done is visit his district for unstructured meetings with constituents in town hall settings, and he hasn’t chosen to comment on the biggest issues facing the nation and his district in the first few weeks of this administration. The last public event posted on his website was in August, and no future events are scheduled” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 2/27/17]

- Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: Poliquin “Doesn’t Want To Upset Critics Of [Trump] Or His Hard-Core Conservative Supporters, So He Stands On The Sidelines Whenever He Can.” “It’s obvious why Poliquin is doing this: He doesn’t want to upset critics of the new administration or his hard-core conservative supporters, so he stands on the sidelines whenever he can. But why people in his district let him get away with it is a mystery. In these polarized times, it’s hard to see how anybody could be satisfied with a congressman who tries to straddle every issue. Until they force him to change, however, expect Poliquin to keep everybody guessing where he stands.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 2/27/17]

2018: Portland Phoenix Editors Named Poliquin The “Best Elusive Creature” Of 2018

2018: Portland Phoenix Editors Named Poliquin The “Best Elusive Creature” Of 2018. “Our readers' poll covers 180 or so of the most distinguished features Portland and its surroundings has to offer. But there's always more we appreciate that we can't quite stuff into a category. Or in some cases, more that we can't resist dragging in print. Here are our 2018 Editors Picks. Best Elusive Creature: Bruce Poliquin” [Portland Phoenix, Editorial Board, 5/8/18]

- Portland Phoenix Editorial Board: “It Might Be Easier To Find Bigfoot Squatting In The Allagash Woods Than To Get Rep. Bruce Poliquin On The Phone Or Find Him Talking To Constituents.” “It might be easier to find Bigfoot squatting in the Allagash Woods than to get Rep. Bruce Poliquin on the phone or find him talking to constituents. Apart from the occasional GOP functions or mainstream media appearance, the GOP Maine House Representative from District 2 has been this most elusive this year. This of course, is a shame, because after a year of witnessing his opposition to more relaxed work requirements for SNAP recipients, Medicaid expansion, legal retail marijuana, along with his undying loyalty for Wall Street and the NRA, many Mainers would like a word with him.” [Portland Phoenix, Editorial Board, 5/8/18]

- Portland Phoenix Editorial Board Wrote That They Had “Sent Out Probably Dozens Of Media Requests To [Poliquin’s] Office That Have All Gone Unanswered.” “Apart from the occasional GOP functions or mainstream media appearance, the GOP Maine House Representative from District 2 has been this most elusive this year. This of course, is a shame, because after a year of witnessing his opposition to more relaxed work requirements for SNAP recipients, Medicaid expansion, legal retail marijuana, along with his undying loyalty for Wall Street and the NRA, many Mainers would like a word with him. That includes us — we’ve sent out probably dozens of media requests to his office that have all gone unanswered! Brucie, where are you?” [Portland Phoenix, Editorial Board, 5/8/18]

2017 – 2018: Poliquin Accused Two Of Maine’s Leading Publications Of Bias Against Him

July 2017: Poliquin: “If You Were To Grab A Dictionary And Look Up The Word ‘Biased,’ You Would Find The Portland Press Editorial Board Listed As A Prime Example.” “Newsflash: If you were to grab a dictionary and look up the word "biased," you would find the Portland Press Editorial Board listed as a prime example. Look no further than yesterday where they again mischaracterize Bruce's positions and continue to attempt to paint him in a negative light, claiming he has avoided questions on issues that he has held press conferences on, participated in multiple in-depth TV interviews, discussed on radio and sent out numerous press releases on. Share with your friends because you know it's true.”

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 7/27/17]

Poliquin Claimed Bangor Daily News’ “Editorial Staff Has Purposely Misreported Bruce's Record For More Than Four Years” After Its Editorial Board Endorsed Golden. “We are pleased to announce the socialist candidate in the race, Jared Golden, has been endorsed by the Bangor Daily News. Their editorial staff has purposely misreported Bruce's record for more than four years. The paper highlights Golden's opposition to welfare reform, specifically work requirements for able-bodied adults to receive taxpayer-funded welfare. And they identify Golden’s scheme to more than double taxes on Maine families and small businesses while putting Medicare at risk for seniors. Unlike Jared Golden, most Mainers and Bruce think that these are bad ideas and don't want a socialist representing them in Congress. Please share if you agree.”

Poliquin Went To Great Lengths To Obscure His Support For Repealing The ACA From His Constituents And Reporters

March 24, 2017: Poliquin Refused To Say Whether He Planned To Support The AHCA Hours Before A Vote On It Was Called Off

3/24/17: Poliquin “Refused To State His Position” On The AHCA Hours Before A Vote On It Was Called Off. “Poliquin refused to state his position on the House health legislation before the vote was called off March 24. In a statement days beforehand, Poliquin said he had met with Trump at the White House and urged him and House leadership to push for increased benefits for those nearing retirement and families living in rural areas. Poliquin said at the time that he wanted “to ensure that rural Mainers and those ages 50 to 64 will be able to buy policies under the American Health Care Act,” the name of the health care overhaul proposed by Republicans.” [Portland Press Herald, 4/5/17]
• Poliquin’s Spokesperson Did Not Comment To Media And His DC Office Did Not Pick Up Maine Reporters’ Calls The Day The Vote Was Scheduled. “Leading up to a historic health care system overhaul vote that ultimately was canceled Friday, U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, wouldn’t take a formal stance on the legislation. […] Conley didn’t respond immediately to request for comment Friday on whether Poliquin had an official stance on the GOP bill. Multiple calls Friday afternoon to Poliquin’s office in Washington received automated replies saying the voicemail was full.” [Portland Press Herald, 3/24/17]

• Colby College American Government Professor Sandy Maisel: Poliquin Was “Conspicuously Absent From This Debate” Leading Up To The Cancelled AHCA Vote. “But in some ways, Poliquin also has boxed himself into a corner and been ‘has been conspicuously absent from this debate,’ said Sandy Maisel, Goldfarb professor of American government at Colby College in Waterville. ‘The Republican alternative to the Affordable Care Act obviously hurts people like the elderly in rural Maine. Senator Collins could always say that, and she has been outspoken on the issue,’ Maisel said. ‘But congressman Poliquin is trying to be loyal to the Republican Party. I think his greatest hope was that it would never come to a vote.’” [Portland Press Herald, 3/24/17]

April – May 2017: Poliquin Avoided Reporters And Constituents In The Months Leading Up To The AHCA Vote – Even Hiding In A Bathroom To Escape Questions

Poliquin Did Not Hold A Town Hall Of Any Kind For More Than A Month Leading Up To His Vote For The AHCA. “A Poliquin spokesman, asked why the lawmaker has not conducted a town hall, said Poliquin prefers ‘telephone town halls,’ since his district is so large. He last held one of those at the end of March.” [Boston Globe, 5/15/17]

• May 2017: Asked If Poliquin Would Host Town Halls After Voting For The AHCA, Poliquin’s Spokesperson Said He “Has Been Actively Hearing From ALL 664,000+ Constituents Of Maine’s 2nd District.” “Asked whether Poliquin plans any town hall-style meetings in the 2nd District or other means of explaining the bill to constituents, Conley said via email, ‘The Congressman has been actively hearing from ALL 664,000+ constituents of Maine’s 2nd District and will continue to do so and work to best serve ALL 664,000+ Mainers he represents.’” [Kennebec Journal, 5/5/17]

May 2017: When A Reporter Asked If He Planned To Vote For The AHCA, Poliquin “Said Nothing And Made A Beeline To The Restroom,” Accidentally Entered The Women’s Restroom, Then “Scurried Away.” “As House Republican leaders claim they’re getting ever closer to acquiring the votes they need to pass the American Health Care Act, pressure is mounting on a number of still-reluctant, vulnerable GOP members of Congress to fall in line. As such, those members want to go into hiding. Here is a taste of what it’s like trying to pin down an undecided Republican member of Congress on his or her possible Trumpcare vote this week. Maine Rep. Bruce Poliquin has yet to declare either his support or opposition for the bill. As he was walking out of the House Republican conference’s morning meeting Tuesday, I asked him if he had arrived at a decision. He said nothing and made a beeline to the restroom. Unfortunately it was the door to the women’s restroom that he had first run to, so he corrected himself and went into the men’s room. When he emerged several minutes later, he was wearing his earbuds and scurried away.” [Slate, 5/2/17]

Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: Poliquin “Ducked Questions On The Issue For Months” Then “Stuck With His Party's Leaders And Supported The Bill, Even Though Thousands Of His Constituents Would Suffer.” “Poliquin, on the other hand, stuck with his party’s leaders and supported the bill, even though thousands of his constituents would suffer. Poliquin ducked questions on the issue for months until he had no choice but to cast a public vote.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 7/18/17]

In The 48 Hours Before The Vote On AHCA, Poliquin Returned To Maine Because His Father Suffered A Stroke. “In the last 48 hours my father suffered a stroke and I had to rush back home from Washington to help him.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 5/4/17]
May 4, 2017: Poliquin Announced His Support For The AHCA Thirty Minutes Before He Voted For It During A 15-Minute Conference Via Phone At Which “Only Selected TV Reporters Could Ask Questions”

5/4/17: Poliquin Announced He Would Support The AHCA Thirty Minutes Before Voting For It. “Poliquin, a Republican who represents Maine's 2nd District, has long said he opposed former President Barack Obama's signature 2010 legislation, the Affordable Care Act, but it wasn't until a half-hour before Thursday's House vote that Poliquin finally announced his support after dodging earlier questions from reporters. During the call, Poliquin sought to minimize the bill's effect in his home state, incorrectly saying that it would affect only 7 percent of Mainers.” [Kennebec Journal, 5/5/17]

- 5/4/17: Bill Nemitz Column: Poliquin Announced His Support For AHCA Over A Press Conference Via Phone That Lasted 15 Minutes Where “Only Selected TV Reporters Could Ask Questions.” “Then, rather than follow up with a full-fledged news conference, Poliquin opted for a phone call with the members of Maine's media. Some only learned of it indirectly and at the last minute on Twitter. For those who managed to patch into the call came this twist: Only selected TV reporters could ask questions. The rest were instructed beforehand to keep their traps shut. […] Poliquin's phone chat lasted all of 15 minutes. In keeping with his the-less-I-say-the-better approach to representing Maine's oldest and poorest region, it was just enough to let him off the hook.” [Kennebec Journal, Bill Nemitz Column, 5/7/17]

5/4/17: Poliquin Announced Support For AHCA In A Press Release: “There Are Powerful Special Interest Groups In Augusta And Washington Trying To Scare Us Into Doing Nothing.” “There are powerful special interest groups in Augusta and Washington trying to scare us into doing nothing. They say if we change the imploding ObamaCare law, millions of Americans will lose their health insurance. Families are already losing coverage because their plans have been cancelled by insurance providers. The special interests say those approaching retirement and the poor won’t be able to afford health insurance if ObamaCare is changed. That’s not true. They can’t afford it now due to high deductibles and increasing premiums. If the few providers in Maine offering ObamaCare go under or pull out due to continued massive financial losses, we will have no ObamaCare policies in Maine at all. That is not acceptable. I was elected to Congress to fix our serious problems. That’s exactly what I’m doing. If we don’t fix this ObamaCare problem, it’s going to get worse.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 5/4/17]

5/4/17: Poliquin Voted For The American Health Care Act. In May 2017, Poliquin voted for repeal and replace major parts of the Affordable Care Act. According to the New York Times, the bill “would eliminate tax penalties for people who go without health insurance. It would roll back state-by-state expansions of Medicaid, which covered millions of low-income Americans. And in place of government-subsidized insurance policies offered exclusively on the Affordable Care Act’s marketplaces, the bill would offer tax credits of $2,000 to $4,000 a year, depending on age. […] The nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office said the first version of the bill would trim the federal budget deficit considerably but would also leave 24 million more Americans without health insurance after a decade. Average insurance premiums would be 15 percent to 20 percent higher in 2018 and 2019, but after that, they would be lower than projected under current law.” The bill passed by a vote of 217-213. [HR 1628, Vote #256, 5/4/17; New York Times, 5/4/17]

May 2017: Poliquin Attempted To Dodge A Reporter Who Asked If He Planned To Support The AHCA By Walking Into A Women’s Restroom

May 2017: When A Reporter Asked If He Planned To Vote For The AHCA, Poliquin “Made A Beeline To The Restroom,” Accidentally Entered The Women’s Restroom, Then “Scurried Away” Wearing Earbuds. “As House Republican leaders claim they’re getting ever closer to acquiring the votes they need to pass the American Health Care Act, pressure is mounting on a number of still-reluctant, vulnerable GOP members of Congress to fall in line. As such, those members want to go into hiding. Here is a taste of what it’s like trying to pin down an undecided Republican member of Congress on his or her possible Trumpcare vote this week. - Bill Nemitz Column Called Earbuds A “Fitting Symbol For Poliquin” Since “The Poor Guy Apparently Can’t Hear, Let Alone Answer, Tough Questions.” “[HEADLINE: Bill Nemitz: Earbuds are fitting symbol for ever-silent Rep. Poliquin] For those who haven't already heard, that's where the Republican congressman from Maine's 2nd District mistakenly almost took refuge inside the U.S. Capitol on Wednesday when a persistent reporter tried to ask for his position on repealing the Affordable Care Act. A short time later, Poliquin hastily emerged from the men's room wearing ear buds -- his clumsy add-on to a pre-existing condition that has afflicted him since the day he first arrived in Washington, D.C. The poor guy apparently can't hear, let alone answer, tough questions.” [Kennebec Journal, Bill Nemitz Column, 5/7/17]

2018: Poliquin Repeatedly Denied That He Voted To Repeal The ACA

November 2018: Poliquin Dismissed Attacks On His Health Care Record As “The Craziest Thing I’ve Ever Seen.” “Poliquin argued on WGAN radio on Friday that criticism of his health-care record is ‘the craziest thing I’ve ever seen.’ He insisted he supports Medicaid, Medicare and coverage for those with pre-existing conditions. He also pointed to his 2015 vote to keep President Barack Obama’s ACA until an acceptable alternative could be found. That is true. But his vote last year would, by all accounts, have repealed the ACA and cut Medicaid assistance. It also would have opened the door for insurance companies to charge older Americans more for their coverage.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/2/18]

October 2018: At A Candidate Debate, Poliquin “Framed His Vote To Repeal The Affordable Care Act As A Move To Replace It With A Market-Based Alternative.” “On the issues, Poliquin continued to defend his votes on health care. He framed his vote to repeal the Affordable Care Act as a move to replace it with a market-based alternative -- but was vague when asked about his plan to make health care more affordable for Mainers. He dismissed as too expensive Golden's Medicare-for-all approach, which would lower the eligibility age, allowing people 55 and older to buy into the plan.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/17/18]
The Lewiston Sun Journal Rated The DCCC’s Claim That Poliquin Would Take Away Protections For People With Pre-Existing Conditions As “Partly True And Partly False” Since He Voted For ACA Repeal. “POLIQUIN IS AGAINST COVERING PRE-EXISTING CONDITIONS? Democrats, including Golden, have ripped into Poliquin for allegedly failing to protect the availability of health insurance for those with pre-existing conditions. In a Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee advertisement, someone asks whether Poliquin would ‘take protections away for people with pre-existing conditions?’ and then answers, ‘Yes.’ Advertisement Poliquin calls it a lie. It’s actually partly true and partly false. The reality is that Poliquin has always defended the need for coverage of pre-existing conditions, pointing out that his son has asthma, but he voted in 2017 for a health care plan that experts said would have made it difficult for many people with pre-existing conditions to pay for health care.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/1/18]

The Lewiston Sun Journal Rated Poliquin’s Emphasis On His 2015 Vote Against ACA Repeal “Less Than Genuine” Since He Voted For Repeal In 2017. “POLIQUIN SUPPORTS THE AFFORDABLE CARE ACT? Poliquin routinely talks about his 2015 vote in opposition to repeal of the Affordable Care Act. What he doesn’t mention often is his House vote in 2017 in favor of repeal of the same law, which sent the issue to the U.S. Senate, where Republican Susan Collins of Maine voted against repeal, retaining the program. For that reason, his comments on the campaign trail about his 2015 vote are less then genuine.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/31/18]

October 2018: Poliquin Denied That He Voted To Repeal The ACA: “I Voted For A Replacement Plan.” “After being one of only three House Republicans to vote against a 2015 bill that would have repealed the Affordable Care Act, Poliquin in May 2017 was the only member of Maine's congressional delegation to vote to repeal the health insurance program, also known as Obamacare. Poliquin denied his vote to repeal as recently as last week in a story from WMTW-TV. When asked if he voted to repeal, he said, ‘No, I voted for a replacement plan.’” [Bangor Daily News, 10/15/18]

2018: Poliquin Framed Himself As A Defender Of The ACA By Only Highlighting His Votes Against Repeal In 2015

October 2018: During Candidate Debate, Poliquin Only Mentioned His Vote Against Repealing The ACA In 2015, Not His More Recent Vote To Repeal It In 2017. “Poliquin’s 2017 vote to repeal the Affordable Care Act came up often — but not when he was talking. The only mention he made about the ACA was to note that in 2015 he was one of three Republicans to vote against its repeal.” [Portland Press Herald, 10/9/18]

- October 2018: Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: Poliquin “Mostly Remains Silent” On His Decision To Vote For ACA Repeal. “Poliquin also voted to repeal the Affordable Care Act in ways that would have been devastating, stripping 24 million Americans of health insurance by 2026, including more than 100,000 Mainers. And while Poliquin has become an ardent supporter of protecting Americans with pre-existing conditions since he got on the campaign trail, his votes say otherwise. Poliquin chooses not to explain his position. Other members of Maine's congressional delegation frequently comment on the most important issues facing the country, while Poliquin mostly remains silent.” [Portland Press Herald Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 10/28/18]

September 2018: Poliquin Removed Language Advertising His Opposition To The Affordable Care Act From His Website. “So Democrats say it’s noteworthy that Poliquin has overhauled his campaign website for the Nov. 6 election to downplay his opposition to the health care program that many residents depend on for insurance. The language he used in 2014 and 2016 is gone. Instead, the two-term Republican vows to ‘continue to work on improving access to affordable, quality health care in Maine.’ […] Though Vice President Mike Pence and House Majority Leader Kevin McCarthy, R-Calif., have both said in recent days they intend to continue to try to repeal the ACA, some of the most vulnerable Republicans, including Poliquin, are no longer pushing the issue on the campaign trail.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 9/7/18]

- 2016: Poliquin’s Campaign Website Listed “End Obamacare” As An “Action Item. “ACTION ITEMS: Eliminate unnecessary job-killing regulations Lower heating oil, gasoline, electricity costs End Obamacare […]
Ending Obamacare and allowing Americans to shop across state lines to buy health insurance will lower unaffordable monthly premiums.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/29/16]

- 2018: Poliquin’s Campaign Website Did Not Mention The Affordable Care Act Nor The American Health Care Act In Its “Health Care” Section. [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/5/18]

Poliquin Touted His “Understanding Of The Tradition” Of Hunting And Fishing

August 2015: Poliquin Justified Support For Concealed Carry Based On His “Understanding Of The Tradition” Of Hunting And Fishing

“WASHINGTON – This weekend, Maine’s Second District Congressman, Bruce Poliquin, will be attending the gun show in Augusta. Congressman Poliquin released the following statement: ‘Growing up in Central Maine, I understand the importance and tradition of fishing, camping, hunting and exercising our Second Amendment rights. From combating the Administration’s proposed ban on M855 5.56 x 45mm ammunition to supporting a national concealed carry reciprocity bill, I have supported numerous bills that will help protect Mainers’ Second Amendment rights.’” [Poliquin Press Release, House of Representatives, 8/20/15]

- September 2018: The NRA Political Victory Fund Chair Called Poliquin “A True Champion Of Our Second Amendment Freedoms And Hunting Heritage.” “On behalf of our six million members across the country, the National Rifle Association Political Victory Fund (NRA-PVF) today endorsed Bruce Poliquin for re-election to the U.S. House of Representatives in the 2nd Congressional District of Maine. ‘Congressman Poliquin is a true champion of our Second Amendment freedoms and hunting heritage,’ said Chris W. Cox, NRA-PVF chairman.” [NRA Political Victory Fund Press Release, NRA Political Victory Fund, 9/20/18]

2014: Poliquin Attacked His Opponent’s Stance On Gun Rights By Saying She Didn’t Understand Maine’s Hunting Culture. POLIQUIN: “[6:55] I’m very proud to have the endorsement of the National Rifle Association. I also have the highest rating of the Sportsman’s Alliance of Maine. I grew up in Maine. My opponent, Miss Cain is from Kentucky and New Jersey. And she clearly doesn't understand our heritage and our culture here in the state of Maine. There are thousands of our families that enjoy the great outdoors and enjoy the sport of hunting. So I just don't believe as Miss Cain does that we want to restrict our Second Amendment rights. As a member of Congress, I will support all of our constitutional rights, including our Second Amendment rights. And you know, the state of Maine has one of the highest percentage of our population with gun ownership. And one of the lowest excuse me incidents of crime with guns so it works up here in Maine. I'm sorry that my opponent Miss Cain wants to restrict our gun rights here in the state of Maine. I do not. I want to protect them because it works up here in Maine.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter General Election Debate, 10/14/14] (VIDEO)

Poliquin Repeatedly Claimed He Used A Marlin .22 Long Lever Action Rifle That He Bought At Age 14

2014: Poliquin Claimed He Still Owned A Marlin .22 Long Lever Action Rifle He Bought At Age 14 And Continued To Use It To Target Shoot. POLIQUIN: “I still have the 22 long lever action Marlin that that I bought when I was age 14. Now it misfires, but I still use it to target shoot. So we need to protect our Second Amendment rights and not whittle away at them.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter General Election Debate, 10/14/14] (VIDEO) 7:48

2016: Poliquin Campaign Website: “I Still Use My .22-Long Lever Action Marlin Rifle That I Bought At Age 14.” “For generations, 2nd District families like my own have responsibly used firearms to enjoy our long tradition of hunting and target shooting, and to ensure the protection of our rights and property. I’m a strong supporter of the Second Amendment and always have been. I still use my .22-long lever action Marlin rifle that I bought at age 14.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/29/16]

2010: Poliquin Said He Grew Up With Firearms. POLIQUIN: “[11:48] This is the most rural, largest congressional district east of the Mississippi River. We grew up with firearms. It’s the safest state in the union.” [C-SPAN, 2018 ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/16/18] (VIDEO)

...But As Of September 2021, Poliquin Did Not Have An Active Hunting Or Fishing License, And Has Never Had A Hunting License

September 2021: A FOAA Request For Any Fishing Or Hunting Licenses Currently Held By Poliquin Did Not Yield Results. In response to a FOAA requesting “releasable (or redacted) copies of hunting/fishing licenses, permits, and tags issued” to Bruce Poliquin, Christl Theriault, Assistant to the Commissioner of Maine’s Department of Inland Fisheries & Wildlife, wrote, “After conducting a search of our hunting and fishing license information, staff could find no records related to your request.” [Maine Department of Inland Fisheries & Wildlife, received 9/16/21]

Poliquin Did Not Hold An Active Hunting Or Fishing License In Maine As Of November 2021. As of November 2021, Maine MOSES Hunting & Fishing Licenses listed Poliquin’s active hunting and fishing licenses as “N/A.”
Maine Department Of Inland Fisheries And Wildlife: “In General, Anyone Who Hunts Wild Birds Or Animals In Maine Needs A Hunting License.” “Who Needs a License? In general, anyone who hunts wild birds or animals in Maine needs a hunting license. The type of license you need depends upon your age, resident status, and other factors, and there are some exceptions. See license fees for more information. In addition to a license, most hunting activities also require a permit. See individual species sections for details.” [Maine Department Of Inland Fisheries And Wildlife, accessed 10/28/21]

Note: Maine does not require permits or licenses to own a gun unless the owned can conceal carry; concealed carry permits are not subject to FOAA in Maine.

Poliquin’s Campaign Failed To Verify That Poliquin Created A Single Job During His Entire Business Career, Despite His Claims To Have Spent 35 Years Creating Jobs And Running Small Businesses

As Of October 2021, Poliquin’s Twitter Bio Stated He Was A “Job Creator.”

As Recently As 2017, Poliquin’s Campaign Website Claimed He Created “Hundreds Of Jobs.” “After college, I started my business career in Chicago and then New York City. It was a big adjustment and tough environment for a small town kid from Maine. However, I worked hard and learned what it takes to grow an economy and create jobs. For the next 35 years, I started and managed businesses that created hundreds of jobs. One investment company managed $5 billion of worker pension funds for clients such as Bath Iron Works and International Paper, two of Maine’s largest employers at the time.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 9/25/17]

2016 – 2021: Poliquin Claimed To Have Spent Decades Running “Small Businesses”
November 2021: Poliquin: “I Have 40 Years Of Experience Running Small Businesses.” “I have 40 years of experience running small businesses. It's really important to bring business skills down to Washington. Business folks know that you don't spend more than you take in. They know we need to keep regulations fewer and taxes lower and more jobs and higher take-home pay. We also have a commitment to make sure our border is secure,’ Poliquin said.” [News Center Maine, 11/3/21]

October 2021: Poliquin: “Mr. Golden Has Never Run A Business Before. I Spent 40 Years Running Small Businesses Before I Served As State Treasurer, And Then In Congress.” “Mr. Golden has never run a business before. I spent 40 years running small businesses before I served as state treasurer, and then in Congress,’ Poliquin said, explaining why he is the better choice to represent the district. ‘The people of the Second District want someone that reflects their values, fiscal discipline, a strong border with Mexico to keep fentanyl out our state. Unless we change course down there, these problems are going to get worse for the people of Maine, so I think they’re going to come out in droves, and I think we’re gonna win this thing again.” [Breitbart, 10/10/21]

2016: Poliquin Campaign Website: “For 35 Years, I Have Owned And Operated Small Businesses.” “For 35 years, I have owned and operated small businesses. I have experienced first-hand how government can help companies succeed and hire more workers, or can stifle growth that leads to lay-offs.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/29/16]

October 2018: Poliquin’s Campaign Failed To Back Up The Claim That Poliquin Created A Single Job During His 35-Year Business Career

October 2018: Portland Press Herald: Poliquin’s Campaign Failed To Back Up Its Claim That Poliquin Created Jobs During His 35-Year Business Career. “In two debates this month, Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin has said he was a ‘job creator’ during his 35 years in private business. The 2nd District incumbent contrasted his record with that of his three opponents in the Nov. 6 election, including Democrat Jared Golden, who allegedly haven’t created any jobs. In a letter to voters recently, Poliquin said he spent his career ‘helping create jobs and grow the economy’ while Golden ‘has no job creation experience.’ Asked to explain where and when Poliquin created jobs, his campaign responded only that the two-term U.S. House member ‘has 35 years of job creation experience’ and that ‘Bruce’s business background is well-known.’ ‘Poliquin is the one candidate in this race with job creation experience, while Jared Golden has absolutely zero,’ said Brendan Conley, Poliquin’s campaign spokesman. The campaign turned down the opportunity to produce anybody who got a job because of Poliquin or to detail how Poliquin’s career as a banker, Wall Street executive or real estate developer created any permanent jobs.” [Portland Press Herald, 10/19/18]

When Asked “Where And When Poliquin Created Jobs,” His Campaign Stated He “Has 35 Years Of Job Creation Experience.” “Asked to explain where and when Poliquin created jobs, his campaign responded only that the two-term U.S. House member ‘has 35 years of job creation experience’ and that ‘Bruce’s business background is well-known.’” [Portland Press Herald, 10/19/18]

2006: Poliquin Began To Develop The Five Lots He Received From His Parents In Phippsburg, Maine Into The Popham Beach Club At 823 Popham Road. Poliquin’s parents claimed joint tenancy with him through a 1988 quitclaim deed that included five lots outlined in a 1924 planning document. The planning document indicated that the five lots in question were located between Silver Lake and the Atlantic Road along Sabing Road which, per a Google Maps search, did not exist in 2021. 823 Popham Road, the location of Popham Beach Club, was located directly between Silver Lake and the Atlantic Ocean in Phippsburg. In 2011, Bill Nemitz wrote in his column, Poliquin, who lives in Georgetown, bought the property from his parents back around 1990 when it was a collection of six rental cottages that had been in the family all the way back to 1968. That changed in 2006, when he applied for and received permission from the town to tear down the cottages and build a sprawling, two-and-a-half story private clubhouse.” [Sagadahoc County Registry of Deeds, Quitclaim Deed, Instrument # 0912-0277, recorded 10/19/88, accessed 9/30/21; Sagadahoc County Registry of Deeds, Plan, Instrument # 0002-0053A, recorded 1/25/24, accessed 9/30/21; Google Maps, accessed 9/30/21; Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 12/4/11]

Poliquin Personally Oversaw Popham Beach Club Membership Applications. “Check out the ‘membership’ page on the Popham Beach Club’s website and you’ll see that prospective members are directed to ‘complete and return the enclosed Membership Application to Beach Club owner Bruce L. Poliquin,’ followed by his home address in Georgetown. (As of December, the membership list was stuck at six.)” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 1/18/12]

2011: While Maine State Treasurer, Poliquin Applied For A Permit That Would Allow His Beach Club To Provide Catering Services All Year Long, Angering His Phippsburg Neighbors. “Poliquin, who lives in nearby Georgetown and was a candidate in the 2010 Republican gubernatorial primary, seeks to rent out the Popham Beach Club for functions and to make it available year-round and later into the evening, both of which were not among the conditions he requested when he was granted a new business permit in April 2006, according to Planning Board Chairwoman Marie Varian. […] As of Tuesday, the town had received nine letters in opposition to Poliquin’s request before a public hearing on the issue scheduled for Thursday evening. Richard Nichols of Main Road urged the Board of Selectmen and planning board to ‘vote against any expansion of business for the Popham Beach Club.’” [Bangor Daily News, 12/6/11]

2011: Poliquin Showed Disdain for the Mostly Working-Class Campers And Called Them “Not My Kind Of People”

In Reference To Ocean View Park Campground Patrons, Poliquin Told The Owner Of The Campground, “These Are Not My Kind Of People.” “Back in 2000, Poliquin went after the Konzelmans, alleging they were in violation of the local land use ordinance and demanding that they shrink their operation. According to Bernadette, Poliquin looked out over the tents and campers one day and told her, ‘These are not my kind of people.’” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 12/4/11]

In December 2011, While Facing Concerns About Noise From The Popham Beach Club, Which He Owned, Poliquin Said “I'm Abutted By A Trailer Park! A Trailer Park!” “Poliquin counters that all existing rules regarding bad behavior still will be enforced — the club’s six members have yet to cause a ruckus — and that this is truly no big deal. ‘I’m abutted by a trailer park!’ he said, referring to the Konzelmans’ campground. ‘A trailer park!’” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 12/4/11]

Popham Beach Locals Expressed Concerns About “Dramatic Changes” To The Area Stemming From Big Money ‘From Away’” And “Large, Luxury Homes”

- “A Number Of Cottages Have Become Large, Luxury Homes” In Popham Beach; Locals “Fear Even More Dramatic Changes Are Imminent.” “More than 400 years after settlers first colonized the area, Popham Beach remains a treasured ‘gem,’ still somewhat undiscovered, except to those who wind their way from Bath to the end of Route 209. ‘When you get up to where we are, it’s like we’re locked in time,’ Hatch said. But much has changed over the years — various hurricanes washed houses away, and the beach has eroded and reshaped itself. The old Coast Guard station was purchased and renovated into a million dollar estate, and a number of cottages have become large, luxury homes. This summer, with ‘For Sale’ signs posted at the former Ocean View Campground and Cottages — now on the market as condominiums — as well as Percy’s Store and Spinneys Restaurant and Guest House, some fear even more dramatic changes are imminent.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/8/17]

What is going to stop someone from coming in and changing the feel of it. People around here know. It’s happened before.’” [Bangor Daily News, 10/8/17]

Poliquin Sponsored An Amendment To The NDAA Which Expanded Eligibility For Business Incentives To Include Businesses At Brunswick Landing, Which Became Law In November 2015

- The HUBZone (Historically Underutilized Business Zone) Program Incentivized Businesses To Move Into Former Military Base By Giving Them Preference In Federal Contracts. “The HUBZone (Historically Underutilized Business Zone) program provides incentives to businesses affected by recent military base closures and those affiliated with the civilian redevelopment of closed military installations. […] The HUBZone provides an advantage in acquiring federal government contracts to any qualifying business.” [Bangor Daily News, 4/30/15]

- Poliquin Sponsored An Amendment To Allow Businesses To Qualify For HUBZone If 35 Percent Of Its Employees Lived Within 25 Miles Of The Business, Rather Than Living On The Former Base. “Currently, a business qualifies for the program if at least 35 percent of its employees live on the former military base. […] If enacted by the Senate, the amendment, sponsored by Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-Maine, and Rep. Elise Stefanik, R-New York, would adjust the requirements of the HUBZone program to make the economic incentives available to more businesses. The proposed amendment would allow a business to qualify for the HUBZone if 35 percent of its employees live within a 25-mile radius of the business; allows businesses close to the former base to take advantage of the HUBZone program; and extends the length of time for eligibility to either eight years or until the next census data is released, Poliquin said.” [Bangor Daily News, 4/30/15]
• Poliquin’s Amendment Would Allow Businesses At Brunswick Landing, The Former Site Of The Brunswick Naval Base, To Benefit From The HUBZone Program. “The House Armed Services Committee on Thursday approved an amendment to the 2016 National Defense Authorization Act that, if approved by the Senate, would allow businesses on and near the former Brunswick Naval Air Station to qualify for a business incentive program offered by the U.S. Small Business Administration. The HUBZone (Historically Underutilized Business Zone) program provides incentives to businesses affected by recent military base closures and those affiliated with the civilian redevelopment of closed military installations. Brunswick Naval Air Station, now called Brunswick Landing, closed in 2011 under the most recent Department of Defense’s Base Realignment and Closure process.” [Bangor Daily News, 4/30/15]

• The Executive Director Of The Midcoast Regional Redevelopment Authority Said The HUBZone Program Was A “Hollow Promise” For Businesses At Brunswick Landing Without The Eligibility Expansion. “But the HUBZone designation is ‘a hollow promise’ without the amendment, according to the director of the entity charged with redeveloping the base. While some former military housing on the 3,200-acre Brunswick property has been converted to civilian use, the current HUBZone threshold is impractical, according to Steve Levesque, executive director of the Midcoast Regional Redevelopment Authority, the entity charged with redeveloping the former Navy base.” [Bangor Daily News, 4/30/15]

• Sens. Collins And King Proposed The Expansion Of HUBZone Eligibility In 2012 And Praised Poliquin’s Amendment. “The expansion was first proposed in 2012 as a bill by U.S. Sens. Susan Collins and Angus King. After that effort failed, it was proposed in 2014 as an amendment to the defense budget. That effort also fell short of winning congressional approval. [...] On Thursday, Collins and King praised Poliquin for his work on the House National Defense Authorization Act and vowed to press for its approval in the Senate. ‘Members of the Maine delegation understand that with the right federal investments and opportunities, we can support the redevelopment of bases like the former Brunswick Naval Air Station and foster economic growth,’ the senators said in a joint statement. ‘As the Senate begins consideration of the 2016 NDAA in the coming weeks, we will continue to pursue every opportunity — as we have in the past — to secure the HUBZones provision and pass it into law.’” [Bangor Daily News, 4/30/15]

October 2015: Poliquin’s Amendment Passed The House, Of Which He Said, “This Amendment Will Give Job Creators The Confidence They Need To Start New Businesses, Create More Jobs And Help Hire More Mainers.” “By adjusting the HUBZone requirements, my amendment will help the former Brunswick Naval Air Station recruit businesses to come on to the base and qualify for the HUBZone program. ‘This amendment will give job creators the confidence they need to start new businesses, create more jobs and help hire more Mainer’s. I am pleased to see the House pass this important bipartisan legislation and I encourage the Senate to pass this as well and the President Obama to sign this bill in to law.’” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 10/1/15]

November 2015: Amended NDAA Included Poliquin’s Amendment. “Today, Maine’s Second District Congressman, Bruce Poliquin, released the following statement after the House of Representatives passed the National Defense Authorization Act: ‘I’m proud to, once again, support this important national defense funding bill as it includes vital HUBZone language – which I helped draft – that will help bring more business and jobs to Maine. ‘By adjusting the HUBZone requirements, this HUBZone language will help the former Brunswick Naval Air Station recruit businesses to relocate to the base and qualify for the HUBZone program under the Base Realignment and Closure (BRAC) Act.’” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 11/5/15]

Harris Golf, Jeffrey Harris’ Business, Operated A Golf Course At Brunswick Landing With Nine Full-Time Employees As Of 2020

Jeffrey Harris Was The President Of Harris Golf. “When Poliquin wanted to open the club to public membership, abutters on both sides sued, eventually taking the case to the Maine Supreme Judicial Court. Eventually, the club failed and the original 5,000 square-foot house was sold in July 2015 to Harris Golf president Jeffrey Harris for $858,000.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/8/17]

2011: Harris Golf Began Took Over Operations Of Mere Creek Golf Club At Brunswick Naval Air Base “Shortly After” Its Closure. “In an effort to provide its inhabitants with activities and entertainment, the Brunswick Naval Air Station constructed a golf course in 1958 for its servicemen. For the next 53 years, Mere Creek Golf Course provided a leisurely golf experience to a variety of military personnel, veterans and families. [...] When the Naval Air Station closed the doors on its military operations in 2011, the course remained open but lost its identity. The Harris Golf Group purchased the rights to the course from the Navy shortly after the closure of the base. The group has become well known in Maine for designing new courses and revitalizing others that had lacked maintaining.” [Bangor Daily News, 8/15/12]

Poliquin Continued To Unsuccessfully Attempt To Rezone The Site Of A Former Cannery In Bath, Maine For Condos That Sold For Half A Million Dollars, Even Though Municipal Leadership Expressed The City A Need For Affordable Housing

May 2005: The Stinson Seafood Cannery In Bath, Maine Closed

May 2005: The Stinson Seafood Cannery In Bath, Maine Closed. “It will take investigators at least another day to determine what caused Thursday's huge fire at the closed Stinson Seafood cannery and where it started. […] Giroux said he made the point that the city of Bath wants to preserve the Stinson site as its last piece of working waterfront. He said the city would also like to replace the jobs lost when Stinson closed on May 3, 2005, as well as jobs that have been eliminated over the years at Bath Iron Works.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/6/06]

March 2006: Poliquin’s Real Estate Company Purchased The Site Of The Stinson Cannery With The Intention Of Developing Residential Housing

3/20/06: Poliquin Purchased The Land Where The Stinson Cannery Was Located For $550,000. In a March 2007 letter from Bruce Poliquin to the Bath Board of Assessment, “Dirigo Holdings’ purchase the cannery for $550,000 on March 20, 2006 was the most recent transaction for this unique property. And, as explained above, the purchase was to acquire its land only. My company was the only entity to make a serious offer during the two years the cannery was on the market.” [Letter, Bruce Poliquin to Board of Assessment Review, 3/21/07; Sagadahoc County Registry of Deeds, Instrument # 1892-0250, recorded 7/25/01, accessed 9/30/21]

In a March 2006 letter to the Bath City Council and Planning Board, Poliquin wrote, “…I purchased the former Stinson Cannery property on March 20. I am confident that the majority of Bath residents believe, as do I, that an excellent long-term use of the abandoned industrial site is residential housing and a marina. Short-term, however, I am concerned about owning the vacant and increasingly dangerous industrial facility in the dense North End neighborhood.” [Letter, Bruce Poliquin to Bath City Council and Planning Board, 3/29/06]

2006 – 2007: The City Of Bath Rejected Poliquin’s Application To Rezone The Site Of The Stinson Cannery For A Townhouse Development

March 2006: The City Of Bath Rejected Poliquin’s Request To Rezone The Site Of The Stinson Cannery For A Townhouse Development. “The fire occurred six weeks after the city denied an application to rezone the property for a townhouse development. The owner, Bruce Poliquin, told Justice Andrew Horton that the sequence of events left him in the awkward position of having to defend his innocence. ‘I was questioned a number of times, ‘Bruce, did you set this fire?’ That hurt a bit, to be honest with you,’ Poliquin said. Horton said there was not a ‘scintilla’ of evidence to suggest that Poliquin had anything to do with setting the fire.” [Associated Press, 3/31/07]

- Stinson Cannery Site Was Zoned For “Marine Business.” In a May 2007 memorandum, the Bath Assistant City Manager wrote, “The site is currently zoned for Marine Business, which allows for indoor manufacturing. The current zoning is very much in compliance with the comprehensive plan. It is immediately adjacent to the sewage treatment plant and makes a good buffer between the plant and residential areas. It is also the last deep water working waterfront site left for commercial development in Bath.” [Memorandum, Assistant City Manager Paul Mateosian to Bath City Council, 5/30/07]

May 2007: Poliquin Applied To Rezone The Former Site Of The Stinson Cannery As Mixed Use To Develop Townhouses And Marine Business. “Fourteen months after the city told him that his request for a zoning change had been denied, Poliquin has returned, seeking the permission he needs to revive the former Stinson Seafood cannery property. Poliquin is scheduled to go before the city’s Planning Board on May 15 with a request to rezone the 5.6-acre Bowery Street property, where an arson fire in May 2006 destroyed the buildings. […] In the application, Poliquin states that he wants to preserve a 50-foot strip of land along the Kennebec River as marine business - its current zoning use - while at the same time asking for city approval to rezone the remaining land from marine business to a mixed-use zone that would allow residential development as well as light commercial uses. Poliquin said if the city approves his request, he would build a 100-slip marina, 40 townhouse condominiums, a restaurant and possibly a small grocery store on the site.” [Portland Press Herald, 4/30/07]

Mr. Averill reviewed the request to begin a visioning process on the site located at 65 Bowery Street as the applicant is requesting feedback on property development. The property is currently in the C5 Marine Business Zoning District. The proposed project would require a land use map amendment to allow the property to join the abutting R5 Waterfront Activity Zoning District. Mr. Poliquin spoke to the tax revenue benefits to the City, as well as the benefits of the location which is currently surrounded by dense neighborhoods. Mr. Poliquin reviewed the lack of success in marketing the property under the current zoning having invested 10 years into marketing the property, citing reasons including the liability of an industrial business amid residential properties and the narrow, residential streets.” [Bath Planning Board, Meeting Minutes, 7/20/21]

[…] Mr. Hopkinson opened the floor to public comment. Mr. Averill reviewed the procedure for public comment using the Zoom conferencing platform. Roo Dunn of Green Street asked the applicant to envision looking down Bowery
Street, stating the importance of buy-in from abutting property owners. Mr. Dunn then asked if affordable housing should be a consideration. Mr. Matero noted that the development cost does not lend itself to affordable housing; then countered with the numerous amenities that will be available to the public.” [Bath Planning Board, Meeting Minutes, 7/20/21]

James Hopkinson said The Planning Board Would Not Be Able To Designate A Portion Of The Project For Affordable Housing And That Affordable Housing Would Not Be Financially Feasible At The Site. “William Fritzmeier of Somerset Place spoke to Ms. Blanco’s assessment of the need for affordable housing and asked if the Planning Board were allowed to dictate a percentage of the project to be designated as affordable housing. Bath Planning Board Members Said They Would Prefer To Zone For More Housing Units Than Poliquin Proposed, Or For Affordable Housing, Rather Than “Pricey Condominiums.” “While planning board members said they aren’t opposed to the property, now somewhat of an eyesore in the city, being redeveloped, they weren’t entirely on-board with the preliminary designs. Some board members said they’d prefer more than 20 housing units while others didn’t like the idea of pricey condominiums being added to the neighborhood.” [Central Maine, 7/22/21]

Bath Planning Board Member Haley Blanco: “I Have Reservations About Condos Because I Feel The Need In Bath Are Rental Units.” “I have reservations about condos because I feel the need in Bath are rental units,’ said board member Haley Blanco. ‘There are a lot of people who work at BIW [Bath Iron Works] or elsewhere that don’t qualify to buy a house. I see a need for rental units to house people who don’t know if they’re going to be here long-term or are here at BIW for a short time.’” [Central Maine, 7/22/21]

Poliquin’s Congressional Office Spent Nearly $300,000 In Taxpayer Funds On Services From Poliquin’s Longtime Political Ally, Brent Littlefield, And Nearly Half A Million Dollars On Self-Promotional Franked Mail
Poliquin And Gov. Paul LePage Shared A Political Advisor, Brent Littlefield

Poliquin, LePage, And Ex-Gubernatorial Candidate Shawn Moody Shared A Political Advisor, Brent Littlefield. “Littlefield has served as a political consultant to a variety of conservative Maine politicians, including the elder LePage, former gubernatorial candidate Shawn Moody and former Rep. Bruce Poliquin.” [Bangor Daily News, 3/11/19]

- Littlefield Consulting Website: “Littlefield Was Credited With The Victory Of Governor Paul LePage Of Maine.” “In an Associated Press profile, published under headlines ‘adviser’s savvy helped win election,’ and ‘political wiz,’ Littlefield was credited with the victory of Governor Paul LePage of Maine. At the time, the only Republican Governor in all New England, Littlefield created the campaign’s strategy and message deployment that drove LePage to a 21-point victory in a seven-way primary and a substantial win in the general election. Littlefield served as a Senior Political Adviser to the Governor throughout his terms and as his adviser and consultant again in his 2014 re-election victory which saw LePage receive the largest number of votes in the state’s history at that time.” [Littlefield Consulting, accessed 9/27/21]

- September 2021: Littlefield Spoke To Reporters About LePage’s Gubernatorial Run As His “Longtime Campaign Media Consultant.” “LePage’s longtime campaign media consultant, Brent Littlefield, has pitched a kinder, gentler LePage and says the former governor in recent months has been on a statewide listening tour, meeting with small groups and hearing them out, largely in private settings or in visits to fairs and festivals over the summer. […] ‘This is not a presidential election, not an election for the governor of New England, or any other election,’ Littlefield said. ‘This is an election for the governor of Maine. We intend to keep it about that and the issues and concerns of Maine people.’” [Portland Press Herald, 9/21/21]

Littlefield Joined Poliquin’s 2014 Campaign In Summer 2013 And “Crafted” Its Messaging. “A consultant who crafted the successful campaigns of both LePage and Poliquin, Littlefield proved beyond a doubt in 2014 that he’s got a winning strategy for electing conservative Republicans in Maine. […] Littlefield said that when he joined Poliquin’s campaign in summer 2013, he knew that telling the candidate’s story was priority No. 1. Poliquin’s background as a trust fund manager could be turned into a negative, so setting the message early was key.” [Bangor Daily News, 1/4/15]

2014 –2019: Littlefield Consulting Received Nearly $300,000 In Taxpayer Funds From Poliquin’s Congressional Office And More Than $7 Million From Poliquin’s Campaign

2015 – 2018: Poliquin’s Congressional Office Paid Littlefield Consulting Nearly $300,000

Poliquin’s Spokesperson Defended His Use Of Franked Mail

Poliquin Spokesperson Defended Franked Mail As Necessary To Communicate With Constituents Of “One Of The Most Elderly And Rural Districts In The Nation.” “‘As one of the most elderly and rural districts in the nation, many of our constituents primarily use hard copy mail,’ Conley said. ‘Our office puts a premium on communicating with constituents, and does so without any extra burden to taxpayers whatsoever.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/13/18]

Poliquin Spokesperson: “There Is Absolutely No Extra Burden Or Cost To The Taxpayer For Franking - None.” “Brendan Conley, Poliquin's press secretary, said Monday it is important to note ‘there is absolutely no extra burden or cost to the taxpayer for franking - none.’ He said each member of the House receives an allocation for office expenses - staff salaries, office rent, travel reimbursement and more - and can choose how to divvy up the money. Poliquin's share is $1.37 million annually. For Poliquin, who spent $83,000 on mailings in August 2016, franked mail to constituents is an especially big priority.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/13/18]

Portland Press Herald On Poliquin’s Increased Franked Mail Spending During Campaign Season: “ No Honest Person Can Dismiss The Connection Between Franked Mail And Campaigning.” “No honest person can dismiss the connection between franked mail and campaigning, particularly when you consider which members spend the most on mailings. In the six weeks before the 2016 deadline, as he faced a tough challenge in his first re-election race, Poliquin spent $150,000 on franked mail, the most of any member of Congress.” [Portland Press Herald, 8/17/18]
Poliquin Pioneered And Promoted The Big Lie

Significant Findings

- After losing his 2018 congressional race, Poliquin unsuccessfully sued the state of Maine over its ranked-choice voting system.
  - In 2018, Poliquin lost reelection in the second round of ranked-choice voting.
  - Before the second round of counting concluded, Poliquin sued the state of Maine over the constitutionality of ranked-choice voting; after he lost, Poliquin requested a new election.
  - A Trump-appointed district court judge ruled against Poliquin. Poliquin appealed, then voluntarily dismissed the suit on December 28, 2018, the day Gov. LePage certified his loss.
  - Amid his lawsuits, Poliquin requested a hand recount of the election results, then retracted it before it was complete after it showed no substantial difference in vote totals.
  - Poliquin was forced to reimburse the state more than $14,000, including for costs of Maine State Police troopers to retrieve nearly 300,000 ballots across the district, and an appeals court judge ruled that Poliquin and the state would pay their own legal costs after he voluntarily dismissed his lawsuit.

- Throughout his legal challenge, Poliquin spread election misinformation that Maine’s Secretary Of State and a variety of Maine editorialists said needlessly damaged confidence in elections.
  - In November and December 2018, Poliquin made many dubious election interference allegations, ranging from claims of unlocked ballot boxes to chaos at polling places due to ranked-choice voting.
  - Poliquin’s campaign did not file any election security complaints with Maine’s Secretary of State.
  - A variety of editorialists and Maine’s Secretary of State said Poliquin’s allegations needlessly damaged faith in Maine’s elections.
    - The editorial page director of the Portland Press Herald wrote that Poliquin “attack[ed] the honesty and trustworthiness of the election process itself;” columnist Bill Nemitz wrote Poliquin “resorted to seeding groundless doubt about the integrity of the election.”

- Poliquin asserted he won the 2018 election before the ranked-choice vote count was complete in November 2018 and as recently as August 2021.
  - Before the 2018 election, Poliquin refused to say whether he would accept the results of the election.
  - Poliquin declared victory after the first round of ranked-choice voting in November 2018.
  - Poliquin repeatedly said he won the 2018 election between August 2019 and August 2021.
  - In August 2021, Poliquin said he had a plan to “deal with” ranked-choice voting and said he hoped Democrats “won’t game the system again.”

Poliquin Was The First Candidate To Lead After One Round, Then Lose Under Maine’s Ranked-Choice Voting System

Poliquin Was The First Candidate In A Federal General Election To Lose Under A Ranked-Choice Voting System. “A spokeswoman for the Maine secretary of state’s office said the results remained unofficial pending certification by Nov. 26. But, if certified, the results would make Mr. Golden the winner of a four-candidate race in which Mr. Poliquin received 2,632 more first-choice votes but failed to reach the 50 percent needed to win. Instead, Mr. Golden was declared the winner Thursday with 50.53 percent of the vote — or by 2,905 votes — once the second and third choices of voters who originally chose the two lagging candidates were added. The district covers a majority of the state’s land area, much of it rural and densely forested. The contest was the first general election to federal office under a ranked-choice system.” [New York Times, 11/15/18]

Maine Voters Approved Of Ranked-Choice Voting In 2016 And 2018 Referenda

November 2016: 52 Percent Of Maine Voters Voted For A Referendum To Institute Ranked-Choice Voting In Congressional, Gubernatorial, And State Legislative Races. “Q: How did the switch to ranked-choice voting happen in Maine? A: In November 2016, 52 percent of Maine voters approved a ballot question that called for using a ranked-choice system in elections for governor, Congress and the Legislature. That didn't, however, end the debate or controversy.” [Portland Press Herald, 11/15/18]

June 2018: 54 Percent Of Maine Voters Approved A “People’s Veto” To Begin Ranked-Choice Voting In November 2018 After The State Legislature Voted To Delay Implementation Of Ranked-Choice Voting. “Responding to a query from the Republican-controlled Maine Senate, the state's Supreme Judicial Court issued an advisory opinion that the Maine Constitution dictates that general elections for governor and legislative seats must be decided by a ‘plurality’ of votes, not a majority. However, the Constitution is silent on primary elections for those offices, as well as all elections for Congress. The Legislature then passed a law delaying the implementation of ranked-choice voting for several years - and only then if voters amended the Constitution to address the concerns. Undeterred, supporters of ranked-choice voting organized a ‘people's veto’ campaign to override the Legislature. An even wider margin of voters - 54 percent - approved that ballot question in June, clearing the way for the system's use in congressional elections this month.” [Portland Press Herald, 11/15/18]

November – December 2018: Poliquin Sued Maine’s Secretary Of State To Prevent The Certification Of Ranked-Choice Votes And Lost

Poliquin Refused To Say He Would Accept The Results Of The Ranked-Choice Election, Then Declared Victory Before The Ranked-Choice Count Was Complete

VIDEO: Poliquin Did Not Answer When He Was Asked Whether He Would Accept The Results Of The Ranked Choice Voting Election. HOST: “With the new ranked choice voting method, will you accept the outcome of this race?” POLIQUIN: “I’m going to circle in Bruce Poliquin, one and only vote, drop in the box and go forward.” [C-SPAN, 2018 ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/16/18] (VIDEO) 49:00
10/22/18: Poliquin Refused To Say He Would Accept The Results Of A Ranked-Choice Election And Instead Said He Would “Circle In ‘Bruce Poliquin,’ […] One And Only One Vote.” “One of the more telling moments in the two debates between the four congressional candidates in Maine's 2nd District came during the final question they faced. Asked if they'd accept the outcome of the ranked-choice voting contest, three of the contenders say they would. But U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, a two-term Republican from Oakland, passed up the chance to rule out a possible legal challenge if he comes up short Nov. 6. ‘I'm going to circle in 'Bruce Poliquin',’ the incumbent said, adding ‘one and only vote, drop it in the box and go forward.’ ‘I don't think he answered the question,’ said Democratic challenger Jared Golden of Lewiston.” [Portland Press Herald, 10/22/18]

- 10/22/18: Poliquin’s Campaign “Ignored Requests For Comment” On Whether Poliquin Would Accept Election Results. “Golden, Bond and Hoar said that if ranked-choice voting leads to an outcome they don't like -- such as losing out in the second round -- they will accept the decision made by voters. But Poliquin has never made that assertion. His campaign ignored requests for comment on the issue Monday. Instead, its spokesman, Brendan Conley, said only that Poliquin ‘cannot in good conscience support any of the other candidates in this race.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/22/18]

- 11/6/18: Poliquin Refused To Say He Would Accept The Results Of A Ranked-Choice Election, Which He Dismissed As A “Hypothetical.” “Poliquin hasn’t said whether he'd accept the results of a ranked-choice election, saying Saturday it was a ‘hypothetical.’ Chatter about a lawsuit could heighten if Poliquin emerges as the first-round leader only to lose to Golden after the independents’ votes are re-allocated.” [Bangor Daily News, 11/7/18]

11/10/18: Poliquin: “It's Clear That Bruce Won Election Day By A Margin Of Over 2,000 Votes, Defeating All 3 Other Opponents. In Any Other Federal Election Across America This Process Would Be Complete.” “As Rank Choice Voting begins, it's clear that Bruce won Election Day by a margin of over 2,000 votes, defeating all 3 other opponents. In any other federal election across America this process would be complete. Maine is the only state subject to this Rank Choice Voting system which allows people multiple votes, via the reallocation of their vote, if they didn't initially select one of the two top vote earners. We will continue to monitor this process, as there have been ongoing concerns.”

11/13/18: Poliquin Declared Victory “Fair And Square.” “Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin says he won re-election ‘fair and square’ and says he has a duty to fight Maine's new voting system that he says is unconstitutional.” [Associated Press, 11/13/18]

November 2018: Poliquin Sued Maine's Secretary Of State In District Court To Stop The Count Of Ranked-Choice Votes

11/13/18: Poliquin Filed A Lawsuit In District Court Against Maine Secretary Of State Matthew Dunlap To Stop The Second Round Of Vote Counting In The Ranked-Choice Voting System. “That new system became the focus of Mr. Poliquin’s ire on Tuesday, when he filed a lawsuit in federal court against Maine’s secretary of state, Matthew Dunlap, to stop the runoff, asserting that he would have won the election under the old voting system and that the new system was unconstitutional.” [New York Times, 11/15/18]

- 11/13/18: Poliquin Claimed RCV Was “Ripe For Mishandling And Unlawful Electioneering Actions, As Evidenced Already.” “6 days and 15 hours after the polls have closed and because of rank choice voting we still have no final election result. This system only adds additional cost to taxpayers, creates overwhelming confusion for our citizens, and is ripe for mishandling and unlawful electioneering actions, as evidenced already. Mainers deserve better than their money being wasted, their frustrations growing, and their sacred right of voting being manipulated.”

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 11/13/18]

- 11/13/18: Poliquin Defended His Lawsuit And Said Walking Away Would Send “Absolutely The Wrong Message” To “Our Kids.” “At a State House news conference Tuesday afternoon, Poliquin said he and other critics of ranked-choice voting believe the process could be ‘illegal’ under federal law. He said it's not true that he is challenging the process because he is likely to lose his seat if more than 23,000 votes received by two independent candidates get redistributed to second-choice candidates. ‘The people of the 2nd District have put their trust in me to do what's right,’ Poliquin said. ‘Not addressing this important constitutional issue would be completely irresponsible. I'll tell you this would be a heck of a lot easier on me if I just walked away from this vote-counting mess. But what kind of message would that send to our kids? Absolutely the wrong message.’” [Portland Press Herald, 11/13/18]

- 11/14/18: Poliquin: “The Easiest Thing Would Be To Walk Away, But That Is Not The Right Thing To Do.” “I am standing up for Maine's 2nd District voters who voted against Ranked Choice Voting at the ballot box, as recent as June of this year. The easiest thing would be to walk away, but that is not the right thing to do. We hold voting rights sacred, meaning one vote per person, which has always been the successful system used. This RCV process no doubt gives additional preference to those who voted for a candidate that did not end up as one of the top two vote earners, thereby allowing them multiple votes. Whether that vote was for me or my opponent, it should not matter. The process is flawed, creates tremendous confusion, and is proving to be a recipe for disaster, as Maine's Second District predicted when they voted against it.”

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 11/14/18]
- Poliquin Alleged Ranked-Choice Voting Forced Voters “To Guess Whether There Would Be An ‘Instant Runoff’ Election And Who The Candidates Would Be,” Violating The 1st And 4th Amendments. “Poliquin’s case boils down to the proposition that in ranked-choice voting, those casting ballots cannot know the identities of the candidates who will remain in contention after the first round, forcing them ‘to guess whether there would be an ‘instant runoff’ election and who the candidates would be.’ That ‘lack of access to such basic information’ prevents them, Goodman argued, ‘from choosing among candidates and casting their votes effectively,’ a situation he insisted violated both the 1st and 14th amendments to the U.S. Constitution. ‘This system forces voters to make blind guesses about the ultimate matchup in the final round of vote,’ said James Gimpel, a University of Maryland political science professor who offered his testimony to the court Wednesday to bolster Poliquin’s case. Gimpel testified that in his study of the results, he found that 46 percent of voters only made one first-place pick and no others.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/28/18]

- Poliquin And Three Residents Of Maine’s Second Congressional District Who Voted For Him Were The Plaintiffs In The Case. “Plaintiff Brett Baber is a resident of and duly registered voter in Maine’s Second Congressional District. Consistent with Maine’s use of ranked choice voting in federal elections, the details of which are described more fully infra, in the November 6 general election Mr. Baber voted for Republican Bruce Poliquin as his first choice to serve as Maine’s Second District Congressional Representative. Mr. Baber did not rank or otherwise vote for any of the other remaining choices on the ballot for that office. […] Plaintiff Terry Hamm-Morris, a veteran of the U.S. Navy, is a resident of and duly registered voter in Maine’s Second Congressional District. Consistent with Maine’s use of ranked choice voting in federal elections, in the November 6 general election Ms. Hamm-Morris voted for Republican Bruce Poliquin as her first choice to serve as Maine’s Second District Congressional Representative. […] Plaintiff Mary Hartt is a resident of and duly registered voter in Maine’s Second Congressional District. Consistent with Maine’s use of ranked choice voting in federal elections, in the November 6 general election Ms. Hartt voted for Republican Bruce Poliquin as her first choice to serve as Maine’s Second District Congressional Representative. […]” [U.S. District Court District of Maine (Bangor), Baber, et al v. Dunlap, et al, 1:18-cv-00465-LEW, Complaint, 11/13/18]

- Poliquin’s Complaint Alleged RCV Violated The First And Fourteenth Amendments Because Voters Would Not Know Which Candidates Would Be In Later Rounds Of Ranked-Choice Voting When They Voted. “Here, Defendant’s implementation of the RCV Act denies Plaintiffs the opportunity to cast their votes effectively. At the time Plaintiffs cast their ballots in this election, and at the time they will cast their ballots in future elections, they do not know the identities of the candidates who are on the ballot, nor the match-ups of candidates who will be on the ballot, after the first round of voting. The lack of access to such basic information about which candidates will be on the ballot and the match-up of candidates who will be on the ballot prevents Plaintiffs from choosing among candidates and casting their votes effectively, causing them irreparable injury under the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution. Since no other adequate remedy at law is available, Plaintiffs are entitled to preliminary and permanent injunctive relief to prevent this injury.” [U.S. District Court District of Maine (Bangor), Baber, et al v. Dunlap, et al, 1:18-cv-00465-LEW, Complaint, 11/13/18]

11/15/18: Trump-Appointed District Court Judge Lance Walker Denied Poliquin’s Request To Stop Counting The Votes. “District Court Judge Lance Walker, recently appointed by President Donald Trump, has not shown much sympathy for Poliquin’s argument that ranked-choice voting is unconstitutional. His initial ruling on a Poliquin request to stop the ranked-choice tally allowed the count to continue, and Walker pointed out that Maine voters had chosen to use the ranked-choice system.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/28/18]

11/15/18: Maine Secretary Of State Tabulated The Second Round Of Ranked-Choice Votes And Determined Golden Won 50.6 Percent Of Ranked-Choice Votes. [Maine Secretary of State, Election Results, 11/15/18]

- 11/15/18: Poliquin Declared He Won “The Constitutional ‘One-Person, One-Vote’ First Choice Election On Election Day That Has Been Used In Maine For More Than One Hundred Years.” “Those votes were tabulated on Thursday, after Walker issued an order allowing the counting to continue. They showed Golden won the election with 50.5 percent of the second round tallies. Shortly after the results were announced, Poliquin issued this convoluted, and deceptive, statement: ‘It is now officially clear I won the constitutional ‘one-person, one-vote’ first choice election on Election Day that has been used in Maine for more than one hundred years.’’ [Editorial, Bangor Daily News, 11/16/18]

- 11/15/18: Poliquin: “Election Day Was 8 Day Ago And Still No Results, Other Than The Fact That Bruce Won On Election Day.” “200+ hours: Election Day was 8 day ago and still no results, other than the fact that Bruce won on Election Day. The Red Sox won the whole World Series in two less days, including traveling across the United States. We can stop calling this RCV system anything ‘instant.’ Maybe a better name would be ‘Really Confusing Voters’ system. Please Share.”

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 11/15/18]

- 11/17/18: Poliquin: “Each Person Should Have One Vote, One Vote Per Person, That Is The Only Fair System And It Has Worked For Hundreds Of Years.” “Rank Choice Voting allows one person the opportunity to have their vote counted multiple times. This goes against the very fiber of fairness. Each person should have one vote, one vote per person, that is the only fair system and it has worked for hundreds of years.”

Poliquin Requested A New Election After He Lost The Second Round Of Ranked-Choice Voting

- 11/26/18: Poliquin Claimed Ranked-Choice Voting “‘Goes Against The Very Fiber Of Fairness’ That Mandates Each Person Should Have Only One Vote.” “Poliquin contends ‘rank choice voting’ is unconstitutional because it ‘goes against the very fiber of fairness’ that mandates each person should have only one vote.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/26/18]
December 2018: Poliquin Called Ranked-Choice Voting “Unconstitutional” But Voluntarily Dismissed The Lawsuit, With Taxpayers Covering The State’s Legal Expenses, The Same Day Gov. LePage Certified The Results
12/24/18: Poliquin Stated That Ranked-Choice Voting Was Unconstitutional But That It Was “In The Best Interests Of My Constituents [...] To Close This Confusing And Unfair Chapter Of Voting History.” “Even though rank voting is unconstitutional, and therefore illegal, under Maine law in general elections to choose state officials like our Governor and State Legislators, the Maine District Court and 1st Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston both disagreed with the Constitutional arguments raised by the former Chairman of the Federal Election Commission and his legal team. As such, despite winning the largest number of votes on Election Day, I believe it's in the best interest of my constituents and all Maine citizens to close this confusing and unfair chapter of voting history by ending any further legal proceedings.”” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 12/24/18]

- 12/28/18: LePage Signed The Certified Election Results And Added “Stolen Election” Alongside His Signature. “Gov. Paul LePage certified the election results for Maine’s 2nd Congressional District after a recount and legal battle dragged out the final result in the race for almost two months, cementing a Democratic victory. But, LePage – a Republican firebrand – made one last jab at the drawn-out process when certifying the election, writing the words ‘stolen election’ next to his signature.” [CNN, 12/29/18]

- An Appeals Court Judge Ruled That Each Party Would Pay Its Own Legal Costs. “Upon consideration of appellants' motion to dismiss, it is hereby ordered that this appeal be voluntarily dismissed pursuant to Fed. R. App. P. 42(b) with each party to bear its own costs.” [Baber, et al v. Dunlap, et al, U.S. District Court District of Maine (Bangor), Judgment, PACER, 12/28/18]

Golden’s Attorneys And Pelosi Wrote Off Poliquin’s Lawsuit As “Sour Grapes”

11/28/18: Golden Attorney: “Poliquin's Sour Grapes Preliminary Injunction Is Too Little, Too Late, And Is Outweighed By The [Maine Voters] Who Would Be Disenfranchised” By Poliquin’s Lawsuit. “Golden's attorney, James Kilbreth, responded Wednesday in a brief that called Poliquin's legal challenge to ranked-choice voting ‘sour grapes.’ “Now, after 296,077 Maine citizens have voted based on their understanding that the [ranked-choice voting] system would be used to determine the winner of the election, Poliquin would like to change the rules,” he wrote. ‘Poliquin's sour grapes preliminary injunction is too little, too late, and is outweighed by the injury to the thousands of Maine voters who selected Golden over Poliquin and who would be disenfranchised by Poliquin's attempt to use the courts to overturn the results of the election,’ Kilbreth said. ‘Further, the chaos, disruption, and violation of fundamental rights that would result from Poliquin's attempt to rewrite the rules after the election is anathema to the public interest. Golden won the election fair and square.’” [Bangor Daily News, 11/28/18]

12/6/18: Pelosi On Poliquin’s Lawsuit: “But If [Republicans] Won, Of Course, There’d Be No Question About The Constitutionality” Of Ranked-Choice Voting. “Talking with reporters, U.S. Rep. Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., cited three races in which there may be objections filed about incoming lawmakers, especially one in North Carolina that appears to have involved cheating. ‘To add insult to injury about what the Republicans did in these races, they are now challenging the seating of our member in Maine,’ Pelosi said. She said they are ‘questioning the process’ of ranked-choice voting that delivered victory to Golden last month in his race against two-term U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, a Republican. ‘You know,’ Pelosi said, ‘they have ranked voting, which has been voted on twice by the people of Maine as their method of having an election. And now the Republicans are saying, ‘Well ...’’ ‘There’s even a question about the constitutionality of ranked voting, in their view,’ Pelosi said. ‘But if they won, of course, there’d be no question about the constitutionality of it.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 12/6/18]

Poliquin Requested A Hand Recount Of The Election Amid His Lawsuit In Late November 2018, But Ended It In Mid-December 2018 Before The Recount Was Complete
11/26/18: Poliquin Requested A Recount Of The Election By Hand By Maine’s Secretary Of State, Citing Concerns With The “Transparency Of The ‘Computer-Engineered’ Ranked-Choice Voting Results.”

“Secretary of state's office estimates hand-recount could take up to 1 month Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin requested a recount Monday of results in Maine's 2nd Congressional District race, citing concerns about the transparency of the ‘computer-engineered’ ranked-choice voting results. To overturn the election results, Poliquin will have to erase a more than 3,500-vote lead Democrat Jared Golden holds after the nation's first use of ranked-choice voting to decide a congressional election. In a statement, Poliquin's campaign talked about ‘frightened’ voters as well as the use of ‘artificial intelligence’ and ‘black box’ voting systems to decide the outcome of Maine's historic election.” [Portland Press Herald, 11/26/18]

- 11/26/18: Poliquin: “The Computer Software And ‘BLACK-BOX’ Voting System Utilized By The Secretary Of State Is Secret. […] Today, We Are Proceeding With A Traditional Ballot Recount Conducted By Real People.” “BREAKING: We have heard from countless Maine voters who were confused and even frightened their votes did not count due to computer-engineered rank voting. Furthermore, we have become aware that the computer software and "BLACK-BOX" voting system utilized by the Secretary of State is secret. No one is able to review the software or computer algorithm used by a computer to determine elections. This artificial intelligence is not transparent. Therefore, today, we are proceeding with a traditional ballot recount conducted by real people. - Poliquin for Congress, the Poliquin campaign.”

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 11/26/18]

- 11/27/18: Poliquin On Recount: “This Is Not About Who Wins Or Loses This Election.” “Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin said Tuesday that a recount in his failed re-election bid is necessary to make sure every vote is counted by hand under Maine's new election system. A day after requesting a recount, Poliquin reiterated his distrust of the ‘black box computer algorithm’ that calculated the final election tally. He told reporters that ‘this is not about who wins or loses this election.’ ‘It would be a heck of a lot easier to walk away from this,’ Poliquin said.” [Associated Press, 11/27/18]

The Recount Could Have Prevented Maine’s Secretary Of State From Certifying Election Results Before Congressional Swearing-In And Left Maine’s Second District Seat Vacant. “Poliquin asked for the recount Nov. 26 after Golden was declared the winner. Poliquin also has filed a lawsuit in federal court challenging the constitutionality of the ranked-choice system. Courtney Parella, a spokeswoman in Washington, D.C., for the Committee on House Administration, said Thursday that Golden has been participating in new member orientation and was assigned an office suite but wouldn't be sworn in without an election certificate from the state. ‘We swear in based on when we receive the certificate of election from the state, so until we receive that, the office will remain vacant,’ Parella said. But Kristen Muszynski, a spokeswoman for Maine Secretary of State Matthew Dunlap, said Dunlap would not issue an election certificate in the race until the recount was completed or ended -- a process that could take up to four weeks. However, the recount will break for the holiday week of Dec. 24, and resume on Jan. 3, the date when members of Congress will be sworn into office.” [Portland Press Herald, 12/7/18]
12/14/18: Poliquin Retracted His Request For A Hand Recount Of Election Results And Was Required To Reimburse The State $14,560.52 For Its Costs, Including For Maine State Police Troopers To Collect Nearly 300,000 Ballots,

12/14/18: Poliquin Requested An End To The Hand Recount Of Election Results After Not Picking Up A Substantial Number Of Votes With More Than 40% Of The Recount Complete. “U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin on Friday ended the hand recount of ballots cast in Maine's 2nd Congressional District race but still might appeal a federal judge's ruling on his constitutional challenge of ranked-choice voting. In a statement, Poliquin pointed out that he captured the most votes on Election Day -- a fact that has never been in question -- but said he is ending the recount. With more than 40 percent of the recount complete, Poliquin had yet to pick up a substantial number of votes in the ranked-choice runoff that would allow him to surpass Democratic Rep.-elect Jared Golden.” [Portland Press Herald, 12/14/18]

- Poliquin Was Required To Reimburse The State For The Recount, Which Had Counted More Than Half Of The Votes When Poliquin Ended It, Since It Did Not Alter Election Results. “Kristen Muszynski, spokeswoman for Secretary of State Matt Dunlap, said work on the recount halted around 11 a.m. Friday after her office received a call from Poliquin's campaign. By that point, the recount teams from both campaigns as well as Dunlap's staff had gone through 165,000 ballots from 320 municipalities, which represents more than 50 percent of the nearly 300,000 ballots cast on Election Day. Poliquin will be required to reimburse the state for the costs of the recount because it did not change the outcome, per state law. Muszynski said her office did not have a cost estimate yet.” [Portland Press Herald, 12/14/18]

- Poliquin Had To Pay $14,560.52 For The Recount, Including A $5,000 Deposit He Paid For The Recount Started. “Outgoing U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin will have to pay a balance of $9,560 for the 2nd House District recount, which concluded last week, Secretary of State Matt Dunlap said Thursday. […] The recount cost $14,560.52, which includes the $5,000 deposit Poliquin's campaign was required to pay before the ballot re-examination began, Dunlap said. The total amount covers pay for the time it took for Maine State Police troopers to retrieve roughly 296,000 ballots across the far-reaching district — $12,114.36 — and the more than six business days state staff spent overseeing the hand-counting those ballots, which was completed by Poliquin and Golden campaign volunteers — $2,446.16. Poliquin's campaign was also required to provide food for election workers each day of the recount, which amounted to about $150 a day, Dunlap said.” [Bangor Daily News, 12/20/18]

Poliquin’s Lawsuits Interrupted Transition Between Poliquin And Golden, Potentially Affecting Mainers’ Federal Casework

12/10/18: Golden Told Reporters Poliquin Had Not Spoken To Him About Transitioning His Office, Potentially Affecting Mainers Who Had Casework Handled By Poliquin’s Office
12/10/18: Golden Told Reporters Poliquin Had Not Spoken To Him About Transitioning His Office, Potentially Affecting Mainers Who Had Casework Handled By Poliquin’s Office. “Golden said he would like to ‘have an orderly transition’ where casework could be handed off seamlessly and problems with which Poliquin’s staff is dealing would be addressed. Instead, he said, he has had no conversations with Poliquin. Golden said he has talked with both of Maine’s senators and with U.S. Rep. Chellie Pingree, the 1st District Democrat who is the state’s only other member of the House. He said he hopes if Poliquin’s casework is not handed over to his staff, it will be given to the offices of one of the other three so nobody is simply dropped. ‘It would be unfortunate’ if anyone gets lost in the shuffle, Golden said.” [Portland Press Herald, 12/10/18]

12/12/18: Former ME-02 Rep. Mike Michaud Said Golden Was In An “Unfortunate” Situation Of Receiving No Assistance In Transitioning Into His Role As Representative When Poliquin Was Tied Up In Lawsuits. “Former U.S. Rep. Mike Michaud, who served from 2002 to 2014, said Wednesday that he talked about staffing, budgets and more with Poliquin as the pair successfully ensured ‘a very smooth transition.’ […] Michaud said that getting a helping hand from the incumbent is a big boost for an incoming legislator on Capitol Hill. He said Baldacci explained to him how ‘to navigate the system,’ introduced him to key lawmakers and even wound up providing some of his staff. When Poliquin won in 2014, Michaud said, he made sure that his staff was ready to assist the Republican in any way they could. Newcomers have so much to do, Michaud said, from getting their offices lined up in Washington and back in the district to hiring staff, that anything that eases the way is useful. He said it’s too bad Golden isn’t receiving any advice from Poliquin. ‘It’s unfortunate he’s in the situation he’s in now,’ Michaud said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 12/12/18]

12/14/18: Golden Requested “That His Staff Be Allowed To Begin The Process Of Working With My Incoming Team To Transition Outstanding Casework, And Other Important Matters.” “Golden said Friday that he was ‘humbled by the support of the majority of voters in this election’ and working on the transition. ‘At this time, I remain focused on preparations to take office on January 3rd, and on building the strongest team possible to serve the people of Maine over the next two years,’ said Golden, who was assistant majority leader in the Maine House during the last legislative session. ‘I also want to thank Bruce Poliquin for his four years of service in Congress, and for running a spirited campaign,’ Golden said in the statement. ‘I now ask that his staff be allowed to begin the process of working with my incoming team to transition outstanding casework, and other important matters, for the good of the constituents that we were elected to serve.’” [WGME, 12/14/18]

| Poliquin’s Lawyers From His Case Against Ranked-Choice Voting Went On To Testify Against The For The People Act And Join The RNC’s “Election Integrity” Committee In 2021, Seeking To Restrict Access To The Ballot |

Lee Goodman And Josh Tardy Represented Poliquin And Three Other Plaintiffs In Their 2018 Case Against Maine’s Ranked-Choice Voting System. “Plaintiffs Brett Baber, Terry Hamm-Morris, Mary Hartt, and Bruce Poliquin (collectively ‘Plaintiffs’), by and through their attorneys, file this complaint against Matthew Dunlap, the Secretary of the State of Maine (‘Secretary’), seeking declaratory and injunctive relief on an expedited basis. […] The lack of access to such basic information about which candidates will be on the ballot and the match-up of candidates who will be on the ballot prevents Plaintiffs from choosing among candidates and casting their votes effectively, causing them irreparable injury under the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution.
February 2021: Josh Tardy Joined The RNC’s “Election Integrity” Committee, Which Advocated For Sweeping Voting Restrictions

February 2021: Josh Tardy Joined The RNC’s “Election Integrity” Committee. “The Maine Republican Party released the following statement regarding Maine’s National Committeeman Josh Tardy being named to the RNC Election Integrity Committee. Ensuring the integrity of Maine and the entire nation’s elections is a top priority for the Maine Republican Party and the Republican National Committee.” [Maine GOP, Press Release, 2/19/21]

The RNC “Election Integrity” Committee Recommended Eliminating Same-Day And Automatic Voter Registration, “ID Requirements For All Voting Methods” And “Clean[ing] Up” Voter Rolls. “The pandemic brought chaos and comprehensive changes to voting processes beginning in the spring primaries and lasting through the post-election process,” said the 23-page report from the RNC’s Committee on Election Integrity, created by party Chairwoman Ronna McDaniel. […] Many of the recommendations are common sense but opposed by some Democratic lawmakers who instead are using reforms to paint Republicans as proponents of limiting voting. The committee’s top recommendations: Clean up their voter rolls. Eliminate same-day and automatic voter registration. Enact ID requirements for all voting methods, while ensuring officials educate the public on ID requirements and provide free IDs to those few without one. Only use voting systems that produce a paper record of a voter’s selections that is reviewable pre-tabulation and auditable post-election. Prohibit ballot harvesting. Enact uniform and enforceable standards for rejecting and accepting absentee ballots.” [Washington Examiner, 8/19/21]

March 2021: Lee Goodman Testified To The Senate Committee On Rules And Administration Against The For The People Act

March 2021: Lee Goodman Testified To The Senate Committee On Rules And Administration Against The For The People Act, Which He Said Would Exacerbate “Cancel Culture.” “Thank you inviting me to speak about S. 1. Although the bill purports to support ‘the people,’ it ironically imposes significant burdens on the people’s core constitutional right to speak and associate. The most dramatic provisions of S. 1 would not regulate speech about elections, but speech about issues and public policy. Indeed, S. 1 proposes many restrictions on the right of the American people to speak about issues and politicians, hear ideas, and associate freely. It exposes Americans to an unprecedented system of mandatory public doxing and exposure when they desire to spend as little as $500 to discuss sensitive policy issues. It likewise imposes new civil and criminal liability on American media companies, which will push many media companies to eliminate low-cost online advertising platforms from populist organizations for political messages. […] At a time of intense political polarization, when ‘cancel culture’ and ‘call out tactics’ and political polarization and intolerance are at their zenith, this bill exacerbates all of these social problems.” [Senate Rules And Administration Committee, Lee Goodman Testimony, 3/24/21]

Throughout His Legal Challenge, Poliquin Spread Election Misinformation That Maine’s Secretary Of State Said Needlessly Damaged Confidence In Elections

November 2018: Poliquin Claimed Ballot Boxes Were Not Secured, But Never Filed A Complaint With Maine’s Secretary Of State Over The Allegation

Poliquin’s Campaign And Maine Republican Party Circulated Photos Of Ballot Boxes And Claimed They Were Unlocked. “Dunlap was responding to comments made Saturday by Brendan Conley, a spokesman for the campaign of U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, whose contest against Democrat Jared Golden was not conclusive on Election Day and instead will be resolved by ranked-choice voting tabulations. Conley said ballot boxes appear to have been mishandled during the ranked-choice process underway in the state capital. He sent several photos to the Portland Press Herald that he claimed showed unlocked ballot boxes.” [Kennebee Journal,
Maine Secretary Of State Dunlap: “Rest Assured, All Ballot Boxes Containing Actual Ballots Are Not Only Locked But Also Have A Serialized Seal That Cannot Be Reconnected.” “Dunlap, who has not seen the photos, said he has not received any complaints about unpadlocked ballot boxes. He said Saturday night the state has a ‘very rigorous’ chain of custody for ballots, ‘from the printing press to when they're sealed in a ballot box and beyond.’ He also said the boxes that arrived in Augusta without locks contained material irrelevant to the ranked-choice tabulation, such as voter lists. ‘Rest assured, all ballot boxes containing actual ballots are not only locked but also have a serialized seal that cannot be reconnected,’ the Secretary of State's Office tweeted Saturday night. ‘The chain of custody for Mainer’s ballots is very strict and anyone involved in the transport process must sign off on it.’” [Kennebec Journal, 11/12/18]

That's because, as they well know, there were none.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Bill Nemitz Column, 11/16/18]

November 2018: Poliquin Claimed A Bangor Clerk Illegally Counted Absentee Ballots Without Supervision; Maine Secretary Of State Said No Such Complaint Was Filed

Poliquin Spokesperson Claimed A Bangor Polling Clerk “Was Tabulating Absentee Ballots On Her Own And Without Any Election Monitoring, Which Is Illegal.” “U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin's campaign on Saturday said it's clear the congressman won a third term in Tuesday's election and expressed concerns about the handling of ballots during the ranked-choice voting tabulation now underway in Augusta. Brendan Conley, a spokesman for Poliquin, said the concerns are related to the ballots and ballot boxes that arrived in Augusta, including some that were missing locks. ‘There is also a report of a clerk at the Bangor polling station who was tabulating absentee ballots on her own and without any election monitoring, which is illegal,’ Conley said in an email. ‘These are certainly concerning.’” [Portland Press Herald, 11/10/18]

Poliquin Claimed Voting Tabulation Software Distorted Votes, Which Maine’s Secretary Of State Denied, And A Bates Professor Debunked

Poliquin’s Spokesperson Claimed “Black Box” Elections Software Distorted Votes
Poliquin’s spokesperson claimed “Black Box” elections software distorted votes: “No one is able to review the software or computer algorithm used by a computer to determine elections.” “[Poliquin spokesperson Brendan] Conley said Poliquin has ‘heard from countless Maine voters who were confused and even frightened their votes did not count due to computer-engineered rank voting. ‘Furthermore, we have become aware that the computer software and ‘black box’ voting system utilized by the secretary of state is secret,’ he said. ‘No one is able to review the software or computer algorithm used by a computer to determine elections. This artificial intelligence is not transparent.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/26/18]

- Poliquin: “I think it’s time that we have real ballots, counted by real people. Real ballots counted by real people, instead of this black box that computes who wins and who loses.” [Bangor Daily News, 12/2/18]

Maine’s Secretary of State said the software had been “used for years” and denied the election results had been distorted

Maine’s Secretary of State denied that election results were distorted by software that the state “has used for years.” “Dunlap scoffed at the secrecy argument. He said Poliquin’s campaign asked about the software used to count the ballots and was told the state had to keep details confidential for security purposes. ‘You don’t put something like that out there for hackers to use,’ Dunlap said. He said the state paid Nebraska-based Election Systems & Software, which the state has used for years, to come up with the software needed to count the paper ballots Maine relies on. Dunlap said the tabulators in past recounts have proven 99.9 percent accurate and he expects that will happen once again with the congressional recount.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/26/18]

December 2018: A Bates College Professor used publicly available raw election data to recreate Maine Secretary of State’s vote totals to one hundredth of a percent. “The Maine secretary of state’s office has published all the election results on its website — every ballot, every ranking in every town. It’s all there in massive data files that can be inspected and downloaded. So [Bates College Chair of Economics Nathan] Tefft took that data and plugged it into Python, a program that allows users to write code that calculates the data — in this case, to simulate the ranked-choice election. Now, it’s true that the software the state uses is proprietary. But the rules that are used by that software are just as public as the election results. ‘Because the rules are publicly available I could implement those rules myself and then replicate the process directly,’ he said. So that’s what Tefft did, plugging in rules for all the various ballot scenarios. After about six hours, Tefft came up with a final tally for the election and the runoff: Golden received 50.62 percent of the vote, and Poliquin received 49.38 percent. The state results? 50.62 percent for Golden, 49.38 for Poliquin. ‘Yeah, it’s just math,’ Tefft said.” [Bangor Daily News, 12/2/18]

November 2018: Poliquin claimed without evidence that ranked-choice voting led to chaos and confusion

Poliquin claimed ranked-choice voting led to chaos and confusion at polls but could not provide evidence for his claim other than social media comments

November 2018: Poliquin claimed ranked-choice voting led to chaos and confusion at polls. “Rep. Bruce Poliquin said Tuesday his request for a recount in Maine’s 2nd Congressional District race is ‘about making sure that the system works’ following a historic ranked-choice election he portrayed as ‘chaotic’ and confusing for voters. […] Republican opponents of ranked-choice voting also have repeatedly labeled the system as ‘chaotic’ and even circus-like. ‘There’s been lots and lots of confusion,’ Poliquin said. ‘On Election Day, you folks have all reported this and seen this. We’ve had hundreds and hundreds of folks who have come to us.’” [Portland Press Herald, 11/27/18]

- Poliquin: Republican voters stayed home because they were confused about ranked-choice voting in a “glaring instance of voter suppression.” “Poliquin said the No. 1 reason why many GOP voters opted to stay home on Election Day last year was ‘rank vote confusion.’ ‘Not a day goes by without a fellow Mainer stopping me in the grocery store or at Dunkin’ Donuts to complain about the unfair and confusing process, and angry about his or her sacred vote not counting,’ he said. Poliquin called it ‘a glaring instance of voter suppression, unintended or not.’ Bond called the notion that votes were suppressed “absolutely stupid. I met no one who found it confusing.”’ [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/19/19]

- November 2018: Poliquin Claimed Ranked-Choice Voting Led To “Huge” Lines At The Polls And Long Wait Times. “And I think that’s one of the reasons it took so long to vote on Election Day. I was up at the Bangor polling station, the largest one in our district, from about seven in the morning til eight at night, in fact I was there from seven in the morning til eight at night. And the lines were huge, it took […] forever. Some folks were waiting one to two hours, some folks just gave up and left because it was so long. Now, one of the reasons is because voter turnout was so high. The second is because of this chaotic rank voice process that has never been used here in the state of Maine before.” [News Center Maine YouTube, 11/27/18] (VIDEO) 5:23

Portland Press Herald: Poliquin’s Campaign Could Not Provide Evidence For Its Claims Of Chaos At The Polls Other Than Social Media Comments. “However, Poliquin's campaign couldn't provide any evidence of chaos or confusion on Election Day other than to point to comments on social media and the campaign's Facebook page. And clerks from a half-dozen larger towns in the 2nd District disagreed with - and sometimes chuckled at - Poliquin's portrayal of the election. Media organizations in Maine did not report on any widespread problems or confusion during or immediately after the election.” [Portland Press Herald, 11/27/18]

Maine’s Secretary Of State Dunlap: “To Characterize This, As It Has Been Characterized, As ‘Chaotic,’ ‘Confusing’ And I Believe The Word ‘Circus’ Has Been Used […] Demeans What The Voters Have Done.” “Maine’s secretary of state fired back at critics – including Poliquin’s campaign and his lawyers – for characterizing the process of gathering and preparing ballots for the ranked-choice tabulations as ‘confusing’ and ‘chaotic.’ The entire process was closely watched – and often videotaped – by attorneys from both campaigns as well as members of the media. ‘To characterize this, as it has been characterized, as ‘chaotic,’ ‘confusing’ and I believe the word ‘circus’ has been used … it just demeans what the voters have done,’ said Dunlap, a Democrat. ‘And anybody who has doubts about this process is welcome to come to these public forums and watch us do our work.’” [Portland Press Herald, 11/15/18]

Poliquin Claimed “Thousands And Thousands” Of Ballots Were Set Aside On Election Day, Denied By Maine’s Secretary Of State

11/27/18: Poliquin Claimed “Thousands And Thousands” Of Ballots Were Set Aside On Election Day, Which Was “Very, Very Unusual.” “Poliquin on Tuesday tried to cast doubt on the election results. He said his campaign received reports from ‘hundreds of people’ about confusion with the new ranked voting system, including conflicting instructions to voters at the polls. Poliquin also claimed that ‘thousands and thousands’ of ballots were set aside. ‘That is very, very unusual,’ he said.” [Associated Press, 11/27/18]
11/27/18: Poliquin: “IN A SHOCKING DEVELOPMENT The Secretary Of State Claims To Have Found New Rank Votes On The Eve Of The Recount Deadline.” “IN A SHOCKING DEVELOPMENT the Secretary of State claims to have found new Rank Votes on the eve of the recount deadline. These new Rank Votes, counted apparently with no observers using the computerized Rank Vote process, the Democrat Secretary of State said increases my political opponent’s Rank Vote total by hundreds of votes. What is still certain however is that I received the most votes under the ‘one-person, one-vote’ standard on Election Day. This is very concerning and casts further doubt and confusion over the entire Rank election process.”

Poliquin Claimed “Hundreds Of Additional Votes” Could Have Been Overlooked, Which Maine’s Secretary Of State Denied

11/26/18: Maine Secretary Of State’s Office Released Corrected Vote Totals After It Discovered 6,100 Ballots Had Been Fed Into An Incompatible Tabulation Machine In First Tally Of Votes. “When Secretary of State Matt Dunlap recently certified the results of the race, Democrat Jared Golden’s lead over Republican incumbent U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin was 600 votes more than the number announced Nov. 15 following the ranked-choice tally. The bump gave the victor a lead of more than 3,500 votes. [...] The votes from six towns, though, were always there, state officials said. They hadn’t been counted properly because of a glitch in the system that elections workers didn’t discover until just before they went home for Thanksgiving vacation, according to Kristen Muszynski, Dunlap’s communications director. More than 6,100 ExpressVote ballots from the towns — Monroe, Blue Hill, Otis, Van Buren, Mars Hill and Brewer — had been mistakenly fed into a tabulating machine that couldn’t actually count them, she said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/27/18]

Maine Secretary Of State Spokesperson: “This Is Nothing New Or Different Than What We Do For Every Other Election.” “Dunlap's office on Monday sent out official results that included about 6,000 additional votes that weren't included in that tally. Officials said the error occurred due to votes not uploading properly into election software at polling places in six cities. Maine's official results show Golden won with 142,440 votes and Poliquin with 138,931 votes. ‘This is nothing new or different than what we do for every other election,’ Muszynski said. ‘It's part of the work to make sure everything’s accurate.’” [Associated Press, 11/27/18]

12/8/18: Maine Republican Party Released Statements From 17 Voters From Maine’s 1st Congressional District Who Claimed Their Ballots Allowed Them To Vote In Maine’s 2nd Congressional District Race. “The [Maine Republican] party released a sheaf of sworn statements on Thursday from 17 voters -- several of them related to each other -- in Boothbay Harbor, Boothbay, Edgecomb and Trevett. - 12/6/18: Poliquin And Maine Republican Party Claimed To “Have Spoken To Over 15 People In Maine's 1st Congressional District Who Say They Received Ballots For The Wrong District.” “US Rep. Bruce Poliquin and the Maine Republican Party have raised yet another concerns with the election in Poliquin's district. Specifically, they report they have spoken to over 15 people in Maine's 1st Congressional District who say they received ballots for the wrong district.” [Independent Voter Network, 12/6/18]

All Claims Of Second District Ballots Distributed To The First District Surfaced After Election Day. “There is a varying degree of certainty in the affidavits and it doesn't seem as though any complaints were raised until after Election Day. Affidavits came from 17 voters who are certain to varying degrees that they had the wrong ballot. Some signed form affidavits saying they ‘swear’ they voted for U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, who lost the 2nd District race to Democrat Jared Golden. A married couple said they were ‘nearly positive’ they did. Another vote said he ‘did not realize it at the time but I now know’ he voted in the wrong race.” [Bangor Daily News, 12/7/18]

Poliquin Amplified The Maine Republican Party’s Claims That First District Voters Were Able To Vote In The Second District’s Election

12/6/18: Poliquin Called The Maine Republican Party’s Claims That First District Voters Were Able To Vote In The Second District’s Election “Very Concerning.” “MORE BREAKING ELECTION BALLOT CONCERNS: Today the Maine Republican Party released signed - and notarized - affidavits from 15+ Maine citizens in the 1st Congressional District stating they were given ballots to vote in Maine's 2nd Congressional District on Election Day. Additionally, other voters in the Boothbay Harbor area have reported on their official Town Facebook page they were also given 2nd District ballots to vote for Congress even though the live in the 1st Congressional District. This is very concerning.”

Maine’s Secretary of State Said That Tabulators Would Not Be Able To Read Votes Cast From Another District, And Any Outstanding Ballots From The 1st District Would Be Discounted In The Hand Recount
Maine’s Secretary Of State Spokesperson: Tabulators In Maine’s 1st Congressional District Would Not Be Able To Read Votes Cast In Maine’s 2nd Congressional District Race. “I reached out to Secretary of State Matthew Dunlap's office for comment on this and whether or not such claims made any consequential impact on the results in Maine's 2nd Congressional District. Here is what spokeswoman Kristen Muszynski told me: ‘In the towns that use tabulators, (Boothbay and Boothbay Harbor) their memory sticks are programmed and tested to only accept the ballot style for that municipality (including, in these cases, only Congressional District 1). If the printing contractor had mistakenly included a few ballots that are the wrong ballot style for that municipality (occasionally it can happen when ballots are being cut and shrink wrapped), the tabulator would not accept it – it would be incapable of reading it – and would have given an error message on the screen and required the ballot to be returned.’” [Independent Voter Network, 12/6/18]

- Maine Secretary Of State Spokesperson: Any Outstanding Ballots From Maine’s 1st Congressional District Voters Would Be Discounted In Hand Recount. “I reached out to Secretary of State Matthew Dunlap's office for comment on this and whether or not such claims made any consequential impact on the results in Maine's 2nd Congressional District. Here is what spokeswoman Kristen Muszynski told me: […] ‘In hand count towns, counters would see that the candidates on that ballot are incorrect and they would not count votes in that race either.’” [Independent Voter Network, 12/6/18]

December 2018: Poliquin Claimed Ranked-Choice Voting System Resulted In More Voters Failing To Select A Candidate In His Congressional Race, Which The Lewiston Sun Journal Disproved

Poliquin Claimed The Ranked-Choice Voting System Caused A Sharp Increase In The Number Of Voters Failing To Select A Candidate In His Congressional Race

December 2018: Poliquin Claimed Ranked-Choice Voting System Resulted In More Voters Failing To Select A Candidate In His Congressional Race. “During a press conference last week at the Portland’s International Jetport, the two-term Republican, who is challenging his defeat, said one of his concerns is Maine’s new voting system caused a sharp increase in the number of ballots for which voters failed to pick someone in Maine’s 2nd District congressional race. ‘There are thousands and thousands of underballots that have been put aside,’ Poliquin said. ‘That is very, very unusual.’ The incumbent, who lost to Democrat Jared Golden of Lewiston, said in a typical race there ‘might be a few hundred’ ballots that are left blank. ‘But here, there’ve been thousands and thousands of underballots,’ Poliquin said. ‘And how do you deal with those? That’s an issue.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Steve Collins Column, 12/3/18]

The Lewiston Sun Journal Reported That Underballots In Maine’s 2nd District Were More Common During Poliquin’s Successful Elections Than The One He Lost In 2018

Lewiston Sun Journal’s Steve Collins: Underballots In Maine’s 2nd Congressional District Were More Common In Poliquin’s Successful 2014 And 2016 Elections Than In 2018. “The reality, though, is voters in this election cast more ballots indicating a preference in Poliquin’s race than they did in both 2014 and 2016, the two races the Oakland Republican won. Rob Richie, president of Fair Vote, a group devoted to overhauling the way American election operate, said numbers distributed by Maine’s Secretary of State’s Office showed there were more than twice as many blank votes in the 2016 congressional contest as there were this year. The numbers he cited for races in 2014, 2016 and 2018 match up with results released by the Secretary of State Matt Dunlap. Richie said statistics show in 2014, when Poliquin was first elected, 11,532 voters in the district who cast ballots but did not select anyone in the congressional race. Two years ago, there were 12,703 voters who did not make a pick in the congressional race when Poliquin defeated Democrat Emily Cain. This year, 6,018 ballots were cast by voters who left the congressional race blank on their ballots, Rich said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Steve Collins Column, 12/3/18]

Judge Lance Walker Discounted Testimony That Argued More Voters Failed To Choose A Viable Candidate
Judge Lance Walker Discounted Testimony That Argued More Voters Failed To Choose A Viable Candidate Since It Assumed “That Those Voters Are Cognitively Unable To Fill Out A RCV Ballot.”

“Further, I am not persuaded by Dr. Gimpel’s testimony which attributes inherent virtue in the forced simplicity of two-party access to the ballot, thereby making easier the voters’ choice. He testified to what he perceived as a troubling reality that Maine has a low threshold for non-party candidates to gain access to the ballot. His thesis, as I understand it, is that by allowing for choices among several non-major-party candidates, voter turnout is likely to be comprised of a greater percentage of low-information voters, which apparently makes more likely that those voters are cognitively unable to fill out a RCV ballot.” [Judge Walker Judgment, Barber et al v. Dunlap et al, First Circuit Court of Appeals, PACER, 12/13/18]

- Judge Walker: The Testimony Was “Not Grounded In Anything Approaching A Reliable Standard That May Be Informative Of The Constitutional Questions.” “In addition to being cynical, these conclusions are not grounded in anything approaching a reliable standard that may be informative of the constitutional questions. They are instead provocative reactions to a new system of selecting representatives to Congress, and such reactions often are the byproduct of change. Dr. Gimpel’s testimony left me with the impression of a panel debate among political scientists in a nascent field of study. To his credit, Dr, Gimpel conceded that he has not discussed the RCV experience with a single Maine voter but would like to conduct such a study. In the meantime, I simply am unable to credit his testimony any weight on the constitutional issues before the Court.” [Judge Walker Judgment, Barber et al v. Dunlap et al, First Circuit Court of Appeals, PACER, 12/13/18]

Maine’s Secretary Of State And Editorialists: Poliquin Damaged Faith In Elections Through His Lawsuit And Misleading Criticism Of Ranked-Choice Voting

Maine Secretary Of State Dunlap On Poliquin’s Election Interference Allegations: “It Could Get People Thinking There Is Something Wrong”

Maine Secretary Of State Dunlap On Poliquin’s Election Interference Allegations: “It Could Get People Thinking There Is Something Wrong.” “Maine Secretary of State Matthew Dunlap criticized the campaign of U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin on Sunday for its allegations about mishandled ballot boxes, saying the charges could cause voters to lose confidence in the voting system. ‘I feel like I should reach out to the campaign and say, ‘Let us do our work before you assume there is something nefarious happening.’ It could get people thinking there is something wrong,’ Dunlap said.” [Kennebec Journal, 11/12/18]

- Dunlap: Poliquin’s Campaign Told Media Of Alleged Election Interference Instead Of Filing Complaints With His Office: “I Am Pretty Frustrated By This.” “Dunlap said Sunday that Poliquin's campaign has raised no complaints or sent any photographs of the mishandling of ballot boxes to him. ‘Rather than ask questions, they are going to the media. My entire stock in trade here is based not on the outcome of the election but on voter confidence. I am pretty frustrated by this,’ Dunlap said.” [Kennebec Journal, 11/12/18]

Greg Kesich Editorial: Poliquin “Attack[ed] The Honesty And Trustworthiness Of The Election Process Itself.” “Poliquin made a rare public appearance to declare that he “won the constitutional ‘one person, one vote’ election,” which is nonsense, not least because the phrase “one person, one vote” isn’t even in the Constitution. But we do have the 14th Amendment, which guarantees equal protection of the law. That’s a standard that this vote-counting system meets, whether you like it or not. Advertisement It’s easy to write off all the griping as the kind of thing that people say when their candidate loses a close election. But what’s happening here could be more sinister. Poliquin isn’t just challenging a controversial election reform. He’s attacking the honesty and trustworthiness of the election process itself.” [Portland Press Herald, Greg Kesich Editorial, 12/9/18]

Lewiston Sun Journal’s Bill Nemitz: Poliquin “Resorted To Seeding Groundless Doubt About The Integrity Of The Election” After Losing Under Ranked-Choice Voting System. “In other words, the man simply refuses to lose. What’s worse, as his lawsuit careens toward a crash landing before Judge Walker sometime next month, Poliquin’s campaign has resorted to seeding groundless doubt about the integrity of the election itself.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Bill Nemitz Column, 11/16/18]

Kennebec Journal Editorial Board Headline: “Poliquin Should Stop Trashing The Election”

Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: “It Does No Good For Maine To Have A Member Of Congress Claim — Without Evidence — That Our Elections Are Rigged.” “We expect that Poliquin will lose his case, but he was right to bring this challenge, because unsubstantiated claims about the constitutionality of ranked-choice voting will be a distraction until the questions are decided in court. But it does no good for Maine to have a member of Congress claim — without evidence — that our elections are rigged. People need to accept that elections are honest, and that starts with the candidates who lose.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 11/29/18]

Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: “It’s Time For Poliquin To Let His Lawyers Do The Talking And Go Back To Wherever He’s Been Hiding From Cameras And Reporters Since Taking Office Four Years Ago.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 11/29/18]

Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: Poliquin Was “Trying To Stir Up Public Panic About The Honesty Of Maine’s Elections” With “Hysterical Squawking” Because He Lost. “But Poliquin is not only suing, but also demanding a recount of every ballot and trying to stir up public panic about the honesty of Maine’s elections. The megaphone of the Maine Republican Party is amplifying Poliquin’s false alarms, claiming that his voters were confused and frightened by a ballot that asked whether they wanted to express a second choice. While the lawsuit seeks to resolve questions and create a predictable path forward, Poliquin’s hysterical squawking about ‘artificial intelligence’ and a secret ‘algorithm’ just sows chaos and distrust. Poliquin is a sophisticated, Harvard-trained investment banker, and he knows that there is no ‘algorithm’ at work, just simple arithmetic. He has a right to make sure that the election was honest, but the people of Maine also have rights, chief among them that Poliquin won’t use his position of trust to poison public confidence in the whole system just because he may have lost the election.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 11/29/18]

First-Time Voter’s Editorial: Poliquin’s “Efforts To Change The Result Of Maine’s Second Congressional District’s Election Perilous For Our Democratic Process.” “Democracy requires fair voting processes and clear rules. It’s healthy and necessary to debate the best system for conducting elections, but it is unfair to change the rules once the outcome is known. For that reason, Bruce Poliquin’s recent lawsuit against ranked choice voting was misguided, and his efforts to change the result of Maine’s Second Congressional District’s election perilous for our democratic process.” [Emmett Shell Op-Ed, Lewiston Sun Journal, 12/16/18]
Editorial: “Poliquin’s Efforts To Change The Results Of The Election Would Have Disenfranchised Me And Thousands Of Fellow Mainers Like Me Who Voted For [Independents] Bond Or Hoar.” “Poliquin’s efforts to change the results of the election would have disenfranchised me and thousands of fellow Mainers like me who voted for Bond or Hoar. Not only was Poliquin trying to change the rules after the game ends, but he was trying to change a good rule that was agreed upon by all four candidates and affirmed twice by the citizens of Maine.” [Emmett Shell Op-Ed, Lewiston Sun Journal, 12/16/18]

Op-Ed: “Young Voters In Maine, Like Me, Need To Know That Our Elected Officials Are Doing Everything In Their Power To Make Sure Our Votes Count” And “ Poliquin Should Be Among Them.” “In this election, more than any midterm in recent history, energized voters from both sides of the aisle sent participation skyrocketing. Young people like me were particularly engaged. The national voting rate among 18- to 29-year-olds increased from 18 percent to 29 percent, the highest percentage in a midterm for more than three decades for this age group. More than voting, we worked on campaigns, talked to our friends, and collectively played a bigger role than usual in deciding our own future. Our national focus now needs to be toward retaining this energy, not finding ways to suppress and discount votes. Young voters in Maine, like me, need to know that our elected officials are doing everything in their power to make sure our votes count. As our congressman, Poliquin should be among them.” [Emmett Shell Op-Ed, Lewiston Sun Journal, 12/16/18]

2018 – 2021: Poliquin Maintained That He Won The 2018 Election And Foreshadowed A Plan To “Deal With” Ranked-Choice Voting In 2022

| Poliquin Refused To Say He Would Accept The Results Of The Ranked-Choice Election, Then Declared Victory Before The Ranked-Choice Count Was Complete |

VIDEO: Poliquin Did Not Answer When He Was Asked Whether He Would Accept The Results Of The Ranked Choice Voting Election. HOST: “With the new ranked choice voting method, will you accept the outcome of this race?” POLIQUIN: “I’m going to circle in Bruce Poliquin, one and only vote, drop in the box and go forward.” [C-SPAN, 2018 ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/16/18] (VIDEO) 49:00

10/22/2018: Poliquin Refused To Say He Would Accept The Results Of A Ranked-Choice Election And Instead Said He Would “Circle In ‘Bruce Poliquin,’ […] One And Only One Vote.” “One of the more telling moments in the two debates between the four congressional candidates in Maine's 2nd District came during the final question they faced. Asked if they'd accept the outcome of the ranked-choice voting contest, three of the contenders say they would. But U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, a two-term Republican from Oakland, passed up the chance to rule out a possible legal challenge if he comes up short Nov. 6. 'I'm going to circle in 'Bruce Poliquin',' the incumbent said, adding 'one and only vote, drop it in the box and go forward.' ‘I don't think he answered the question,’ said Democratic challenger Jared Golden of Lewiston.” [Portland Press Herald, 10/22/18]

10/22/2018: Poliquin’s Campaign “Ignored Requests For Comment” On Whether Poliquin Would Accept Election Results. “Golden, Bond and Hoar said that if ranked-choice voting leads to an outcome they don't like -- such as losing out in the second round -- they will accept the decision made by voters. But Poliquin has never made that assertion. His campaign ignored requests for comment on the issue Monday. Instead, its spokesman, Brendan Conley, said only that Poliquin ‘cannot in good conscience support any of the other candidates in this race.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/22/18]

11/6/2018: Poliquin Refused To Say He Would Accept The Results Of A Ranked-Choice Election, Which He Dismissed As A “Hypothetical.” “Poliquin hasn’t said whether he’d accept the results of a ranked-choice election, saying Saturday it was a ‘hypothetical.’ Chatter about a lawsuit could heighten if Poliquin emerges as the first-round leader only to lose to Golden after the independents’ votes are re-allocated.” [Bangor Daily News, 11/7/18]

11/10/18: Poliquin: “It's Clear That Bruce Won Election Day By A Margin Of Over 2,000 Votes, Defeating All 3 Other Opponents. In Any Other Federal Election Across America This Process Would Be Complete.” “As Rank Choice Voting begins, it’s clear that Bruce won Election Day by a margin of over 2,000 votes, defeating all 3 other opponents. In any other federal election across America this process would be complete. Maine is the only state subject to this Rank Choice Voting system which allows people multiple votes, via the reallocation of their vote, if they didn't initially select one of the two top vote earners. We will continue to monitor this process, as there have been ongoing concerns.”

11/13/18: Poliquin Declared Victory “Fair And Square.” “Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin says he won re-election ‘fair and square’ and says he has a duty to fight Maine’s new voting system that he says is unconstitutional.” [Associated Press, 11/13/18]

Portland Press Editorial Board: Poliquin Was “Undermining Democracy And The Rule Of Law For His Own Gain” By Claiming Victory In 2018 Race

Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: Poliquin Was “Undermining Democracy And The Rule Of Law For His Own Gain” By Claiming Victory In 2018 Race. “In other words, Maine voters wanted federal elections run with ranked-choice voting, and the Constitution doesn’t forbid it, so that’s the way it is. Everything else – including all the allegations pushed by Poliquin – is just noise. That includes the repeated assertion that because Poliquin received the most votes in the first round – that he got ‘more votes on Election Day’ – he was somehow entitled to the seat. With this claim, Poliquin is simply undermining democracy and the rule of law for his own gain. But those ‘Election Day’ numbers are essentially meaningless – Poliquin didn’t get the first-round majority needed to win. Besides, who knows how people would have voted if ranked-choice voting hadn’t been in play?” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 12/28/18]

August 2019 – August 2021: Poliquin Maintained That He Won The 2018 Election

- Poliquin: “I Won This Seat Three Times - 2014, 2016, 2018 - But Was Only Seated Twice Because Of Ranked Vote.” “Former U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin insists that he was the real winner of the 2018 race that he lost to Democratic challenger Jared Golden. Poliquin hopes to become the Republican nominee next year to take on Golden in Maine's GOP-friendly 2nd District. There are at least two other contenders who may force a primary next June. Poliquin, though, doesn't accept that he ever lost the seat to begin with. ‘I won this seat three times - 2014, 2016, 2018 - but was only seated twice because of ranked vote,’ he said in a radio interview Thursday. In the interview with WVOM-FM in Bangor, Poliquin said this time around, his campaign is ready to deal with ranked-choice voting.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/6/21]
8/4/21: Poliquin: “Head-To-Head, You Know, I Beat Golden In 2018, And God Willing, I Will Do It Again Next Year.” “Poliquin, who typically resides in Georgetown, said this year he’ll go into the race with his eyes wide open about ranked-choice voting, but in his radio interview he continued to maintain that he won the 2018 race. ‘Head-to-head, you know, I beat Golden in 2018, and God willing, I will do it again next year,’ Poliquin said. Poliquin lost the race by 3,509 votes. It was the first time since 1916 that an incumbent in Maine’s 2nd District went down to defeat.” [Portland Press Herald, 8/4/21]

November 2020: Poliquin Said He Won The 2018 Election. POLIQUIN: “I remember having experienced this in a little way, Matt, two years ago in my second re-election in 2018 which I won and then nine days later they scammed it with this ranked voting. But it was my responsibility to take this to court to make sure everything was up to snuff but once the election was certified, it becomes very difficult to do that. So what Trump is doing is what he should be doing. It’s his responsibility, win or lose, to make sure he challenges these results because they are so close and it was so unconventional, the way we voted this way with mail-in voting, to give people confidence that their vote counted. So he’s got to go through this process. He should. It’s his responsibility. But he’s got an uphill climb.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/13/20] (AUDIO) 1:47

August 2019: Poliquin: “I’m Itching To Run Again To Right The Rank Voting Scam Which Gave My Win - Our Win - On Election Day To The Candidate Who Came In Second Place.”
August 2021: Poliquin Said His Team Had “A Plan To Deal With” Ranked-Choice Voting And Said He Hoped Democrats “Won’t Game The System Again.”

August 2021: Poliquin Said His Team Had “A Plan To Deal With” Ranked-Choice Voting And Said He Hoped Democrats “Won’t Game The System Again.” “Poliquin, though, doesn’t accept that he ever lost the seat to begin with. ‘I won this seat three times - 2014, 2016, 2018 - but was only seated twice because of ranked vote,’ he said in a radio interview Thursday. In the interview with WVOM-FM in Bangor, Poliquin said this time around, his campaign is ready to deal with ranked-choice voting. ‘We're going into this with our eyes wide open,’ Poliquin said, adding that ‘we have a plan to deal with that.’ Poliquin, 67, also expressed hope that Democrats ‘won't try to game the system again’ this year. There is no evidence that anyone gamed the system in 2018, when Poliquin lost by 3,509 votes to Golden, 38, a former state representative from Lewiston.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/6/21]

… But Claimed The 2020 Election Could Be “Determined By Liberal Vote Harvesting Schemes” And “Unsecured Universal Mail-In Voting”

“Upcoming SCOTUS session starts in 2 weeks. President & Senate should abide by Constitution and replace late Justice Ginsburg as soon as possible. A full 9-member bench is needed to decide important issues like possible contested election due to unsecured universal mail-in voting.”

9/15/20: Poliquin Claimed The 2020 Election Could Be “Determined By Liberal Vote Harvesting Schemes” And Encouraged Republicans To Volunteer As Poll Watchers. “Pleased to see @mainegop and Trump Victory asking for volunteers to sign up to be trained as poll watchers on November 3. The future of our state and country should not be determined by liberal vote harvesting schemes like the one being pushed by Alliance for Retired Americans.”
August 2020: Poliquin: “Mail-In Voting Is Simply Too Susceptible To Fraud.” “The media should start telling the truth about the big difference between secure time-tested absentee voting and unsecured universal mail-in voting.” [Bruce Poliquin, 8/20/20]

3/13/21: Poliquin Claimed Vote-By-Mail Access During The 2020 Election Led To Ballot Harvesting By “Political Activists” And Inaccurate Voter Rolls. “Before Election Day 2020, a number of states used their pandemic lockdowns as a reason to change the way residents were required to vote and how to count the ballots. Nevada politicians joined peers in other battleground states to blanket mail live ballots to reportedly inaccurate voter rolls even when residents did not request them. Political activists were allowed to go door-to-door to “harvest” those ballots and, presumably, turn them (or some of them) over to election officials. Swing states Michigan and Wisconsin used unmonitored ballot drop boxes. By passing H.R.1, Democrats in Congress want to allow, and encourage, every state to use this sloppy, unsecure process.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/13/21]

- Poliquin: The For The People Act Would Foster An “Election Circus” By Allowing Extra Time To Count Ballots. “Last November, some states permitted ballots to be counted long after Election Day. Pennsylvania kept counting for three additional days. The election circus unfolded as stakeholders challenged the safekeeping of uncounted ballots days after the polls closed. H.R.1 allows for 10 extra days of counting.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/13/21]

Political activists were allowed to go door-to-door to “harvest” those ballots and, presumably, turn them (or some of them) over to election officials. November 2020: Poliquin Said He Agreed With Trump’s Decision To Take The Results Of The 2020 Presidential Election To Court

November 2020: Poliquin Said He And Trump Both Had A “Responsibility” To Litigate Election Results. December 2020: Poliquin Said Biden Was “Likely The President-Elect” Though There Was Still A Chance Trump Would Win The Election. POLIQUIN: “If Trump had won the election, and he still may, but it looks like he probably won’t, if Trump had won the election, this would be dead on arrival. […] Now, however, that Biden is likely the President-elect and likely will be seated on January 20, she probably wants to give him some sort of win.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 12/4/20] (AUDIO) 4:23

August 2021: A Maine Columnist Wrote Poliquin Attempted To “Create A ‘Little Lie’” That He Won The 2018 Election In Parallel To Trump’s “Big Lie”

August 2021: Douglas Rooks Column: Poliquin “Is Trying To Create A ‘Little Lie’” That He Won The 2018 Election In Parallel To Trump’s “Big Lie.” “There were two former Democrats running as independents with significantly higher profiles than Bond; one, Alan Caron, withdrew and endorsed Mills, while the other, Terry Hayes — like Poliquin, a former state treasurer — got just 6%. Mills actually won a first-term majority, for the first time since Ken Curtis in 1966. Poliquin’s claim that ranked-choice voting was unconstitutional fared no better.
Federal Judge Lance Walker, a Donald Trump appointee, not only dismissed the claims, but eviscerated them — in well-written, reasoned judicial prose. Poliquin still insists he won, apparently with the idea that voter remorse will propel him back to Congress. Just as the ‘big lie’ that Trump won an election he lost seems to be tarnishing, Poliquin is trying to create a ‘little lie.’ The voters seem proficient in the use of ranked-choice voting, as even its critics — including this writer — must acknowledge. Bruce Poliquin may be the only candidate pretending otherwise.” [Seacoast Online, Douglas Rooks Column, 8/14/21]

- Rooks: “Poliquin Exhibits Nothing Much More Than A Desire To Get His Old Job Back.” “At 67, Poliquin exhibits nothing much more than a desire to get his old job back. Truth is, he was fortunate to become state treasurer, riding LePage’s endorsement to a job usually reserved for former legislators, since the Legislature makes the choice. He then drew a hapless 2nd District opponent, Emily Cain, in 2014 and 2016, whose sole reason for running the second time was that there would be ‘a different electorate,’ which there wasn’t. Golden, a former Iraq veteran is, whatever his failings, more than ready for a challenge. Like most political comebacks, Poliquin’s already resembles the characters of F. Scott Fitzgerald’s The Great Gatsby: ‘boats against the current, borne back ceaselessly into the past.’” [Seacoast Online, Douglas Rooks Column, 8/14/21]

2019 – 2021: Poliquin Continued To Criticize Ranked-Choice Voting As A “Scam” That He Claimed Bred Voter Fraud And Awarded Second-Place Finishers

November 2019: Poliquin Claimed Ranked-Choice Voting Was A “Scam” That Resulted In Ballots Being Thrown Out In 2018 And Awarded Second-Place Finishers

Poliquin Said Ranked Choice Voting Was A “Scam” And A “Rip-Off” That Awarded The ME-02 Congressional Seat To The Race’s Second Place Finisher. POLIQUIN: “Ranked voting up here in Maine turned out to be the biggest voter rip-off in our state’s history. We’ve been using common sense one person, one vote, a constitutional way to do this, for 200 years up here and it worked just fine. No confusion, simple. The person that gets the most votes on election day wins, like myself. We won, but nine days later after this confusion of counting these votes again and again, this black box computer algorithm that gave the seat to the candidate that came in second. So I told them the truth. I said, you’ve got to look at this closely. The folks from the second district that I represented rejected it twice because it’s such a scam.” [WVOM, GHRT Rewind, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/18/19] (AUDIO) 1:47

Poliquin Discussed The Idea Of Finding Conservative Independents To Run In The ME-02 Congressional Race Who Would Tell Voters To Rank Poliquin Second. POLIQUIN: “Your thought process has to be something like this. Let’s find an independent who’s really a Republican and his or her only issue is the pro-life issue. Let’s make sure they get on the ballot and when people vote for them, make sure they vote for Bruce second. And let’s get someone whose only issue is the Second Amendment, and make sure when they vote for that individual, they vote for Bruce second, and so forth and so on. And on the Democrat side, Rick, it’s what they did in my election. Let’s get someone whose only issue is, pick an issue, animal rights, or the only issue is climate change. And so forth and so on and make sure they vote second place for the Democrat candidate.” [WVOM, GHRT Rewind, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/18/19] (AUDIO) 6:00

Poliquin Claimed There Were “Thousands And Thousands Of Ballots That Were Thrown Out” During The 2018 Congressional Election In ME-02. POLIQUIN: “There were thousands and thousands of ballots that were thrown out, spoiled ballots. We don’t know how many because they wouldn’t tell us. There were thousands of them. And in the end, the person who won this race did not get 50 percent of the votes cast. That’s what we were promised, you know, whoever wins is going to get 50 percent of the vote. Didn’t happen.” [WVOM, GHRT Rewind, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/18/19] (AUDIO) 7:54

November 2019: Poliquin Stated Ranked-Choice Voting System Yielded “Inherent” “Broken Promises, Confusion And Voter Fraud.” “The former congressman from Maine’s 2nd District, who lost his seat a year ago in the first federal race with ranked-choice voting, is speaking up in a bid to stymie the spread of an election system he views as ‘the biggest voter rip-off in Maine history.’” An outspoken critic of the system in Maine, Poliquin earlier this month urged a Massachusetts legislative committee looking into the possibility of adopting the system in the Bay State to ‘reject the broken promises, confusion and voter fraud inherent in rank voting. Don’t be hoodwinked like we were.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/19/19]

- Poliquin Claimed Ranked-Choice Voting Produced “An Unusually Large Number Of Spoiled Ballots,” Which Experts Denied. “Poliquin also told Bay State lawmakers that the voting system produced ‘an unusually large number of spoiled ballots’ — which experts said is not true — and left many voters confused.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/19/19]

Don’t be hoodwinked like we were.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/19/19]

- Poliquin Claimed Ranked-Choice Voting Produced “An Unusually Large Number Of Spoiled Ballots,” Which Experts Denied. “Poliquin also told Bay State lawmakers that the voting system produced ‘an unusually large number of spoiled ballots’ — which experts said is not true — and left many voters confused.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/19/19]
• Poliquin Claimed The 2018 Campaign Proved Ranked-Choice Voting Did Not Diminish Influence Of Money In Politics And Was “The Nastiest On Record Up Here.” “Poliquin said the arguments for the change, including assertions it would ‘get big money out of political campaign’ and that races ‘would become more civil’ proved untrue. Instead, the race wound up costing more than $30 million and proved, Poliquin said, ‘the nastiest on record up here.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/19/19]

2019 – 2020: Poliquin Called Ranked-Choice Voting A “Complete Scam” That “Was Introduced By Liberal Activists, Democratic Activists, To Make Sure They Win Elections Here In The State Of Maine”

April 2019: Poliquin Called Ranked-Choice Voting A “Scam” That Empowered Out-Of-State Interests. “Former U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin called ranked-choice voting a ‘complete scam’ puppeteered by out-of-state influences, speaking Tuesday evening in front of a Colby College audience. He shared his perspective on the process at a talk sponsored by Colby Republicans, a student organization. ‘It’s no longer the best candidate; it’s how you game the system,’ he said. Specifically, Poliquin said that the ranked-choice voting method gave the people who voted for the candidates with the fewest votes ‘a second bite of the apple.’ ‘You have more of a decision who gets seated in Congress even though you voted for people who are least representative of the district,’ he said.” [Kennebec Journal, 4/2/19]

Poliquin Claimed Ranked-Choice Voting “Was Introduced By Liberal Activists, Democratic Activists, To Make Sure They Win Elections Here In The State Of Maine.” “On Tuesday at Colby, Poliquin told a crowd of roughly 30 students and community members that John Arnold, a Texas billionaire, ‘funded a lot of initiatives, paid people to collect the signatures (to get ranked-choice voting on the ballot) and put the ads on.’ He emphasized that in 2016, when Maine voters approved ranked-choice voting, 26 percent of registered voters cast ballots on the referendum. The Committee for Ranked Choice Voting in Maine, which currently has 40 Republican endorsements on its website, lobbied for ranked-choice voting since at least 2015. ‘It was not introduced to get the best candidate,’ Poliquin said. ‘It was introduced by liberal activists, Democratic activists, to make sure they win elections here in the state of Maine.’” [Kennebec Journal, 4/2/19]

2020: Poliquin Said Ranked Choice Voting Was “Horrible,” “Unfair,” And Pushed By “Big Money, Out Of State Folks.” POLIQUIN: “I think it’s horrible. Here you see again ranked voting is a way for liberal candidates who pose as independents to harvest second place votes to push those second place votes, extra votes to the Democrat candidate so they can win close elections. This is not a Maine idea. Maine has always been one person, one vote. We did everything we could to deep six this thing but the big money, out of state folks come up here to influence how we live and how we vote, and they’re able to get this on the ballot. It is a real issue, and it’s unfair. Because all of a sudden it’s not head to head between the two best candidates. How do you game the system to scam a close election?” [WVOM, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 10/19/20] (AUDIO) 10:20

November 2020: Poliquin: “Rank Voting Was Designed By Out-Of-State Activists To Confuse And Discourage You From Going To The Polls And To Harvest 2nd Choice Votes To Win Close Elections For Liberal Candidates.” “Rank voting was designed by out-of-state activists to confuse and discourage you from going to the polls and to harvest 2nd choice votes to win close elections for liberal candidates. So, keep it simple and protect your vote by marking your choice for President Donald J. Trump in each of the columns 1-6 across the ballot left to right, as pictured below.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 10/22/20]

February 2020: Poliquin Claimed “Soros And These Other Billionaires Sent A Ton Of Money Up In Here” To Pass Ranked-Choice Voting. “This is not like the past, where Soros and these other billionaires sent a ton of money up in here, and political activists were able to fool about 15% of registered voters in Maine. That’s how they passed this scam. Now everybody’s going to the polls during a presidential election and they can weigh in on this: repealrankedchoice.com.” [WVOM FM, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 2/17/20] (AUDIO) 4:02

March 2020: Poliquin Claimed That Under Ranked-Choice Voting People Could Cast Multiple Votes, Not All Votes Were Counted, And Seniors And Others Were Discouraged By The Process

3/18/20: Poliquin Editorial: Under Ranked-Choice Voting, “Citizens Can Cast Multiple Votes. Some Are Eventually Counted, And Some Are Not.” “Under ranked voting, citizens rank candidates in order of preference on one ballot. The first-choice votes are tallied, and, if a candidate receives a majority of the votes cast in this round, that candidate wins. If nobody receives a majority in the first round, the last-place finisher is eliminated, and his or her votes are redistributed to the higher-performing candidates according to voters’ second choices. The process continues until more than 50% of the votes are assigned to one of the candidates. In other words, citizens can cast multiple votes. Some are eventually counted, and some are not.” [Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, Washington Examiner, 3/18/20]

3/18/20: Poliquin Editorial: “The Worst Unfairness Of Ranked Voting Is How It Confuses And Discourages Many Seniors And Others From Casting Ballots.” “The worst unfairness of ranked voting is how it confuses and discourages many seniors and others from casting ballots. After the 2018 election, a survey of GOP voters who decided not to go to the polls listed confusion over ranked voting (26%) as the main reason for not participating in the election. Our sacred constitutional right to vote should be easy, fair, and invite participation, not suppress it.” [Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, Washington Examiner, 3/18/20]

August 2020: Poliquin Claimed The Goal Of RCV Was “Harvest Second Place Votes For Liberal Candidates To Win Close Elections”

As Of October 2021, Poliquin Accepted $62,400 From Members Of The Sedition Caucus After They Voted To Overturn 2020 Election Results

The 147 Republicans Who Voted To Overturn 2020 Election Results Were Known As The “Sedition Caucus.” “Pingree is also among 54 Democratic co-sponsors of a resolution, HR 25. directing the House Ethics Committee to investigate the so-called ‘Sedition Caucus’ – the 147 Republican members of Congress who voted to undo the results of the 2020 election by blocking the certification of the Electoral College votes of Georgia and other key swing states.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 4/7/21]

August-September 2021: Poliquin Accepted $62,400 From Members Of The Sedition Caucus After They Voted To Overturn The 2020 Election Results.

Poliquin Supported Measures To Restrict Voting Access And Misinformed Mainers Of Their Voting Rights

March 2021: Poliquin Claimed The For The People Act Would Invite “All Sorts Of Shenanigans” By Expanding Vote-By-Mail Access

3/13/21: Poliquin Editorial: The For The People Act “Will Actually Lead To A Less Transparent, Nationalized System That Invites All Sorts Of Shenanigans.” “Last week, the top-priority H.R.1 bill passed by U.S. House Speaker Nancy Pelosi and her liberal majority aims to nationalize the election chaos millions of Americans witnessed last November. The U.S. Constitution clearly authorizes the states to determine how elections... are conducted within their borders, as long as they are free and fair. Even so, Democrats claim their reforms will make it easier for eligible people to vote. The changes, however, will actually lead to a less transparent, nationalized system that invites all sorts of shenanigans.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/13/21]

3/13/21: Poliquin Claimed Vote-By-Mail Access During The 2020 Election Led To Ballot Harvesting By “Political Activists” And Inaccurate Voter Rolls. “Before Election Day 2020, a number of states used their pandemic lockdowns as a reason to change the way residents were required to vote and how to count the ballots. Nevada politicians joined peers in other battleground states to blanket mail live ballots to reportedly inaccurate voter rolls even when residents did not request them. Political activists were allowed to go door-to-door to “harvest” those ballots and, presumably, turn them (or some of them) over to election officials. Swing states Michigan and Wisconsin used unmonitored ballot drop boxes. By passing H.R.1, Democrats in Congress want to allow, and encourage, every state to use this sloppy, unsecure process.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/13/21]

March 2021: Poliquin Attacked Measures To Facilitate Absentee Voting

3/13/21: Poliquin: Maine Democrats Pushed “Unsecure Mail-In Ballots, Extended Counting Days, Door-To-Door Ballot Harvesting, No Identification Required At The Polls, Exposed Ballot Drop Boxes, You Name It.” “Extreme liberal lawmakers in Augusta are not waiting to see if H.R.1 becomes a national mandate for all states to adopt. Like the far left Congress in Washington, right now, the Democrat majority in the Maine Legislature is crafting its own voting schemes for the Pine Tree State. Unsecure mail-in ballots, extended counting days, door-to-door ballot harvesting, no identification required at the polls, exposed ballot drop boxes, you name it. If you think ranked-choice voting is a mess, buckle up if the ‘voting reformers’ get their way.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/13/21]

Poliquin: “Common-Sense Mainers Of All Political Stripes Can Agree The Most Secure Way To Vote Is To Show Up At The Polls In Person On Election Day.” “Common-sense Mainers of all political stripes can agree the most secure way to vote is to show up at the polls in person on Election Day. It’s time-tested, simple, fair and accurate. If that’s not possible, straightforward early or absentee voting, requiring signature verification, has worked well in Maine for many years.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/13/21]

May 2021: Poliquin Called Voter ID Laws “The Best Way To Protect Our Elections”

5/7/21: Poliquin: “The Best Way To Protect Our Elections Is W/ Voter ID.” “Common sense Americans agree: make it easy to vote, but hard to cheat. The best way to protect our elections is w/ voter ID, a policy 80% of Americans support according to Gallup. Unfortunately, Maine’s Reps. Pingree & Golden voted to undermine voter ID by supporting #HR1.”
April 2019: Poliquin Falsely Told Maine College Students That They Had To Obtain A Maine Driver’s License In Order To Vote In Maine And That They Should Not Vote In Local Elections

April 2019: Poliquin told Maine college students that they had to obtain a Maine driver’s license in order to vote in Maine. "At Tuesday’s event, Poliquin addressed the issue of college students voting in local elections. ‘The United States Supreme Court has ruled that a Colby student or Bates student or Bowdoin student can use your dorm as your legal address, so that’s not for me — that’s not the legislative branch. The courts decide that,’ he said. ‘Here’s the additional comment I’m going to make: Maine law says … if you want to claim the dorm or any other place your residence so you can vote, within 30 days you need to change your driver’s license to a Maine driver’s license. That means you have to pay excise tax. … So I’m all for obeying the law and what the Supreme Court says. I’m also all about obeying the laws of the state of Maine, which means you have to change your driver’s license within 30 days, or you’re violating the law.’” [Kennebec Journal, 4/2/19]

- Kennebec Journal: New Maine Residents Were Required To Get Maine Driver’s Licenses Within Thirty Days Of Moving, But Driver’s Licenses Were Not Required To Vote In Maine. "No requirement of a Maine driver’s license is listed in the state laws for voter registration, though individuals with out-of-state driver’s licenses are required to get a new Maine license and register their motor vehicle in Maine within 30 days of becoming a resident. Voter legislation requires a person to have established an address in a Maine municipality as a ‘fixed and principal home to which the person, whenever temporarily absent, intends to return.’ To determine whether a person meets these criteria, a registrar of voters can use documents that include a Maine driver’s license but also include a Maine motor vehicle registration, current income tax return, mail sent to a residential address, hunting or fishing licenses or ‘any other objective facts tending to indicate a person’s place of residence.’ It states that ‘the registrar need not find all of these factors to be present in order to conclude that an applicant qualifies to register to vote in the municipality.’ The state law does specify that post office boxes cannot be used as proof of residency.” [Kennebec Journal, 4/2/19]

April 2019: Poliquin Agreed With Student Who Said College Students Should Not Vote In Local Maine Elections. “Several members of the Colby Republicans said they did not think students should vote in local elections. ‘Most of us are gone for the summer,’ said Jonathan Taylor, a sophomore from San Francisco who is a member of Colby Republicans and has a Maine driver’s license. ‘Constitutionally, we’re allowed to vote; but generally speaking, I think it’s incredibly sanctimonious for (students to vote in local elections). … I don’t think they should.’ When Taylor expressed that view to Poliquin at the talk — not using the word ‘sanctimonious’ — the former congressman said, ‘I would agree with that.’” [Kennebec Journal, 4/2/19]
Poliquin Voted For Blocking The Voting Rights Advancement Act To Restore Federal Oversight To Protect The Right To Vote. In November 2015, Poliquin voted for: a motion to block consideration of a vote on the “Voting Rights Advancement Act, which would restore federal oversight to protect the most sacred right and responsibility of American citizenship; the right to vote.” The previous question carried, 241-178. A vote against the previous question would call for an immediate vote on the Voting Rights Advancement Act. [H Res 507, Vote #583, 11/3/15; Democratic Leader – Previous Questions, 11/3/15]
Significant Findings

- Poliquin was an anti-choice extremist who voted against the Paycheck Fairness Act and the Violence Against Women Act.

- Poliquin voted for 20-week abortion bans, twice voted against exemptions for cases in which a woman’s health was at risk, and supported abortion bans in cases of rape and incest in 2012 and 2014.

- Poliquin did not vote on, and then voted to block, the Paycheck Fairness Act.

- Poliquin voted twice against consideration of reauthorizing the Violence Against Women Act.

- Poliquin voted to limit seniors’ access to affordable health care, supported raising the retirement age, and championed measures that put Social Security at risk.

- Poliquin voted for budgets that would turn Medicare into a voucher-like program, against an amendment to lower prescription drug costs under Medicare Part D, and voted six times to reopen the Medicare donut hole.

- Poliquin voted for the American Health Care Act (AHCA), which would create an age tax on older Americans and cause thousands of seniors in Maine’s 2nd District to lose health care coverage.

- Poliquin voted for the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act (TCJA), which Republicans planned to pay for with cuts to Medicare and Social Security, and voted for the House version of TCJA which would have repealed the medical expense deduction tax.

- In 2012 and 2014, Poliquin said he supported raising the retirement age.

- Poliquin championed an amendment to the Constitution to require a balanced budget, which would force “deep cuts” to Medicare and Social Security and override promised benefits for seniors.

- Poliquin voted to weaken protections for Mainers with pre-existing conditions.

- Poliquin voted at least seven times to fully or partly repeal the Affordable Care Act, which protected Mainers with pre-existing conditions from higher premiums, benefit exclusions, and coverage denial.

- Poliquin voted for the AHCA, which PolitiFact found would have allowed insurers to charge people with pre-existing conditions “significantly more.”

- Poliquin voted to raise taxes on working families while opposing increases in the minimum wage, access to paid sick leave, investments in childcare, and federal unemployment insurance.

- Poliquin voted for the TCJA, which gave tax breaks to millionaires and large corporations while ultimately increasing taxes on middle class families.

- Poliquin opposed raising the minimum wage by as little as $1.69/hour and voted to block an amendment to allow Americans to earn paid sick leave.
Poliquin said free childcare was unfair to people who did not have children.

Poliquin called for Maine to opt out of the federal unemployment insurance as early as July 2020.

Poliquin is wrong for Maine’s lobstersmen, who saw an $85 million loss after two years of a trade war that Poliquin said proved Trump had the “guts to stand up to China.”

Poliquin is wrong for Maine’s manufacturing workers.

Poliquin voted for measures that incentivized companies to move jobs overseas, including the TCJA.

Poliquin refused to take a stance on the Trans-Pacific Partnership for weeks in 2016, even after Maine employer New Balance announced its opposition to the deal.

Poliquin criticized and repeatedly voted to block reauthorization of the Export-Import Bank before voting for it, which the Bangor Daily News Editorial Board wrote “risk[ed] Ex-Im Bank’s future.”

In 2018, Poliquin’s congressional office sent a letter to constituents touting his efforts to keep the Madison Paper Industries mill open; the mill closed in 2016 and laid off more than 200 Mainers.

Poliquin put his own profits and Trump’s agenda over the best interests of Maine’s shipyard workers.

Poliquin “helped build” Avatar Associates, an investment management firm that Bath Iron Works (BIW) union members said “rob[bed] them of a fair retirement.”

As recently as July 2021, Poliquin tried to rezone a site in Bath, Maine for “pricey condominiums,” even as municipal leadership emphasized the need for affordable rentals for BIW employees.

In 2018, Poliquin voted to authorize $5.7 billion in funding for Trump’s border wall, which risked $200 million for projects at Maine’s Portsmouth Naval Shipyard and a government shutdown.

Poliquin Is Wrong For Maine Women

Poliquin Voted Repeatedly To Ban Abortion Even When A Woman’s Health Was At Risk And Waivered On Whether Abortion Should Be Banned In Cases Of Rape And Incest

October 2017: Poliquin Voted For A 20-Week Abortion Ban Imposing Criminal Penalties On Doctors And Against An Amendment That Exempted Cases Where A Woman’s Health Was At Risk

October 2017: Poliquin Voted For A 20-Week Abortion Ban Imposing Criminal Penalties On Doctors, With Exceptions For Rape And Incest Only If It Had Been Reported To Law Enforcement. In October 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would prohibit abortions in cases where the probable age of the fetus is 20 weeks or later and would impose criminal penalties on doctors who violate the ban. It would provide exceptions for cases in which the woman’s life is in danger as well as for pregnancies that are a result of rape for pregnancies that are a result of rape against an adult woman, if the woman received counseling or medical treatment for the rape at least 48 hours prior to the abortion. An exception would be provided for pregnancies resulting from rape or incest against a minor if the rape or incest had been previously reported to law enforcement or another government agency authorized to act on reports of child abuse. The bill would require a second doctor trained in neonatal resuscitation to be present for abortions where the fetus has the ‘potential’ to survive outside the womb.” The bill passed, 237-189. [HR 36, Vote #549, 10/3/17; CQ, 10/3/17]
Abortion Rights Groups Said The Legislation Had No Exception If The Pregnancy Threatened The Mother’s Health, And The Rape And Incest Exceptions Were Too Narrow. “Abortion rights groups and Democratic lawmakers panned the legislation ahead of its passage, arguing it is based on faulty science and contains no exception if a pregnancy would threaten a mother’s health. They also said the rape and incest exceptions are too narrow and that the bill is likely unconstitutional under existing Supreme Court rulings.” [Washington Post, 10/3/17]

Poliquin Voted For Consideration Of A 20-Week Abortion Ban. In October 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Adoption of the rule (H Res 548) that would provide for House floor consideration of the bill (HR 36) that would prohibit abortions in cases where the probable age of the fetus is 20 weeks or later and would impose criminal penalties on doctors who violate the ban, with certain exceptions.” The rule was adopted, 233-187. [HR 36, Vote #547, 10/3/17; CQ, 10/3/17]

Poliquin Voted Against An Amendment To The 20-Week Abortion Ban Allowing For An Exception For An Abortion Necessary To Save The Health Of A Pregnant Woman. In October 2017, Poliquin voted against: “Brownley, D-Calif., motion to recommit the bill to the House Judiciary Committee with instructions to report it back immediately with an amendment that would add an exception to the 20-week abortion ban for abortions necessary to save the health of the pregnant woman.” The motion was rejected, 238-187. [HR 36, Vote #548, 10/3/17; CQ, 10/3/17]

May 2015: Poliquin Voted For Banning Abortion After 20 Weeks, Which Included A Waiting Period For Rape Survivors, And Against Adding An Exemption Where A Woman’s Health Was At Risk

Poliquin Voted For Banning Abortion After 20 Weeks, Including Requiring A 48-Hour Waiting Period For Rape Survivors. In May 2015, Poliquin voted for “a bill banning abortions after 20 weeks of pregnancy in a party-line vote on Wednesday.” According to The Hill, “But the bill did not change a provision that allows victims of incest to receive an abortion only if they are under 18 years old … The new version of the House bill also includes a two-day waiting period for rape victims. Doctors must also ensure that victims have received medical treatment or counseling during that time.” [HR 36, Vote #223, 5/13/15; The Hill, 5/13/15; The Hill, 5/11/15]

Poliquin Voted Against Adding An Exception To The Abortion Ban To Protect The Health Of A Pregnant Woman. In May 2015, Poliquin voted against adding a woman’s health exception to a 20-week abortion bill. “U.S. Rep. Julia Brownley’s attempt to amend a bill calling for a ban on abortions after 20 weeks of pregnancy was defeated Wednesday, and the House went on to pass the ban. The Westlake Village Democrat’s motion and amendment would have added language to the Pain Capable Unborn Child Protection Act that would have permitted abortions after 20 weeks if a woman’s health were at risk. It was defeated on a mostly party-line 181-246 vote.” [H.R. 36, Vote #222, 5/13/15; Ventura County Star, 5/13/15]

Planned Parenthood: 20 Week Abortion Ban Was Unconstitutional

Planned Parenthood: “20-Week Bans Are Unconstitutional.” “20-week bans are unconstitutional. 20-week bans are a clear attempt to erode Roe v. Wade. In fact, 20-week ban proponents are outspoken about their goal to challenge the 1973 Supreme Court decision protecting a woman’s right to safe and legal abortion.” [Planned Parenthood, accessed 7/12/18]

HEADLINE: 20-Week Abortion Bans: Still Unconstitutional After All These Years [Rewire, 5/12/15]

Poliquin Took Positions That Were Antagonistic Towards Roe

Poliquin Supported A Bill To Define Life As Beginning At Conception To “Resolv[e] For All Time” “The Difficult Question Of When Life Begins” Posed In Roe V. Wade. On its 2014 candidate questionnaire, the National Pro-Life Alliance asked, “Would you support and cosponsor a Life at Conception Act defining that life begins at the moment of conception thereby resolving for all time, as stated by the Supreme Court in Roe v. Wade, ‘the difficult question of when life begins?’” Poliquin answered yes on questionnaire. [National Pro-Life Alliance 2014 Congressional Survey, accessed 9/10/21]

In A 2014 Questionnaire, Poliquin Supported Legislation That “Would Remove From The Federal Courts Jurisdiction Over The Question Of Abortion.” On its 2014 candidate questionnaire, the National Pro-Life Alliance asked, “Will you support legislation which, under Article III, Section 2 of the U.S. Constitution, would remove from the federal courts jurisdiction over the question of abortion?” Poliquin answered yes on questionnaire. Poliquin Pledged To Support Federal Judicial Nominees Who Would “Uphold The Constitutional Right To Life” Of Fetuses. On its 2014 candidate questionnaire, the National Pro-Life Alliance asked, “Will you support nominees to the United States Supreme Court and the lower federal courts who will uphold the constitutional right to life of every human person, born and unborn?” Poliquin answered yes on questionnaire. 2012 – 2014: Poliquin Supported Banning Abortion Even In Cases Of Rape And Incest

In A 2014 Questionnaire, Poliquin Supported An Amendment To The U.S. Constitution Banning Abortion Even In Cases Of Rape Or Incest. On its 2014 candidate questionnaire, the National Pro-Life Alliance asked, “Will you support an amendment to the U.S. Constitution banning abortion except to save the life of the mother?” Poliquin answered yes on questionnaire. And that is a life that should be protected. […] Now, I am also a strong believer that the federal government is too intrusive. The only exception that I can think of right now is that when a doctor decides that the life of the mother or the child is in jeopardy. Government does not belong in that decision. I used to go to all the doctor’s appointments. It was just fascinating with the sonogram, and to see that child grow. Now, can someone tell me, when is that child a life? When the head is developed? Or do you have to wait until the arms and legs are developed? Or do you have to wait until the fingers and toes, when you can see the eyes? I happen to believe, as a Catholic, that when a mom and a dad get together, with help from above, that that life is a life at that time and should be protected. I also believe very strongly in the Constitution, and the Constitution should honor religious belief. And so it should not force folks to use their tax dollars to fund something against their belief.” [YouTube, Dirigo Blue, ME-Sen Value Forum: Opening Remarks, 4/24/12] (VIDEO) :45

2014: Poliquin Said Abortion Was Permissible In Cases Of Rape, Incest, And Cases In Which A Woman’s Life Was At Risk

July 2016: Poliquin Voted For Allowing Private Health Care Providers To Deny Abortion Coverage

Poliquin Voted For Allowing Private Health Care Providers To Deny Abortion Coverage. In July 2016, Poliquin voted for a bill mandating “federal government and state and local governments cannot penalize or discriminate against health care providers who won't perform abortions or sponsor or provide abortion coverage.” The bill passed 245-182. [S 304, Vote #443, 7/13/16; AP, 7/13/16]

January 2015: Poliquin “Solidified His Position As The Only Anti-Abortion Member Of Maine’s Congressional Delegation”

Poliquin Voted For Bill Blocking Federal Funding For Abortion, Including Tax Credits For Small Businesses Providing Health Care That Included Abortion Coverage. In January 2015, Poliquin voted for the No Taxpayer Funding for Abortion Act, which restricted federal funding for abortions and abortion coverage. “The House did easily pass H.R. 7, the No Taxpayer Funding for Abortion and Abortion Insurance Full Disclosure Act of 2015, sponsored by Rep. Chris Smith (R-N.J.). White House advisers said they would recommend a veto should the bill reach the president’s desk. The Hyde Amendment already prevents the use of federal funds to pay for abortion, except in cases of incest, rape and life endangerment of the mother. That is passed every year as part of an appropriations bill, but this bill would make that permanent law. The House bill would also restrict small businesses from getting an Affordable Care Act tax credit if they purchase employee health plans that include abortion coverage on the Small Business Health Options Program, or SHOP exchange.” [HR 7, Vote #45, 1/22/15; Politico, 1/22/15]

- Bill Would Give Big Insurance Companies Incentive To Drop Abortion Coverage. “The bill gives insurers a big incentive to drop abortion coverage from their plans, or risk losing the large pool of consumers who receive the law’s subsidies. Abortion coverage is historically relatively ubiquitous in health plans, so the effect could be far-reaching.” [National Journal, 1/28/14]

HEADLINE: “Poliquin’s Vote For Anti-Abortion Measure Prompts Disagreement Over Maine Values.” [Bangor Daily News, 1/22/15]

- Bangor Daily News: Poliquin “Solidified His Position As The Only Anti-Abortion Member Of Maine’s Congressional Delegation” By Voting For The No Taxpayer Funding for Abortion And Abortion Full Disclosure Act of 2015. “U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin solidified his position as the only anti-abortion member of Maine’s congressional delegation Thursday when he cast his first vote against abortion on the 42nd anniversary of Roe v. Wade, the landmark U.S. Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion. Thursday’s vote on the No Taxpayer Funding for Abortion and Abortion Full Disclosure Act of 2015 is widely seen as a case of majority Republicans in the House trying to make a point and appeal to their constituents, even though the measure has no chance of surviving a veto by President Barack Obama.” [Bangor Daily News, 1/22/15]

- Poliquin On His Vote: “I Don’t Believe Requiring Taxpayers To Fund Abortions Reflects The Values Of Our 2nd District Families.” “In a written statement, Poliquin cited his Catholic upbringing and the fact he is a single father for his stance against abortion and justification for his vote. ‘I don’t believe requiring taxpayers to fund abortions reflects the values of our 2nd District families,’ said Poliquin, a Republican who represents Maine’s 2nd U.S House District. ‘Additionally, doing so would be in contrast to the moral conscience and religious beliefs of many taxpayers.’ Poliquin was at times cagey about his abortion stance during his 2014 campaign, insisting that his views were personal and not political.” [Bangor Daily News, 1/22/15]

- Bangor Daily News: “Democrats Assailed Poliquin For Being Tone-Deaf To The Attitudes Within His District.” “A Planned Parenthood poll conducted last year in Maine found that 68 percent of respondents from the 2nd Congressional District said they preferred to vote for a gubernatorial candidate who supports a woman’s right to make decisions about abortions. […] Democrats assailed Poliquin for being tone-deaf to the attitudes within his district while 1st Congressional District Rep. Chellie Pingree aimed her ire at Republican congressional leaders. ‘This is another example of how Republicans in Congress just don’t understand women’s lives,’ said Pingree in a written statement. ‘Over and over again, they have tried to restrict abortion, drive women’s health clinics out of business, and generally get in the way of what should be a private conversation between a woman and her doctor.’” [Bangor Daily News, 1/22/15]

| December 2018: Poliquin Voted For Blocking Consideration Of Legislation To Fund The Remainder Of The Government And Extend The National Flood Insurance Program And Violence Against Women Act. In December 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Newhouse, R-Wash., motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and the possibility of amendment) on the rule (H Res 1176) that would provide for House floor consideration of the conference report to accompany the Farm Bill (HR 2), that would reauthorize and extend federal farm and nutrition programs through fiscal 2023, and would waive section 7 of the War Powers Resolution for a concurrent resolution related to hostilities in Yemen.” According to the Congressional Record “Mr. Speaker, if we defeat the previous question, I will offer an amendment to the rule to bring up H.R. 7264, a continuing | resolution to fund the remainder of the government and extend the National Flood Insurance Program, the Violence Against Women Act, and the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families Act until September 30.” A vote for the motion was a vote to block consideration of an amendment to bring up a bill funding the remainder of the government and extending the National Flood Insurance Program and Violence Against Women Act. The motion was agreed to by a vote of 220-191. [CQ, 12/12/18; HR 2, Vote #431, 12/12/18; Congressional Record, 12/12/18]

The reason for such is not because we do not support the troops or our children but because defeating the previous question will enable this House to consider and pass H.R. 6545, the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2018.” A vote for the motion was a vote to block consideration of a bill to reauthorize the Violence Against Women Act. <th>The Violence Against Women Act Helped Decrease The Rate Of Intimate Partner Violence, And Improved The Reporting Process For Sexual Assault Victims</th>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>In The 15 Years After VAWA Passed, The Rate Of Serious Intimate Partner Violence Nationally Declined 72 Percent. “Between 1994 and 2011, the rate of serious intimate partner violence against women declined 72 percent, from 5.9 to 1.6 victimizations per 1,000 women. The annual rate of rape and sexual assault perpetrated against girls and women older than age 11 declined nearly 60 percent from 1995 to 2010. While these declines are likely the product of multiple causes, evidence tells us that declines in rape and sexual assault are linked to VAWA. A study examining rape and aggravated assault data from over 10,000 jurisdictions over a seven-year period found that VAWA funding, specifically those funds most likely to support local law enforcement, was associated with reductions in these violent crimes, even after controlling for general decreasing crime rates and other justice-related funding.” [Urban Institute, 2/9/17]</td>
<tr>
<td>VAWA Funding Prevents Sexual Assault Victims From Having To Pay For Their Forensic Exams. “If a person seeks medical attention within four days of an assault, they may also undergo a sexual assault medical forensic exam (SAMFE). This exam collects and preserves important evidence—like DNA—that could identify a suspect and provide invaluable corroborating evidence to support the victim’s account of the crime. Before VAWA, victims could be billed by the health care provider that conducted their exam. No victim of any other crime is expected to pay for the collection and preservation of evidence. VAWA has supported programs in every state to end this practice. Our research shows that these programs have nearly reversed the billing of victims for collecting forensic evidence from their own bodies.” [Urban Institute, 2/9/17]</td>
<td>VAWA Funding Helps Train Sexual Assault Nurse Examiners, Who Improve Both Quality Of Health Care For Survivors And The Change Of A Successful Conviction. “Sexual assault nurse examiners (SANEs) are specially trained medical personnel who conduct the SAMFE, providing care and treatment for victims of sexual assault and rigorously collecting evidence for use during investigation and prosecution. VAWA resources support many state and local SANE programs. Exams conducted by SANEs are associated with increases in successful prosecution, even when compared with exams conducted by traditional emergency room personnel. The SANE training equips providers with the skills to create a more thorough record of all medical forensic evidence and to preserve crucial, fragile DNA evidence. Studies show that SANE programs improve the quality of health care delivered to survivors, the quality of forensic evidence, and the chances of obtaining a conviction. Eliminating VAWA would almost certainly reduce the number of SANEs available to treat sexual assault survivors, limiting important victim services and the availability of quality evidence to convict those who commit these crimes.” [Urban Institute, 2/9/17]</td>

| 2015: Poliquin Voted For Blocking Consideration Of The Paycheck Fairness Act. In April 2015, Poliquin voted for: “Sessions, R-Texas, motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and possibility of

It also would provide for floor consideration of the bill to modify federal rules regarding high-cost-mortgages as they apply to manufactured housing. The rule also would take the fiscal 2016 Senate budget resolution from the Speaker’s table, adopt a substitute amendment consisting of the text of the fiscal 2016 House budget resolution, as adopted by the House, and would adopt the concurrent resolution, as amended.” According to the Democratic Leader’s office, The Democratic Previous Question demands the House vote on a key measure to end the pay gap between men and women and ensure equal pay for equal work: the Paycheck Fairness Act (HR 1619).” The previous question passed 239 to 183. The 2018 House GOP budget reprises a controversial plan to turn Medicare into a voucher-like program for future retirees as well as the party’s efforts to repeal the "Obamacare" health law. Republicans controlling Congress have no plans to actually implement those cuts while they pursue their tax overhaul.” [Associated Press, 10/5/17]

• National Committee To Preserve Social Security & Medicare: 2015 House GOP Budget Would Leave “Seniors And The Disabled – Some Of Our Most Vulnerable Americans – Hostage To The Whims Of Private Insurance Companies.” “Once again, the House GOP’s budget would privatize Medicare with a voucher plan, leaving seniors and the disabled – some of our most vulnerable Americans – hostage to the whims of private insurance companies. Over time, this will end traditional Medicare and make it harder for seniors to choose their own doctor. Vouchers will not keep up with the increasing cost of health insurance… that is why seniors will pay more.” [National Committee to Preserve Social Security & Medicare, 3/17/15]

• New York Times: 2015 House GOP Budget Would Turn Medicare Into A “Voucherlike” Program. “House Budget Committee members previewed their plans in an unusual, campaign-style video on Monday. The plan envisions a remaking of the federal government. Future recipients of Medicare would be offered voucherlike ‘premium support’ to pay for private insurance rather than government-provided health care. Spending on Medicaid would be cut substantially over 10 years, with the money turned into block grants to state governments, which in turn would have much more flexibility in deciding how it is allocated.” [New York Times, 3/17/15]

Poliquin Voted For The American Health Care Act, Which Would Cause Thousands Of Seniors In Maine’s 2nd District To Lose Health Coverage And Create An Age Tax On Older Americans

May 2017: Poliquin Voted For The American Health Care Act

5/4/17: Poliquin Voted For The American Health Care Act. In May 2017, Poliquin voted for repeal and replace major parts of the Affordable Care Act. According to the New York Times, the bill “would eliminate tax penalties for people who go without health insurance. It would roll back state-by-state expansions of Medicaid, which covered millions of low-income Americans. And in place of government-subsidized insurance policies offered exclusively on the Affordable Care Act’s marketplaces, the bill would offer tax credits of $2,000 to $4,000 a year, depending on age. [...] The nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office said the first version of the bill would trim the federal budget deficit considerably but would also leave 24 million more Americans without health insurance after a decade. Average insurance premiums would be 15 percent to 20 percent higher in 2018 and 2019, but after that, they would be lower than projected under current law.” The bill passed by a vote of 217-213. [HR 1628, Vote #256, 5/4/17; New York Times, 5/4/17]

Boston Globe: Poliquin “Played A Pivotal Role” In House Passage Of The AHCA. “Amid it all, Poliquin opted not to conduct any town meetings in his vast, rural district during last week’s House recess. Poliquin’s office said he was not available for an interview. Poliquin played a pivotal role in passage of the House bill. He rushed back to Washington from a family medical emergency in Maine to help the measure pass by just two votes. So his failure to step forward and explain his vote in detail has angered more than a few people in his district, including specialists who say the bill would decimate health care programs for low-income Maine residents, especially in impoverished rural townships.” [Boston Globe, 5/15/17]

Center For American Progress: 3,300 Of Poliquin’s Elderly Constituents Would Have Lost Coverage Under The AHCA

Center For American Progress Estimated That 63,800 Of Poliquin’s Constituents, Including 3,300 Elderly Mainers, Would Lose Health Insurance Under The AHCA. The Center for American Progress estimated that 60,500 nonelderly And 3,300 elderly constituents of Maine’s 2nd Congressional District would lose health insurance as the district was drawn during the 115th Congress. [Center for American Progress, 5/25/17]

CBO Estimated 14 Million More People Would Be Uninsured In 2018; 23 Million By 2026 Under The AHCA. “CBO and JCT estimate that, in 2018, 14 million more people would be uninsured under H.R. 1628 than under current law. The increase in the number of uninsured people relative to the number under current law would reach 19 million in 2020 and 23 million in 2026 (see Table 4, at the end of this document).” [CBO, 5/24/17]

- CBO Found Increase In Uninsured Would Disproportionately Impact Older People With Lower Income. “Although the agencies expect that the legislation would increase the number of uninsured broadly, the increase would be disproportionately larger among older people with lower income—particularly people between 50 and 64 years old with income of less than 200 percent of the federal poverty level (see Figure 2).” [CBO, 5/24/17]

American Health Care Act Would Create An Age Tax On Older Americans

American Health Care Act Allows Insurers To Charge Older Customers Five Times More Than Younger Adults. “Raises premiums for older people. The Affordable Care Act limited insurers from charging older... customers more than three times what they charge younger adults. The House bill would raise that to five times. This may enable younger consumers to find cheaper coverage, but older policyholders would face higher rates.” [Huffington Post, 3/6/17]

New York Times: ACHA Achieved LowerPremiums Not Through Increased Choice And Competition, But By Making Health Insurance So Unaffordable For Many Older Americans They Would Leave The Market. “There are a lot of unpleasant numbers for Republicans in the Congressional Budget Office’s assessment of their health care bill. But congressional leadership found one to cheer: The report says that the bill will eventually cut the average insurance premiums for people who buy their own insurance by 10 percent. [...] But the way the bill achieves those lower average premiums has little to do with increased choice and competition. It depends, rather, on penalizing older patients and rewarding younger ones. According to the C.B.O. report, the bill would make health insurance so unaffordable for many older Americans that they would simply leave the market and join the ranks of the uninsured.” [New York Times, 3/14/17]

AARP: Under AHCA, Premiums For 60 To 64-Year-Olds Would “Increase By An Average Of $3,200.” “Under the AHCA: Average premiums would increase for all ages starting at about age 46. Premiums for 60- to 64-year-olds would increase by an average of $3,200, amounting to average unsubsidized premiums of almost $18,000 per year. Meanwhile, 20- to 29-year-olds are expected to see significantly smaller average savings, of only $700 per year, giving them average unsubsidized premiums of $4,010 per year.” [AARP, 5/4/17]

2017: Poliquin Voted Against Consideration Of An Amendment Lowering Out-Of-Pocket Drug Costs For Seniors

Poliquin Voted Against Consideration Of An Amendment Lowering Out-Of-Pocket Drug Costs For Seniors Under Medicare Part D. In January 2017, Poliquin voted against: the “Demings, D-Fla., motion to recommit the bill to the House Judiciary Committee with instructions to report back immediately with an amendment that would exempt regulations that significantly lower seniors’ out-of-pocket costs for prescription drugs under Medicare Part D. It would remove the bill’s provision that would effectively overturn two Supreme Court decisions that require federal courts to defer to an agency’s interpretation of the underlying law or rule when considering challenges to agency rules.” The motion was rejected by a vote of 190-233. Poliquin Voted Six Times To Reopen The Medicare Donut Hole, Costing Seniors Thousands More In Out-Of-Pocket Prescription Costs

Poliquin Voted Six Times To Repeal The Affordable Care Act. [H. Con Res. 27, Vote #141, 3/25/15; H. Con Res. 27, Vote #142, 3/25/15; S Con Res 11, Vote #183, 4/30/15; HR 3762, Vote #568, 10/23/15; HR 3762, Vote #6, 1/6/16; HR 3762, Vote #53, 2/2/16]

• The Affordable Care Act, AKA Obamacare, Would Eventually Close Medicare’s Prescription-Drug Program Coverage Gap. “Over time, Obamacare closes the coverage gap, informally referred to as the donut hole, in Medicare’s prescription-drug program (Part D). As originally designed, once Part D beneficiaries reached their (relatively low) deductible, they had to pay 25 percent of their drug costs up to a certain dollar amount; once beneficiaries’ drug costs reached that limit, they then had to pay all of their drug costs. Then, if their total out-of-pocket costs reached an even higher level (called the catastrophic coverage limit, which is currently set at $4,750), then they only had to pay 5 percent of drug costs above that limit. By the year 2020, though, there will no longer be a donut hole. From the moment beneficiaries’ drug costs reach their deductibles until they reach the catastrophic coverage limit, they will only pay 25 percent of their total drug costs.” [National Review, 11/26/13]

Specifically, it would eliminate personal exemptions and would nearly double the standard deduction. It would raise the child tax credit through 2022, repeal the alternative minimum tax, repeal the estate tax in 2025 and reduce the gift tax rate in 2025. It would establish a new top tax rate for pass-through business income and would modify tax credits related to energy production.” The bill passed 227-205. Specifically, it would repeal personal exemptions and would roughly double the standard deduction through 2025. It would raise the child tax credit to $2,000 through 2025, would repeal the alternative minimum tax for corporations and provide for broader exemptions to the tax for individuals through 2025. It would double individual exemptions to the estate tax and gift tax through 2025, and would establish a new top tax rate for “pass-through” business income through 2025.” The conference report was adopted 227-203. [HR 1, Vote #692, 12/19/17; CQ Floor Votes, 12/19/17]

December 2017: Poliquin Voted For Final Passage Of The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act By Concurring With A Senate Amendment. In December 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Brady, R-Texas, motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the tax overhaul that would revise the federal income tax system by: lowering the corporate tax rate from 35 percent to 21 percent; lowering individual tax rates through 2025; limiting state and local deductions to $10,000 through 2025; decreasing the limit on deductible mortgage debt through 2025; and creating a new system of taxing U.S. corporations with foreign subsidiaries. Specifically, it would repeal personal exemptions and would roughly double the standard deduction through 2025. It would raise the child tax credit to $2,000 through 2025, would repeal the alternative minimum tax for corporations and provide for broader exemptions to the tax for individuals through 2025. It would double individual exemptions to the estate tax and gift tax through 2025, and would establish a new top tax rate for "pass-through" business income through 2025. It would effectively eliminate the penalty for not purchasing health insurance under the 2010 health care overhaul law in 2019. It would also open portions of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to oil and gas drilling.” The motion was passed 224-201. [HR 1, Vote #699, 12/20/17; CQ Floor Votes, 12/20/17]

- House Was Forced To Vote For A Second Time On The Final Bill After Small Changes Were Made To Comply With Senate Budget Rules. “The House, forced to vote a second time on the $1.5 trillion tax bill, moved swiftly to pass the final version on Wednesday, clearing the way for President Trump to sign into law the most sweeping tax overhaul in decades. House lawmakers approved the tax bill 224 to 201 on Wednesday, after being forced to vote on the bill again after last-minute revisions were made to it in the Senate, which passed the measure 51 to 48 early Wednesday morning. The final House vote was essentially a formality, as the changes, which were made to comply with Senate budget rules, did not significantly alter the overall bill.” [New York Times, 12/20/17]

Tax Cuts And Jobs Act Increased The Federal Debt – And Republicans Planned To Pay For It With Cuts To Medicare And Social Security

Official CBO Estimate Found Final Tax Bill Would Increase The Federal Deficit By $1.9 Trillion. “The GOP’s signature tax law is projected to increase the national debt by $1.9 trillion between 2018 and 2028, according to a new report by the Congressional Budget Office (CBO). According to the report, the tax law would cost the government $2.3 trillion in revenues, but economic growth would offset that figure by about $461 billion.” [The Hill, 4/9/18]

After Passing A Tax Bill That Added Trillions To The Deficit, Speaker Ryan Said Medicare And Medicaid Would Need To Be “Reformed” In Order To Decrease The Deficit. “With his dream of tax reform now realized, Ryan is hoping to make progress on two other issues he’s targeted during his two-decade career in Washington: entitlement and welfare reform. ‘We’re going to have to get back next year at entitlement reform, which is how you tackle the debt and the deficit,’ Ryan, a former Budget Committee chairman, said in a recent interview this month on the Ross Kaminsky radio talk show. Medicare and Medicaid are the ‘big drivers of debt,’ Ryan said, suggesting Republicans could once again use the budget reconciliation process to avoid a Democratic filibuster. Medicare is the ‘biggest entitlement that’s got to have reform,’ Ryan added.” [The Hill, 12/27/17]

AP: “A Wide Range Of Economists And Nonpartisan Analysts Have Warned That The Bill Will Likely Escalate Federal Debt, Intensify Pressure To Cut Spending On Social Programs And Further Widen America’s Troubling Income Inequality.” “The tax overhaul of 2017 amounts to a high-stakes gamble by Republicans in Congress: That slashing taxes for corporations and wealthy individuals will accelerate growth and assure greater prosperity for Americans for years to come. The risks are considerable. A wide range of economists and nonpartisan analysts have warned that the bill will likely escalate federal debt, intensify pressure to cut spending on social programs and further widen America’s troubling income inequality.” [Associated Press, 12/17/17]

House Version Of The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act Repealed Medical Expense Deduction - Hurting Americans Who Need Long Term Care, Like Seniors With Alzheimer’s

Medical Expenses Deduction Helped Older Americans With Long Term Care Costs, And Younger Families Struggling To Care For Children With Chronic Conditions And Disabilities. “According to an analysis in January from the Joint Committee on Taxation, most taxpayers who claim the deduction have incomes below $100,000, with about 40 percent below $75,000. More than half of those who claim it are older than 65, according to AARP, the lobby for older Americans. They often face staggering medical and long-term care costs. The deduction also helps younger families struggling to pay the enormous cost of caring for children with chronic conditions or disabilities, and couples going through costly fertility treatments like in vitro fertilization.” [New York Times, 11/8/17]
New York Times: “Eliminating The Medical-Expense Deduction Would Hit The Middle Class Squarely, Eliminating A Source Of Relief That Has Helped Millions Of People Cope With Steep Medical Costs.” “But while the party has framed its tax plan as a boon for the middle class, eliminating the medical-expense deduction would hit the middle class squarely, eliminating a source of relief that has helped millions of people cope with steep medical costs in a country without comprehensive, universal health coverage.” [New York Times, 11/15/17]

Poliquin Said He Hoped A Final Version Of TCJA Would Make Medical Expenses And Student Loan Interest Deductible. “Poliquin said there are provisions in the Senate measure that he hopes wind up in the final bill, including the ability to deduct medical expenses and student loan interest, but approving the House proposal is a necessary first step.” [Portland Press Herald, 11/14/17]

2012 – 2014: Poliquin Supported Raising The Retirement Age

April 2012: Poliquin Said He Supported Raising The Retirement Age. “‘I’m very encouraged by and impressed with Congressman Ryan,’ Poliquin says. ‘The part I like about his budget is that he’s dead serious about cutting all of government spending. I don’t think he cuts enough soon enough, but he also is very serious about paying down our debt.’ Poliquin has a plan of his own for saving Social Security: ‘The way to do it is raise the retirement age for new entrants and also slow down the rate of growth of benefits.’” [National Review, 4/30/12]

October 2012: Poliquin Said He Supported “Raising Age To Receive Benefits For Younger Workers.” “[Bangor Daily News:] What steps do you support to reform Social Security and Medicare? [Poliquin:] Save programs by raising age to receive benefits for younger workers. Less generous benefits for wealthy. No changes for current or near-retirees.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/10/12]

2014: Poliquin Said He Supported Saving Social Security For “Seniors Who Have Paid Into The System Who Are Counting On That Program,” But Raise The Retirement Age For Younger Workers. POLIQUIN: “Now, the social security plan is a very large $15 trillion unfunded defined benefit pension plan. It's the same problem we had here at the state level that I helped solve, we need to make sure we save that plan for our seniors who have paid into the system who are counting on that program. And then for individuals that are much younger, like my son, Sam who is 23, we have to be very honest with Sam, say, Sam, you're living longer, you're gonna have to retire at a later age before you get a retirement check. If you're a high wage earner, your your pension check might be a little bit less than someone who's really struggling. This is a math problem.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter GOP Primary Debate, 5/28/14] (VIDEO) 17:36

July 2018: Poliquin Sent A Piece Of Franked Mail That Touted The Guardian Of Seniors’ Rights Award He Received. “To that end, I was honored to be selected to receive the Guardian of Senior Rights’ award for 2018. This selective award is given to Members of Congress who vote to protect Medicare and Social Security and are outspoken advocates for programs that help our Senior Citizens. Please know that I am working hard to Preserve and Protect these important programs.”

May 2017: Poliquin Voted For Blocking Legislation That Would Prevent The House From Cutting Social Security, Medicare, Or Medicaid. Poliquin Voted For Blocking Legislation That Would Prevent The House From Cutting Social Security, Medicare, Or Medicaid. In May 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Woodall, R-Ga., motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and possibility of amendment.)” According to the Democratic Leader’s office, the motion blocked legislation to “restrict consideration of any bill, joint resolution, motion, amendment, or conference report that: (1) cuts social security benefits, (2) raises the retirement age for social security, (3) privatizes social security, (4) cuts guaranteed medicare benefits, or (5) results in cuts to state medicaid plan benefits or eligibility.” A vote for the previous question was a vote to block the legislation prohibiting the House from cutting these programs. 2014: Poliquin Called Cuts To Social Security, Medicare, And Medicaid “Absolutely Fundamental”. Poliquin Said It Was “Absolutely Fundamental” To Make Cuts To Social Security, Medicare, And Medicaid So Associated Spending Made Up Less Of Our Federal Budget. POLIQUIN: “I’m really glad the viewer asked this question because 43 percent of all federal government spending is in three very large programs, one of which is Social Security. The other two are Medicare and Medicaid. 43 percent of all spending. So unless we address this problem, we will never get our fiscal house in order and our economy will never be strong enough to generate the good-paying jobs that we need. It is absolutely fundamental. I understand this issue very well.” [YouTube, Maine 02 RawFootage, WAGM Raye Poliquin Primary Debate, 5/30/14] (VIDEO) 38:09

Poliquin Called On The Federal Government To Address “Problems” With Social Security, Medicare, And Medicaid, Which Were “On Autopilot” And “Consumed” 43 Percent Of Our Federal Budget. POLIQUIN: “About 43 percent of our budget is consumed by three huge government programs: Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid. Now unless we address those problems – because those programs are on autopilot – we’re never going to create or rather address this fiscal black cloud that’s, that's hovering above our economy, that's preventing business owners from investing in their companies, hiring more people and creating jobs. Now we have to make sure that for our seniors or those that are close to being retirees or close to being seniors, if you will, they've paid into our Social Security, for example…” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter GOP Primary Debate, 5/28/14] (VIDEO) 9:51

2014: Poliquin Supported Means-Testing Social Security

Poliquin Supported Means-Testing Social Security. “‘Another thing we might have to do is a means test,’ Poliquin said. ‘So if you are a high earner, maybe your retirement check isn’t as generous as someone who is earning less.’” [MPBN, 5/1/14]

Poliquin Championed A Balanced Budget Amendment To The Constitution, Which Would Override Commitments To Social Security And Medicare

Poliquin Voted For Proposing A Balanced Budget Amendment To The Constitution And Against An Amendment To Protect Social Security, Medicare, And Medicaid

Poliquin Voted For Proposing A Balanced Budget Amendment To The Constitution. In April 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Goodlatte, R-Va., motion to suspend the rules and pass the joint resolution that would propose a constitutional amendment that would require the U.S. government to operate under a balanced budget each year, beginning five years after ratification. Under the proposal, three-fifths of the entire House and Senate would be required to approve deficit spending or an increase in the public debt limit, but a simple majority would be sufficient to waive the requirement in times of congressionally declared war or in the face of a serious military threat.” The motion was rejected by a vote of 233-184. [H J Res 2, Vote #138, 4/12/18; CQ, 4/12/18; Congressional Record, H3018, 4/11/18]

Poliquin Voted For Blocking An Amendment To The Balanced Budget Amendment To Protect Social Security, Medicare, And Medicaid. In April 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Buck, R-Colo., motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and possibility of amendment) on […] providing for the speaker to entertain motions to suspend the rules on April 12, 2018, relating to the joint resolution (H J Res 2) that would propose a balanced budget amendment to the U.S. Constitution.” According to Rep. McGovern, “If we defeat the previous question, I will offer an amendment to the rule which would amend the bill to exempt Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid, vital pillars of our social safety net.” A vote for the motion was a vote to block consideration of the amendment. The motion was agreed to by a vote of 231-186. [H Res 811, Vote #133, 4/11/18; CQ, 4/11/18]

2015 – 2018: Poliquin Co-Sponsored A Balanced Budget Amendment Four Times

2016 – 2021: Poliquin Advocated For A Constitutional Amendment To Require A Balanced Budget

July 2021: Poliquin Said He Supported A Balanced Budget Amendment To The Constitution. HOST: “Let’s say we made you King of America. What would you do?” POLIQUIN: “Well first of all what you do is pass a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution so the federal government would only be able to spend what they take in instead of borrowing and printing money to make up the difference, just like the state of Maine has.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 7/15/21] (AUDIO) 5:02

January 2021: Poliquin: “We’ve Got To Have A Balanced Budget Amendment To The Constitution, The Federal Constitution.” POLIQUIN: “I got a stomachache, frankly. This is why we’ve got to have a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, the federal Constitution. We have one at the state level. […] What the federal government does, Matt, is these folks that represent us, they just spend as much money as they want. If they run out of money, they just print more.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 1/15/21] (AUDIO) 9:34

August 2018: Poliquin: “We Need A Balanced Budget Amendment To Our Constitution.” “We need a Balanced Budget Amendment to our Constitution. We cannot afford Career Politicians like Jared Golden who, like Nancy Pelosi, vote for every radical tax increase. Like Maine families, DC must learn to live within its means and start paying off the twenty one trillion dollar national debt.”

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 8/20/18]

August 2018: Poliquin: “The Only Way To Force A Separation Of The Good From The Bad And Require Hard Choices Is A Constitutional Balanced Budget Amendment.” “Every budget in Washington has something good or bad in it, including jobs at BIW, support for our Veterans, and other needed items. The only way to force a separation of the good from the bad and require hard choices is a Constitutional Balanced Budget Amendment. Bruce will not stop fighting for this common sense measure. If you agree in working for a Balanced Budget Amendment to force both political parties to balance the budget, please share!”

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 8/30/18]

April 2018: Poliquin Said A Constitutional Amendment To Require A Balanced Budget Would “Force Politicians In Washington To Think More Seriously About These Fiscal Decisions.” “Poliquin, a 2nd District Republican who is seeking a third term, has pushed for the measure since 2015 because of what he sees as a need ‘for our government to get our spending under control.’ ‘We need to reform how Congress operates in order to truly fix this enormous problem and I believe that starts’ with a constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget, Poliquin said in a prepared statement. The lawmaker, who in recent months voted for a $1.5 trillion tax cut and a $1.3 trillion spending plan for the next fiscal year, said it would ‘force politicians in Washington to think more seriously about these fiscal decisions and force all members, from both political parties, to make the right decision.”’” [Central Maine, 4/6/18]

February 2016: Poliquin Led A Group That Called On Republican Presidential Candidates To Support A Balanced Budget Amendment. “A group of freshmen Republicans in Congress is calling on the party’s presidential candidates to focus less on bickering and more on the national debt in advance of the South Carolina primary. Maine Rep. Bruce Poliquin is leading the group, which is sending a letter to the candidates Wednesday. Poliquin and the lawmakers want Republican candidates to put aside personal jabs and show support for a balanced budget amendment. The letter says candidates need to back spending restraints and show debt is one of the ‘primary threats to our freedoms.’ The signers are from more than a dozen states and many haven’t endorsed a candidate for president.” [Seacoast Online, 2/17/16]

2016: Poliquin Campaign Website: “Amending The U.S. Constitution For The 28th Time To Require An Annual Balanced Budget Would, Finally, Start Putting Our Fiscal House In Order And Keep It There.” “Amending the U.S. Constitution for the 28th time to require an annual balanced budget would, finally, start putting our fiscal house in order and keep it there. A balanced budget amendment would force Congress and the White House to start paying off the reckless $17 trillion national debt that is suffocating our economy. Business owners would have the confidence to invest in America, grow their companies, and create more jobs. Families could keep more of their own hard-earned wages as taxes could be lowered. The expanding economy would create more opportunities, more freedom, and more tax revenues to fund essential government programs.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/29/16]

A Balanced Budget Amendment Would Override All Government Guarantees And Promises Written Into Law, Including Social Security And Medicare

A Balanced Budget Amendment Would Override All Government Guarantees And Promises Written Into Law – Including Social Security, Medicare, Veterans Benefits, And Military Pensions. “In general, a balanced budget requirement in the U.S. Constitution would override any and all government guarantees and promises written into law: the guarantee to pay interest on the debt; or to pay insurance and guarantee claims for bank deposits, floods, loan defaults, and nuclear accidents; or to pay program benefits for Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, unemployment benefits, veterans’ benefits, or military and civil service pensions; or to pay contractors who have delivered goods or services to the federal government.” [CBPP, 3/16/18]

Under A Balanced Budget Amendment, It Would Be Unconstitutional For Social Security To Use Its Savings – What Workers Already Paid In To – To Pay Promised Benefits; Benefits Could Have To Be Cut. “Currently, Social Security holds $2.9 trillion in Treasury securities. But under the balanced budget amendment, it would essentially be unconstitutional for Social Security to draw down these savings to pay promised benefits. Instead, benefits could have to be cut, because all federal expenditures would have to be covered by tax revenues collected during that same year.” [CBPP, 3/16/18]

AARP And Center For American Progress: Balanced Budget Amendment Would Harm Social Security And Medicare

AARP Opposed The Balanced Budget Amendment Because It Would “Likely Harm Social Security And Medicare, Subjecting Both Programs To Potentially Deep Cuts.” “AARP is writing to express our opposition to a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution of the United States. […] A balanced budget amendment would likely harm Social Security and Medicare, subjecting both programs to potentially deep cuts without regard to the impact on the health and financial security of individuals. It would also likely diminish the resources available for programs assisting Americans who are least able to provide for themselves – services such as meals or heating for those who are too poor or physically unable to take care of their basic needs without some support.” [AARP, Letter, 4/9/18]

2011 – 2016: Poliquin Said He Aimed To Repeal The ACA As Quickly As Possible And Called It “The Wrong Way To Go”

2011: Poliquin: “It Cost Us Nothing, Essentially Nothing, Free, To Repeal Obamacare. So That’s The First Thing We’re Doing.” AUDIENCE MEMBER: “You say lower health insurance premiums. […] How? What do you have in mind?” POLIQUIN: “Well, the first thing is, as you know, Maine signed on with Florida [inaudible] and it costs us nothing, essentially nothing, free, to repeal Obamacare. So that’s the first thing we’re doing. The governor has a plan for this. Mary Mayhew has just been appointed head of HHS and had a couple businesspeople working underneath her and we need to make sure we tighten eligibility requirements to get the cost of delivering these services down. The problem is the governor is handcuffed, because Maine has been so generous with our MaineCare that now we’re way above the national average and if we want to drop down, they say ‘nope! You have to stay where you are.’ So we have to get this repealed.” [YouTube, stan5858, Bruce Poliquin, Maine State Treasurer, “The Importance of Fiscal Discipline,” 2/28/11] (VIDEO) 23:04

You know, we were promised that when the federal government took over our healthcare system, that you wouldn't lose your health insurance plans, you wouldn't lose your doctors and you wouldn't lose the hospitals of choice. That is absolutely not the case. It has been it's so it's a good example of a government run program that limits our choices and drives up costs and drives up taxes.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter GOP Primary Debate, 5/28/14] (VIDEO) 13:00

Poliquin Voted For The American Health Care Act. In May 2017, Poliquin voted for a bill to repeal and replace major parts of the Affordable Care Act. According to the New York Times, the bill “would eliminate tax penalties for people who go without health insurance. It would roll back state-by-state expansions of Medicaid, which covered millions of low-income Americans. And in place of government-subsidized insurance policies offered exclusively on the Affordable Care Act’s marketplaces, the bill would offer tax credits of $2,000 to $4,000 a year, depending on age. [...] The nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office said the first version of the bill would trim the federal budget deficit considerably but would also leave 24 million more Americans without health insurance after a decade. Average insurance premiums would be 15 percent to 20 percent higher in 2018 and 2019, but after that, they would be lower than projected under current law.” The bill passed by a vote of 217-213. Poliquin Voted For Overturning Obama’s Veto Of A Bill That Would Repeal Major Portions Of The Affordable Care Act. In February 2016, Poliquin voted for: “Passage, over President Obama’s Jan. 8, 2016, veto, of the bill that would repeal portions of the 2010 health care law and block federal funding for Planned Parenthood for one year. The bill would zero-out the law’s penalties for noncompliance with the law’s requirements for most individuals to obtain health coverage and employers to offer health insurance. The bill would scrap in 2018 the law’s Medicaid expansion, as well as subsidies to help individuals buy coverage through the insurance exchanges. It would also scrap certain taxes included in the law, including the tax on certain high-value employer-sponsored health insurance plans.” A two-thirds majority was required to override the President’s veto. The motion was rejected 241-186. [HR 3762, Vote #53, 2/2/16; CQ Floor Votes, 2/2/16]

• The Bill Attempted “To Overturn President Obama’s Veto Of Legislation To Repeal Obamacare.” “House Republicans are moving on to a new round of budget fights after failing on Tuesday to overturn President Obama’s veto of legislation to repeal Obamacare and defund Planned Parenthood. Republicans were not able to rally the support of two-thirds of the House necessary to overturn the veto, leaving conservatives to turn their attention to a final year of budget fights with the president. The 241-186 vote, appropriately scheduled for Groundhog Day, was the 63rd time the House has voted to overturn all or part of Obama’s signature health care law.” [Washington Post, 2/2/16]

Poliquin Voted For Agree With Senate Amendment To Bill To Repeal Major Portions Of The Affordable Care Act, Including Individual Mandate. In January 2016, Poliquin voted for: “Price, R-Ga., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the bill that would repeal portions of the 2010 health care law and block federal funding for Planned Parenthood for one year. The bill would zero-out the law’s penalties for noncompliance with the law’s requirements for most individuals to obtain health coverage and employers to offer health insurance. The bill would scrap in 2018 the law’s Medicaid expansion, as well as subsidies to help individuals buy coverage through the insurance exchanges. Poliquin Voted For House Passage Of A Bill To Repeal Major Portions Of Affordable Care Act, Including Individual Mandate. In October 2015, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would repeal portions of the 2010 health care law, including: the requirements for most individuals to have health insurance and employers with more than 50 employees to offer it or face penalties, the 2.3 percent tax on the sale of medical devices, the tax on certain high-value employer-sponsored health insurance plans, and the Prevention and Public Health Fund. The measure also would block, for one year, federal funding for Planned Parenthood and would increase funding for community health centers by $235 million in both fiscal 2016 and 2017.” The bill passed 240-189. - HEADLINE: House Republicans Vote To Repeal Obamacare, Again. [Los Angeles Times, 10/23/15]

- According To The CBO, The Bill Would Increase The Number Of Uninsured Americans By 32 Million. “The number of people who are uninsured would increase by 18 million in the first new plan year following enactment of the bill. Later, after the elimination of the ACA’s expansion of Medicaid eligibility and of subsidies for insurance purchased through the ACA marketplaces, that number would increase to 27 million, and then to 32 million in 2026.” [CBO, 1/2017]

- According To The CBO, The Bill Would Cause Health Insurance Premiums To Double. “Premiums in the nongroup market (for individual policies purchased through the marketplaces or directly from insurers) would increase by 20 percent to 25 percent—relative to projections under current law—in the first new plan year following enactment. The increase would reach about 50 percent in the year following the elimination of the Medicaid expansion and the marketplace subsidies, and premiums would about double by 2026.” [CBO, 1/2017]

- According To The CBO, The Bill Would Leave In Place Rules That Insurance Companies Could “Not Deny Coverage Or Vary Premiums Because Of An Enrollee’S Health Status Or Limit Coverage Because Of Preexisting Medical Conditions.” “Importantly, H.R. 3762 would leave in place a number of market reforms—rules established by the ACA that govern certain health insurance markets. Insurers who sell plans either through the marketplaces or directly to consumers are required to: Provide specific benefits and amounts of coverage; Not deny coverage or vary premiums because of an enrollee’s health status or limit coverage because of preexisting medical conditions; and Vary premiums only on the basis of age, tobacco use, and geographic location.” [CBO, 1/2017]

[…] 544,100 people in Maine with preexisting conditions could face higher premiums, face benefit exclusions, or be denied coverage altogether—a discriminatory practice outlawed by the ACA nationwide—if they ever needed to turn to the individual market for coverage in another state.” [Center for American Progress, 3/2/20]

May 2017: Poliquin Voted For The American Health Care Act (AHCA)

August 2017: At A Private Event, Poliquin Said It Was “Shameful” That The Senate Did Not Pass The AHCA

August 2017: In Leaked Audio From A Private Event, Poliquin Said It Was “Shameful” That The Senate Did Not Pass The AHCA. “Poliquin has detailed many health care issues he would like to see Congress address, and considered the House vote a necessary step toward resolving them. He told Maine Heritage Policy Center supporters -- which was detailed in a secret recording of the talk provided to the Maine People's Alliance -- that with the House passage, it became the Senate's turn to act. But it refused to support any alternative offered, stalled in the end by the opposition of three senators, including Maine's Susan Collins, a Republican. ‘How can anybody vote not even to start debate on an issue this important?’ Poliquin asked. ‘We've got to fix this and we did in the House,' he said. ‘The Senate couldn't get it done. That is shameful.' ‘We have done what we needed to do in the House. Pray for our senators. Reach out to whoever you think you should,’ Poliquin said. Poliquin appeared to take aim at Collins in particular. ‘Now, for some people to say, 'Well, the reason I can't support this, Bruce, is because it cuts Medicaid,' that is a flat-out untruthful statement,’ the congressman alleged.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/25/17]

Poliquin Claimed The AHCA Would Affect "Only The 7 Percent Of Maine Residents Who Have Obamacare Policies"

On A Call With Reporters Just Before His Vote For The AHCA, Poliquin Repeatedly Claimed The Bill Only “Affects Only The 7 Percent Of Maine Residents Who Have Obamacare Policies.” “In a conference call with reporters before the vote, he said the bill represents the best parts of several previous attempts at reform and Republican efforts to undo former President Barack Obama's signature 2010 legislation, the Affordable Care Act. ‘This affects only the 7 percent of Maine residents who have Obamacare policies,’ he said. ‘People sent me to Congress to solve serious problems that are affecting Maine people.’ In his 15-minute exchange with Maine reporters, Poliquin repeated the same point multiple times about the small percentage of Mainers who would be affected, the roughly 80,000 people in the state who have insurance under the Affordable Care Act.” [Kennebec Journal, 5/4/17]

- May 2017: Poliquin Claimed “Folks Who Are On Obamacare Policies, They Continue To Have Those Policies” Under The AHCA. “Poliquin also said that people will be able to keep the health plans they have under the ACA, as long as insurance companies continue to offer them. ‘Folks who are on Obamacare policies, they continue to have those policies, but those that are looking for something different, we are bringing the insurance marketplace back in to hopefully lower the price and make sure we have protections for people with pre-existing conditions and guaranteed issuance,’ he said. Brostek was skeptical of that promise, especially since Obama made a similar claim when selling the ACA, which turned out not to be true. ‘It seems like a pretty dangerous claim, based on what we saw with Obama,’ she said.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/12/17]

Kennebec Journal: Poliquin’s Claim Was “Instantly Exposed As False” And Did Not Account For 270,000 Mainers With Pre-Existing Conditions Or On Medicaid Who Would Be Affected By The AHCA
Kennebec Journal: Poliquin’s Claim Did Not Account For 270,000 Mainers On Medicaid And All Mainers With Pre-Existing Conditions Who Would Be Affected By The AHCA. “In May, Poliquin joined a majority of Republicans in voting to pass the American Health Care Act, which the congressman said would affect ‘only the 7 percent of Maine residents who have Obamacare policies.’ However, that isn't true because the House bill also included cuts to Medicaid programs for low-income people, something that the House’s Freedom Caucus insisted upon, and Maine had about 270,000 people enrolled in the program, known as MaineCare, as of January. There also is a provision in the House health bill that would allow states to let insurers charge more for customers with pre-existing medical conditions.” [Kennebec Journal, 7/12/17]

Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: Poliquin “Repeated Republican Talking Points That Were Instantly Exposed As False,” Including That His Vote Would Only Affect 7 Percent Of Mainers. “Then he repeated Republican talking points that were instantly exposed as false - claiming, for example, that the bill would affect only the 7 percent of Mainers who buy insurance on the individual market, and not the tens of thousands of Mainers on Medicaid, including thousands of his constituents, who would be direct losers. It's important to remember that what Poliquin and the others support is not just an attack on the Medicaid expansion created by the Affordable Care Act, an aspect of the law in which Maine does not participate. But roughly a fifth of Mainers get their health care through traditional Medicaid - and tearing that apart is central to both the House and Senate attempts to repeal the ACA. Both bills cap federal contributions for the states for their Medicaid programs, rather than paying a share of the costs of caring for each program enrollee. As health care costs climb, the federal share will shrink as a portion of the whole cost, forcing states to cut services.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 7/18/17]

Poliquin Claimed The AHCA Would Not Hurt Mainers With Pre-Existing Conditions

July 2017: Poliquin Claimed The AHCA “Ensures Everyone Will Have Access, Even Those With Pre-Existing Conditions ... At A Price They Can Afford.” “A major concern with the new Republican health care bill is how it would affect people with pre-existing conditions. Poliquin said one of the biggest reasons he will support the new bill is because he's convinced it ‘ensures everyone will have access, even those with pre-existing conditions ... at a price they can afford.’” [Kennebec Journal, 7/12/17]

- 2018: Poliquin: “Everything I Have Ever Supported Is To Drive Down The Cost Of Health Insurance, Make Sure Everybody Is Protected When They Have A Preexisting Condition.” HOST: “The affordable care act is the law of the land. Although clearly a lot of people would make the argument that healthcare is anything but affordable under a lot of circumstances. In Congress what could you do to make sure people have access to affordable healthcare?” POLIQUIN: “Everybody in this country needs to have healthcare and everybody needs to be able to afford health insurance in order to get that care. One of the first votes I cast in Congress in 2015 was -- and I was one of only three republicans in Congress -- to vote against repealing the Affordable Care Act because there was no replacement. Let me tell you, I got some criticism about that, but it was the right thing to do. Since that time I have introduced a 14 point plan, in part based on the Maine model that drove down the cost of health insurance and gave us more choices. It was called PL-90. My mother is a nurse. She's 90 years old now. Doesn't practice of course. But she's a nurse. I grew up with healthcare in our family. My son has a preexisting condition. Everything I have ever supported is to drive down the cost of health insurance, make sure everybody is protected when they have a preexisting condition. But I will tell you what I don't think is a good idea is a 100% government run healthcare that Jared Golden supports, that will drive up taxes, cost 32 trillion dollars and end Medicare as we know it.” [C-SPAN, 2018 ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/16/18] (VIDEO) 24:59

May 2017: Poliquin On The AHCA: “If You Have Pre-Existing Conditions, Like My Family, You Are Going To Be Covered.” “Poliquin, who reportedly ducked into a bathroom last week to avoid discussing his position on the American Health Care Act ahead of the House vote, said Friday he personally met with President Trump in the Oval Office to discuss the legislation's potential impact on rural Maine, which makes up the bulk of his 2nd District. He said $138 billion has been allocated over a 10-year period to help people in so-called high-risk pools afford coverage. ‘We passed (a bill) that is better for more people and it guarantees that you will have access to health insurance,’ he said. ‘You will not be denied. If you have pre-existing conditions, like my family, you are going to be covered. And tax credits allow you to buy the plan you want, and as you get older those tax credits go up.’” [Portland Press Herald, 5/12/17]

- Poliquin Evoked His Son, Who Has Asthma, To Defend His AHCA Vote: “I’ve Seen Health Care Up Close.” “In the debate over replacing the Affordable Care Act, U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, brought up his asthmatic adult son, Sammy, and the importance of protecting people with pre-existing conditions. ‘My own son has an asthma condition, a pre-existing condition,’ Poliquin said in a statement Thursday. ‘I’ve seen health care up close. We need to do the best job we possibly can when it comes to health care so Maine people get the care they need.’ But the American Health Care Act -- the Republican House bill approved 217-213 on Thursday -- would result in millions losing health care coverage, and it undermines protections for pre-existing conditions.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/5/17]

<td>PolitiFact Found That The AHCA “Would Weaken Protections” For Those With Pre-Existing Conditions By Allowing Insurance Companies To Charge Them “Significantly More.” “An ad by the American Action Network says that under the American Health Care Act ‘people with pre-existing conditions are protected.’ The only kernel of truth here is that the amendment has language that states insurers can’t limit access to coverage for individuals with pre-existing conditions. However, the ad omits that the House GOP health plan would weaken protections for these patients. The legislation would allow states to give insurers the power to charge people significantly more if they had a pre-existing condition. While Republicans point to the fact that those patients could get help through high-risk pools, experts question their effectiveness. Current law does not allow states to charge people with pre-existing conditions significantly more. We rate this claim Mostly False.” [PolitiFact, 5/24/17]</td>

- The AHCA Incorporated The Model Of The Maine Guaranteed Access Reinsurance Program, Which Subsidized A High-Risk Pool Of Insures With Pre-Existing Conditions. “A LePage administration health insurance program that inspired a key component of the latest Republican proposal to replace the Affordable Care Act was only in place 18 months before being supplanted by the Affordable Care Act. Critics say that wasn't long enough to gauge its effectiveness. Supporters, meanwhile, say the program was working well at lowering premiums. The Maine program, called the Maine Guaranteed Access Reinsurance Program, or MGARA, was superseded by the Affordable Care Act in 2013. […] But critics of Maine's high-risk pool say that to achieve lower premiums, Maine permitted insurers to offer plans with fewer benefits. For instance, Maine did not require plans to offer maternity care, a significant and expensive benefit used by many. […] LePage's program redistributed money to the individual marketplace in Maine by charging a $4 per person, per month fee on individual, small- and large-group plans.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/1/17]

Funding For The High-Risk Pool Under The AHCA Was “Drastically Underfunded And Would Have Minimal Impact On Rates” According To Its Critics Like The Center For American Progress. “Meanwhile, the Maine-inspired portion of the ACA replacement proposal is drastically underfunded in the House bill, and would have minimal impact on rates, critics say. […] Stein said there’s nothing wrong with the structure of a reinsurance program like MGARA, but the key is how well it’s funded. ‘In the end, it all comes down to how much money is put in,’ Stein said. Nationally, the AHCA would fund the Maine-like program to the tune of $15 billion over 10 years, plus states could draw from a $115 billion fund over 10 years that could be used for a number of programs, including reinsurance. Critics, including Topher Spiro, vice president of health policy for the Washington-based Center for American Progress, said the amount devoted to reinsurance programs is a tiny fraction of AHCA funding, and would have little impact on rates.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/1/17]

Poliquin Supported Giving Millionaires And Billionaires A Tax Break While Raising Taxes On Middle Class Families

2017: Poliquin Voted For House And Final Passage Of The Republican Tax Scam Bill

November 2017: Poliquin Voted For Passage Of The House Version Of The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act. In November 2017, Poliquin voted for: “passage of the bill that would revise the federal income tax system by: lowering individual and corporate tax rates; consolidating the current seven tax income rates into four rates; eliminating the deduction for state and local income taxes; limiting certain deductions for property taxes and home mortgages; and creating a new system of taxing U.S. corporations with foreign subsidiaries. Specifically, it would eliminate personal exemptions and would nearly double the standard deduction. It would raise the child tax credit through 2022, repeal the alternative minimum tax, repeal the estate tax in 2025 and reduce the gift tax rate in 2025. It would establish a new top tax rate for pass-through business income and would modify tax credits related to energy production.” The bill passed 227-205. House lawmakers approved the tax bill 224 to 201 on Wednesday, after being forced to vote on the bill again after last-minute revisions were made to it in the Senate, which passed the measure 51 to 48 early Wednesday morning. Maine families will finally be able to keep more of the money that they work hard to earn.’ He said that ‘for decades, Washington has continued to add to a maze of loopholes and separate deductions that have advantaged the few while making the entire system more complex for ordinary taxpayers.’ ‘I am committed to simplify our tax system so ordinary Mainers and Americans — not just the wealthy and well-connected — can keep more of their own money,’ Poliquin said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/6/18]

Poliquin said he's worked hard to make the measure
‘very pro-family.’ The idea, he said, ‘is to put more money back in the pockets’ of working people and to lower the tax burden on businesses so they can invest more. Washington Post: Final Tax Bill Included A “Significant Tax Break For The Very Wealthy” And A Massive Tax Cut For Corporations.” “A new tax cut for the rich: The final plan lowers the top tax rate for top earners. Under current law, the highest rate is 39.6 percent for married couples earning over $470,700. The GOP bill would drop that to 37 percent and raise the threshold at which that top rate kicks in, to $500,000 for individuals and $600,000 for married couples. This amounts to a significant tax break for the very wealthy, a departure from repeated claims by Trump and his top officials that the bill would not benefit the rich. […] A massive tax cut for corporations “A massive tax cut for corporations: Starting on Jan. 1, 2018, big businesses' tax rate would fall from 35 percent to just 21 percent, the largest one-time rate cut in U.S. history for the nation's largest companies.” [Washington Post, 12/15/17]

New York Times: “Financial Institutions Are Among The Biggest Winners So Far, Reaping Benefits From A Lower Corporate Rate And More Preferable Tax Treatment For So-Called Pass-Through Companies.” “The nation’s banks are finding a lot to love about the Trump administration’s tax cuts. The $1.5 trillion tax overhaul signed into law late last year provided deep and lasting tax cuts to all types of businesses, but financial institutions are among the biggest winners so far, reaping benefits from a lower corporate rate and more preferable tax treatment for so-called pass-through companies, which include many small banks. While some of the biggest banks are reporting fourth-quarter earnings hits stemming from the new tax law, they see rich benefits over the long term, including effective tax rates that are even lower than the new 21 percent corporate rate.” [New York Times, 1/16/18]

PolitiFact: GOP Tax Bill Would Raise Taxes For The Middle Class After Individual Tax Cut Provisions Expired In 2025. “Gillibrand said the Republican ‘tax [plan] raises middle-class taxes.’ That's not true during the first years of the new tax provisions. If not for the sunset for the tax changes for individuals, we likely would have rated Gillibrand's statement False or perhaps Mostly False. Middle-income taxpayers will either benefit or see no change in their tax liability through 2025. But her claim could hold up after the bill's individual provisions expire that year. There's no guarantee a future Congress will extend those parts of the bill.” [PolitiFact, 12/22/17]

- Tax Policy Center: In 2018, 5 Percent Of Taxpayers Would Pay More In Taxes Under The GOP Tax Bill, But Would Increase To 53 Percent Of Taxpayers In 2027. “Some taxpayers would pay more in taxes under the proposal in 2018 and 2025 than under current law: about 5 percent of taxpayers in 2018 and 9 percent in 2025. In 2027, however, taxes would increase for 53 percent of taxpayers compared with current law.” [Tax Policy Center, 12/18/17]

Portland Press Herald: “Poliquin Voted To Give Away Trillions Of Dollars To Extremely Wealthy Individuals And Corporations” While Cutting “Programs That [His] Middle-Class Constituents Rely On”

Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: Poliquin Should Have “Had The Guts To Stand Up For Their Constituents And Vote Against” The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act. “This isn’t tax reform – it’s a publicly funded reward for the handful of wealthy donors who have bankrolled the Republican takeover of Congress. Still, 13
Republican House members had the guts to stand up for their constituents and vote against the bill last week. Maine’s Poliquin should have been one of them.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 11/19/17]

- Editorial Board: “Poliquin Voted To Give Away Trillions Of Dollars To Extremely Wealthy Individuals And Corporations” While Cutting “Programs That [His] Middle-Class Constituents Rely On.” “Rep. Bruce Poliquin had a big week. The representative for Maine’s 2nd District voted to bankrupt graduate students, add $1.7 trillion to the federal deficit and cut $25 billion out of next year’s Medicare budget. And he did it all with a single push of a button. […] Poliquin voted to give away trillions of dollars to extremely wealthy individuals and corporations. The cuts would be partially offset by the elimination of most tax deductions, and what that wouldn’t cover would be added to the deficit ($1.7 trillion), triggering cuts to the programs that Poliquin’s middle-class constituents rely on, including Medicare, Social Security and financial aid for students.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 11/19/17]

2014: Poliquin Supported Ryan’s FY 2015 Budget, Which Would Have Corporations And Millionaires Like Himself A Tax Cut While Raising Taxes On Families Making Less Than $200,000

July 2014: Bangor Daily News Editorial Headline: “Bruce Poliquin Supports The Paul Ryan Budget. But What’s Actually In It?” “Poliquin, the Republican former state treasurer, says he supports the Ryan plan. He told the BDN editorial board in May that he would like to see the plan balance the federal budget more quickly.” [Bangor Daily News, Editorial, 7/25/14]

CBPP: Families Making Less Than $200,000 Would Face Average Tax Hike of $3,000 Under Ryan’s Budget. “Families with children that have incomes below $200,000 would have to face tax increases averaging more than $3,000 a year, if policymakers enacted the same extremely ambitious reductions in tax expenditures for filers with incomes above $200,000…, filers with incomes of $1 million or more would lose tax breaks totaling about $90,000 on average – still leaving them with an average net tax cut of about $245,000…” [Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, 3/17/13]

CBPP: Millionaires Would Likely Experience A $245,000 Net Tax Cut Under Ryan’s Budget. According to an analysis of the Ryan Budget conducted by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, “If policymakers enacted the same extremely ambitious reductions in tax expenditures for filers with incomes above $200,000 that TPC assumed when it analyzed Romney’s tax plan, filers with incomes of $1 million or more would lose tax breaks totaling about $90,000 on average – still leaving them with an average net tax cut of about $245,000. Households with incomes above $200,000 would get a net cut of about $16,000.” [Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, 3/17/13]

- 2014: Poliquin Reported He Had An Estimated Net Worth Between $9,971,062 And $37,690,000. [Poliquin 2014 Public Financial Disclosure Report, Candidate Report, filed 5/15/14]

Ryan Budget Would Slash The Corporate Tax Rate From 35 Percent to 25 Percent. “Under the Ryan plan, the corporate tax rate would also fall, from 35 percent to 25 percent – although all those tax changes are supposed to be crafted to bring in the same amount of revenue as the current tax code, a tall order.” [New York Times, 3/12/13]

Poliquin Opposed Raising The Minimum Wage

2017: Poliquin Voted For Blocking A Bill To Increase The Minimum Wage To $15 Per Hour Within Seven Years

Poliquin Voted For Blocking A Bill To Increase The Minimum Wage To $15 Per Hour Within Seven Years. In June 2017, Poliquin voted for: a motion to order the previous question. A yes vote would block consideration of “H.R. 15, The Raise The Wage Act., which would give workers the raise they deserve, and increase the federal minimum wage to $15 an hour within 7 years.” The bill passed 235-190. [HR 3003, Vote #331, 6/28/17; CQ, 6/28/17; DemocraticLeader.gov, accessed 9/12/17]

April 2013: Poliquin Opposed Raising Maine’s Minimum Wage From $7.50 To $9.19 Because “The Poor Are Aided By a Broad Taxpayer-Funded Safety Net.” “In 2009, the federal minimum wage was set at $7.25 per hour. The same year, the Maine Legislature raised it to $7.50 for jobs within our state. Some Maine lawmakers now want to raise it to $9 an hour over the next three years, a 20 percent increase. Today, that would be the second highest state minimum wage after Washington’s $9.19 per hour. […] Over the years, studies have confirmed that raising the minimum wage does not reduce poverty. That’s primarily because the poor are aided by a broad taxpayer-funded safety net which includes food, housing, heating, health care, and cash assistance.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 4/7/13]

12/4/20: Poliquin: “Portland’s New Minimum Wage Is Going To Destroy Local Businesses.” “Portland’s new minimum wage is going to destroy local businesses. The new emergency min wage is higher than the min wage in NYC, DC and San Fran. How will struggling businesses respond? Temporary closures, layoffs, reduced benefits, etc. Be careful what you wish for, Portland!”

[Bruce Poliquin Twitter, 12/4/20]

- 12/6/20: Poliquin: “New Min Wage Ordinance Will Drive Business Out Of The City And Kill Jobs.” “So sad what’s happening to Portland. I know what they’re trying to do -- get more money in the hands of frontline workers. This is the wrong way to do it. Instead, new min wage ordinance will drive business out of the city and kill jobs. #mepolitics https://t.co/4LSvmuQP7K?amp=1”

Poliquin Voted For Blocking An Amendment To Allow Americans To Earn Paid Sick Leave. In May 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Buck, R-Colo., motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and possibility of amendment).” According to the Democratic Leader’s office, the previous question would allow for “consideration of the bill (H.R. 1516) to allow Americans to earn paid sick time so that they can address their own health needs and the health needs of their families.” A vote for the previous question was a vote to block the amendment for paid sick leave. The previous question carried, 231-188. [H Res 352, Vote #275, 5/24/17; CQ, 5/24/17]

2017: Poliquin Voted For Undermining Worker Protections By Allowing Private Sector Employees To Swap Overtime Pay For “Comp Time.” In May 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would allow private-sector employers to provide non-exempt employees compensatory time off at a rate of 1.5 hours per hour of overtime work. To be eligible, employees would be required to have worked at least 1,000 hours in a 12-month period. Employees would be limited to 160 hours of compensatory time and employers would be required to provide monetary compensation by Jan. 31, for any unused compensatory time accrued during the preceding year. The bill’s provisions would sunset five years after enactment.” The bill was passed by a vote of 229-197. [HR 1180, Vote #244, 5/2/17; CQ, 5/2/17]

- NBC News: Democrats Opposed The Bill, Saying It Weakened Worker Protections And Could Allow Employers, Who Would Have Final Say On Scheduled Comp Time, To “Kick The Can Down The Road On Money You Earned Putting In Extra Hours.” “The House of Representatives passed a bill Tuesday that would allow employees to swap overtime pay for ‘comp time,’ a rules change congressional Republicans have tried to push through for more than two decades. […] Where do the Democrats stand? They really don’t like this bill. Many progressives in the House argue that the proposal would chip away at protections for hardworking Americans and undermine the Fair Labor Standards Act. The measure, among other rules, would give employers the final say on when comp time can be used. In other words, House Dems fear, your boss could conceivably kick the can down the road on money you earned putting in extra hours. Massachusetts Sen. Elizabeth Warren, a fierce advocate for workers’ rights, blasted the bill as a ‘disgrace.’” [NBC News, 5/3/17]

- Poliquin Voted Against Blocking Protections From The Bill For Employees Who Received Seven Or More Sick Days From Their Employers, Which Can Be Used To Seek Care For Pre-Existing Medical Conditions. In May 2017, Poliquin voted against: “Scott, D-Va., motion to recommit the bill to the House Education and the Workforce Committee with instructions to report it back immediately with an amendment that would exempt from the bill’s provisions employees who receive seven or more sick days from their employer.” The motion was rejected by a vote of 192-234. [HR 1180, Vote #243, 5/2/17; CQ, 5/2/17]

- Poliquin Voted To Waive Certain Rules Making It Easier For The House To Pass A Bill To Allow Employees To Trade Overtime Pay For Comp Time. In May 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Adoption of the rule (H Res 299) that would allow private-sector employers to provide non-exempt employees compensatory time off at a rate of 1.5 hours per hour of overtime work. It would waive, through the legislative day of May 5, 2017, the two-thirds vote requirement to consider legislation on the same day it is reported from the House Rules Committee. It also would provide for consideration of measures under suspension of the rules on the legislative days of May 4 and May 5, 2017.” The rule was adopted by a vote of 230-193. [HR 1180 (HRes 299), Vote #241, 5/2/17; CQ, 5/2/17]

2020 – 2021: Poliquin Was An OutspokenOpponent Of Unemployment Insurance During The Pandemic

February – July 2021: Maine Had An Unemployment Rate Of 4.8 Percent, With More than 32,000 Mainers Collecting Unemployment Insurance

February – July 2021: Maine has a 4.8% unemployment rate for the past five months, with 32,500 people collecting state unemployment. Participation in the labor force is down more than 3% from a pre-pandemic high, but those people who are not counted as participating are not collecting any state or federal unemployment.” [Kennebec Journal, 7/19/21]

July 2020 – June 2021: Poliquin Called For Maine To Opt Out Of Federal Unemployment Insurance

June 2021: Poliquin Called Maine Not Opting Out Of Federal Unemployment Insurance “An Embarrassment.” “It’s a continued shame to pay capable workers to stay home instead of encouraging them to further their careers and grab one of the tens of thousands of available jobs across the Pine Tree State. It’s also an embarrassment for Maine not to opt out of this federal program paying an extra $300 per week of unemployment in addition to the roughly $450 per week state benefit. The governors of 26 states have ended this unfair and wasteful program, but not ours, of course!”
7/17/21: Poliquin On Federal Unemployment Insurance: “Time To Suspend These Benefits And Get Mainers Back To Work!” “I can't imagine @GovJanetMills ' ‘Back to Work’ program will make any difference in the unemployment numbers when we're still participating in $300/week additional unemployment. Time to suspend these benefits and get Mainers back to work!”

5/21/21: Poliquin: “New Hampshire Did The Right Thing Earlier This Week In Backing Out Of Enhanced Federal Unemployment Assistance. It's Time For Maine To Do The Same.” “New Hampshire did the right thing earlier this week in backing out of enhanced federal unemployment assistance. It's time for Maine to do the same. Will @GovJanetMills become the first Democrat chief executive to stop paying workers to stay home? Don't hold your breath!”

July 2020: Poliquin On Federal Unemployment Insurance: “IT DOESN’T MAKE SENSE TO PAY WORKERS TO STAY HOME.” “IT DOESN’T MAKE SENSE TO PAY WORKERS TO STAY HOME On July 31, the federal emergency program which adds $600 per week to every unemployment check will expire. Democrats want to extend those payments until the end of the year. Starting three months ago, the extra $600 per week targeted families who lost jobs because of the coronavirus shutdown. The money was intended to help pay for expenses like groceries and rent. Now, many reopening businesses are having a hard time convincing former employees to return to work because they’re taking home more money than when on the job. It was right to help families who lost jobs because the government forced their employers to close. But, it’s not fair to force taxpayers to pay workers to stay home if their jobs are now available.”
Poliquin Claimed Unemployment Insurance Caused A Labor Shortage

October 2021: Poliquin Pledged To “Take Care Of People Who Really Need Help” But Added, “Don’t Make It Easier For [People] To Stay Home And Not Work Than Go Back To Their Job.” “Poliquin said when he’s back in Congress, and the Republicans are in control of the House, they will make sure to “take care of people who really need help and maybe have disabilities or have elderly parents at home. I get all that, but my goodness gracious, don’t make it easier for them to stay home and not work than go back to their job. It’s just not fair, and it’s not right.”” [Breitbart, 10/10/21]

7/6/20: Poliquin: “It No Longer Makes Sense To Pay Workers To Stay Home. […] Many Are Struggling To Convince Employees To Return To Work.” “It no longer makes sense to pay workers to stay home. It was right to help families who lost jobs because the govt forced their employers to close, but now with businesses reopening, many are struggling to convince employees to return to work. Unemployment system too lucrative.”

Poliquin Claimed Unemployment Insurance Drove Inflation

Poliquin Campaign Website: “We Have Rising Inflation And Small Businesses Struggling” Because Democrats “Are Attempting To Artificially Control Our Economy” Through Unemployment Insurance. “We have rising inflation and small businesses struggling to survive because Democrats running Washington are attempting to artificially control our economy with free government cash through unemployment benefits which never seem to end. Paying people stay home while thousands of jobs available throughout Maine is wrong.” [Poliquin for Congress, accessed 10/14/21]

August 2021: Poliquin Campaign Website: “Paying People Stay Home While Thousands Of Jobs Available Throughout Maine Is Wrong” And Drives Inflation. “We have rising inflation and small businesses struggling to survive because Democrats running Washington are attempting to artificially control our economy with free government cash through unemployment benefits which never seem to end. 6/3/21: Poliquin: “Democrat Chief Executives […] Pay People To Stay Home When They're Perfectly Capable Of Working, And When There Are Tens Of Thousands Of Available Jobs.” “9 of 10 employers say a severe worker shortage is hurting their local economy. How much longer are Democrat chief executives (like @GovJanetMills) going to pay people to stay home when they're perfectly capable of working, and when there are tens of thousands of available jobs?”

Poliquin Is Wrong For Maine’s Lobstermen

August 2020: Poliquin Praised Trump For Tariffs That Hurt Maine’s Lobster Industry Even After He Expressed Concern About How They Would “Jeopardize” The Industry In 2018

June 2018: Poliquin Issued A Joint Statement With The Maine Congressional Delegation That Expressed Concern That China’s Retaliatory Tariffs Would “Jeopardize” Maine’s Lobster Industry. “Tonight, U.S. Senators Susan Collins and Angus King and Representatives Chellie Pingree and Bruce Poliquin released the following joint statement in response to China’s retaliatory tariffs on American Lobster: ‘Maine’s lobster industry is an irreplaceable piece of our state’s economy that supports thousands of jobs and entire coastal communities. Just two weeks ago, the Maine delegation heard directly from our state’s lobster industry about the economic hardship a trade war with China would cause them. We will be outlining our concerns with the USTR about how these new tariffs will jeopardize this industry.’” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 6/15/18]

July 2018: China Announced Retaliatory Tariffs On The U.S., Including A 25 Percent Tariff On Lobster Imports, Beginning A Roughly $85 Million Loss To The Industry Over Two Years

July 2018: China Announced Retaliatory Tariffs On The U.S., Including A 25% Tariff On Lobster Imports That Eventually Rose To 35%. “Since then, the seas have turned rough. The trouble started in mid-2018, when lobsters got embroiled in President Trump’s trade war with China. In retaliation for the Trump administration’s first round of tariffs on Chinese goods, China started charging an additional 25% tariff on US lobster. It rose to 35% in 2019. (This year the country dropped it to 30%).” [Quartz, 6/25/20; 7/6/18]

Lobster Sales To China Declined By 64 Percent During The First Month Of Trump’s Tariffs. “LePage and Poliquin also pushed back on criticism of Trump’s trade war with China, which also hurt Maine’s lobster industry when China placed 25% retaliatory tariffs on U.S. seafood imports. Lobster sales to China, which had been a growing market, declined by 64% during the first month the tariffs were in place.” [Portland Press Herald, 8/27/20]

Quartz On Maine Lobster Industry’s Declining Value: “The Culprit Is The US-China Trade War.” “As of last year, Maine’s catch was still near all-time high. But the state’s lobster and fishing industry is not ‘bigger and better than anyone ever thought possible,’ as US president Donald Trump claimed yesterday. Under the Trump administration, the value of Maine’s lobster harvest has actually declined. The culprit is the US-China trade war.” [Quartz, 6/25/20]

June 2020: Trump Announced Maine Lobstermen Would Be Eligible For Financial Assistance To Offset Lost Income From The Trade War, Which Maine’s Congressional Delegation Pushed For In June 2019. “President Donald Trump directed his administration on Wednesday to provide lobstermen with financial assistance to make up for lost income from Chinese tariffs in a move that one of Maine’s senators praised and said ‘came out of the blue.’ White House trade adviser Peter Navarro said Trump signed a memorandum Wednesday calling on the U.S. Department of Agriculture to make available to the lobster industry subsidies like those given to soybean and other agricultural growers. Maine accounts for 80 percent of the U.S. lobster haul. The state’s congressional delegation lobbied for such a move in a June 2019 letter.” [Bangor Daily News, 6/24/20]

August 2020: Poliquin Praised Trump For Having “The Guts To Stand Up To China” In The Trade War

8/28/20: Poliquin On Trump’s Trade War Against China: “Trump Has Been The Only Guy In A Very Long Time With The Guts To Stand Up To China.” “LePage and Poliquin also pushed back on criticism of Trump’s trade war with China, which also hurt Maine’s lobster industry when China placed 25% retaliatory tariffs on U.S. seafood imports. Lobster sales to China, which had been a growing market, declined by 64% during the first month the tariffs were in place. Poliquin and LePage said China had taken advantage of the U.S. for years and that while some industries were hurt by the trade standoff, there were other gains made. ‘Trump has been the only guy in a very long time with the guts to stand up to China,’ Poliquin said.” [Portland Press Herald, 8/27/20]
Poliquin: “Trump Was The First President In Modern History Who Took This Chinese Threat Seriously, And It Was Getting To Be Quite Effective.” “Trump was the first president in modern history who took this Chinese threat seriously, and it was getting to be quite effective. Poliquin Is Wrong For Maine’s Manufacturing Workers

Poliquin Voted For Measures That Incentivized Companies To Move Jobs Overseas

2017: Poliquin Voted For House And Final Passage Of The Republican Tax Scam Bill, Which Would Increase Incentives For Companies To Move Jobs Overseas

November 2017: Poliquin Voted For Passage Of The House Version Of The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act. In November 2017, Poliquin voted for: “passage of the bill that would revise the federal income tax system by: lowering individual and corporate tax rates; consolidating the current seven tax income rates into four rates; eliminating the deduction for state and local income taxes; limiting certain deductions for property taxes and home mortgages; and creating a new system of taxing U.S. corporations with foreign subsidiaries. Specifically, it would eliminate personal exemptions and would nearly double the standard deduction. It would raise the child tax credit through 2022, repeal the alternative minimum tax, repeal the estate tax in 2025 and reduce the gift tax rate in 2025. It would establish a new top tax rate for pass-through business income and would modify tax credits related to energy production.” The bill passed 227-205. [HR 1, Vote #637, 11/16/17; CQ Floor Votes, 11/16/17]

Poliquin Voted For Considering The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act. In November 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Adoption of the rule (H Res 619) that would provide for House floor consideration of the bill (HR 1) that would revise the federal income tax system by: lowering individual and corporate tax rates; consolidating the current seven tax income rates into four rates; eliminating the deduction for state and local income taxes; limiting certain deductions for property taxes and home mortgages; and creating a new system of taxing U.S. corporations with foreign subsidiaries.” The rule was adopted 235-191. [H Res 619, Vote #633, 11/15/17; CQ, 11/15/17]

Tax Experts Said The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act Increased Incentives For Companies To Move Jobs Overseas. “What happened to the workers in Clinton, tax experts say, will probably happen to more Americans if the Republican tax overhaul becomes law. The legislation fails to eliminate long-standing incentives for companies to move overseas and, in some cases, may even increase them, they say. ‘This bill is potentially more dangerous than our current system,’ said Stephen Shay, a senior lecturer at Harvard Law School and former Treasury Department international tax expert in the Obama administration. ‘It creates a real incentive to shift real activity offshore.’” [Washington Post, 12/15/17]

2015: Poliquin Voted To Block Consideration Of A Bill That Prevented American Companies From Moving Overseas To Dodge Taxes

2015: Poliquin Voted For Blocking Consideration Of A Bill Preventing U.S. Corporations From Moving Overseas To Dodge Paying Taxes. In January 2015, Poliquin voted for: a “Sessions, R-Texas, motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and possibility of amendment) on adoption of the resolution that would set the rules for the 114th Congress.” According to the Democratic Leader’s office, “The Democratic Previous Question would require Congress to vote on the Stop Corporate Expatriation and Invest in America’s Infrastructure Act, which would prevent U.S. corporations from renouncing their Americans citizenship to dodge taxes, and use that new revenue on projects to improve our nation’s infrastructure.” The previous question passed, 239 to 168. A vote against the previous question would have allowed the bill to be considered. [H Res 5, Vote #4, 1/6/15; CQ, 1/6/15; Democratic Leader’s office, 1/6/15]
Poliquin Dragged His Feet In Opposing The TPP, Even After New Balance Announced Its Opposition To The Trade Deal And Madison Paper Industries Laid Off Employees Due To Foreign Competition

Poliquin Voted Against Trade Promotion Authority (TPA) Twice

2015: Poliquin Voted Against Trade Promotion Authority. In June 2015, Poliquin voted against: a “Ryan, R-Wis., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the bill (HR 2146) to allow public safety workers over the age of 50 to make penalty-free withdrawals from retirement plans, with an amendment that would grant Trade Promotion Authority, under which implementing legislation for trade agreements negotiated by the administration would be considered by Congress under expedited procedures and could not be amended.” The motion passed 218 to 208. [HR 2146, Vote #374, 6/18/15; CQ, 6/18/15]

- Trade Promotion Authority Allowed Obama Administration To “Fast-Track” Trans-Pacific Trade Deal.

“The House on Thursday took the first step toward resuscitating the White House’s trade agenda by passing legislation granting President Obama fast-track authority. […] The House vote was 218-208, with 28 Democrats voting for it. This is the second time in a week the House has voted to approve the controversial fast-track bill. On Friday, the House voted 219-211 in favor of fast-track, which would make it easier for Obama to complete a sweeping trans-Pacific trade deal.” [The Hill, 6/18/15]

2015: Poliquin Voted Against Trade Promotion Authority. In June 2015, Poliquin voted against: a “Division III of the Ryan, R-Wis., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the bill that would provide Trade Promotion Authority for trade agreements negotiated by the administration, under which they would be considered by Congress under expedited procedures without amendment, and would extend Trade Adjustment Assistance programs to help displaced U.S. workers. The portion of the Senate amendment covered by the division would authorize special ‘trade promotion authority’ for congressional consideration of legislation to implement U.S. trade agreements, under which such agreements would be considered in Congress under an expedited process and would be subject to simple up-or-down votes so they could not be amended. The expedited authority would apply to trade agreements entered into before July 1, 2018, although the bill would allow for extensions.” The motion was agreed to 219 to 211. [HR 1314, Vote #362; CQ, 6/12/15]

March – April 2016: Poliquin Refused To Say Whether He Planned To Support TPP For Weeks

3/23/16: When Then-Attorney General Janet Mills Asked If He Supported TPP, Poliquin “Demurred And Later Called Her Question ‘Political.’” “The Republican from Maine’s 2nd District was put on the spot about the Trans-Pacific Partnership by Attorney General Janet Mills at a dinner held by the Maine Fair Trade Campaign, a coalition of labor, environmental and other groups that opposes the deal. […] Mills pressed him on that issue when she spoke later, asking him if he supported the deal or not. He demurred and later called her question ‘political.’” [Bangor Daily News, 3/23/16]

- Poliquin Said He Was “Poring Through” The Details Of TPP. “In Wednesday's speech, Poliquin said his staff is still ‘poring through’ the lengthy agreement and he'll vote on it based on the answer to one question: ‘Does it help us or not?’ ‘Then, it becomes a pretty easy decision,’ he said. ‘That's what we're looking at right now.’” [Bangor Daily News, 3/23/16]

April 12, 2016: New Balance Announced Its Opposition To TPP

4/12/16: New Balance Announced Its Opposition To TPP Because It Was Not “Confident That Our Government Will Take The Steps To Ensure Our Continued Domestic Operations.” “The New Balance Athletic Shoe Co. is taking off the gloves with the Obama administration for its support of a 12-nation Asian trade agreement and for what the company says is its failure to keep a Department of Defense promise to buy American-made footwear for the military. […] [New Balance Vice President of Public Affairs Matt] LeBretton said New Balance is ‘coming out against TPP after remaining neutral and quiet for about a year on the issue. This administration has failed to provide a pathway that allows us to be confident that our government will take the steps to ensure our continued domestic operations and the growth in those operations.’” [Central Maine, 4/12/16]

- 4/12/16: Poliquin’s Spokesperson: Poliquin Voted Against Fast-Tracking TPP Because “The Secretive Process Of Negotiating Major Deals Is Not Fair To […] Businesses Like New Balance.” “Poliquin also voted in June, along with Rep. Chellie Pingree, D-1st District, against fast-track legislation for the trade pact, which would make it easier for Obama to negotiate the deal. Collins and King also voted against it. ‘The congressman has often said that the secretive process of negotiating major deals is not fair to the American people and businesses like New Balance,’ Conley said. ‘That’s why he voted, twice, against granting fast track to the president.’ He added that Poliquin ‘believes we need to protect and grow our Second District jobs by making sure our businesses and employers like New Balance are able to compete on a level playing field in the global market place. This fast-track trade legislation did not achieve that goal.’” [Central Maine, 4/12/16]

April 26, 2016: Poliquin Announced He Would Vote Against TPP

4/26/16: Poliquin Announced He Would Vote Against TPP “After Months Of Careful And Thorough Analysis.” “Republican Rep. Bruce Poliquin announced Wednesday he will vote against President Barack Obama's Trans-Pacific Partnership Agreement, further solidifying the Maine congressional delegation's opposition to the measure. Poliquin joins Democratic Rep. Chellie Pingree against the trade deal. Independent Sen. Angus King and Republican Sen. Susan Collins have not taken a firm stance for or against the measure but have voiced serious reservations. ‘After months of careful and thorough analysis, I've concluded that the proposed TPP international trade agreement is not in the best interest of our workers and their families,’ said Poliquin in a video released Wednesday. ‘I don't believe this deal gives us a fair shot and as a result I do not support it.’” [Maine Public, 4/20/16]

May 2016: Maine Democrats Criticized Poliquin For “Trying To Score Political Points After Failing To Present Any Meaningful Opposition To The Proposed Trans-Pacific Partnership”

May 2016: Maine State Sens. John Patrick And Troy Jackson Op-Ed: Poliquin “Is Trying To Score Political Points After Failing To Present Any Meaningful Opposition To The Proposed Trans-Pacific Partnership.” “As the former co-chairs of Maine’s Citizens Trade Policy Commission, we have heard heartbreaking hours of testimony from Maine people whose lives were torn apart by trade deals negotiated in Washington. Now, yet another trade deal is on the verge of approval and, once again, its language was written — in secret — by multinational companies, lobbyists and big-money special interests. We are appalled that Congressman Bruce Poliquin, who represents Maine’s 2nd District, is trying to score political points after failing to present any meaningful opposition to the proposed Trans-Pacific Partnership.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, John Patrick and Troy Jackson Op-Ed, 5/8/16]

- Patrick And Jackson Op-Ed: Poliquin Stayed “Undecided” “For As Long As Possible While He Raked In Campaign Contributions From His Friends At The Big Companies That Will Benefit From It.” “In this case, Maine people have been pleading for years with their representatives to protect Maine interests, not corporate profits. But it took Poliquin until just two weeks ago to come out against the deal. A full year ago, New Balance told Poliquin that TPP might force them to move jobs out of Maine and overseas. Poliquin responded that he was ‘undecided.’ He says that he made his decision after he ‘pored through’ the deal. This is absurd. Anyone who has ever seen a few lines of a trade agreement knows that they are nearly-unintelligible legalese, understandable by only a handful of highly trained lawyers. The truth is, Poliquin needed to stay neutral on the deal for as long as possible while he raked in campaign contributions from his friends at the big companies that will benefit from it. Now that it is election season, Poliquin is singing a different tune.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, John Patrick and Troy Jackson Op-Ed, 5/8/16]
3/25/16 – 4/25/16: Poliquin Accepted At Least $83,658 From Corporate And Industry-Backed PACs.

Maine House Majority Leader Jeff McCabe: “The Day Madison Paper Industries Closed, That Would Have Been A Great Day For Bruce To Come Out And Say He Opposed The Trans Pacific Partnership.” “Maine House Majority Leader Jeff McCabe, a Skowhegan Democrat who has endorsed Cain, said he was disappointed in Poliquin's response when Madison Paper Industries closed in May, one of several paper mills that in the 2nd District that has struggled or closed. ‘To me, the day Madison Paper Industries closed, that would have been a great day for Bruce to come out and say he opposed the Trans Pacific Partnership,’ McCabe said. The proposed international trade agreement would lower tariffs and other barriers to international trade, hurting U.S. businesses like New Balance. ‘Living in the (2nd District), I think right out of the gate, that's something you should oppose. I think we need someone that's willing to make the decision that's best for the district, not hemming and hawing and not committing.’” [Central Maine, 6/25/16]

- 4/12/16: Poliquin Announced Trade Adjustment Assistance For Former Madison Paper Industries Employees Who “Lost Their Jobs As A Result Of Foreign -- And Often Unfair -- Competition.” “Collins, King and Poliquin said in a joint statement Tuesday that the foreign competition played a large role in last month's announcement that the mill will close, putting about 215 employees out of work. ‘This announcement is welcome news for the more than 200 hardworking men and women at Madison Paper Industries who are being displaced,’ the delegation said. ‘TAA plays an essential role in helping Americans across our country who, through no fault of their own, have lost their jobs as a result of foreign -- and often unfair -- competition.’” [Central Maine, 4/12/16]

- McCabe: Poliquin’s Lobbying For Tariffs On Imported Paper Was “Too Late,” Since It Came After Madison Paper Industries Closed. “Poliquin, along with the rest of Maine's congressional delegation, successfully lobbied for high tariffs on imported Canadian paper, but ‘it was too late,’ McCabe said, and the mill announced in March it would close, citing foreign competition as one factor leading to the shutdown.” [Central Maine, 6/25/16]

- McCabe: “Living In The (2nd District), I Think Right Out Of The Gate, [TPP Is] Something You Should Oppose.” “‘To me, the day Madison Paper Industries closed, that would have been a great day for Bruce to come out and say he opposed the Trans Pacific Partnership,’ McCabe said. The proposed international trade agreement would lower tariffs and other barriers to international trade, hurting U.S. businesses like New Balance. ‘Living in the (2nd District), I think right out of the gate, that's something you should oppose. I think we need someone that's willing to make the decision that's best for the district, not hemming and hawing and not committing.’” [Central Maine, 6/25/16]

June – August 2016: Poliquin Claimed He “Came Out Very Clear” Against TPP

June 2016: Poliquin Claimed He “Came Out Very Clear” Against TPP. “At the end of April, Poliquin announced his opposition to the trade agreement, saying it took him time to go through its 1,100 pages and come to a conclusion. ‘This is a huge agreement -- about 1,100 pages -- and we determined it would not be helpful for our district,’ Poliquin said. ‘When that's the case, I came out very clear. If it comes to the floor, I will not vote for it.’” [Central Maine, 6/25/16]

August 2016: Poliquin On TPP: “As I Have Said Time And Time Again, This Massive And Secretive Trade Deal Is Bad For Maine Workers And I Cannot And Will Not Support It.” “Maine's 2nd District Congressman, Bruce Poliquin, released the following statement in response to the Obama Administration's announcement today signaling its intention to force the Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) international trade deal through Congress during the lame-duck period: ‘As I have said time and time again, this massive and secretive trade deal is bad for Maine workers and I cannot and will not support it,’ said Congressman Poliquin. ‘Once again, powerful Washington special interest groups, party elites, and the Obama Administration are attempting to push this secretive deal through Congress, but that doesn’t matter to me.’” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 8/12/16]

November 2016: Poliquin Touted His Opposition To The TPP In A Campaign Press Release: “I Stand With Maine’s Families, Voting Twice Against Granting The President ‘Fast-Track’ And Opposing The TPP.” “Congressman Poliquin stands up for Maine’s families and job creators and opposes massive, unfair and bureaucratic trade deals—like the TPP—that are harmful to Maine. Congressman Poliquin bucked the Republican establishment and voted, twice, against granting President Obama ‘fast-track’ trade authority. The Congressman also defied the powerful Washington establishment and lobbying interests and firmly opposes the proposed Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) international trade agreement, a massive trade deal brokered behind closed doors by Washington political elites. ‘I don’t work for the Republican Party and I certainly don’t work for Washington lobbyists,’ said Congressman Poliquin. ‘I work for the families of our 2nd District. ‘We need fair trade, not enormous, secret trade deals that hurt Maine workers, job creators and families. That is why I stand with Maine’s families, voting twice against granting the President ‘fast-track’ and opposing the TPP.’” [Poliquin for Congress, Press Release, 11/10/16]

April 2018: Poliquin Said He Would “Continue To Study Any Agreement” After Trump Considered Rejoining The TPP

April 2018: Poliquin Said He Would “Continue To Study Any Agreement” After Trump Proposed Rejoining The TPP. “Congressman Bruce Poliquin (ME-02) released the following statement today after reports that President Donald Trump is considering taking action for the United States to reenter the proposed Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) international trade deal: ‘I’ve expressed my strong concern that a trade deal like the TPP could harm Maine, especially our job creators like our mills and New Balance, which employs hundreds of Mainers at multiple locations around our State,’ said Congressman Poliquin. ‘I don’t care if this is being proposed by a President Obama, as he did during his term, or now potentially by a President Trump. I will continue to study any agreement to ensure that Maine jobs, our workers, and our families are not harmed. I will oppose any foreign trade deal which, on balance, harms Maine workers.’” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 4/12/18]

Poliquin Risked The Future Of The Export-Import Bank, Which Supported 80 General Electric Jobs In Maine, By Criticizing It For Months And Repeatedly Blocking Its Reauthorization

“Never Do Business With A Bank Like This”

June 2015: Poliquin Said He Would “Never Do Business With A Bank Like This” The Export-Import Bank. “And there are about four things that I'm guessing that all of us here in this room, including you folks at the table agree on, number one, is that Ex-Im does pick winners and losers. [...] You know when you talk about the fraud, the corruption and you talk about, you know, member of Congress in jail down in Louisiana because he had $90,000 in his freezer as a result of a bribe related to the bank, so there's been corruption and gross mismanagement. Nobody knows what the result is going to be of this discussion. I know that in my experience in the private sector where I came from and as a business owner currently, I would never do business with a bank like this. No. I'm not criticizing those who have chosen to do that, but there's reputational risk and if you're dealing with folks that have this sort of behavior, who knows what they're going to -- going to be doing.” [House Financial Services Committee Hearing, 6/3/15]

June 2015: Poliquin Wrote The Export-Import Bank’s Reauthorization Depended On “The Facts” Which Had “Thus Far Not Been Impressive,” Citing A “Never-Ending List Of Fraud And Corruption Charges.” “Recently, there was a bank employee, Johnny Gutierrez, who accepted tens of thousands of dollars in exchange for the bank’s assistance. In addition, there is a Congressman from Louisiana who is in jail, right now, on bribery charges. Authorities found $90,000 of cash in his freezer that was associated with lending practices at the Bank. These are just a few of the never-ending list of fraud and corruption charges that surround the Export-Import Bank. With the only way to hold the Export-Import Bank accountable is by the power to re-authorize their charter, we must have all the facts. The facts thus far have not been impressive.” [Maine Wire, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 6/9/15]

September 2015: Poliquin Called The Export-Import Bank A Hotbed For Fraud And “Corporate Welfare.” “Poliquin fired back, labeling the bank a hotbed for fraud and ‘corporate welfare.’ He noted in a statement that he had not voted to defund the Export-Import Bank and that he would consider reauthorizing federal funding for the bank ‘once corruption has been rooted out.’” [Bangor Daily News, 9/15/15]

September 2015: General Electric Announced Threatened To Ship 80 Maine Jobs To France If Export-Import Bank Was Not Reauthorized. “No Maine jobs have been lost, but GE said 80 jobs making power turbine components at its plant in Bangor could be moved to France because the company no longer has access to funding from the Export-Import Bank, which underwrites loans that help foreign purchasers buy American goods.” [Bangor Daily News, 9/15/15]

- Poliquin Voted For Blocking Consideration Of Renewing The Export-Import Bank. [H Res 388, Vote #483, 7/29/15; Democratic Leader – Previous Questions, 7/29/15]
Poliquin Voted Against Brining A Bill To Reauthorize The Export-Import Bank To The Floor. In October 2015, Poliquin voted against a “motion to discharge from the House Rules Committee and bring to the House floor the rule (H Res 450) that would provide for House floor consideration of the bill (HR 597) that would reauthorize the Export-Import Bank through fiscal 2019.” The motion carried 246-177. [HR 597, Vote #569, 10/23/15; CQ 10/23/15]

Poliquin Voted For Blocking Consideration Of Reauthorizing The Export-Import Bank. In October 2015, Poliquin voted for to block consideration of a vote to reauthorize of the Export-Import Bank. The previous question carried, 237-180. A vote against the previous question was to force the vote on reauthorizing the Export-Import Bank. [H RES 449, Vote #529, 10/1/15; Democratic Leader, Previous Questions, 10/1/15]

Poliquin Voted For Blocking Reauthorization Of The Ex-Im Bank. In September 2015, Poliquin voted fora motion to block consideration of a vote to “re-authorize the Export-Import Bank, a self-funded agency that provides certainty and support to American businesses of all sizes that are eager to compete in the global market.” The previous question carried, 243-183. A vote against the previous question would call for an immediate vote to re-authorize the Ex-Im Bank. [H Res 421, Vote #502, 9/17/15; Democratic Leader – Previous Questions, 9/17/15]

Poliquin Voted For Blocking Consideration Export-Import Bank Reauthorization. In September 2015, Poliquin voted for blocking consideration of a vote to reauthorize the Export-Import Bank. The previous question carried, 238-179. A vote against the previous question was to force the vote on Export Import Bank Reauthorization. [HR 420, Vote #497, 9/17/15; Congressional Record, 9/17/15]

Poliquin Voted For Blocking Consideration Of Renewing The Export-Import Bank. In July 2015, Poliquin voted for to block consideration of an “amendment to reauthorize the Export-Import Bank.” The previous question carried, 242-180. A vote against the previous question was to force the vote on reauthorization of the Export-Import Bank. [H Res 388, Vote #483, 7/29/15; Democratic Leader – Previous Questions, 7/29/15]

October 2015: Poliquin Voted To Reauthorize The Export-Import Bank

October 2015: Poliquin Voted To Reauthorize The Export-Import Bank. In October 2015, Poliquin voted for the “Reform Exports and Expand the American Economy Act,” which provided legislation to reauthorize the Export-Import Bank. “The House Tuesday approved the reauthorization of the U.S. Export-Import Bank, with a majority of Republicans joining almost all Democrats to demonstrate a broad bipartisan coalition to revive the export-finance agency. … But Tuesday’s vote showed that an aggressive campaign by conservative critics to close the bank had done little over the last three years to turn GOP lawmakers away from supporting the bank. The vote marked a big victory for business groups that had fought to secure its revival. The bank was unable to process new business this summer after its charter expired. GOP leaders bottled up legislation that would have reauthorized the agency’s charter with some changes.” The bill passed 313 – 118. [HR 597, Vote #576, 10/27/15; Wall Street Journal, 10/27/15]

- Poliquin Stated He Voted For Export-Import Bank Because Reauthorization Contained “Much Needed Reforms.” “As I have often said, I will do anything and everything to gain and secure jobs. … That’s why I voted to reauthorize the Export-Import Bank, with much needed reforms, so we can continue to attract and secure jobs. These reforms include establishing an Office of Ethics, an increase in loss reserves so that taxpayers are less on the hook, an independent audit of the Bank’s portfolio and more.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin Official Press Release, 10/27/15]

Bangor Daily News Editorial Headline: “Poliquin Ultimately Voted The Right Way – After Risking Ex-Im Bank's Future.” “Poliquin ultimately voted the right way, but he was a willing participant in Republican efforts to undermine the Ex-Im Bank’s credibility and make its normally apolitical reauthorization a political spectacle. Such efforts have put the bank’s future — and by extension, its ability to help U.S. exporters of all sizes — in doubt.” [Bangor Daily News, Editorial Board, 11/1/15]

Bangor Daily News Editorial Board: Poliquin Had “The Chance To Advocate For A Simple Policy Measure Directly Connected To” His District’s Job Creation “And He Blew It.” “It’s not every day a congressman has the chance to advocate for a simple policy measure directly connected to something important to any congressman: the preservation of jobs in his district. But U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin had that chance, and he blew it. On Tuesday night, the House voted overwhelmingly in favor of renewing the expired charter of the Export-Import Bank, the country’s official export credit agency, until 2019. Poliquin joined a majority of his fellow House Republicans and all but one Democrat in voting for the charter’s renewal. But the path Poliquin took to that final ‘yes’ vote is a puzzling one that highlights a dangerous balancing act between his commitment to a conservative Republican agenda and the needs of his own district.” [Bangor Daily News, Editorial Board, 11/1/15]

November 2015: Poliquin Called The Bangor Daily News’ Editorial “Outrageous,” And Said He “Successfully Pushed For New Reforms At The Bank, And Then Voted To Reauthorize It”

November 2015: In An Op-Ed, Poliquin Called The Bangor Daily News’ Editorial “Untrue And Outrageous.” “Recently, the editorial board of this newspaper falsely insinuated that I, as one of 435 members of Congress, risked the entire future of the federal government’s Export-Import Bank. This is untrue and outrageous.” [Bangor Daily News, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 11/3/15]

Poliquin Claimed He “Help[ed] End The Long-Time Fraud, Corruption And Inside Dealings At The Export-Import Bank,” “Successfully Pushed For New Reforms At The Bank, And Then Voted To Reauthorize It.” “In Congress, I have stepped up to hold bureaucrats and their departments and agencies accountable. That includes calling out and helping end the long-time fraud, corruption and inside dealings at the Export-Import Bank. Government can create the environment for a stronger economy and more jobs here in Maine and across America without tolerating corruption at taxpayer expense. That’s why I successfully pushed for new reforms at the bank, and then voted to reauthorize it. Going forward, the bank will be stronger and operate with more integrity and less risk to taxpayers.” [Bangor Daily News, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 11/3/15]

Minutes From A March 2015 New England Council Meeting Indicated Poliquin Was A “Lean No” On Export-Import Bank Reauthorization; The Notes Were Removed From The Council's Website

March 2015: New England Council Meeting Minutes Indicated Poliquin Was A “Lean No” On Export-Import Bank Reauthorization. “But the setting -- in the parking lot of the General Electric plant in Bangor -- is notable, because that plant was at the heart of a debate over reauthorization of the federal Export-Import Bank. […] Poliquin had been talking tough on the bank before that. In July 2015, MPBN reported that he was the only member of Maine's congressional delegation to oppose reauthorization. Notes from a March meeting with the New England Council said he was a ‘lean no’ on reauthorization.” [Bangor Daily News, 8/10/16]

Poliquin’s Spokesperson Denied That The Meeting Notes, Which Were Later Deleted From New England Council’s Website, Reflected Poliquin’s Position. “(Later, Poliquin's spokesman denied that those items reflected his stance, and the meeting notes disappeared from the New England Council's website.)” [Bangor Daily News, 8/10/16]

Poliquin Touted His Purported Success In Keeping The Madison Paper Industries Mill Open In A 2018 Letter Sent To Constituents, But The Mill Closed In 2016, Costing More Than 200 Jobs
9/20/18: Poliquin Spent Taxpayer Funds To Send A Letter To Hundreds Of Constituents Touting His Contributions To Keeping Madison Paper Industries Mill Open. “The congressional office of U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin erroneously sent a letter last month to hundreds of constituents in Maine’s 2nd District implying that the now-shuttered Madison Paper Industries mill is still open and was helped by a 2015 trade decision the Republican congressman supported. The taxpayer-funded letter, dated Sept. 20 of this year, cited an International Trade Commission ruling in 2015 allowing for continued duties on Canadian paper imports as key in ‘saving more than 200 jobs at Madison Paper and keeping the facility operating and producing their quality product.’” [Portland Press Herald, 10/12/18]

Madison Paper Industries Mill Closed In May 2016, Laying Off More Than 200 People. “In fact, the Somerset County mill closed in May 2016, laying off about 215 people, increasing property taxes in Madison and adding to the loss of paper industry jobs in Maine. The letter, which is signed by Poliquin and comes weeks before he is up for re-election, makes no mention of the mill closure or the job losses.” [Portland Press Herald, 10/12/18]

Poliquin’s Spokesperson Stated The Letter Was Sent Accidentally. “‘This constituent mailing was in fact sent in error,’ said Brendan Conley, a spokesman for Poliquin, in an email. ‘Congressman Poliquin and our staff have done a substantial amount of work to help the mill in both 2015 — including winning the ITC case at the time — and after the mill closed that year and since to assist former workers with TAA benefits and other casework as needed. We apologize for this error.'” [Portland Press Herald, 10/12/18]

Golden: Poliquin “Used Taxpayer Dollars To Send Out A Poorly Disguised Campaign Mail Piece” And Was “Wrong To Brag About Helping Save Jobs At A Mill That Closed Under His Watch.” “Golden, the Democrat running against Poliquin, said in a statement Wednesday that it appeared his rival ‘has used taxpayer dollars to send out a poorly disguised campaign mail piece.’ ‘More significantly, Poliquin takes credit for saving jobs at the Madison mill, which closed more than two years ago,’ Golden said. ‘Bruce Poliquin is wrong to brag about helping save jobs at a mill that closed under his watch. It’s of little comfort to the workers who lost their jobs, the people of the 2nd District, and is just more evidence the Congressman is completely out of touch with our community.’” [Portland Press Herald, 10/12/18]

Poliquin Is Wrong For Maine’s Shipyard Workers

Poliquin “Helped Build” New York-Based Avatar Investors Associates Corp, Which Handled $5 Billion In Pensions Funds For “Bath Iron Works And International Paper, Among Others.” “Poliquin lists his management skills at the top of his qualifications to be the state’s chief executive. After an academic career at Phillips Academy followed by an economics degree from Harvard University, Poliquin helped build a New York City-based asset management firm called Avatar Investors Associates Corp., which handled $5 billion in worker pension funds for Bath Iron Works and International Paper, among others, according to the campaign’s website.” [Bangor Daily News, 5/17/10]

Poliquin Touted His Experience Managing Bath Iron Works Pensions At Avatar Associates While Campaigning, Despite A 1993 Press Release Stating He Had “Never Been In The Investment Process”

2016: Poliquin’s Campaign Touted His Management Of Bath Iron Works Pensions “A Number Of Times.” “Since he jumped into politics with an unsuccessful gubernatorial race in 2010, Bruce Poliquin hasn’t hesitated to tell voters that he prospered on Wall Street. Now a congressman fighting to keep his job in a tight 2nd District race against Democrat Emily Cain, Poliquin has mentioned his business background to make the case that he has the financial experience and willingness to work hard that Mainers need from their political leaders. One of the things he’s touted a number of times is that he successfully managed pensions at Bath Iron Works during his years in the world of finance.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/2/16]

November 2016: The Lewiston Sun Journal Quoted A 1993 Avatar Associates Press Release In Which Poliquin Said, “I've Never Been Involved In The Investment Process.” “One of the things he's touted a number of times is that he successfully managed pensions at Bath Iron Works during his years in the world of finance. But some say that's misleading. In 1993, a year after his wife died, Poliquin left his 13-year job at Avatar Associates, where he served as vice president for client services. He said he had to put his son first and couldn't be both a mother and father while holding such a demanding job. In a news release from Avatar announcing the move that year, overlooked since the time, Poliquin sought to allay any worries that his departure would have an impact on the company's work. ‘I've never been involved in the investment process so this will have zero effect on the investment management for clients,’ he said in a sweeping statement that includes the pension management Avatar carried out for employees at the Bath shipyard.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/2/16]

- Poliquin Spokesperson: Poliquin “Has Never Been A Wall Street Banker” And “Helped Manage The Process, Not Invest The Funds.” “Michael Byerly, Poliquin's campaign spokesman, said Wednesday the congressman's words in 1993 were exactly right. ‘Bruce Poliquin has never been a Wall Street banker,’ Byerly said. ‘Never. We have said this over and over and over again.’ […] As Byerly put it, Poliquin ‘is not part of the Wall Street soup.’ ‘Congressman Poliquin helped manage the process, not invest the funds,’ Byerly said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/2/16]

- Ralph Hilton, Retired Bath Iron Works Union Member: Poliquin “Managed Our Pensions In A Way To Rob Us Of A Fair Retirement.” “What he doesn’t mention is that he managed our pensions in a way to rob us of a fair retirement. Poliquin’s management meant pathetic contributions to Bath Iron Works’ employees, and no contributions at all to those of us who were hourly. In 1994, the union said ‘Enough,’ and we switched to a new plan. Here’s the difference: For my 12 years of work under the ‘Poliquin plan,’ I get $160 a month — barely enough to cover Medicare Part B. For my 19 years under the new plan, I get nearly 10 times the amount.” [Ralph Hilton Op-Ed, Bangor Daily News, 10/9/16]
- Hilton said Bath Iron Works’ new pension plan paid him “nearly 10 times the amount” he received monthly under the “Poliquin plan.” “In 1994, the union said ‘Enough,’ and we switched to a new plan. Here’s the difference: For my 12 years of work under the ‘Poliquin plan,’ I get $160 a month — barely enough to cover Medicare Part B. For my 19 years under the new plan, I get nearly 10 times the amount.” [Ralph Hilton Op-Ed, Bangor Daily News, 10/9/16]

- Glenn Burroughs, Bath Iron Works Employee Of 38 Years: Poliquin “Made Millions For Himself At Our Expense,” Which “He Used To Fund His Political Career.” “Working from Wall Street, Poliquin created a pension system that denied workers a good retirement. He boosted profits for the company and made millions for himself at our expense. He made enormous amounts of money — money he used to fund his political career. A lot of my friends received pensions that were barely enough to live on. During a recent visit to Bath, Poliquin dripped compliments about ‘the hardworking spirit of Maine’ and the ‘essential role’ BIW plays in supporting ‘America’s might around the world.’ He went on and on about the importance of ‘this great shipyard’ to Maine’s economy and U.S. military security. All of those things are true. We’re proud of that work. But for Poliquin to take credit for our work when he himself drove our pension into the ground takes a lot of nerve.” [Glenn Burroughs Op-Ed, Central Maine, 11/2/16]

- Burroughs: “Poliquin’s Plan Meant Poverty For The ‘Hard-Working’ Families He Loves To Praise” With Lower Pension Compensation. “The difference in pension compensation before and after Poliquin is substantial. Some workers are now getting more than ten times the amount they would have received under Poliquin’s plan. Poliquin’s plan meant poverty for the ‘hard-working’ families he loves to praise.” [Glenn Burroughs Op-Ed, Central Maine, 11/2/16]

May 2005: The Stinson Seafood Cannery In Bath, Maine Closed. “It will take investigators at least another day to determine what caused Thursday’s huge fire at the closed Stinson Seafood cannery and where it started. […] Giroux said he made the point that the city of Bath wants to preserve the Stinson site as its last piece of working waterfront. He said the city would also like to replace the jobs lost when Stinson closed on May 3, 2005, as well as jobs that have been eliminated over the years at Bath Iron Works.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/6/06]

And, as explained above, the purchase was to acquire its land only. My company was the only entity to make a serious offer during the two years the cannery was on the market.” [Letter, Bruce Poliquin to Board of Assessment Review, 3/21/07; Sagadahoc County Registry of Deeds, Instrument # 1892-0250, recorded 7/25/01, accessed 9/30/21]

In a March 2006 letter to the Bath City Council and Planning Board, Poliquin wrote, “…I purchased the former Stinson Cannery property on March 20. I am confident that the majority of Bath residents believe, as do I, that an excellent long-term use of the abandoned industrial site is residential housing and a marina. Short-term, however, I am concerned about owning the vacant and increasingly dangerous industrial facility in the dense North End neighborhood.” [Letter, Bruce Poliquin to Bath City Council and Planning Board, 3/29/06]

March 2006: The City Of Bath Rejected Poliquin’s Request To Rezone The Site Of The Stinson Cannery For A Townhouse Development. “The fire occurred six weeks after the city denied an application to rezone the property for a townhouse development. The owner, Bruce Poliquin, told Justice Andrew Horton that the sequence of events left him in the awkward position of having to defend his innocence. ‘I was questioned a number of times, ‘Bruce, did you set this fire?’ That hurt a bit, to be honest with you,’ Poliquin said. Horton said there was not a ‘scintilla’ of evidence to suggest that Poliquin had anything to do with setting the fire.” [Associated Press, 3/31/07]

• Stinson Cannery Site Was Zoned For “Marine Business.” In a May 2007 memorandum, the Bath Assistant City Manager wrote, “The site is currently zoned for Marine Business, which allows for indoor manufacturing. The current zoning is very much in compliance with the comprehensive plan. It is immediately adjacent to the sewage treatment plant and makes a good buffer between the plant and residential areas. It is also the last deep water working waterfront site left for commercial development in Bath.” [Memorandum, Assistant City Manager Paul Mateosian to Bath City Council, 5/30/07]

May 2006: Stinson Cannery Was Destroyed Due To Arson; A Judge Stated Poliquin Was Not Involved In The Arson

5/4/06: Stinson Cannery Burned Down Due To Arson. “A Bath man found guilty of setting the largest fire in the city’s history, a blaze last spring that destroyed the former Stinson Cannery, is headed to prison for six years after showing no remorse for what he had done. He also was ordered to pay a total of $20,000 in restitution to a family whose home sustained heat damage and to Bath and 11 other communities that fought the May 4 fire at the former sardine cannery along the Kennebec River.” [Associated Press, 3/31/07]

A Judge Said There Was Not A “Scintilla” Of Evidence That Poliquin Was Involved In The Arson. “The fire occurred six weeks after the city denied an application to rezone the property for a townhouse development. The owner, Bruce Poliquin, told Justice Andrew Horton that the sequence of events left him in the awkward position of having to defend his innocence. ‘I was questioned a number of times, ‘Bruce, did you set this fire?’ That hurt a bit, to be honest with you,’ Poliquin said. Dolliver, A 23-Year-Old Bath Resident, Was Arrested And Charged With The Stinson Cannery Arson. “After three months and 100 interviews, authorities announced Monday that they have charged a local man with deliberately setting the fire that destroyed the former Stinson Seafood cannery on the Bath waterfront. May 2007: Poliquin Tried Again To Rezone The Former Site Of The Stinson Cannery For Residential Purposes, Which Municipal Leadership Rejected

May 2007: Poliquin Applied To Rezone The Former Site Of The Stinson Cannery As Mixed Use To Develop Townhouses And Marine Business. “Fourteen months after the city told him that his request for a zoning change had been denied, Poliquin has returned, seeking the permission he needs to revive the former Stinson Seafood cannery property. Poliquin is scheduled to go before the city's Planning Board on May 15 with a request to rezone the 5.6-acre Bowery Street property, where an arson fire in May 2006 destroyed the buildings. […] In the application, Poliquin states that he wants to preserve a 50-foot strip of land along the Kennebec River as marine business - its current zoning use - while at the same time asking for city approval to rezone the remaining land from marine business to a mixed-use zone that would allow residential development as well as light commercial uses. Poliquin said if the city approves his request, he would build a 100-slip marina, 40 townhouse condominiums, a restaurant and possibly a small grocery store on the site.” [Portland Press Herald, 4/30/07]

May 2007: Municipal Leadership Supported Keeping The Stinson Cannery Property As A Commercial Area, Rather Than Rezoning It For Housing

Bath’s Assistant City Manager Envisioned The Stinson Site As Component For Building An “Innovative Composite Manufacturing Cluster.” In a May 2007 memorandum, the Bath Assistant City Manager wrote, “As the region braces for the closure of the Brunswick Naval Air Station, it is widely recognized that jump-starting the region’s economy with new commercial development and the accompanying good paying jobs is of critical importance. … Bath can do its part by … holding the line and not converting the Stinson site from commercial to residential. … An exciting innovative composite manufacturing cluster is forming in the region, we are part of it, and the Stinson site is a key component to the success of this cluster.” [Memorandum, Assistant City Manager Paul Mateosian to Bath City Council, 5/30/07]

• Bath’s Assistant City Manager Stated It Did Not Make Sense To Re-Zone The Stinson Site For Residential Use. In a May 2007 memorandum, the Bath Assistant City Manager wrote, “It does not make sense to rezone Stinson to make competing residential townhouse development away from the downtown.” [Memorandum, Assistant City Manager Paul Mateosian to Bath City Council, 5/30/07]

The Brunswick Economic Development Department Advocated Keeping The Stinson Site As A Commercial Property Rather Than A Housing Project. In a letter to the Bath Assistant City Manager from a representative from the Brunswick Economic Development Department, it stated, “This memo is in support of the continued use of the Stinson’s Cannery property as a commercial property as opposed to a housing project. This office is very much in support of the commercial operation and the composite manufacturing activity that it can generate. … We hope that you consider keeping your present zoning. We would be glad to identify boat builders that have interest in such lots.” [Letter, Brunswick Economic Development Department, Mathew Eddy to Paul Mateosian, 5/08/07]

7/20/21: Poliquin Requested A Pre-Application Workshop To Rezone The Former Stinson Cannery Site For Residential Use At A Bath Planning Board Meeting. “New Business Item 1 Request for Pre-Application Workshop – 65 Bowery Street (Map 20, Lot 341); Dirigo Holdings, LLC, applicant. Mr. Averill reviewed the request to begin a visioning process on the site located at 65 Bowery Street as the applicant is requesting feedback on property development. The property is currently in the C5 Marine Business Zoning District. The proposed project would require a land use map amendment to allow the property to join the abutting R5 Waterfront Activity Zoning District. Mr. Poliquin spoke to the tax revenue benefits to the City, as well as the benefits of the location which is currently surrounded by dense neighborhoods. Mr. Poliquin reviewed the lack of success in marketing the property under the current zoning having invested 10 years into marketing the property, citing reasons including the liability of an industrial business amid residential properties and the narrow, residential streets.” [Bath Planning Board, Meeting Minutes, 7/20/21]

Keeping these costs under 30% of income allows the household enough money to cover other expenses, such as healthcare, food, education, and transportation. A household spending more than 30% of its income on housing is considered to be cost burdened.” [Maine State Housing Authority, August 2016]
July 2021: Poliquin’s Architect And A Bath Planning Board Member Who Was A Director Of Poliquin’s Condominium Unit Owners’ Association Board Said Affordable Housing Would Not Be Financially Feasible To Develop

[…] Mr. Hopkinson opened the floor to public comment. Mr. Averill reviewed the procedure for public comment using the Zoom conferencing platform. Roo Dunn of Green Street asked the applicant to envision looking down Bowery Street, stating the importance of buy-in from abutting property owners. Mr. Dunn then asked if affordable housing should be a consideration. Mr. Matero noted that the development cost does not lend itself to affordable housing; then countered with the numerous amenities that will be available to the public.” [Bath Planning Board, Meeting Minutes, 7/20/21]

James Hopkinson Said The Planning Board Would Not Be Able To Designate A Portion Of The Project For Affordable Housing And That Affordable Housing Would Not Be Financially Feasible At The Site. “William Fritzmeier of Somerset Place spoke to Ms. Blanco’s assessment of the need for affordable housing and asked if the Planning Board were allowed to dictate a percentage of the project to be designated as affordable housing. Mr. Hopkinson stated that the Board does not have the ability to dictate that the developer allow for affordable housing, further noting that the cost of development does not support affordable housing.” [Bath Planning Board, Meeting Minutes, 7/20/21]

July 2021: Bath Planning Board Members Stated Their Preference For Affordable Housing And Rentals Over Poliquin’s Proposed “Pricey Condominiums”

Bath Planning Board Members Said They Would Prefer To Zone For More Housing Units Than Poliquin Proposed, Or For Affordable Housing, Rather Than “Pricey Condominiums.” “While planning board members said they aren’t opposed to the property, now somewhat of an eyesore in the city, being redeveloped, they weren’t entirely on-board with the preliminary designs. Some board members said they’d prefer more than 20 housing units while others didn’t like the idea of pricey condominiums being added to the neighborhood.” [Central Maine, 7/22/21]

Bath Planning Board Member Haley Blanco: “I Have Reservations About Condos Because I Feel The Need In Bath Are Rental Units.” “I have reservations about condos because I feel the need in Bath are rental units,’ said board member Haley Blanco. ‘There are a lot of people who work at BIW [Bath Iron Works] or elsewhere that don’t qualify to buy a house. I see a need for rental units to house people who don’t know if they’re going to be here long-term or are here at BIW for a short time.’” [Central Maine, 7/22/21]
July 2021: Bath Residents Raised Concerns About The Development's Potential Harm To Safety, Traffic, And Osprey Habitats

A Neighbor Of The Former Stinson Cannery Site Said Development Would Add Traffic And Make The Area Less Safe; Poliquin Responded By Speaking “To The Inherent Dangers Of The Vacant Lot.” “Michael Tisack of Bowery Street introduced himself as an abutting property owner; then expressed appreciation for the Board’s comments regarding neighborhood impact of the project. Mr. Tisack then stressed the importance of sidewalks in improving pedestrian access throughout the neighborhood, testifying that he feels Bowery Street in today’s condition could be safer. Mr. Poliquin spoke to the initial traffic assessment that has been completed and expressed sensitivity to pedestrian concerns, noting that previous traffic from the cannery produced higher traffic levels than are projected with the proposed development. Mr. Poliquin then spoke to the inherent dangers of the vacant lot, noting that development would reduce other activities taking place at the site. Mr. Tisack countered that developing the site would add additional traffic compared to the current environment.” [Bath Planning Board, Meeting Minutes, 7/20/21]

In Response To A Bath Resident’s Concern For An Osprey Habitat On The Site, Poliquin Said He Intended To “Relocate” An Osprey Nest During Construction Of The Development. “Marie Louise Dupuis of Somerset Place voice concern for the active osprey nest on the site. Bruce Poliquin reviewed conversations with the DEP wherein the osprey nest may be moved once the ospreys have migrated for the season. Mr. Poliquin stated that his intent is to relocate the habitat closer to the water at the northeastern section of the property.” [Bath Planning Board, Meeting Minutes, 7/20/21]

2018: Poliquin Voted To Authorize Billions In Funding For Trump’s Border Wall, Which Risked $200 Million For Vital Improvement Projects At Maine’s Portsmouth Naval Shipyards

December 2018: Poliquin Voted To Authorize $5.7 Billion For Building Trump’s Border Wall, Which He Called “The Greatest Christmas Gift For America” Though It Risked A Government Shutdown

In December 2018, Poliquin voted for “Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the House amendment to the Senate amendment to the bill, with a further House amendment. The bill is the legislative vehicle for a short-term continuing resolution that would fund the government through Feb. 8, 2019. It would also authorize $5.7 billion for construction of a border wall on the U.S.-Mexico border, as well as an estimated $7.8 billion in emergency disaster relief funding.” The bill passed by a vote of 217 – 185. - Eight Republicans Joined All 177 Voting Democrats To Oppose The Measure. “The House of Representatives Thursday approved a bill that would fund most of the federal government through early February -- and provides $5.7 billion for President Trump's long-promised border wall, increasing the chances of a partial government shutdown later this week. Eight Republicans joined all 177 voting Democrats to oppose the measure, which passed 217-185. The bill now goes to the Senate, where it is certain to fall short of the 60 votes needed for passage since the chamber's 49 Democrats are against funding the wall.” [Fox News, 12/20/18]

- Voting Yes On Wall Funding, Which Was “Certain To Fall Short” Of Senate Passage, Made It More Likely That A Partial Government Shutdown Would Occur. “The bill now goes to the Senate, where it is certain to fall short of the 60 votes needed for passage since the chamber's 49 Democrats are against funding the wall. That, in turn, makes it more likely that parts of the federal government, including nine of 15 Cabinet-level departments and dozens of agencies, will cease operations at midnight Friday.” [Fox News, 12/20/18]
December 2018: Poliquin Called Trump’s Border Wall “The Greatest Christmas Gift For America.” “In his last days in the U.S. House, U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin has been pressing to help President Donald Trump get the wall he wants along the country’s border with Mexico. ‘The greatest Christmas gift for America is securing our borders,’ the two-term, lame duck lawmaker said. He insisted that drugs coming across the border are hurting rural Maine, though experts have said most of the opioids that have been the focus of attention are coming from China. ‘We have one heck of a problem on our southwest border with Mexico: in California, New Mexico, and Arizona,’ Poliquin said. ‘We have a very dangerous and very unhealthy situation just on the other side of the fence, in particular now, with Mexico.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 12/21/18]

February 2019: Trump Declared A National Emergency At The Southern Border, Which Allowed Him To Allocate $3.6 Billion From Military Construction Projects To Construct A Border Wall. “Trump declared a national emergency at the Mexican boundary last month after Congress limited him to just under $1.4 billion to build border barriers. That could allow him to siphon $3.6 billion from military construction projects to fulfill his 2016 campaign promise for a border wall. The 21-page Defense Department list released Monday targets projects around the world.” [Concord Monitor, 3/19/19]

March 2019: The Department Of Defense Released A List Of Projects That Could Be Cut To Fund Trump’s Border Wall, Including $200 Million For Projects To Improve Portsmouth Naval Shipyard. “The Defense Department’s list of projects that could be cut to fund President Donald Trump’s wall at the southern border includes more than $200 million of projects that are aimed at making Portsmouth Naval Shipyard more efficient in refueling and overhauling nuclear-powered submarines. Projects that could be slashed include $110 million for dry dock improvements; $62 million for a paint, blast and rubber facility; and $40 million for an extended crane rail.” [Concord Monitor, 3/19/19]

- The Portsmouth Naval Shipyard Was Located In The Piscataqua River Between Maine And New Hampshire. “The shipyard, which opened in 1800, is located on Seavey Island in the Piscataqua River, which separates Maine and New Hampshire.” [Concord Monitor, 3/19/19]

$110 Million For A Dry Dock, Which Would Allow The Shipyard To Accept Newer Submarines After Old Models Were Scheduled To Be Phased Out, Was On The Chopping Block For Trump’s Border Wall. “Critical work on Dry Dock 1 at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard could be on the chopping block along with several other projects at the yard in order to pay for President Donald Trump’s border wall, according to a new list compiled by the Department of Defense. Funding could be slashed for the $110 million superflood basin for Dry Dock 1; a $62 million paint, blast and rubber facility; $42 million for an extended portal crane rail; and a $12 million warehouse. According to the DOD list, some $6.8 billion in projects already approved by Congress in fiscal year 2019 alone are also in jeopardy. […] The upgrades to Dry Dock 1 are crucial in order for the shipyard to meet future demands, shipyard commander Capt. David Hunt told the Herald in a 2018 interview. The work will allow the dry dock to accept the newer Virginia Class submarines. Currently, it can only accept the older Los Angeles Class subs, which will be phased out by 2029. Design work for the superflood basin is underway, preparing for the $109 million basin project.” [Seacoast Online, 3/18/19]

- Chair Of The Seacoast Shipyard Association JJ Joyal Said Funding For A Dry Dock At Portsmouth Naval Shipyard “Will Enable The Shipyard To Continue For The Next 100 Years.” “Critical work on Dry Dock 1 at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard could be on the chopping block along with several other projects at the yard in order to pay for President Donald Trump’s border wall, according to a new list compiled by the Department of Defense. […]This most recent list of the DOD now puts that superflood basin in question. And that is ‘unfortunate,’ said JJ Joyal, a retired longtime shipyard worker and now chair of the Seacoast Shipyard Association. ‘That dry dock is critical. It will enable the shipyard to continue for the next 100 years,’ he said. ‘And this money has already been allocated by the US Congress. They’re moving full steam ahead with the construction on that dry dock. To derail something like this is tinkering with national security.”” [Seacoast Online, 3/18/19]

September 2019: Sen. Collins Announced Portsmouth Naval Shipyard Would Not Be Affected By Border Wall Funding

“No infrastructure projects at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard will be affected by the Trump Administration’s plan to move money from military projects to fund a southern border wall, according to Maine Republican Sen. Susan Collins. In March, the Defense Department’s listed projects that could be cut to fund President Donald Trump’s border wall includes more than $200 million at Portsmouth Naval Shipyard.” [WMTW, 9/5/19]

- The Department Of Defense “Put 127 Military Construction Projects On Hold” To Provide $3.6 Billion In Funding For The Border Wall. “Defense Department officials said on Tuesday that 127 military construction projects were being put on hold in order to use the $3.6 billion to fund building 175 miles of southern border wall.” [WMTW, 9/5/19]

November 2019: Poliquin Said It Was “Shameful” That Democrats Refused To Include Border Wall Funding In Stopgap Measure To Keep The Government Open

“In passing stop-gap funding to keep the federal government open through December 20, open border Democrats, again, refused to include money to secure our border with Mexico. It’s shameful they continue to refuse to work with President Trump and Republicans to control who is entering our country. During the 12 months ending September 30, Homeland Security apprehended 851,000 individuals who crossed our southwest border illegally, including several hundred who arrived in Portland earlier this year. 2018 Challenge To Election Results

VIDEO: Poliquin Did Not Answer When He Was Asked Whether He Would Accept The Results Of The Ranked Choice Voting Election. HOST: “With the new ranked choice voting method, will you accept the outcome of this race?” POLIQUIN: “I’m going to circle in Bruce Poliquin, one and only vote, drop in the box and go forward.” [C-SPAN, 2018 ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/16/18] (VIDEO) 49:00

November 2018: Poliquin Claimed Ranked-Choice Voting Led To “Huge” Lines At The Polls And Long Wait Times. “And I think that’s one of the reasons it took so long to vote on Election Day. I was up at the Bangor polling station, the largest one in our district, from about seven in the morning til eight at night, in fact I was there from seven in the morning til eight at night. And the lines were huge, it took […] forever. Some folks were waiting one to two hours, some folks just gave up and left because it was so long. Now, one of the reasons is because voter turnout was so high. The second is because of this chaotic rank voice process that has never been used here in the state of Maine before.” [News Center Maine YouTube, 11/27/18] (VIDEO) 5:23

Abortion & Family Planning

Abortion

2012: Poliquin Said “The Only Exception I Can Think Of” When Abortion Was Permissible Was If The Life Of The Woman Or The Unborn Child Was In Jeopardy. REPRESENTATIVE, MAINE RIGHT TO LIFE: “Under what circumstances, if any, would you favor legalized abortion?” […] POLIQUIN: “It’s clear to me that at conception, a life has begun. And that is a life that should be protected. […] Now, I am also a strong believer that the federal government is too intrusive. The only exception that I can think of right now is that when a doctor decides that the life of the mother or the child is in jeopardy. Government does not belong in that decision. Government should not choose who lives. That decision, in my opinion, belongs to the mom, the dad, if there is one, and the doctor.” [YouTube, Dirigo Blue, ME-Sen Values Forum: Should abortion ever be legal?, 4/24/12] (VIDEO) 2:04

2014: Poliquin Said He Was A Pro-Life Catholic But That Abortion Could Be Permissible In Cases Of Rape Or Incest Or If A Woman’s Life Is In Jeopardy. HOST: “Under what circumstances, if any, do you support abortion?” […] POLIQUIN: “When I raised my son as a single parent, I realized how precious and fragile life is. I’m a pro-life Catholic, I’m proud of it. I do believe that the government should not get involved at all when a woman's life is in jeopardy or there's a case of incest or rape.” HOST: “I didn’t mean to cut you off there. So in the case of rape or incest, you believe it is appropriate, otherwise no?” POLIQUIN: “Yes.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter General Election Debate, 10/14/14] (VIDEO) :22

Contraceptives

2012: Poliquin Said He Was “Completely Against” Requiring Insurance Companies To Cover The Cost Of Contraceptives. POLIQUIN: “When you have this recent example of the federal government mandating the availability of contraceptives in specific health plans, I’m completely against that for a number of different reasons. First of all, I think that women who want to have available contraceptives and they will have those but the federal government should not mandate insurance companies, the private sector, to create specific policies, specific products. They can do that themselves, and I’m sure contraception will be available to women. However, when it comes to religious belief, if the federal government is mandating specific insurance policies to provide that product against the religious beliefs of those institutions that support that plan, that is a clear, in my mind, violation of someone’s religious beliefs. As a United States Senator, I will vote against that.” [YouTube, Dirigo Blue, ME-Sen Values Forum: Should civil rights trump religious rights, 4/24/12] (VIDEO) 1:13

Poliquin Said He Would Vote Against Legislation Mandating Employer-Sponsored Health Care Plans To Cover The Cost Of Contraceptives Even If Those Employers Disagreed From A Religious Perspective. POLIQUIN: “When you have this recent example of the federal government mandating the availability of contraceptives in specific health plans, I’m completely against that for a number of different reasons. Planned Parenthood

2012: Poliquin Said He Would Vote To Defund Planned Parenthood. REPRESENTATIVE, MAINE RIGHT TO LIFE: “Would you vote for legislation much like the April 14 vote last year in the U.S. Senate to defund Planned Parenthood of America?” HOST: “We’ll begin with Bruce Poliquin.” POLIQUIN: “Yes, I would.” REPRESENTATIVE, MAINE RIGHT TO LIFE: “Thank you.” POLIQUIN: “If we want – I believe that the federal government should not intrude upon someone’s religious beliefs, and there are those taxpayers who believe in life like I do, and so I think it’s completely inappropriate for the federal government to mandate taxpayers to fund this sort of practice against their belief.” [YouTube, Dirigo Blue, ME-Sen Values Forum: Should Planned Parenthood be defunded, 4/24/12] (VIDEO) :08

Campaign Finance

2016: Poliquin Claimed He Supported “Complete Transparency” In Campaign Finance. POLIQUIN: “People are sick and tired of this, Jennifer, and they’re turning it off.” HOST: “Well, how do we change it?” POLIQUIN: “Well, first of all complete transparency. I absolutely believe in complete transparency.” [CSPAN, 2018 Maine Public ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/19/16] (VIDEO) 12:30

Guns & Hunting

Background Checks

2010: Poliquin Said He Supported Mandatory Background Checks For Guns Purchased At A Licensed Dealer But Not For Those Purchased At Gun Shows Or Through Personal Sales. POLIQUIN: “[4:30] I am a very strong supporter of the Second Amendment. I always have been. But what is very clear is we do not need any new gun laws, period. As governor, I will veto any further restrictions that are attempted to put on our Second Amendment rights. Now, what I do support is the law on the books today which is what the NRA supports, which is a mandatory background check on any gun purchased at a licensed dealer. Beyond that, if I want to purchase a gun, if I want to purchase from you, Jim, don’t need a background check. […] Or at a gun show or what have you or at Uncle Henry’s.” [YouTube, Bruce for Maine, Dover-Foxcroft Townhall, 4/28/10] (VIDEO)

Poliquin Claimed The Background Checks Bill Would Create A “National Registry” That Allowed The Government To Confiscate Legally-Owned Firearms. “There’s also a push, Matt, in one of these bills, to create a national registry, that means all gun owners in America are on a registry. And that means if they want to confiscate your firearms, that you legally own, there’s a way for them to do it.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 3/16/21] (AUDIO) 8:53
• AP Rated The Claims That HR 8 Would Create A “National Registry” Of Gun Owners And Criminalize Legal Gun Owners For Loaning Out Guns As “False.” “CLAIM: Proposed federal gun legislation expanding background checks for firearms would create a ‘national registration of firearms’ and put gun owners in jail for transferring or handing their gun to someone, even if they are in a dangerous situation. AP’S ASSESSMENT: False. HR 8 prohibits using the bill to establish a national firearms registry and includes exceptions allowing temporary transfers between family members, or transfers between people for self-defense or for use at a shooting range.” [Associated Press, 3/9/21]

Red Flag Laws

April 2021: Poliquin Insinuated He Opposed Red Flag Laws. POLIQUIN: “[18:21] You’ve got to focus on mental health. Now, right now when you go through a background check if you’re a felon or you have any mental health problems you are not awarded or not allowed to purchase a firearm. That’s good. We need to keep doing that. But you’ve got to be careful on all these other things, like this red flag law. The red flag laws are a part of what Biden’s going to be pushing and what it means is if the police get word that a person is a danger to him or herself or someone else, they can go and confiscate their guns. Well, what if you have a problem with your wife or your neighbor and you call the cops and say, ‘This fella is flashing around his firearm and we need to’ – you know.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 4/9/21] (AUDIO)

Claims Of Personal Experience With Firearms And Hunting

2014: Poliquin Attacked His Opponent’s Stance On Gun Rights By Saying She Didn’t Understand Maine’s Hunting Culture. POLIQUIN: “[6:55] I’m very proud to have the endorsement of the National Rifle Association. I also have the highest rating of the Sportsman's Alliance of Maine. I grew up in Maine. My opponent, Miss Cain is from Kentucky and New Jersey. And she clearly doesn't understand our heritage and our culture here in the state of Maine. There are thousands of our families that enjoy the great outdoors and enjoy the sport of hunting. So I just don't believe as Miss Cain does that we want to restrict our Second Amendment rights. As a member of Congress, I will support all of our constitutional rights, including our Second Amendment rights. And you know, the state of Maine has one of the highest percentage of our population with gun ownership. And one of the lowest excuse me incidents of crime with guns so it works up here in Maine. I'm sorry that my opponent Miss Cain wants to restrict our gun rights here in the state of Maine. I do not. I want to protect them because it works up here in Maine.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter General Election Debate, 10/14/14] (VIDEO)

2014: Poliquin Claimed He Still Owned A Marlin .22 Long Lever Action Rifle He Bought At Age 14 And Continued To Use It To Target Shoot. POLIQUIN: “I still have the 22 long lever action Marlin that that I bought when I was age 14. Now it misfires, but I still use it to target shoot. So we need to protect our Second Amendment rights and not whittle away at them.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter General Election Debate, 10/14/14] (VIDEO) 7:48

2010: Poliquin Said He Grew Up With Firearms. POLIQUIN: “[11:48] This is the most rural, largest congressional district east of the Mississippi River. We grew up with firearms. It’s the safest state in the union.” [C-SPAN, 2018 ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/16/18] (VIDEO)

Education

Student Loans

May 2010: Poliquin Criticized Federal Student Loans For “Taking Competition Out Of The Program,” Which He Said Raised Student Loan Interest Rates. “This is what happens when you get the federal government intruding in the private sector. We now have roughly $1 trillion of outstanding student loans around the country. And a year ago, the federal government made a decision that they’re going to get into that business at the exclusion of everybody else. And so, on a lot of these loans, students are looking not at a 3.6% rate, but almost three points higher than that. The reason is that they’re taking competition out of the program. So now commercial banks are no longer doing this, the only one offering these loans, and as a result, prices go up.” [YouTube, Toby Hoxie, Student loan debt- Schneider-Poliquin- D'Amboise-from GOP Senate candidates Q&A 05/10/2012, 5/10/12] (VIDEO) 1:48

K-12 Education

2010: Poliquin Said He Supported Paying K-12 Public School Teachers “In Part On Merit.” POLIQUIN: “Great teachers, Logan, inspire kids. So we need to do everything humanly possible to retain the best teachers possible for our students in the state. However, there are lots of tools we can help them that we’re not providing for them. One is a very innovative way to pay teachers based in part on merit. There are a lot of folks, a lot of, rather, school systems around the country that have adopted these new strategies that we should look at very seriously.” [YouTube, Bruce for Maine, Youth in Politics Interview Part 2, 4/19/10] (VIDEO) 3:25

Immigration

DACA

2014: Poliquin Called The DREAM Act “A Plan To Give Amnesty To Students Who Are Here Illegally.” POLIQUIN: “[10:12] Miss Cain supports the DREAM Act. And she’s been very public about this. And this is a plan to give amnesty to students who are here illegally. Now, my whole life has been in the business community, growing the economy and creating jobs, we need to make sure that we don’t follow the path that career politicians follow, which is always bickering and pointing fingers wastefully spending our money, driving up our debt, expanding welfare, and then taxing us to death to pay for it.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter General Election Debate, 10/14/14] (VIDEO)

Family Separation

June 2018: Poliquin Called A Mainer Who Asked Him About Family Separation On Camera “Very Rude.” “Pulled into the ongoing controversy about President Donald Trump’s zero-tolerance policy of immigrants crossing the border, Poliquin made the impromptu comments when confronted by a Maine woman, identified as Marcella Makinen, at an airport. As Poliquin tried to walk away, she recorded the exchange on video, which was then shared Tuesday on Facebook by the advocacy group Mainers for Accountable Leadership. ‘[:00] I wanted to ask you —’ starts Makinen. ‘When you put a camera in someone’s nose, that’s not a way to say hello,’ Poliquin says. ‘If you want to say it, tell me what your issue is.’ Makinen: ‘I’m really concerned about the children that are being separated from their parents’ - Poliquin: ‘Yeah, so am I. So am I.’ Makinen: ‘And I wondered if you have any plans with talking with [Attorney General] Sessions.’ Poliquin: ‘We’re talking tonight at 5:30 on it.’ Makinen: ‘Really, and what’s your position on it?’ Poliquin: ‘[:39] We want to make sure that kids stay with their parents. I’m a father. The kids stay with their parents. You can turn that off. You don’t have to put that in my face. That’s very rude. That’s very rude.’” [Bangor Daily News, 6/19/18] (VIDEO) 00:00

Affordable Care Act

Claims To Support Protections For Pre-Existing Conditions

2018: Poliquin: “Everything I Have Ever Supported Is To Drive Down The Cost Of Health Insurance, Make Sure Everybody Is Protected When They Have A Preexisting Condition.” HOST: “The affordable care act is the law of the land. Although clearly a lot of people would make the argument that healthcare is anything but affordable under a lot of circumstances. In Congress what could you do to make sure people have access to affordable healthcare?” POLIQUIN: “Everybody in this country needs to have healthcare and everybody needs to be able to afford health insurance in order to get that care. One of the first votes I cast in Congress in 2015 was -- and I was one of only three republicans in Congress -- to vote against repealing the Affordable Care Act because there was no replacement. Let me tell you, I got some criticism about that, but it was the right thing to do. Since that time I have introduced a 14 point plan, in part based on the Maine model that drove down the cost of health insurance and gave us more choices. It was called PL-90. My mother is a nurse. She's 90 years old now. Doesn't practice of course. But she's a nurse. I grew up with healthcare in our family. My son has a preexisting condition. Everything I have ever supported is to drive down the cost of health insurance, make sure everybody is protected when they have a preexisting condition. But I will tell you what I don't think is a good idea is a 100% government run healthcare that Jared Golden supports, that will drive up taxes, cost 32 trillion dollars and end Medicare as we know it.” [C-SPAN, 2018 ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/16/18] (VIDEO) 24:59

2016: Poliquin Claimed He Supported Keeping The Affordable Care Act’s Protections For Pre-Existing Conditions. “Let me give you an example. We need to keep our pre existing conditions. My son is asthmatic. I think Sammy ought to have the opportunity to buy a health insurance policy, that he can not only take from job to job but insures him for that pre existing condition.” [CSPAN, 2018 Maine Public ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/19/16] (VIDEO) 31:00

2014: Poliquin Said He Supported Keeping Pre-Existing Conditions Protections In An ACA Replacement Plan. POLIQUIN: “Now there are a couple things that in the in the in Obamacare that are certainly worth holding on to, for example, preexisting conditions, my son, who's now 23 is asthmatic. We have to make sure when Sammy gets a health care plan down the road that he's able to insure himself for that. Also portability. If Sam wants to change jobs, he ought to be able to take that health care plan with him.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter GOP Primary Debate, 5/28/14] (VIDEO) 13:00

Claims To Have Protected The ACA

2016: Poliquin Said He Voted Against Repealing The Affordable Care Act Because There Was No Replacement. POLIQUIN: “I was one of three republicans in the House that voted last year, not, not to, to replace the Affordable Care Act rather not to, to do away with the Affordable Care Act because there wasn't a replacement. I'm a business person trying to find solutions.” [CSPAN, 2018 Maine Public ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/19/16] (VIDEO) 31:00

Pledges To Repeal The ACA

2014: Poliquin: “I Believe That It Is Wrong To Have The Federal Government Take Over The Best Private Healthcare Industry In The World, And Obamacare I’m Dead Set Against.” POLIQUIN: “I believe that it is wrong to have the federal government take over the best private healthcare industry in the world, and Obamacare I’m dead set against. There’s a better way to do this.” [YouTube, Maine 02 RawFootage, WAGM Raye Poliquin Primary Debate, 5/30/14] (VIDEO) 8:34

2014: Poliquin: “Obamacare Is The Wrong Way To Go.” HOST: “Now that 50,000 Mainers have received private insurance through the Affordable Care Act, if you were to get to Congress, would you vote to take that health insurance away?” […] HOST: “Bruce Poliquin, do you think scrap it and replace it? And if so, what do you replace it with?” POLIQUIN: “Obamacare is the wrong way to go. We need to make sure we have the private sector, try to solve this health care problem. You know, we were promised that when the federal government took over our healthcare system, that you wouldn't lose your health insurance plans, you wouldn't lose your doctors and you wouldn't lose the hospitals of choice. That is absolutely not the case. It has been it's so it's a good example of a government run program that limits our choices and drives up costs and drives up taxes.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter GOP Primary Debate, 5/28/14] (VIDEO) 13:00

2014: Poliquin Said He Supported Repealing And Replacing The ACA. POLIQUIN: “No. Repeal it and replace it with something that’s better that’s based on the free market. […] And no, I would not drop by current insurance, which by the way has already been cancelled once and then re-instated my premium 30 percent higher, but I was able to keep a plan that I wanted to insure myself and Sammy with a high deductible to keep my premiums low, and we’re actually paying out of pocket.” [YouTube, Maine 02 RawFootage, WAGM Raye Poliquin Primary Debate, 5/30/14] (VIDEO) 47:35

2012: Poliquin: “Here Are The First Few Things I Would Do. 2011: Poliquin: “It Cost Us Nothing, Essentially Nothing, Free, To Repeal Obamacare. So That’s The First Thing We’re Doing.” AUDIENCE MEMBER: “You say lower health insurance premiums. […] How? What do you have in mind?” POLIQUIN: “Well, the first thing is, as you know, Maine signed on with Florida [inaudible] and it costs us nothing, essentially nothing, free, to repeal Obamacare. So that’s the first thing we’re doing. The governor has a plan for this. Mary Mayhew has just been appointed head of HHS and had a couple businesspeople working underneath her and we need to make sure we tighten eligibility requirements to get the cost of delivering these services down. The problem is the governor is handcuffed, because Maine has been so generous with our MaineCare that now we’re way above the national average and if we want to drop down, they say ‘nope! You have to stay where you are.’ So we have to get this repealed.” [YouTube, stan5858, Bruce Poliquin, Maine State Treasurer, “The Importance of Fiscal Discipline,” 2/28/11] (VIDEO) 23:04

Medicaid

July 2017: Poliquin Made A “Hasty Retreat” From Event At A Senior Living Facility After A Mainer Whose Child Had Disabilities Asked About His Support For Cutting Medicaid. “Rep. Bruce Poliquin (R-ME) was forced to make a hasty retreat from a senior living facility when he was confronted by citizens about his vote for the Republican health care repeal bill. Poliquin told attendees that he would answer questions after his press conference, but as soon as the reporters turned their cameras off, he ignored their shouted questions and left the building. Video of the encounter recorded by Maine People’s Alliance shows Valerie Walker attempting to ask Poliquin how she will address the health concerns of her son, who has a disability, if the cuts to Medicaid he vote for become law. Instead of responding to her, Poliquin complained about her presence, asking, ‘If you’re not a resident — I think this is just for residents, isn’t that correct?’ And a woman accompanying him actually tried to physically block the camera recording the exchange, when Poliquin was told that the room is a public space and Walker was free to be there. So he simply walked away from her to give his presentation to the broadcast cameras.” [American Independent, 7/13/17] (VIDEO) :00

upholding the Defense of Marriage Act. […] I’d like to know what you will do specifically in regard to this or any aspect of the law that was not being executed by our government and by our Attorney General specifically in regard to DOMA and specifically in regard to any other law that deals with same-sex marriage or the attempted redefinition of marriage.” […] POLIQUIN: “I’m a pro-life, traditional marriage, Catholic. Minimum Wage

2014: Poliquin Would Not Give A “Yes” Or “No” Answer When Asked If Congress Should Raise The Minimum Wage. HOST: “Should Congress raise the federal minimum wage?” […] POLIQUIN: “We need to make sure we create better-paying jobs. Everyone wants higher jobs. Senator Collins is coming out to –” HOST: “We’re trying for yes or no here.” POLIQUIN: “Senator Collins is coming out with a compromise. I want to see what that compromise looks like. 2010: Poliquin Told A Reporter He Had Been A Resident Of Georgetown, Maine For Seven Years. 2014: Poliquin Was Attacked For Running In ME-02 Despite Living In Southern Maine. RAYE: “[17:00] I pointed out the difference between a Wall Street perspective and a Main Street perspective. I’m a small business person. […] That’s different than the Wall Street perspective. […] The fact that he’s not from this district is another issue that I’ve brought up because I think it’s relevant. The people in Aroostok County certainly understand that as we do elsewhere across the district that Mr. Poliquin ran for governor, he ran for United States Senator from his home in southern Maine. He had the opportunity to run for Congress in southern Maine, his home district, but he chose to come to the northern district to run, and I think that’s a fair question to bring up.” [YouTube, Maine 02 RawFootage, WAGM Raye Poliquin Primary Debate, 5/30/14] (VIDEO)

9/20/21: Poliquin Announced He Planned To “Relocate[ei] To The Bangor Area” To “Better Serve [His] Constituents.” On WVOM, Poliquin said, “I served, as you folks know, the second district of Maine in Congress for four years, and it really hit me how big our district is. […] So I’m relocating to the Bangor area. This makes much more sense to be able to better serve my constituents if the voters want me back, and I hope they will, and I expect they will. I’ll be able to better do it from the Bangor area. I’ll have access to two airports, Portland and also Bangor.” [WVOM, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 9/20/21] (AUDIO) 1:23

Seniors’ Issues

Retirement Age

Poliquin Said He Supported Saving Social Security For “Seniors Who Have Paid Into The System Who Are Counting On That Program,” But Raise The Retirement Age For Younger Workers. POLIQUIN: “Now, the social security plan is a very large $15 trillion unfunded defined benefit pension plan. It’s the same problem we had here at the state level that I helped solve, we need to make sure we save that plan for our seniors who have paid into the system who are counting on that program. And then for individuals that are much younger, like my son, Sam who is 23, we have to be very honest with Sam, say, Sam, you're living longer, you're gonna have to retire at a later age before you get a retirement check. If you're a high wage earner, your your pension check might be a little bit less than someone who's really struggling. This is a math problem.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter GOP Primary Debate, 5/28/14] (VIDEO) 17:36

Poliquin On The Future Of Social Security: “For Individuals That Are Much Younger, Like My Son, Sam Who Is 23, We Have To Be Very Honest With Sam, Say, ‘You’re Living Longer, You’re Going To Have To Retire At A Later Age Before You Get A Retirement Check.” POLIQUIN: “Now, the social security plan is a very large $15 trillion unfunded defined benefit pension plan. Social Security

Poliquin Said It Was “Absolutely Fundamental” To Make Cuts To Social Security, Medicare, And Medicaid So Associated Spending Made Up Less Of Our Federal Budget. POLIQUIN: “I’m really glad the viewer asked this question because 43 percent of all federal government spending is in three very large programs, one of which is Social Security. The other two are Medicare and Medicaid. 43 percent of all spending. So unless we address this problem, we will never get our fiscal house in order and our economy will never be strong enough to generate the good-paying jobs that we need. It is absolutely fundamental. I understand this issue very well.” [YouTube, Maine 02 RawFootage, WAGM Raye Poliquin Primary Debate, 5/30/14] (VIDEO) 38:09

Poliquin Called On The Federal Government To Address “Problems” With Social Security, Medicare, And Medicaid, Which Were “On Autopilot” And “Consumed” 43 Percent Of Our Federal Budget. POLIQUIN: “About 43 percent of our budget is consumed by three huge government programs: Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid. Now unless we address those problems – because those programs are on autopilot – we're never going to create or rather address this fiscal black cloud that's, that's hovering above our economy, that's preventing business owners from investing in their companies, hiring more people and creating jobs. Now we have to make sure that for our seniors or those that are close to being retirees or close to being seniors, if you will, they've paid into our Social Security, for example…” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter GOP Primary Debate, 5/28/14] (VIDEO) 9:51

Poliquin On The Future Of Retirement Benefits: “If You’re A High Wage Earner, Your Pension Check Might Be A Little Less Than Someone Who’s Really Struggling.” POLIQUIN: “Now, the social security plan is a very large $15 trillion unfunded defined benefit pension plan. Taxes

Personal Property Tax Payments

Poliquin Claimed He Had Always Paid His Taxes In Full. POLIQUIN: “[18:49] But let's go back to this because we just heard a whopper. I'm gonna look right in the camera right at the people of Maine and just tell you flat out the truth. I have always paid all of my taxes in full. Always.” [CSPAN, 2018 Maine Public ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/19/16] (VIDEO)

When Asked Whether He Got A Lower Tax Rate Through The Main Tree Growth Tax Abatement Program, Poliquin Said That He, As A Real Estate Businessman, Scrutinized His Tax Bills With A Business Manager. HOST: “[21:20] Are you saying here today that you did not put any of your land in the Tree Growth tax abatement program, that you never put any land, waterfront land into that program?” POLIQUIN: “What I am saying, Jennifer, is that I’ve paid every single tax I’ve owed always in full.” HOST: “But did you get a lower tax because you took advantage of that program?” POLIQUIN: “Jennifer, I’m in the real estate business. I have properties in different parts of the state. And when I get a tax bill, I look at it, I scrutinize it my business manager does with me. And business, rather property is tax different ways. Depending on the parcel it is. And this happens to be a parcel along the coast, there are other parcels that are not, and I’ve paid every dollar I’ve owed in taxes. Always.” [CSPAN, 2018 Maine Public ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/19/16] (VIDEO)

Pledge Against Raising Taxes

2014: Poliquin Pledged Not To Raise Taxes. POLIQUIN: “[8:34] I have taken a pledge not to raise taxes. This is very, very important. My opponent refuses to take that pledge, and that’s fine, but I want to make sure the voters in Aroostok County know that I’ve taken that pledge not to raise taxes.” [YouTube, Maine 02 RawFootage, WAGM Raye Poliquin Primary Debate, 5/30/14] (VIDEO)

2018 Challenge To Election Results

Claims To Have Won The 2018 Election

November 2020: Poliquin Said He Won The 2018 Election. POLIQUIN: “I remember having experienced this in a little way, Matt, two years ago in my second re-election in 2018 which I won and then nine days later they scammed it with this ranked voting. But it was my responsibility to take this to court to make sure everything was up to snuff but once the election was certified, it becomes very difficult to do that. So what Trump is doing is what he should be doing. It’s his responsibility, win or lose, to make sure he challenges these results because they are so close and it was so unconventional, the way we voted this way with mail-in voting, to give people confidence that their vote counted. So he’s got to go through this process. He should. It’s his responsibility. But he’s got an uphill climb.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/13/20] (AUDIO) 1:47

Poliquin Said Ranked Choice Voting Was A “Scam” And A “Rip-Off” That Awarded The ME-02 Congressional Seat To The Race’s Second Place Finisher. POLIQUIN: “Ranked voting up here in Maine turned out to be the biggest voter rip-off in our state’s history. We’ve been using common sense one person, one vote, a constitutional way to do this, for 200 years up here and it worked just fine. No confusion, simple. The person that gets the most votes on election day wins, like myself. We won, but nine days later after this confusion of counting these votes again and again, this black box computer algorithm that gave the seat to the candidate that came in second. So I told them the truth. I said, you’ve got to look at this closely. The folks from the second district that I represented rejected it twice because it’s such a scam.” [WVOM, GHRT Rewind, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/18/19] (AUDIO) 1:47

Election Interference Allegations

Poliquin Claimed There Were “Thousands And Thousands Of Ballots That Were Thrown Out” During The 2018 Congressional Election In ME-02. POLIQUIN: “There were thousands and thousands of ballots that were thrown out, spoiled ballots. We don’t know how many because they wouldn’t tell us. There were thousands of them. And in the end, the person who won this race did not get 50 percent of the votes cast. That’s what we were promised, you know, whoever wins is going to get 50 percent of the vote. Didn’t happen.” [WVOM, GHRT Rewind, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/18/19] (AUDIO) 7:54

Criticism Of Ranked-Choice Voting

2020: Poliquin Said Ranked Choice Voting Was “Horrible,” “Unfair,” And Pushed By “Big Money, Out Of State Folks.” POLIQUIN: “I think it’s horrible. Here you see again ranked voting is a way for liberal candidates who pose as independents to harvest second place votes to push those second place votes, extra votes to the Democrat candidate so they can win close elections. This is not a Maine idea. Maine has always been one person, one vote. We did everything we could to deep six this thing but the big money, out of state folks come up here to influence how we live and how we vote, and they’re able to get this on the ballot. It is a real issue, and it’s unfair. Because all of a sudden it’s not head to head between the two best candidates. How do you game the system to scam a close election?” [WVOM, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 10/19/20] (AUDIO) 10:20

February 2020: Poliquin Claimed “Soros And These Other Billionaires Sent A Ton Of Money Up In Here” To Pass Ranked-Choice Voting. “This is not like in the past, where Soros and these other billionaires sent a ton of money up in here, and political activists were able to fool about 15% of registered voters in Maine. That’s how they passed this scam. Now everybody’s going to the polls during a presidential election and they can weigh in on this: repealrankedchoice.com.” [WVOM FM, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 2/17/20] (AUDIO) 4:02

Abortion

2019: Poliquin Said He Opposed The State Of Maine’s Decision To Cover Abortion Procedures Under Medicaid. POLIQUIN: “There are movements in both bodies, the federal and the state government – here, we’re talking about Augusta specifically – to use for the first time in I think 45 or 50 years taxpayer dollars to pay for abortion. Whether you’re pro-life like me or pro-choice, that’s not the issue. The issue is do you want to use taxpayer dollars to pay for abortion. At the federal level, it’s been the law of the land that you do not do that for about 40 or 50 years with the exception of rape, incest, and life of the mother. But now there’s a movement in Maine to use state, not federal because it’s illegal at the federal level, but state taxpayer dollars to pay for abortion. I think that’s a really bad idea. It can violate folks’ religious beliefs and all kinds of other problems with it.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 5/7/19] (AUDIO)

Corporate Taxes

Poliquin Said Democrats’ Plans To Tax Corporations Would Actually Result In Tax Increases On Individuals Because Corporations Only Make Up 7 Percent Of America’s Total Federal Tax Revenues. POLIQUIN: “$3 trillion taken from – excuse me, Matt – individuals, small businesses, larger businesses during a time where we’re recovering from a recovery, it’s just a really bad idea. And when the Democrats say, ‘Well, we’re just going to soak these corporations, they’re going to pay for it,’ that’s just not true. If you look at all the tax revenues collected each year in this country at the federal level, seven percent – only seven percent – from corps, 50 percent from individuals and then another 36 percent from payroll taxes which you get when you have a job.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 4/9/21] (AUDIO) 9:05

Marjorie Taylor Greene

Poliquin Said It Was Not Right For Democrats To Kick Marjorie Taylor Greene Off Of Her Congressional Committees. HOST: “[4:57] One of the other things, Bruce, that’s happening in Congress right now is the situation with Marjorie Taylor Greene here and what they’ve been doing as it relates to her committee assignments and all that stuff. […] Do you have any sort of sense of what you think should have happened there?” POLIQUIN: “Yeah. Look, you can’t stop crazy in America. Right? I mean, it’s a free country so far anyway. And if someone like this represents a congressional district in the state of Georgia, you know, says crazy things and she’s going to be accountable for those statements. However for the opposing party, in this case the Democrats, shutting out a Republican who is representing her district who was elected by her constituents, shutting her out from committee work so she’s unable to help pass legislation that will be helpful to her district, I don’t think it’s right.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 2/5/21] (AUDIO)

Trump’s Second Impeachment

February 2021: Poliquin Called Trump’s Second Impeachment A “Show Trial.” POLIQUIN: “[1:47] I’m glad it’s behind us. It was a show trial I think in many regards, Matt. Even before the trial started, 44 senators voted that this wasn’t even constitutionally allowed to impeach a president that’s no longer sitting as president. But during the proceedings, it is a trial – it’s a political trial, but it’s still a trial – the Democrat impeachment managers had to prove that Mr. Trump incited this riot in the Capitol and they were unable to do that. You’ve got to prove it. Now, clearly, he called folks to Washington and encouraged them to express their views, but it did not reach the level of incitement which includes intent. So they just didn’t prove their case.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 2/15/21] (AUDIO)

Poliquin Said The Democratic Impeachment Managers Were Unable To Prove Trump Incited The Capitol Riot On January 6, 2021. POLIQUIN: “[1:47] I’m glad it’s behind us. It was a show trial I think in many regards, Matt. Even before the trial started, 44 senators voted that this wasn’t even constitutionally allowed to impeach a president that’s no longer sitting as president. Poliquin On Trump: “Clearly, He Called Folks To Washington And Encouraged Them To Express Their Views, But It Did Not Reach The Level Of Incitement, Which Includes Intent. Poliquin Said He Would Have Voted Against Impeaching Trump For His Involvement In The Capitol Riot On January 6, 2021. HOST: “[4:21] I’d love to get your thoughts on what you think about frankly her vote and then the reaction to it from the state GOP.” POLIQUIN: “Yeah well Senator Collins just won a new, six-year term against pretty big odds. […] I think a lot of this debate is fine. Republicans have a very big tent, Matt, as you know, and there’s all kinds of room for different decisions and different ideas. But for the most part, I don’t think it makes a lot of difference. I personally, and I think that was part of your question, I would have voted differently. I looked at the issues differently than the Senator did but she made the decision she did based on the information she has and she was elected to be in this case an impartial jurist and I’m sure she weighed all the facts. So I think this is a lot to do about nothing.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 2/19/21] (AUDIO)

Big Lie & January 6th Impeachment

Big Lie

Poliquin Said He Agreed With Trump’s Decision To Take The Results Of The 2020 Presidential Election To Court. POLIQUIN: “[1:47] I remember having experienced this in a little way, Matt, two years ago in my second re-election in 2018 which I won and then nine days later they scammed it with this ranked voting. But it was my responsibility to take this to court to make sure everything was up to snuff but once the election was certified, it

So he’s got to go through this process. He should. It’s his responsibility. But he’s got an uphill climb.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/13/20] (AUDIO)

December 2020: Poliquin Said Biden Was “Likely The President-Elect” Though There Was Still A Chance Trump Would Win The Election. POLIQUIN: “If Trump had won the election, and he still may, but it looks like he probably won’t, if Trump had won the election, this would be dead on arrival. […] Now, however, that Biden is likely the President-elect and likely will be seated on January 20, she probably wants to give him some sort of win.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 12/4/20] (AUDIO) 4:23

January 6th Insurrection

Poliquin Said The January 6th Insurrection Was “Horrible” And Did Not Qualify As Constitutional Free Speech. POLIQUIN: “[1:10] It was horrible. […] It was absolutely horrible. Violence in any form is not constitutional free speech. It is not free speech. You violate that police line, you should be prosecuted and arrested, the book should be thrown at you. And that’s what they’re doing.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 1/15/21] (AUDIO)

Poliquin Said The Capitol Riots Were Horrific And Not Right. POLIQUIN: “[2:50] There are a lot of double standards out there, Matt, and I worked with these people for four years down in Congress when I was serving Maine. […] Above the Supreme Court entrance, Matt, engraved in stone for everybody to see is ‘Equal justice under law.’ Now, I’m not saying what happened in the Capitol was right on January 6th. Those riots were horrific. So were the riots last summer across the country, including in Portland, Maine where some of these demonstrations turned into violence. You can’t club police officers. You can’t kill innocent people. You can’t burn down buildings and get away with it. So I wish and I hope they prosecute all these people, whether it’s Seattle, Washington, Portland, Maine, or in the Capitol. What’s good for the goose is good for the gander.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 2/12/21] (AUDIO)

Poliquin Equated The Violence At The Capitol On January 6th To Violence At Black Lives Matter Protests In 2020. POLIQUIN: “[2:50] There are a lot of double standards out there, Matt, and I worked with these people for four years down in Congress when I was serving Maine. […] Above the Supreme Court entrance, Matt, engraved in stone for everybody to see is ‘Equal justice under law.’ Now, I’m not saying what happened in the Capitol was right on January 6th. What’s good for the goose is good for the gander.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 2/12/21] (AUDIO)

Balanced Budget

July 2021: Poliquin Said He Supported A Balanced Budget Amendment To The Constitution. HOST: “Let’s say we made you King of America. What would you do?” POLIQUIN: “Well first of all what you do is pass a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution so the federal government would only be able to spend what they take in instead of borrowing and printing money to make up the difference, just like the state of Maine has.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 7/15/21] (AUDIO) 5:02

January 2021: Poliquin: “We’ve Got To Have A Balanced Budget Amendment To The Constitution, The Federal Constitution.” POLIQUIN: “I got a stomachache, frankly. This is why we’ve got to have a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, the federal Constitution. We have one at the state level. […] What the federal government does, Matt, is these folks that represent us, they just spend as much money as they want. If they run out of money, they just print more.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 1/15/21] (AUDIO) 9:34
Debt Limit

Poliquin Said America Would Be In “A Real Financial Calamity” If It Was Forced To Default On Its Debt.
POLIQUIN: “One of the things you cannot avoid is paying the interest on the money that you have borrowed. You’ve got to pay that or our country defaults, which would be a real financial calamity.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 1/22/21] (AUDIO) 8:03

Covid Mitigation & Pandemic Relief

Covid Mitigation Measures

11/6/20: Poliquin Said Maine’s Mask Mandate Was “Really Insulting To A Lot Of People.” “However, you got to use common sense, and for Janet Mills to continue to extend her emergency powers, given to her by the legislature, and her continuing to tell us that we don’t have enough common sense to know where and when we should wear a mask is really insulting to a lot of people.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/6/20] (AUDIO) 8:12

June 2020: Poliquin Called The Closure Of Indoor Bars In Maine “Just Not Fair.” HOST: “I’d love to kick things off here by having your reaction to what you saw with the decision on bars reopening. Obviously, we had the original July 1st date that bars, or indoor service within bars, excuse me, was supposed to be happening, that has now been pushed back with no real idea of when it’s going to be lifted. Your thoughts, Mr. Poliquin?” POLIQUIN: “It’s another kick in the teeth to our small businesses, Matt. This is just not fair. It’s just not fair.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 6/23/20] (AUDIO) 00:13

Poliquin Said It Was A Big Mistake To Close Schools In Response To COVID-19, As “School-Aged Kids [Were] Generally Not Affected By This Virus.” POLIQUIN: “We also learned about a year ago that school-aged kids are generally not affected by this virus so schools should have been opened and they have not been. Some are still closed. Big mistake.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 5/14/21] (AUDIO) 2:05

November 2020: Poliquin Said The Major COVID-19 Vaccines Were “Highly Effective Vaccines” And “A Huge Success Story For The Trump Administration.” POLIQUIN: “We have an administration and a president who comes from the business community. He understands the power of the private sector. And remember, the government – federal government, state government, or local – they don’t invent vaccines. They don’t distribute vaccines. They don’t manufacture vaccines after they’ve been created. The private sector does that. […] The great thing about this, Aaron, is that these vaccines, we have three now that are just about to come out, Pfizer, Moderna, and AstraZeneca, they are all 90 to 95 percent effective. If you get a shingles shot, it’s about 80 percent effective. If you get a measles shot, it’s about 95 percent effective. So these are highly effective vaccines and it’s the power of the business community in partnership with the federal government that put a boatload of money into this. […] A huge success story for the Trump administration.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/27/20] (AUDIO) 2:39

Pandemic Relief

August 2021: When Asked About The Eviction Moratorium, Poliquin Said Democrats Would “Push To Give Everybody As Much Government Handouts As Humanly Possible.” HOST: “Finally here, Bruce, some current events, the non-eviction issue. The Centers for Disease Control issued a new eviction moratorium that’s going to go I think until October third. […] How much longer are we going to be paying rent for people?” POLIQUIN: “As long as Jared Golden is in the majority, and enables this to happen, and says nothing, by the way. As long as the Democrats are in the majority, and I really want to make this clear, Mike, is that the spending will continue. It will not stop, they’re going to push to give everybody as much government handouts as humanly possible, whether it be food assistance, housing assistance, paying people to stay at home and not work when their jobs are available and they’re perfectly capable.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 8/4/21] (AUDIO) 13:45

Dodging The Press

August 2017: Poliquin Said “It Would Be Stupid For Me To Engage The National Media To Give Them And Everybody Else The Ammunition They Need And We Lose This Seat.” “In the audio, Rep. Poliquin can be heard saying he intentionally avoids the national media. Here is the full transcript: ‘We must win these seats. Flashback to 2016 last year. How many times did a newspaper reporter, Joe, put a microphone in my nose and say, ‘Yeah I know you just had a great event. New balance shoes, 900 jobs, American made jobs in Norway, Skowhegan and Norridgewalk. But by the way, Mr. Trump, your nominee, just said this. What's your reaction?’ As soon as you go down that path, Mark, you are in the swamp. You are exactly where they want you to be. Do not take the bait. […] You think the press is bad in Maine? They are - it's unbelievable. And they are dying to get you on record to say whatever. And that becomes the next. So I used to think that folks in Congress like me because I'm a big hearted Frenchman like Norman. I'm a happy guy. And I'm always walking around knowing exactly where we're going. The reason is because they need our seat. There are two dozen – that's it – two dozen swing districts in the country. […] So we've got to be incredibly careful. Now do I talk to the national media? Not often. I've been dying to do what you want me to do. Dying to do it. We've got to be very... It would be stupid for me to engage the national media to give them and everybody else the ammunition they need and we lose this seat. You have to be really careful.” [News Center Maine, 8/25/17] (AUDIO) 00:58

Education

College Affordability

July 2021: Poliquin Said Tuition-Free Community College Was Unfair To People Who Did Not Go To College. “Free community college. What if you did not go to college? What if you didn’t have that opportunity? It means you’re paying for somebody who did go to college, and you’re likely going to be paying off their debt.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 7/15/21] (AUDIO) 2:24

K-12 Education

June 2021: Poliquin Said He Opposed Growing Maine’s Education Budget Since School Performance Was “Horrendous” During COVID-19. POLIQUIN: “The state of Maine has already received several billion dollars from the federal government dealing with this COVID situation, much of which has nothing to do with COVID. There’s been a lot of money that’s gone to the schools and still we’ve had roughly 4,000 kids that have dropped out of public schools and instead their parents have opted to put them into parochial schools, religious schools, or independent schools, private schools, because the government doesn’t know how to keep these public schools open. So to put more money into an organization that’s unable to deliver a service effectively just doesn’t make any sense to me. It just doesn’t. […] This is just more money going to the schools even though their performance over the last year has been horrendous.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 6/4/21] (AUDIO) 5:54

Immigration

Poliquin Said Democrats Were Allowing Massive Amounts Of People To Cross The Southern Border With Mexico As A Way Of Growing Their Voting Base. POLIQUIN: “[10:32] At the same time the administration keeps the border with Mexico wide open so we have 170, 175,000 people per month illegally coming over the border with Mexico because they are from Central America, everything is free they get. And I believe, I hate to say this, the administration thinks they are possibly new voters. The Cubans who have lived through socialism for sixty years, they vote Republican. […] They vote Republican. And these other folks that are coming in, they want everything free, I think they think they are new voters. It is wrong. It is really scary.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 7/15/21] (AUDIO)
Infrastructure

July 2021: Poliquin Claimed That “Only About A Third” Of The Bipartisan Infrastructure Framework “Deals With True Infrastructure.” “This is a one trillion-dollar infrastructure package that deals with everything, including its brother. You know, only about a third of it deals with true infrastructure, but it deals with everything else.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 7/22/21] (AUDIO) 1:50

Paris Climate Agreement

Poliquin Said The United States Rejoining The Paris Accord “Screw[ed] The Little Guy” Since It Allowed The World’s Biggest Polluters To Keep Polluting. POLIQUIN: (2:36) “He thinks that climate change is a critical issue for us to deal with. OK. Let’s look at the data. The last 30 years, the United States has reduced the sulfur dioxide emissions by about 80 percent. This is stuff coming out of the smokestacks at power plants. And lead emissions are down about 80 percent. So when you join the Paris Accord, it means that we’re going to try and continue to reduce our pollution which we have been but China and India can go on their way, and they’re the biggest polluters in the world. So it screws the little guy.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 1/22/21] (AUDIO)

Policing

June 2020: Poliquin Called For Information On Police Misconduct To Be Shared Across Police Departments. “[4:38] For example, if you have find that there are some police officers who are not being fair in their treatment of folks who are being apprehended, and they have a history of this, that information, Matt, should be shared with other police departments in the event that this individual moves from one PD to another. Share that information.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 6/17/20] (AUDIO)

June 2020: Poliquin Said Police Unions “Should Not Protect Police Officers Who Are Not Treating The Public Well.” “[5:02] Second of all, the union that represents our police officers, I know they do good stuff and I appreciate all that, but they should not protect police officers who are not treating the public well. That is really important.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 6/17/20] (AUDIO)

Poliquin: “Trump Was The First President In Modern History Who Took This Chinese Threat Seriously, And It Was Getting To Be Quite Effective.” “Trump was the first president in modern history who took this Chinese threat seriously, and it was getting to be quite effective. They look at Biden and Mr. Obama with his administration, where Biden of course was the vice president for eight years, and they see weakness and appeasement.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 3/22/21] (AUDIO) 5:55

2014: When Asked About His Stance On NAFTA, Poliquin Replied, “Free Trade Is Good.” “HOST: Bruce, let me ask a follow up question. Mike Michaud, who you’re running to replace in Congress, has stated publicly and often that he believes NAFTA was not good for Maine’s economy and citing many of the industries that have since left the state, what is your view on NAFTA and its legacy? POLIQUIN: My view on trade in general, Jennifer, is free trade is good. Because we want folks in Canada or Singapore or in Australia to buy our blueberries, our lobsters, and our potatoes. But we need to make sure that these trade agreements are fair. And if they are fair, I support them. If they are not fair to our workers here in Maine and throughout America that I do not support them. [Maine Public Broadcasting Network, Your Vote Interview With Bruce Poliquin, 46:10, 10/6/14] (AUDIO) 45:50

Poliquin Wearing Earbuds

May 2017: When A Reporter Asked If He Planned To Vote For The AHCA, Poliquin “Made A Beeline To The Restroom,” Accidentally Entered The Women’s Restroom, Then “Scurried Away” Wearing Earbuds.

“As House Republican leaders claim they’re getting ever closer to acquiring the votes they need to pass the American Health Care Act, pressure is mounting on a number of still-reluctant, vulnerable GOP members of Congress to fall in line. As such, those members want to go into hiding. Here is a taste of what it’s like trying to pin down an undecided Republican member of Congress on his or her possible Trumpcare vote this week. Maine Rep. Bruce Poliquin has yet to declare either his support or opposition for the bill. As he was walking out of the House Republican conference’s morning meeting Tuesday, I asked him if he had arrived at a decision. He said nothing and made a beeline to the restroom. Unfortunately it was the door to the women’s restroom that he had first run to, so he corrected himself and went into the men’s room. When he emerged several minutes later, he was wearing his earbuds and scurried away.” [Slate, 5/2/17]

- Bill Nemitz Column Called Earbuds A “Fitting Symbol For Poliquin” Since “The Poor Guy Apparently Can't Hear, Let Alone Answer, Tough Questions.” “[HEADLINE: Bill Nemitz: Earbuds are fitting symbol for ever-silent Rep. Poliquin] For those who haven't already heard, that's where the Republican congressman from Maine's 2nd District mistakenly almost took refuge inside the U.S. Capitol on Wednesday when a persistent reporter tried to ask for his position on repealing the Affordable Care Act. A short time later, Poliquin hastily emerged from the men's room wearing ear buds -- his clumsy add-on to a pre-existing condition that has afflicted him since the day he first arrived in Washington, D.C. The poor guy apparently can't hear, let alone answer, tough questions.” [Kennebec Journal, Bill Nemitz Column, 5/7/17]

Jails could see better addiction treatment

Maine inmates are competing for a program that would expand medication-assisted treatment for addictions to heroin.

By JON LARSON

A successful bill to expand a program that would expand medication-assisted treatment for addictions to heroin is in jeopardy after the chairman of the House Criminal Justice Committee, Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-Wilton, announced he is opposed to funding for the program.

Poliquin, a co-sponsor of the bill, said he would vote against funding for the program because it would increase the state’s debt.

The program, known as the Heroin and Opiate Treatment Program, would provide funding to expand medication-assisted treatment for addictions to heroin. The program is currently funded by $1.5 million in federal and state funds.

Poliquin said he is concerned about the state’s ability to repay the debt.

The program, which includes medication-assisted treatment for addictions to heroin, is a collaborative effort between the Maine Department of Health and Human Services and the Maine Department of Corrections.

9/17/21: The Maine GOP Proposed Moving Oakland To Maine’s First Congressional District In A Move “Largely Seen In Political Circles As […] Coordinated By Top Republican Officials And Poliquin”

9/17/21: The Maine GOP’s Redistricting Plan Moved Oakland, ME – Where Poliquin Once Owned Property And Perkins Resided As Of September 2021– Outside Of Maine’s 2nd Congressional District. “The former congressman and his primary challenger would be moved out of the 2nd District — at least temporarily — under their party’s plan. Democrats and Republicans released their long-awaited congressional and Maine Senate redistricting proposals on Thursday. More analysis is coming, but the big fight over moving 23,000 people into the swing 2nd Congressional District is going to focus on Democrats’ plan to move Waterville in. That is a red line for Republicans, who submitted a more restrained proposal for the district. That overshadowed a wrinkle in the Republican plan — shifting Oakland from the 2nd District to the solidly liberal 1st District. The town of 6,200 is notable as the place former U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, the Republican running for a 2022 rematch with Rep. Jared Golden, a Democrat, ran from during his tenure. Poliquin’s primary challenger, state Rep. Mike Perkins, also lives there.” [Bangor Daily News, 9/17/21]

- Bangor Daily News: The Proposed Move Of Oakland From The Second To First District “Was Largely Seen In Political Circles As A Move Coordinated By Top Republican Officials And Poliquin.” “Former U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin’s residence was yet again a topic in Maine’s political conversation after his party proposed moving Oakland, the town he declared residency in when he won the 2nd Congressional District in 2014, out of the district for the 2022 election. Poliquin said he was living in Oakland as recently as last week and his primary opponent, state Rep. Mike Perkins, also lives there. It was largely seen in political circles as a move coordinated by top Republican officials and Poliquin, whose political apparatus intersects with former Gov. Paul LePage, the de facto party leader running his own 2022 return bid against Gov. Janet Mills. The other shoe dropped on Monday, when Poliquin told WVOM he was ‘relocating to the Bangor area’ for this race.” [Bangor Daily News, 9/21/21]

9/17/21: Poliquin’s Strategist Would Not Say In What Town Poliquin Currently Lived. “He grew up in Waterville and switched his residence to a family home in Oakland when he ran for Congress. He sold that home in 2018 but said he inked a rental agreement to keep an apartment there throughout his time in office. Poliquin’s political strategist, Brent Littlefield, did not answer a question about where his residence is now.” [Bangor Daily News, 9/17/21]

9/20/21: Poliquin Announced He Planned To Relocate To The Bangor Area

9/20/21: Poliquin Announced He Planned To “Relocate[e] To The Bangor Area” To “Better Serve [His] Constituents.” On WVOM, Poliquin said, “I served, as you folks know, the second district of Maine in Congress for four years, and it really hit me how big our district is. […] So I’m relocating to the Bangor area. This makes much more sense to be able to better serve my constituents if the voters want me back, and I hope they will, and I expect they will. I’ll be able to better do it from the Bangor area. I’ll have access to two airports, Portland and also Bangor.” [WVOM, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 9/20/21] (AUDIO) 1:23

Bruce Poliquin is selling his Oakland home, but the two-term Republican congressman hopes to remain in the Belgrade Lakes region, his spokesman said Friday. ‘Now that his son has finished college, the congressman has been looking to downsize,’ spokesman Brendan Conley said Friday. ‘The congressman’s property in Oakland has been in his family for decades and he’s hoping to find someone that will appreciate the special home as much as his family has.” [Bangor Daily News, 8/11/17]

OpenSecrets.org, which studies congressional financial forms, estimated he had $11.6 million, putting him well ahead of most House members. Since then, he sold the Messalonskee Lake property he got from his parents in 2007, not long after they moved to a senior housing place in Brunswick, where they still reside. That netted him another $450,000. He leases an apartment on the property from the buyers.” [Bangor Daily News, 9/22/18]

2014: Poliquin Lived In Maine’s 1st Congressional District During The Republican Primary To Represent Maine’s 2nd Congressional District
Poliquin Did Not Originally Live In Maine’s 2nd Congressional District When He Ran In The 2014 Republican Primary To Represent It. “My roots are in central Maine; it's where I'm from,” said Poliquin, a Republican running for his party's nomination to the seat in Congress from Maine's 2nd Congressional District. ‘It’s where I grew up.’ But this year the campaign signs for his primary opponent, Kevin Raye, have a motto: ‘From here, for us.’ It’s a not-so-subtle jab at Poliquin, who lived at his large estate in coastal Georgetown -- which is in the state's other congressional district -- before moving to a family home in Oakland as he announced his run last year. The residency conversation is taking over the primary race. Not for 20 years has a politician’s home and history been such an issue in a Maine campaign.” [Kennebec Journal, 5/03/14]

Poliquin Claimed He Had Always Paid His Taxes In Full. POLIQUIN: “[18:49] But let's go back to this because we just heard a whopper. I'm gonna look right in the camera right at the people of Maine and just tell you flat out the truth. I have always paid all of my taxes in full. Always.” [CSPAN, 2018 Maine Public ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/19/16] (VIDEO)

2014: Poliquin Op-Ed: Poliquin Claimed To Have Always Paid His Property Taxes In Full. “My opponent, Emily Cain, and her agents have spent nearly $2 million on nasty TV ads and mailers personally attacking me. For months, she has attacked my successful professional career, which was earned with many years of hard work and sacrifice. She’s even attacked my record of always paying all property taxes in full (thousands of dollars), always!” [Kennebec Journal Poliquin Op-Ed, 10/31/14]

October 2016: Poliquin Campaign Website: “Congressman Poliquin Has Always Paid His Taxes – In Full! Don’t Believe The Lies On TV.” “False Attacks on Congressman Poliquin’s Taxes First and foremost, Congressman Poliquin has always paid his taxes – in full! Don’t believe the lies on TV. Congressman Poliquin did not break any tax rules or tax laws and he did not violate any program. He has paid literally THOUSANDS of dollars on the particular property extreme Emily Cain and her liberal allies are attacking him on. Again, his taxes are always paid and are always paid in full.” [Poliquin for Congress, 10/13/16]

Note: In 2010 and 2011, Poliquin’s Property Tax Data, which included separate property taxes for his 10 acres enrolled in the Maine Tree Growth Program and his 2 acres that were not, did not add up to the billed amount reflected in the Property Account Detail.

2005 – 2021: Poliquin Collected $10,000 In Homestead Exemptions On 186 Ledgemere Road
April 2013: Poliquin Filed For A Homestead Exemption For His Out-Of-District Georgetown, ME Property.
In April 2013, Poliquin filed a homestead exemption for 186 Ledgemere Rd, Georgetown, Maine. On the document, he did not list a location where he had previously asserted a Homestead Exemption. [Town of Georgetown, Application for Homestead Exemption, 4/01/13]

• 186 Ledgemere Rd Was Located In Maine’s 1st Congressional District. [House.gov, accessed 7/29/21]

• Poliquin Indicated That He Had a Homestead Property Within The Last Twelve Months In Another Municipality On His April 2013 Homestead Exemption Application, But Did Not List Its Address. [Town of Georgetown, Application for Homestead Exemption, 4/01/13]

• Homestead Exemption Was Claimed On Poliquin’s Georgetown, ME Property For The 2013 Fiscal Year. [186 Ledgemere Road Property Card, Town of Georgetown, updated 2015; 186 Ledgemere Road Property 2013 Tax Bill, 12/17/13]

Note: The Maine Tree Growth Program did not result in direct exemptions, but likely drastically changed the property valuation of the 10 acres enrolled in it instead, resulting in much lower property taxes. The Maine Tree Growth Program was not recorded on this property card as a tax exemption.

2004: Poliquin Applied For The Maine Tree Growth Program After The Town Of Georgetown Denied His Request For A Reduced Tax Assessment

January 2004: Poliquin Requested A $1.1 Million Tax Abatement On His Georgetown, Maine Property. In his 2004 tax abatement application for his property in Georgetown, Poliquin wrote, “Assessed valuation of real estate: $1,768,568 Requested abatement in value: $1,136,962. […] I believe that it is fair and reasonable to conclude that the cumulative effect of these restrictions and easements is to further reduce the value of my land by 20% resulting in the proposed final value of $631,606.” [Poliquin’s Application for Abatement of Property Taxes, Town of Georgetown, 1/21/04]

• In His Application For The Tax Abatement, Poliquin Claimed He Was Being “Unfairly Discriminated Against” Because Comparable Properties Were Valued Lower Than His. In his 2004 tax abatement application for his property in Georgetown, Poliquin wrote, “Specific reasons for abatement: The total 12.3 acres of my land is designated as the much higher-valued Homesite class. Two other comparable Georgetown properties which I have identified are designated partly as the lower-valued Rear Lands. Therefore, I believe that I am being unfairly discriminated against.” [Poliquin’s Application for Abatement of Property Taxes, Town of Georgetown, 1/21/04]

• Poliquin Claimed Restrictions On Subdivisions And Construction On His Land, As Well As Upkeep He Was Required To Maintain For A Nearby Nature Conservancy, Reduced The Value Of His Land. “I further believe that I am being unfairly discriminated against in the Town’s property valuation process because apparently no consideration has been given for the severe deeded restrictions/easements imposed on my land. Specifically: (a) my lot cannot be subdivided; (b) my lot cannot be used for any commercial purposes; (c) there cannot be any additional structure on my land; (d) the sizes of the current structures are limited; (e) the Nature Conservancy can require me to maintain its satisfaction of the .7 mile road through its nature preserve to my property; and (f) the thousands of members of the Nature Conservancy have the right to traverse my land.”
[Poliquin’s Application for Abatement of Property Taxes, Town of Georgetown, 1/21/04]

April 2004: The Town Of Georgetown Rejected Poliquin’s Request For A Reduced Tax Assessment. In January 2004, Poliquin asked the town of Georgetown to reduce his tax assessment by more than $1.1 million. Both the town and the Sagadahoc County commissioners rejected his appeal. In a letter to Poliquin dated April 7, 2004, Georgetown’s Chair of Selectmen wrote, “On the basis of Mr van Tuinen's recommendation, we voted unanimously to deny your application for an abatement.” In a letter to the Board Assessors dated March 24, 2004, Bill Van Tunien wrote, “Bruce Poliquin, Map R10 Lot 34A has requested an abatement from a land value of $1,768,568 to a land value of $631,606, a reduction of $1,136,962. The request states that this parcel has been valued entirely as shorefront land compared to two other similarly situated peninsula parcels of land. […] I discussed this property with Mr. Poliquin yesterday. At the time, I could not explain the discrepancy between the number of shorefront acres assigned with his property compared to the Long Island property and I indicated that an adjustment might be called for. However, I do think it was reasonable to value the island properties the way that I did. I do not recommend an abatement.” [Letter, Town of Georgetown, Bill Van Tuinen to Board of Assessors, 3/24/04]

July 2001: Poliquin Purchased Property Located At 186 Ledgemere Rd In Georgetown, ME. [Sagadahoc Registry of Deeds, Deed, Instrument # 1892-0250, Recorded 7/25/01]

After The Abatement Was Denied, The Chair Of The Board Of Selectman Suggested Poliquin Apply For The Maine Tree Growth Program. In an April 2004 letter to Bruce Poliquin, the Chair of the Board of Selectman wrote to Poliquin, stating, “We reviewed your application for an abatement of the taxes on your lot […] at our last meeting. We asked our professional assessor, Bill Van Tuinen, how to deal with the property such as yours, with water and water views on three sides. He said that, after looking carefully at the lot, he did not think putting some land into a rear category would be appropriate. Instead, he recommended that you consider seeking tree-growth status for much of the lot, and we agree.” [Letter, Town of Georgetown, William F. Plummer IV to Bruce Poliquin, 4/07/04]

Maine Department Of Agriculture: The Maine Tree Growth Program Gave Tax Breaks To Owners Of “Land Managed Primarily For The Production Of Commercial Forest Products.” “The Maine Legislature enacted the Tree Growth Tax Law in 1972 to help Maine landowners maintain their property as productive woodlands, and to broadly support Maine’s wood products industry. By choosing to develop a Woodland Management Plan designed to realize the value of your timber (and meet other goals for your forest) through well-planned harvests over time, your property may be eligible for enrollment. You should be sure you understand all of the benefits and obligations of Maine's Tree Growth Tax Law, as well as the penalties for removing your land from the program. To enroll your property in the Maine Tree Growth Tax Program, you must have at least ten acres of forest land managed primarily for the production of commercial forest products. You may benefit from a reduction in property taxes, making it more affordable for you to own and manage your woodland. The decision to enroll land in the Maine Tree Growth Tax Program is a long term one. The penalties for removing land from the program can be high, so consider all the aspects before enrolling.” [Maine Department of Agriculture, Conservation, and Forestry, accessed 8/23/21]

4/14/04: Poliquin Received Approval To Enroll 10.3 Acres Of His Georgetown Property In The Maine Tree Growth Program From Georgetown’s Assessor. In a letter to Mary McDonald, Town of Georgetown Assessor, dated March 6, 2012, Poliquin wrote, “In applying for and maintaining my L0.3-acre lot in the Tree Growth Program, I have relied on the following: 1. A letter dated April 7, 2004 from the Town of Georgetown Board of Selectmen recommending that I consider enrolling the property in the Program. According to the letter, the recommendation originated from the Town's outside professional assessor, to which the Selectmen agreed. 2. The approval of my land being enrolled in the Program by the Georgetown Assessor dated April14, 2004.” [Letter, Town of Georgetown, Bruce Poliquin to Mary McDonald, 3/6/12]

The Deed For Poliquin’s Property At 186 Ledgemere Rd Prohibited Tree Harvesting

Poliquin Received A Tree Harvesting Tax Credit For His Georgetown Property, Despite Having A Deed Restriction On Tree Harvesting. “Bruce Poliquin, former state treasurer and Republican nominee, was asked whether it was ethical for him to enroll his Georgetown oceanfront property in Maine’s Tree Growth Tax Program, even though there were restrictions on the property that largely prevented tree harvesting. The program gives tax cuts to landowners whose property can be used for commercial harvesting.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/23/14]

Poliquin Claimed A Timber Tax Credit On His Property, Despite A Deed Restriction That Prohibited Timber Harvesting. “Problem is, when then-state Treasurer Poliquin’s use of the loophole came to light in 2012, inquiring minds quickly discovered that a deed restriction on his property largely prohibited any timber harvesting or other forestry activities the Tree Growth program was designed to encourage.” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 10/26/14]

Covenant Of The Deed Expressly Prohibited The “Excessive Cutting Of Trees.” The deed for his property in Georgetown states, “Trees may be thinned only for purposes of view, and the environment shall be completely protected at all times from the excessive cutting of trees.” [Sagadahoc County Registry of Deeds, Instrument #1892-0250, 7/25/01]

In His 2004 Tax Abatement Application, Poliquin Admitted His Property “Cannot Be Used For Any Commercial Purposes.” In his 2004 tax abatement application for his property in Georgetown, Poliquin wrote, “I further believe that I am being unfairly discriminated against in the Town’s property valuation process because apparently no consideration has been given for the severe deeded restrictions/easements imposed on my land. Specifically: … (b) my lot cannot be used for any commercial purposes.” [Poliquin’s Application for Abatement of Property Taxes, Town of Georgetown, 1/21/04]

Between 2004 And 2012, Poliquin Received A Reduced Tax Assessment On His Georgetown Property And Paid Only $30.53 Per Year In Taxes On The Estate’s 10 Oceanfront Acres

After Enrolling In The Maine Tree Growth Program, Poliquin’s Georgetown Property’s Assessed Value Dropped From $1.7 Million To $725,500. “Financially, it worked out rather nicely for Poliquin. By putting 10 of his 12 acres in tree growth in 2004, he dropped the overall assessed value of his land from $1,768,600 to $725,500 with the simple stroke of a pen. For the 2011-12 tax year, that land has a total value of $943,500 – of which the 10 acres in tree growth account for a paltry $4,300.” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 10/26/14]

Poliquin Paid $30.53 Per Year In Taxes On 10 Acres Of Oceanfront Property. “According to Georgetown’s property records, Poliquin’s tax bill is $6,668 on the two acres directly beneath his humble abode. (Taxes on the house and other structures total just over $13,000). And the annual tax on the 10 acres of prime oceanfront land just behind the mansion? That would be $30.53. You read that right.” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 10/26/14]

February 2012: Bangor Daily News Headline: “State Treasurer Poliquin Under Fire For Possible Misuse Of Tax Abatement Program. “Questions have arisen about State Treasurer Bruce Poliquin enrolling the majority of his 12-acre oceanfront property in the state's tree growth tax relief program. At the same time, lawmakers on Thursday tentatively approved a bill that tightens the standards for those who are enrolled in the tree growth program so it can't be used simply as a tax shelter. … According to Mary McDonald, who is the assistant to the Georgetown Board of Selectmen, Poliquin enrolled in the program in 2004 when he applied to set aside 10 acres of his property for tree growth. By doing so, he reduced the assessed value of his property from about $1.75 million to $725,000 and saved $5,000 annually in property taxes, according to Maine's Majority, which cited town tax records.” [Bangor Daily News, 2/02/12]

3/6/12: Poliquin Applied For The Open Space Land Program After Surrendering The Tree Growth Tax Break. [Town of Georgetown, Poliquin Open Space Land Application Schedule, dated 3/6/12, received 11/17/21]

• The Open Space Tax Program Was Intended For Land That “Provide[s] A Public Benefit” By “Conserving Scenic Resources,” “Enhancing Public Recreation Opportunities,” “Promoting Game Management,” Or “Preserving Wildlife Or Wildlife Habitat.” “WHAT IS OPEN SPACE Land that is preserved or restricted in use to provide a public benefit in any of the following areas: ▫ Conserving scenic resources ▫ Enhancing public recreation opportunities ▫ Promoting game management ▫ Preserving wildlife or wildlife habitat” [Maine Revenue Services, 10/12/17]

• In His Application, Poliquin Wrote His Property “[Met] The Public Benefit Test” Because Its “Open Space And Scenic Natural Resources Will Help Maintain The Unique Georgetown Landscape Which Is Important To Attracting Tourism And Commerce To The Area.” “[Application:] List the factors, as appropriate, to demonstrate this parcel meets the public benefit test. [Poliquin:] Preserving my land’s open space and scenic natural resources will help maintain the unique Georgetown landscape which is important to attracting tourism and commerce to the area.” [Town of Georgetown, Poliquin Open Space Land Application Schedule, dated 3/6/12, received 11/17/21]

• Poliquin Wrote That He Applied To Transfer His Property To The Open Space Program Because His Property Became “An Unfair Distraction To The Georgetown Municipal Officials, My Neighbors, And Me.” “Although my 10.3-acre lot is only one of the 23,000 state-wide properties, totaling 11 million acres, enrolled in the Maine Tree Growth Program, it has become an unfair distraction to the Georgetown municipal officials, my neighbors, and me. To avoid further distractions concerning my property going forward, I have decided to withdraw my aforementioned lot from Tree Growth and to apply for its transfer to the Open Space Program. […] My goal to permanently preserve the land’s open space and conserve scenic resources is a good match with the public benefits of the Open Space Program targeted by the Town and State.” [Poliquin Letter to Town of Georgetown Assessor Mary McDonald, dated 3/6/12, received 11/17/21]

6/27/12: Tax Assessor Bill Van Tuinen Recommended Approving Poliquin’s Application For Open Space Tax Break And It Was Accepted The Next Day. In a 2012 letter to the Georgetown Board of Assessors, the tax assessor, Bill Van Tuinen, wrote, “In my opinion, the application for open space taxation from Bruce Poliquin is completely in order and should be accepted by the Board of Assessors for taxation under open space. … Accordingly, I recommend that the Board accept the application for open space taxation of the Bruce Poliquin parcel.” The application was approved by the Board of Assessors the next day. [Memorandum, Town of Georgetown, Bill Van Tuinen to Board of Assessors, 6/26/12; Letter, Town of Georgetown, Mary F. McDonald to Bruce Poliquin, 6/27/12]

• June 2012: Portland Press Herald Estimated Poliquin Would Save Approximately Half Of His $943,000 Valuation Through The Open Space Land Tax Break. “However, critics like Freeman believe Poliquin has avoided tens of thousands of dollars in property taxes. He’ll still receive a significant property-tax break in the Open Space program, approximately 50 percent of his most recent valuation of $943,000.” [Portland Press Herald, 6/27/12]

• Portland Press Herald: Landowners “Typically” Have To Pay Back Taxes After They Withdraw Properties From The Tree Growth Program. “Poliquin paid about $30 a year in property taxes for a 10-acre parcel of oceanfront forest he had enrolled in the program. He was later able transferred the land in question into another open space conservation program that provides less of a tax break. Typically landowners who withdraw their properties from tree growth program are then required to pay a penalty often in the form of back taxes on what the land would have been valued at had it not been in the program.” [Portland Press Herald, 7/26/12]

• June 2012: Poliquin Denied That His Open Space Tax Break Application Was Related To Any Misuse Of The Tree Growth Program And Called The Story “An Unfair Distraction.” “Poliquin said Tuesday that his decision to transfer the property to Open Space had nothing to do with an inappropriate use of the Tree Growth program. ‘It’s an unfair distraction to Georgetown municipal officials, my neighbors and me. End of story,’ he said in a phone interview Tuesday afternoon.” [Portland Press Herald, 6/27/12]

2016: When Asked If He Took Advantage Of The Tree Growth Program, Poliquin Said He “Scrutinize[d]” His Tax Bills

When Asked Whether He Got A Lower Tax Rate Through The Main Tree Growth Tax Abatement Program, Poliquin Said That He, As A Real Estate Businessman, Scrutinized His Tax Bills With A Business Manager. HOST: “[21:20] Are you saying here today that you did not put any of your land in the Tree Growth tax abatement program, that you never put any land, waterfront land into that program?” POLIQUIN: “What I am saying, Jennifer, is that I’ve paid every single tax I’ve owed always in full.” HOST: “But did you get a lower tax because you took advantage of that program?” POLIQUIN: “Jennifer, I’m in the real estate business. I have properties in different parts of the state. And when I get a tax bill, I look at it, I scrutinize it my business manager does with me. And business, rather property is tax different ways. Depending on the parcel it is. And this happens to be a parcel along the coast, there are other parcels that are not, and I’ve paid every dollar I’ve owed in taxes. Always.” [CSPAN, 2018 Maine Public ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/19/16] (VIDEO)

As Of November 2021, Poliquin’s Property Was Still Enrolled In The Open Space Program

As Of November 2021, a note on the property card for 186 Ledgemere Road read, “WVT 2012, PARCEL ACCEPTED INTO OPEN SPACE VALUATION FOR 10.1 ACRES. 2 ACRES IS A SHOREFRONT HOMESITE, NOT IN OPEN SPACE. 0.2 ACRES IS A ROAD-DRIVEWAY, NOT IN OPEN SPACE. 10.1 ACRES IS WATERFRONT IN OPEN SPACE ADJUSTED 50%, 20% FOR ORDINARY OPEN SPACE AND 30% FOR PERMANENT PROTECTION. THE PERCENT GOOD FACTOR OF 65.8% APPLIED TO THE SEPARATE 10.1 ACRES OF SHOREFRONT HOMESITE IS TO BRING THE VALUE OF THIS PORTION OF THE PARCEL DOWN TO THE SAME LEVEL IT WOULD HAVE BEEN AS PART OF THE VALUE OF THE ENTIRE FRONTAGE UNDER REGULAR VALUATION.” As of November 2021, the Valuation Report for 186 Ledgemere Road included a reference to “10.1 ACRES OPEN SPACE 2012” [186 Ledgemere Road Property Card, Georgetown Tax Assessor, received 11/17/21; Valuation Report, received 11/17/21]

2014: Poliquin Lived In Maine’s 1st Congressional District During The Republican Primary To Represent Maine’s 2nd Congressional District

Poliquin Lived In Georgetown, Not In Maine’s 2nd Congressional District, When He Ran In The Republican Primary To Represent It. “‘My roots are in central Maine; it’s where I’m from,’ said Poliquin, a Republican running for his party’s nomination to the seat in Congress from Maine's 2nd Congressional District. ‘It’s where I grew up.’ But this year the campaign signs for his primary opponent, Kevin Raye, have a motto: ‘From here, for us.’ It’s a not-so-subtle jab at Poliquin, who lived at his large estate in coastal Georgetown -- which is in the state's other congressional district -- before moving to a family home in Oakland as he announced his run last year. The residency conversation is taking over the primary race. Not for 20 years has a politician’s home and history been such an issue in a Maine campaign.” [Kennebec Journal, 5/03/14]

2014: Poliquin Was Attacked For Running In ME-02 Despite Living In Southern Maine. RAYE: “[17:00] I pointed out the difference between a Wall Street perspective and a Main Street perspective. I’m a small business person. [...] That’s different than the Wall Street perspective. [...] The fact that he’s not from this district is another issue that I’ve brought up because I think it’s relevant. The people in Aroostok County certainly understand that as we do elsewhere across the district that Mr. Poliquin ran for governor, he ran for United States Senator from his home in southern Maine. He had the opportunity to run for Congress in southern Maine, his home district, but he chose to come to the northern district to run, and I think that’s a fair question to bring up.” [YouTube, Maine 02 RawFootage, WAGM Raye Poliquin Primary Debate, 5/30/14] (VIDEO)

March 2006: Poliquin’s Real Estate Company Purchased The Site Of The Stinson Cannery With The Intention Of Developing Residential Housing

3/20/06: Poliquin Purchased The Land Where The Stinson Cannery Was Located For $550,000. In a March 2007 letter from Bruce Poliquin to the Bath Board of Assessment, “Dirigo Holdings’ purchase the cannery for $550,000 on March 20, 2006 was the most recent transaction for this unique property. And, as explained above, the purchase was to acquire its land only. My company was the only entity to make a serious offer during the two years the cannery was on the market.” [Letter, Bruce Poliquin to Board of Assessment Review, 3/21/07; Sagadahoc County Registry of Deeds, Instrument # 1892-0250, recorded 7/25/01, accessed 9/30/21; Bath Tax Assessor, Property Cards, 9/24/21]
As Of March 2006, The Property Of The Stinson Cannery Had An Assessed Value Of $1.5 Million. According to the property card for 65 Bowery Street, Bath, Maine printed on March 16, 2006, the property had a total assessed value of $1,503,300. As of March 2006, the property had most recently been purchased by Bumble Bee Foods on May 3, 2004 for $1,380,000. [65 Bowery Street Commercial Property Record Card, 3/16/06]

2010 – 2017: Dirigo Holdings Listed 65 Bowery Street For Sale Multiple Times

2010: Dirigo Holdings Listed 65 Bowery Street For Sale For $2.5 Million, Meaning “Poliquin Has Given Up On A Plan To Convert The Site Into A Mixed-Use Development.” “The site of a former seafood cannery on Maine’s Kennebec River in Bath is up for sale. The 5.6 acre property is owned by Bruce Poliquin, an unsuccessful candidate for the Maine Republican Party’s gubernatorial nomination. The former Stinson Seafood cannery is on the market for $2.5 million. The Portland Press Herald says the decision means Poliquin has given up on a plan to convert the site into a mixed-use development with condominiums, a restaurant, shops and a marina. But the city of Bath refused to rezone the area to accommodate Poliquin’s proposed development. The vacant cannery building was destroyed by a May 2006 arson fire.” [Fosters, 9/29/10]

2017: Dirigo Holdings Listed 65 Bowery Street For Sale For $995,000. “NOTES: […] 2017 FOR SALE, ASKING $995,000” [Bath Tax Assessor, Property Cards, 9/24/21]

2006 – 2008: Poliquin Requested And Was Denied Two Tax Abatements For Old Stinson Cannery In Bath, ME

April 2006: Poliquin Received A $623,200 Reduced Valuation For The Cannery Shortly After Purchase Because Its Buildings Were Destroyed In The Arson. “As of April 1, 2006, I lowered the valuation of the Stinson property from $1,503,300 to $880,100, a reduction of $623,200. The parcel now has a land assessment of $680,000 and building assessment of $200,100. Since the buildings burned after April 1, they will be removed from the assessment for April 1, 2007.” [Valuation Appeal – Assessor’s Comments, City of Bath, 3/13/07]

October 2006: Poliquin Requested A $330,100 Valuation Abatement For The Bath, ME Cannery And Was Denied. “Finally, Mr. Poliquin asserts that the assessed value placed on his property results in unjust discrimination. I disagree. This property is assessed equally in accordance with its just value. Lowering this value would unfairly burden other taxpayers, causing them to pay more than their fair share. I urge the Board to uphold this assessment.” [Notice of Decision, City of Bath, 12/8/06; Valuation Appeal – Assessor’s Comments, Town of Bath, 3/13/07]

• Poliquin’s Appeal Of The Decision Was Denied By The Board Of Assessment Review. In an April 2007 letter to Bruce Poliquin, the Board of Assessment Review for the City of Bath denied his petition for a valuation abatement. "Your assertion that the sale price reflected the fair market value of the property is inconsistent with the constitutional basis for assessment. Your further assertions that buildings on the property were worthless and the condition of the property and its proximity to the sewage treatment plant made it far less valuable than other shorefront property in Bath had been considered by the assessor in the reduction of assessment from $1,503,300 to $880,100. This reduction in assessment has brought the assessed value to less than that of other property on the waterfront in Bath. Consequently the Board considers the current assessment, as of April 1, 2007, to be a fair and accurate value consistent with assessing practices throughout the City and not manifestly wrong.” [Letter, Board of Assessment Review, City of Bath, 4/19/07]

2008: Poliquin Requested A $621,600 Valuation Abatement For The Bath, ME Cannery And Was Denied. On February 27, 2008, Poliquin submitted an application a valuation abatement for 65 Bowery Street that read, “The basis of our company's abatement request is the lower $50,000 per acre valuation for the undeveloped portion of the abutting Sewer Treatment Plant lot vs. the much higher $161,000 per acre assessment for 65 Bowery Street. Our vacant property is completely undeveloped and, hence, should receive the same per acre assessment as the undeveloped part of the Sewer Plant lot resulting in an abatement of $621,600.” In a letter dated May 2, 2008, Bath Town Assessor wrote in a letter to Dirigo Holdings, “I have reviewed the assessed valuation for real property at 65 Bowery St. in accordance with the standards for assessment found in Section I of Article IX of the Maine Constitution and Title 36 of the Maine Revised Statutes. I find that the property is assessed equitably according to its just value, and there is no basis for the claim of unjust discrimination. The abatement request is denied.” [Notice of Decision, City of Bath, 5/2/08; Dirigo Holdings Application for Abatement, City of Bath, 2/27/08]

In 2011, Bill Nemitz wrote in his column, Poliquin, who lives in Georgetown, bought the property from his parents back around 1990 when it was a collection of six rental cottages that had been in the family all the way back to 1968. That changed in 2006, when he applied for and received permission from the town to tear down the cottages and build a sprawling, two-and-a-half story private clubhouse.” [Sagadahoc County Registry of Deeds, Quitclaim Deed, Instrument #0912-0277, recorded 10/19/88, accessed 9/30/21; Sagadahoc County Registry of Deeds, Plan, Instrument #0002-0053A, recorded 1/25/24, accessed 9/30/21; Google Maps, accessed 9/30/21; Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 12/4/11]

Per the Phippsburg fiscal year 2021 real estate property tax commitment book, Jeffrey and Laurel Harris owned real property located at 823 Popham Road, Phippsburg, Maine, which encompassed all five of the lots. [Sagadahoc County Registry of Deeds, Deed, Instrument #2015R-05015, recorded 7/19/15, accessed 9/30/21; Phippsburg Real Estate Tax Commitment Book by Name, Fiscal Year 2021]

- Jeffrey Harris Was The President Of Harris Golf. “When Poliquin wanted to open the club to public membership, abutters on both sides sued, eventually taking the case to the Maine Supreme Judicial Court. Eventually, the club failed and the original 5,000 square-foot house was sold in July 2015 to Harris Golf president Jeffrey Harris for $858,000.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/8/17]

January 2000: Poliquin Filed A Complaint And A Lawsuit Against Ocean View Park Campground, Which Was Next Door To The Cottage He Inherited From His Parents In Phippsburg, Maine

March 2000: Poliquin Complained To Phippsburg, Maine Town Board Of Appeals Over “Noise And Crowding” At Ocean View Park Campground Next Door To Him. “Bruce Poliquin's campaign to force his next-door neighbor, Ocean View Park Campground, to reduce the size of its business will come to a head Tuesday night. […] Poliquin said he wants to be able to enjoy his cottage, which he acquired from his parents, with his young son. But, he claims, noise and crowding at the campground interfere with his ability to stay at the cottage, which was built within a few feet of Popham Beach. The Board of Appeals heard Poliquin’s arguments March 30, but that hearing dragged on for four hours and had to be tabled until Tuesday.” [Portland Press Herald 4/24/2000]

- Poliquin Inherited His Phippsburg Cottage From His Parents. [Portland Press Herald 4/24/2000]

April 2000: The Phippsburg Board Of Appeals Rejected Poliquin’s Request To Reduce The Number Of Campsites At Ocean View Park Campground. “The Board of Appeals this week rejected an attempt by Bruce Poliquin to scale back the campground from 48 to 35 sites. Poliquin, a summer resident of Popham Beach, claimed the campground grew illegally over the years by adding a store and permanent trailer sites, and damaged sand dunes. The owners of the campground -- Charles and Bernadette Konzelman -- maintained the expansions were allowed. Board members voted 4-0 against Poliquin. In April 2000, the Phippsburg Board of Appeals voted 4-0 against Poliquin.” [Portland Press Herald, 4/28/2000]

April 2000: Poliquin Called The Police Twice Over A “Civil Dispute” In Phippsburg

4/10/2000: Poliquin Submitted A Complaint For A Sagadahoc County Sheriff Officer To Perform Officer Standby Over A Property Dispute In Phippsburg. According to a Sagadahoc County Sheriff report, Poliquin was the complainant in an incident in which the Sheriff’s office performed officer standby at Janes Way, Phippsburg. The officer noted, “Civil dispute over property lines. Complainant was advised to get a survey done.” [Sagadahoc County Sheriff, Incident # 00-01569, reported 4/10/2000, received 11/2/21]

4/8/2000: Poliquin Reported “Suspicion” Over A “Civil Matter” In Phippsburg. According to a Sagadahoc County Sheriff report, Poliquin was the complainant in an incident categorized as “Suspicion” at Janes Way, Phippsburg. The officer noted, “Civil matter.” [Sagadahoc County Sheriff, Incident # 00-01546, reported 4/8/2000, received 11/2/21]

2002: Poliquin Lost His Appeal Against Ocean View Park Campground

2002: Poliquin Appealed His Case Against Ocean View Park Campground To The County Superior Court And Lost. “The owner of a popular Popham Beach campground rejoiced Friday after a judge rejected a neighbor's allegations that the campground expanded illegally. […] Justice John R. Atwood's decision was filed Friday in Sagadahoc County Superior Court. Atwood exonerated the campground on the more significant charges that it had violated Phippsburg's shoreland zoning, land use and subdivision ordinances, but gave a small victory to the Konzelmans' neighbor, Bruce Poliquin, who filed the lawsuit.” [Portland Press Herald, 4/27/02]

- Campground Owner Charles Konzelman After Lawsuit: “We’ve Been Through Hell.” “We've been through hell,” said Charles Konzelman, who has operated the seasonal Ocean View Park campground with his wife, Bernadette, since 1979. ‘The charges he brought against us were uncalled for. He dreamed up a lot of this stuff and ended up putting us through a lot of grief and bad publicity.’” [Portland Press Herald, 4/27/02]

- Campground Owners Bernadette And Charles Konzelman’s Attorney: “If That Campground Were Not There, Popham Beach, With The Exception Of The State Park, Would Be A Private Enclave.” Roger Therriault, the Bath attorney who represented the Konzelmans, said Friday that his clients are relieved that the matter has been settled in their favor, though Poliquin does have the right to appeal Atwood's decision to the Maine Supreme Judicial Court. ‘These people probably run one of the best campgrounds in Maine and the proof is in the pudding,’ he said. ‘It also serves an important role in public access. If that campground were not there, Popham Beach, with the exception of the state park, would be a private enclave.”’ [Portland Press Herald, 4/27/02]

2003: Poliquin Refused To Tell Police Whether He Stole 124 Feet Of Fencing, Some Of Which Was 6 Feet Tall, From His Neighbors On Popham Road
2003: Ocean View Park Campground On 817 Popham Road Called The Sagadahoc Sheriff To Complain That Someone Had Stolen 124 Feet Of Fence, 24 Feet Of Which Was 6 Feet Tall, From Their Property. In an April 2003 Phippsburg Police Report responding to a complaint from Ocean View Park Campground at 817 Popham Road, Phippsburg, Maine, the officer wrote, “Cmplt advised that sometime in the past week someone had pulled down and removed about 24 feet of 6 ft high fence and posts and about 100 feet of snow fence from his property.” [Sagadahoc County Sheriff, Incident # 03-003189, 4/14/03, received 11/2/21]

According To A 2003 Police Report, Poliquin Acknowledged An Ongoing Property Dispute With His Neighbors But Repeatedly Refused To Say Whether He Stole 124 Feet Of Fencing From Them. In an April 2003 Phippsburg Police Report, the officer wrote, “Cmplt advised that sometime in the past week someone had pulled down and removed about 24 feet of 6 ft high fence and posts and about 100 feet of snow fence from his property. … I then asked him if he had taken the fence down and he asked me if I was accusing him of taking it down. I told him that I was asking him if he took it down and he said that he would not answer the question. […] I told him I was only interested in the theft of the fence. He again refused to answer the question stating he did not have to.” [Sagadahoc County Sheriff, Incident # 03-003189, 4/14/03, received 11/2/21]

- Poliquin Was Listed As A Suspect For Theft.

In Reference To Ocean View Park Campground Patrons, Poliquin Told The Owner Of The Campground, “These Are Not My Kind Of People.” “Back in 2000, Poliquin went after the Konzelmans, alleging they were in violation of the local land use ordinance and demanding that they shrink their operation. According to Bernadette, Poliquin looked out over the tents and campers one day and told her, ‘These are not my kind of people.’” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 12/4/11]

In December 2011, While Facing Concerns About Noise From The Popham Beach Club, Which He Owned, Poliquin Said “I’m Abutted By A Trailer Park! A Trailer Park!” “Poliquin counters that all existing rules regarding bad behavior still will be enforced — the club’s six members have yet to cause a ruckus — and that this is truly no big deal. ‘I’m abutted by a trailer park!’ he said, referring to the Konzelmans’ campground. ‘A trailer park!’” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 12/4/11]

to tax records. The property is now on the market as ‘The Driftwood,’ with the five-bedroom main house listed for $1 million and each of the dozen 600-square-foot cottages, built in the 1940s, now renovated and listed as ‘condominiums’ for between $295,000 and $395,000.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/8/17]

1990 – 2008: Poliquin Requested A Lower Assessment For His Blake Island Property In Oakland, ME Four Times

2008: Poliquin Requested A Lower Assessment For His Private Island. In August 2008, Poliquin requested that his private island in Oakland, Me – Blake Island – be reassessed by the town; however, the town denied Poliquin’s request. “As you can see from the information enclosed that you have been fairly and equitably [sic] assessed in comparison to Brown Island. The assessed value is considerably less than what you really feel it is worth based on what it is currently on the market for. The recent sales of islands only confirm the correctness of the assessment.”

[Letter, Kathleen Geaghan to Bruce Poliquin, 8/25/08]

1992: Poliquin Received An Additional $152.90 Abatement For Blake Island Building That Was Re-Assessed At A Value Of $200. In a November 1992 letter from a representative of the Town of Oakland to Bruce Poliquin it stated, “After review of the property and property record card, I have decreased the value of the building from $11,200 to $200. I have thus issued an abatement to the Tax Collector in the amount of $152.90.” [Letter, Town of Oakland, Kathleen Martin to Bruce Poliquin, 11/13/92]

1990: Poliquin Requested A Reassessment And Tax Abatement For Blake Island Land And Building Value And Received A $131.92 Abatement. In a December 1990 letter from a representative of the Town of Oakland to Bruce Poliquin it stated, “I did take into consideration the information you supplied in reference to the building value and agreed with you that the value was too high. That value was the result of a computer error. The new valuation on the building is $8,200 and the land at $94,100 changing the total valuation to $102,300. This is a total reduction of $9,700 in valuation resulting in an abatement of $131.92.” [Letter, Town of Oakland, Irene Pion to Bruce Poliquin, 12/21/90]

- Poliquin Complained His Building On Blake Island Was More Like “A Big Outhouse” And Demanded A Reassessed Value Of $500. In a December 1990 letter from a representative of the Town of Oakland to Bruce Poliquin it stated, “The building value especially shocked me since it is a trashed old shack – no door/windows. It’s sort of a big outhouse. Is that worth $11,200?” [Letter, Bruce Poliquin to Irene Pion, 9/04/90; Application for Abatement of Property Taxes, Town of Oakland, 12/28/90]

According To Its Website, Novurania Was “The Leading Manufacturer Of Luxury Yacht Tenders.” “In 1989, as Novurania of America, Inc., the company built its first fiberglass hull in the USA and rapidly gained attention as a first-class producer of reliable tenders in the yachting industry. Novurania has since built its impeccable reputation by hand-building one vessel at a time to the precise specifications of highly discerning clientele. As the leading manufacturer of luxury yacht tenders, innovation is apparent in every model of our comprehensive line of boats. Our in-house engineers, equipped with the most advanced hardware and software applications, continue to introduce new models based on the needs of our direct clientele. Leading the industry through innovation has always been paramount at Novurania.” [Novurania, accessed 10/28/21]

1999: Novurania Manufactured Tender Yachts With Outboard Motors That Were Up To 22 Feet In Length And Sold For Up To $35,000. “After Rio Mar Yachts sunk under the weight of financial problems last year, Novurania, a Miami-based manufacturer of high-end, rigid inflatable yacht tenders, moved into Rio Mar’s old quarters on south U.S. 1 by the county line. […] The company produces 16 different models of its outboard tenders, ranging in length from 12 feet to 22 feet. They cost between $10,000 and $35,000. It also produces a line of four different, inboard diesel tenders for ‘super-yachts.’ These range in length from 22 feet to 25 feet. They cost between $55,000 and $70,000.” [Vero Beach Press Journal, 6/13/99]

• Poliquin’s Yacht Was Manufactured In 2000. According to its registration, Poliquin’s boat’s serial number was PKD13070I001. According to Novurania, “US-PKD is our USCG assigned builder code. ‘US’ for country code. ‘PKD’ for Novurania of America. XXXXX is the five digit serial number, assigned by Novurania which follows the Sales order and Work order during production. X correlates to the month the boat is built. ‘A-L’, works out to January thru December. XXX is the production year, and the model year of the tender. ‘415’ would be a boat built in 2014, and sold as a 2015 model year boat.” Since the last three digits of Poliquin’s boat’s serial number was 001, it was manufactured in 2000 and purchased in 2001. Poliquin Touted His Experience Managing Bath Iron Works Pensions At Avatar Associates While Campaigning, Despite A 1993 Press Release Stating He Had “Never Been Involved In The Investment Process”

2016: Poliquin’s Campaign Touted His Management Of Bath Iron Works Pensions “A Number Of Times.” “Since he jumped into politics with an unsuccessful gubernatorial race in 2010, Bruce Poliquin hasn’t hesitated to tell voters that he prospered on Wall Street. Now a congressman fighting to keep his job in a tight 2nd District race against Democrat Emily Cain, Poliquin has mentioned his business background to make the case that he has the financial experience and willingness to work hard that Mainers need from their political leaders. One of the things he’s touted a number of times is that he successfully managed pensions at Bath Iron Works during his years in the world of finance.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/2/16]

November 2016: The Lewiston Sun Journal Quoted A 1993 Avatar Associates Press Release In Which Poliquin Said, “I’ve Never Been Involved In The Investment Process.” “One of the things he’s touted a number of times is that he successfully managed pensions at Bath Iron Works during his years in the world of finance. But some say that’s misleading. In 1993, a year after his wife died, Poliquin left his 13-year job at Avatar Associates, where he served as vice president for client services. He said he had to put his son first and couldn't be both a mother and father while holding such a demanding job. In a news release from Avatar announcing the move that year, overlooked since the time, Poliquin sought to allay any worries that his departure would have an impact on the company's work. ‘I’ve never been involved in the investment process so this will have zero effect on the investment management for clients,’ he said in a sweeping statement that includes the pension management Avatar carried out for employees at the Bath shipyard.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/2/16]

- Poliquin Spokesperson: Poliquin “Has Never Been A Wall Street Banker” And “Helped Manage The Process, Not Invest The Funds.” “Michael Byerly, Poliquin’s campaign spokesman, said Wednesday the congressman's words in 1993 were exactly right. ‘Bruce Poliquin has never been a Wall Street banker,’ Byerly said. ‘Never. We have said this over and over and over again.’ […] As Byerly put it, Poliquin ‘is not part of the Wall Street soup.’ ‘Congressman Poliquin helped manage the process, not invest the funds,’ Byerly said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/2/16]

2016: Bath Iron Works Union Members Criticized Poliquin’s Handling Of Their Pensions While At Avatar Investor Associates, Claiming His Mismanagement Robbed Them Of A Fair Retirement

Lewiston Sun Journal: “Some Bath Iron Works Employees Blame Poliquin For What They See As A Poor Job By Avatar In Managing The Company’s Pensions.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/2/16]

- Ralph Hilton, Retired Bath Iron Works Union Member: Poliquin “Managed Our Pensions In A Way To Rob Us Of A Fair Retirement.” “What he doesn’t mention is that he managed our pensions in a way to rob us of a fair retirement. Poliquin’s management meant pathetic contributions to Bath Iron Works’ employees, and no contributions at all to those of us who were hourly. In 1994, the union said ‘Enough,’ and we switched to a new plan. Here’s the difference: For my 12 years of work under the ‘Poliquin plan,’ I get $160 a month — barely enough to cover Medicare Part B. For my 19 years under the new plan, I get nearly 10 times the amount.” [Ralph Hilton Op-Ed, Bangor Daily News, 10/9/16]

- Hilton Said Bath Iron Works’ New Pension Plan Paid Him “Nearly 10 Times The Amount” He Received Monthly Under The “Poliquin Plan.” “In 1994, the union said ‘Enough,’ and we switched to a new plan. Here’s the difference: For my 12 years of work under the ‘Poliquin plan,’ I get $160 a month — barely enough to cover Medicare Part B. For my 19 years under the new plan, I get nearly 10 times the amount.” [Ralph Hilton Op-Ed, Bangor Daily News, 10/9/16]

- Glenn Burroughs, Bath Iron Works Employee Of 38 Years: Poliquin “Made Millions For Himself At Our Expense,” Which “He Used To Fund His Political Career.” “Working from Wall Street, Poliquin created a pension system that denied workers a good retirement. He boosted profits for the company and made millions for himself at our expense. He made enormous amounts of money — money he used to fund his political career. A lot of my friends received pensions that were barely enough to live on. During a recent visit to Bath, Poliquin dripped compliments about ‘the hardworking spirit of Maine’ and the ‘essential role’ BIW plays in supporting ‘America’s might around the world.’ He went on and on about the importance of ‘this great shipyard’ to Maine’s economy and U.S. military security. All of those things are true. We’re proud of that work. But for Poliquin to take credit for our work when he himself drove our pension into the ground takes a lot of nerve.” [Glenn Burroughs Op-Ed, Kennebec Journal, 11/2/16]

- Burroughs: “Poliquin’s Plan Meant Poverty For The ‘Hard-Working’ Families He Loves To Praise” With Lower Pension Compensation. “The difference in pension compensation before and after Poliquin is substantial. Some workers are now getting more than ten times the amount they would have received under Poliquin’s plan. Poliquin’s plan meant poverty for the ‘hard-working’ families he loves to praise.” [Glenn Burroughs Op-Ed, Kennebec Journal, 11/2/16]

Zweig-DiMenna Cofounder Martin Zweig Was A Principal Of Avatar Associates, Which Poliquin Called An “Affiliate Company” Of Zweig/Avatar Group

1988: While Vice President Of Avatar Associates, Poliquin Called The Zweig/Avatar Group “Our Affiliate Company.” “[Byline: Bruce L. Poliquin, Vice president, Avatar Associates, New York] To the Editor: We appreciate Pensions & Investment Age recognizing our 1987 performance of 23% as one of the best in the business (March 7 issue). Our asset allocation style produced this return by remaining nearly fully committed to stocks during the market rise through August, and then systematically shifting heavily into cash during early September before the October crash. The article, however, was incomplete by not listing the 36.1% performance of our affiliate company Zweig/Avatar Trend Timing Services. This ranked No. 2 of all the managers surveyed. Zweig/Avatar practices our same asset allocation strategy, but uses no-load equity and money market mutual funds instead of individual securities to implement the portfolio stocks/cash mix decisions. This service is designed primarily for middle-market tax-exempt funds.” [Bruce Poliquin Letter to the Editor, Pensions & Investment Age, 5/30/88]

- Avatar Associates Was “An Original Division Of The Zweig/Avatar Group.” “Prior to joining Schwab in 2002, Sonders was a managing director at U.S. Trust (a division of Schwab, 2000-2007) and a member of its Investment Policy Committee. Before U.S. Trust, she was a managing director and senior portfolio manager at Avatar Associates (1986-1999), an original division of the Zweig/Avatar Group which employed a tactical asset allocation investment approach.” [Plus Company Updates, 6/6/16]

1984: Zweig Founded Zweig-DiMenna Partners. “Zweig wrote ‘Winning on Wall Street’ and published stock-picking newsletters such as the Zweig Forecast for 26 years, helping start his career in hedge funds and philanthropy. He co-founded Zweig-DiMenna Partners in 1984 and, according to the New York Post, bought a 16-room apartment at Manhattan’s Pierre hotel in 1999 for $21.5 million. He also had a residence in Fisher Island, Fla.” [Newsday, 2/19/13]

According to his LinkedIn, Andrew Kern was a Portfolio Manager and Executive Vice President at Zweig-Avatar and Avatar Associates during an unspecified timeframe. In 1987, The Miami Herald reported, “‘There had been a lot of fear about rising rates,’ observed Andrew Kern, executive vice president of Avatar Associates, a money management firm in New York. ‘Today's news indicated the economy remains sluggish and there's no fear of more inflation or higher interest rates. That's the best explanation I can offer. This thing shocked me.’” [Andrew Kern LinkedIn, accessed 9/15/21; Miami Herald, 4/4/87]

In 2011, Bill Nemitz wrote in his column, Poliquin, who lives in Georgetown, bought the property from his parents back around 1990 when it was a collection of six rental cottages that had been in the family all the way back to 1968. Poliquin Sponsored An Amendment To The NDAA Which Expanded Eligibility For Business Incentives To Include Businesses At Brunswick Landing, Which Became Law In November 2015

- The HUBZone (Historically Underutilized Business Zone) Program Incentivized Businesses To Move Into Former Military Base By Giving Them Preference In Federal Contracts. “The HUBZone (Historically Underutilized Business Zone) program provides incentives to businesses affected by recent military base closures and those affiliated with the civilian redevelopment of closed military installations. […] The HUBZone provides an advantage in acquiring federal government contracts to any qualifying business.” [Bangor Daily News, 4/30/15]

- Poliquin Sponsored An Amendment To Allow Businesses To Qualify For HUBZone If 35 Percent Of Its Employees Lived Within 25 Miles Of The Business, Rather Than Living On The Former Base. “Currently, a business qualifies for the program if at least 35 percent of its employees live on the former military base. […] If enacted by the Senate, the amendment, sponsored by Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-Maine, and Rep. Elise Stefanik, R-New York, would adjust the requirements of the HUBZone program to make the economic incentives available to more businesses. The proposed amendment would allow a business to qualify for the HUBZone if 35 percent of its employees live within a 25-mile radius of the business; allows businesses close to the former base to take advantage of the HUBZone program; and extends the length of time for eligibility to either eight years or until the next census data is released, Poliquin said.” [Bangor Daily News, 4/30/15]

- Poliquin’s Amendment Would Allow Businesses At Brunswick Landing, The Former Site Of The Brunswick Naval Base, To Benefit From The HUBZone Program. “The House Armed Services Committee on Thursday approved an amendment to the 2016 National Defense Authorization Act that, if approved by the Senate, would allow businesses on and near the former Brunswick Naval Air Station to qualify for a business incentive program offered by the U.S. Small Business Administration. The HUBZone (Historically Underutilized Business Zone) program provides incentives to businesses affected by recent military base closures and those affiliated with the civilian redevelopment of closed military installations. Brunswick Naval Air Station, now called Brunswick Landing, closed in 2011 under the most recent Department of Defense’s Base Realignment and Closure process.” [Bangor Daily News, 4/30/15]

- The Executive Director Of The Midcoast Regional Redevelopment Authority Said The HUBZone Program Was A “Hollow Promise” For Businesses At Brunswick Landing Without The Eligibility Expansion. “But the HUBZone designation is ‘a hollow promise’ without the amendment, according to the director of the entity charged with redeveloping the base. While some former military housing on the 3,200-acre Brunswick property has been converted to civilian use, the current HUBZone threshold is impractical, according to Steve Levesque, executive director of the Midcoast Regional Redevelopment Authority, the entity charged with redeveloping the former Navy base.” [Bangor Daily News, 4/30/15]

- Sens. Collins And King Proposed The Expansion Of HUBZone Eligibility In 2012 And Praised Poliquin’s Amendment. “The expansion was first proposed in 2012 as a bill by U.S. Sens. Susan Collins and Angus King. After that effort failed, it was proposed in 2014 as an amendment to the defense budget. That effort also fell short of winning congressional approval. […] On Thursday, Collins and King praised Poliquin for his work on the House National Defense Authorization Act and vowed to press for its approval in the Senate. ‘Members of the Maine delegation understand that with the right federal investments and opportunities, we can support the redevelopment of bases like the former Brunswick Naval Air Station and foster economic growth,’ the senators said in a joint statement. ‘As the Senate begins consideration of the 2016 NDAA in the coming weeks, we will continue to pursue every opportunity — as we have in the past — to secure the HUBZones provision and pass it into law.’” [Bangor Daily News, 4/30/15]

October 2015: Poliquin’s Amendment Passed The House, Of Which He Said, “This Amendment Will Give Job Creators The Confidence They Need To Start New Businesses, Create More Jobs And Help Hire More Mainers.” “By adjusting the HUBZone requirements, my amendment will help the former Brunswick Naval Air Station recruit businesses to come on to the base and qualify for the HUBZone program. ‘This amendment will give job creators the confidence they need to start new businesses, create more jobs and help hire more Mainers. I am pleased to see the House pass this important bipartisan legislation and I encourage the Senate to pass this as well and the President Obama to sign this bill in to law.’” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 10/1/15]

November 2015: Amended NDAA Included Poliquin’s Amendment. “Today, Maine’s Second District Congressman, Bruce Poliquin, released the following statement after the House of Representatives passed the National Defense Authorization Act: ‘I’m proud to, once again, support this important national defense funding bill as it includes vital HUBZone language – which I helped draft – that will help bring more business and jobs to Maine. ‘By adjusting the HUBZone requirements, this HUBZone language will help the former Brunswick Naval Air Station recruit businesses to relocate to the base and qualify for the HUBZone program under the Base Realignment and Closure (BRAC) Act.’” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 11/5/15]

Note: As of November 2021, Harris Golf and Mere Creek Golf have not been awarded any federal contracts, according to searches in the Federal Procurement Data System.

Popham Beach Locals Expressed Concerns About “Dramatic Changes” To The Area Stemming From “Big Money ‘From Away’” And “Large, Luxury Homes”

- “A Number Of Cottages Have Become Large, Luxury Homes” In Popham Beach; Locals “Fear Even More Dramatic Changes Are Imminent.” “More than 400 years after settlers first colonized the area, Popham Beach remains a treasured ‘gem,’ still somewhat undiscovered, except to those who wind their way from Bath to the end of Route 209. ‘When you get up to where we are, it’s like we’re locked in time,’ Hatch said. But much has changed over the years — various hurricanes washed houses away, and the beach has eroded and reshaped itself. The old Coast Guard station was purchased and renovated into a million dollar estate, and a number of cottages have become large, luxury homes. This summer, with ‘For Sale’ signs posted at the former Ocean View Campground and Cottages — now on the market as condominiums — as well as Percy’s Store and Spinneys Restaurant and Guest House, some fear even more dramatic changes are imminent.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/8/17]

“‘Everybody sees all the ‘for sale’ signs,’ said Jane Dennis, who with her husband, Timothy, own Stonehouse Manor Bed and Breakfast on Silver Lake, not far from the beach. ‘It doesn’t take a genius to figure out. What is going to stop someone from coming in and changing the feel of it. People around here know. It’s happened before.’” [Bangor Daily News, 10/8/17]

May 2005: The Stinson Seafood Cannery In Bath, Maine Closed

“May 2005: The Stinson Seafood Cannery In Bath, Maine Closed. “[It will take investigators at least another day to determine what caused Thursday’s huge fire at the closed Stinson Seafood cannery and where it started. […] Giroux said he made the point that the city of Bath wants to preserve the Stinson site as its last piece of working waterfront. He said the city would also like to replace the jobs lost when Stinson closed on May 3, 2005, as well as jobs that have been eliminated over the years at Bath Iron Works.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/6/06]

And, as explained above, the purchase was to acquire its land only. My company was the only entity to make a serious offer during the two years the cannery was on the market.” [Letter, Bruce Poliquin to Board of Assessment Review, 3/21/07; Sagadahoc County Registry of Deeds, Instrument # 1892-0250, recorded 7/25/01, accessed 9/30/21]

I am confident that the majority of Bath residents believe, as do I, that an excellent long-term use of the abandoned industrial site is residential housing and a marina. Short-term, however, I am concerned about owning the vacant and increasingly dangerous industrial facility in the dense North End neighborhood.” [Letter, Bruce Poliquin to Bath City Council and Planning Board, 3/29/06]

Horton said there was not a ‘scintilla’ of evidence to suggest that Poliquin had anything to do with setting the fire.” [Associated Press, 3/31/07]

It is also the last deep water working waterfront site left for commercial development in Bath.” [Memorandum, Assistant City Manager Paul Mateosian to Bath City Council, 5/30/07]

Mr. Poliquin spoke to the initial traffic assessment that has been completed and expressed sensitivity to pedestrian concerns, noting that previous traffic from the cannery produced higher traffic levels than are projected with the proposed development. Bruce Poliquin has said he was a ‘job creator’ during his 35 years in private business. The 2nd District incumbent contrasted his record with that of his three opponents in the Nov. 6 election, including Democrat Jared Golden, who allegedly haven’t created any jobs. In a letter to voters recently, Poliquin said he spent his career ‘helping create jobs and grow the economy’ while Golden ‘has no job creation experience.’ Asked to explain where and when Poliquin created jobs, his campaign responded only that the two-term U.S. House member ‘has 35 years of job creation experience’ and that ‘Bruce’s business background is well-known.’ ‘Poliquin is the one candidate in this race with job creation experience, while Jared Golden has absolutely zero,’ said Brendan Conley, Poliquin’s campaign spokesman. The campaign turned down the opportunity to produce anybody who got a job because of Poliquin or to detail how Poliquin’s career as a banker, Wall Street executive or real estate developer created any permanent jobs.” [Portland Press Herald, 10/19/18]

2022 Campaign

October 2021: The NRCC Named Poliquin An “On The Radar” Candidate, The First Step In The Group’s “Young Guns” Program

“October 2021: The NRCC Named Poliquin An “On The Radar” Candidate, The First Step In The Group’s “Young Guns” Program. “The House GOP reelection committee is spotlighting an initial list of promising Republican candidates running in the 2022 midterms in some of the nation's most competitive congressional districts. The list by the National Republican Congressional Committee (NRCC), which was shared first with Fox News on Tuesday, includes 32 candidates from districts across the country. Those on the list are labeled ‘On the Radar’ candidates, the initial step in the NRCC’s ‘Young Guns’ program. […] Candidates deemed ‘On the Radar’ are Republicans running in competitive districts who’ve exhibited potential by meeting minimum thresholds for campaign fundraising and organization. […] Those on the list are […] Bruce Poliquin (ME-02), […] Also included are Tim Baxter, Gail Huff Brown, Karoline Leavitt and Matt Mowers (NH-01), Tom Kean Jr. (NJ-07), […] Lisa Scheller (PA-07)” [Fox News, 10/12/21]

- Poliquin Said He Was “Pleased” To Be Named To The Program. “Pleased the @NRCC, the Committee charged with reclaiming the U.S. House for Republicans and replacing Nancy Pelosi, has chosen our campaign as a top race for 2022. We must restore some common sense in Washington. https://t.co/eHRh1gKo2I?amp=1 #mepolitics #megov”
August 2021: Poliquin Announced His 2022 Candidacy And Said His Parents Were “Safe, Stable, And Well Cared For”

August 2021: Poliquin Said His Parents Were “Safe, Stable, And Well Cared For” After He Announced His 2022 Campaign. “Poliquin, who lost a lawsuit over the election outcome, sat out the 2020 election, citing ‘family priorities’ and the need to care for his elderly parents. He said that they’re ‘safe, stable, and well cared for.’ In fact, he said his 91-year-old dad encouraged him to run.” [Associated Press, 8/4/21]

2020 Campaign: Poliquin Said He Would Not Run In Order To Take Care Of His Aging Parents

August 2019: Poliquin Stated He Would Not Run For Office In 2020 In Order To Take Care Of His Aging Parents. “Former Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, in a heartfelt post on his Facebook page Sunday, announced that he will not run next year against Democrat Jared Golden for the 2nd District seat. Poliquin’s Facebook post starts off by saying that ‘family always comes first.’ The 65-year-old Poliquin said he plans to spend his time caring for his aging father and mother, who are 91 and 89, respectively.” [Portland Press Herald, 8/4/19]

- Poliquin: “My Family Priorities Will Not Allow Me To Run For Public Office Next Year.” “FAMILY ALWAYS COMES FIRST. When my brother passed some years ago, I became my parents’ only surviving child. They devoted their lives to raising Jim and me. Now, it’s my turn and responsibility to help care for them. Mom and Dad are 91 and 89. I love them dearly. I’m very involved in their lives. If you do it right, serving Maine in Congress is more then a full-time job. […] I’m committed to helping our small businesses build the strongest Maine economy in fifty years. The liberal Democrats have proven they’ll do none of this.
All they do is obstruct and criticize. Unfortunately, my family priorities will not allow me to run for public office next year. I’ll continue to speak up and battle for what’s right for Maine and America. There are lots of ways I’m already helping Republicans win next November. Then, we’ll see what the future holds for 2022. THANK YOU for all the encouragement and support during the past years. We’re not done yet! God Bless!”

2019: Poliquin Was Nominated, But Not Confirmed, To Chair The Securities Investor Protection Corporation
9/20/19: Trump Nominated Poliquin To Chair The Securities Investor Protection Corporation (SIPC).
“Former Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin has accepted a nomination from President Trump for a volunteer position as Chairman of the Board of Securities Investor Protection Corporation.” [News Center Maine, 9/20/19]

- The SIPC Was A Non-Profit Corporation Created By The Federal Government “To Protect The Clients Of Brokerage Firms When Those Firms Go Out Of Business Or Go Bankrupt.” “The Securities Investor Protection Corporation is a nonprofit corporation that was created with the Securities Investor Protection Act of 1970. It exists to protect the clients of brokerage firms when those firms go out of business or go bankrupt.” [Associated Press, 9/20/19]

- Poliquin Would Serve As Chair And Director Of The Corporation In A Volunteer Capacity For A Three-Year Term Ending In 2021. “President Donald Trump announced Thursday that he planned to nominate Poliquin for the volunteer post, which requires U.S. Senate confirmation. […] The White House said Poliquin was tapped to be both a director and the corporation’s designated chairman for the remainder of a three-year term, which expires at the end of 2021.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 9/20/19]

2018 Campaign

October 2018: The Portland Press Herald Editorial Board Endorsed Golden, Citing Poliquin’s Votes For The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act And Repeal Of The ACA

“Where we think Golden would stand up for Mainers, Rep. Bruce Poliquin has, for the most part, let them down. Poliquin voted for the $1.5 trillion Trump tax cut that has done little for the average American but is now ballooning the deficit. The loss of revenue caused by the tax cut has led Republican leaders like House Speaker Paul Ryan and Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell to call for cuts to Medicaid, Medicare and Social Security. Meanwhile, Poliquin said there is a ‘finite amount of money out there’ for the temporary food assistance that helps thousands of Mainers, and he has championed policies in the House farm bill that worsened hunger here in Maine. Poliquin also voted to repeal the Affordable Care Act in ways that would have been devastating, stripping 24 million Americans of health insurance by 2026, including more than 100,000 Mainers. And while Poliquin has become an ardent supporter of protecting Americans with pre-existing conditions since he got on the campaign trail, his votes say otherwise.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 10/22/18]

“Poliquin chooses not to explain his position. Other members of Maine's congressional delegation frequently comment on the most important issues facing the country, while Poliquin mostly remains silent.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 10/22/18]

October 2018: Poliquin Criticized Golden For Recruiting Volunteers From Boston And Nearby Massachusetts Towns. “Bruce Poliquin is Maine’s candidate. Jared Golden appears to be more of a Massachusetts-backed candidate. See the photos. There are busses of liberal activists being pushed up from Boston to flood our state and advance Golden’s radical agenda.”
October 2018: The Bangor Daily News Endorsed Golden Over Poliquin’s “Radical” Agenda

October 2018: Bangor Daily News Endorsed Golden To “Represent The 2nd District’s Interests, Not A ‘Radical’ Agenda.” [Bangor Daily News, Editorial Board, 10/18/18]

- Bangor Daily News Editorial Board: Poliquin “Who Dodges Debate Questions, The Media And His Constituents, Has Been A Reliable Vote For Much Of The GOP Agenda In Congress,” Including TCJA, ACA Repeal, And “Welfare Reform.” “Poliquin, who dodges debate questions, the media and his constituents, has been a reliable vote for much of the GOP agenda in Congress, including tax cuts, ACA repeal and ‘welfare reform.’ Golden has a record of working with both Democrats and Republicans in the Maine House to pass a diverse array of legislation. He has done this at a time when Democrats control the House, but Republicans control the Maine Senate and governor’s office.” [Bangor Daily News, Editorial Board, 10/18/18]

Poliquin Claimed Bangor Daily News’ “Editorial Staff Has Purposely Misreported Bruce's Record For More Than Four Years” After Its Editorial Board Endorsed Golden. “We are pleased to announce the socialist candidate in the race, Jared Golden, has been endorsed by the Bangor Daily News. Their editorial staff has purposely misreported Bruce's record for more than four years. The paper highlights Golden's opposition to welfare reform, specifically work requirements for able-bodied adults to receive taxpayer-funded welfare. And they identify Golden’s scheme to more than double taxes on Maine families and small businesses while putting Medicare at risk for seniors. Unlike Jared Golden, most Mainers and Bruce think that these are bad ideas and don't want a socialist representing them in Congress. Please share if you agree.”
October 2018: Maine Snowmobilers’ Association Endorsed Poliquin

October 2018: Maine Snowmobilers’ Association Endorsed Poliquin. “Proud to have the support and endorsement of the Maine Snowmobilers Association. Snowmobiles are an important part of our Maine way of life. These are real Mainers, not political pundits or biased papers. I will always be a voice in Congress for our snowmobilers in Maine.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 10/19/18]

September 2018: The NRA Endorsed Poliquin

September 2018: The NRA Endorsed Poliquin. “On behalf of our six million members across the country, the National Rifle Association Political Victory Fund (NRA-PVF) today endorsed Bruce Poliquin for re-election to the U.S. House of Representatives in the 2nd Congressional District of Maine. ‘Congressman Poliquin is a true champion of our Second Amendment freedoms and hunting heritage,’ said Chris W. Cox, NRA-PVF chairman.” [NRA Institute for Legislative Action, 9/20/18]

September 2018: Maine Sportsmen’s Alliance Endorsed Poliquin

September 2018: Maine Sportsmen’s Alliance Endorsed Poliquin. “In the Second District Congressional race, the SAM ILA endorsement went to Congressmen Bruce Poliquin. He has been a strong advocate for the Second Amendment, a tireless worker for the Second District, as well as a great congressman. We will work hard for his re-election.” [Sportsman's Alliance of Maine Institute for Legislative Action Facebook, 9/10/18]

2018: Poliquin Repeatedly Claimed Golden Had A Socialist Agenda

October 2018: Poliquin Repeatedly Accused Jared Golden, A Veteran, Of Being A Young Radical Socialist. “In the first debate of the election campaign for Maine’s 2nd Congressional District, two-term U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin called his Democratic challenger a radical at least five times, a socialist twice and young three times. Within minutes of the start of the televised debate, Poliquin, a Republican, strung all of them together to declare that Lewiston state Rep. Jared Golden ‘is a young radical who embraces a socialist agenda.’ Golden, a 36-year-old who served two combat tours in the Marines, repeatedly declared that the 64-year-old Poliquin was lying. ‘The amount of lies coming out of Bruce’s mouth is astounding,’ Golden said, insisting that the ‘absolutely despicable’ charges suggest he is ‘somehow un-American’ after he fought for his country in both Iraq and Afghanistan.” [Portland Press Herald, 10/9/18]

- Golden Campaign Stated, “To Question Golden’s Commitment To Country Is Not Only Wrong, It Is Disgusting,” And That Added Poliquin Chose To Stay At Harvard During The Vietnam War. “The ‘most outrageous’ comments, it said, were ‘Poliquin’s repeated attacks on Jared Golden’s patriotism’ despite the fact the Democrat left college to serve in the Marines while Poliquin ‘chose not to leave Harvard during the Vietnam War.’ ‘To question Golden’s commitment to country is not only wrong, it is disgusting,’ the campaign said in a post-debate news release.” [Portland Press Herald, 10/9/18]

Poliquin Alleged That The Republican Golden Said He Collaborated With In Maine’s State Legislature Was Really A Democrat; The Lewiston Sun Journal Called Poliquin’s Claim “Clearly Deceptive”

Poliquin Alleged That The Republican Golden Said He Collaborated With In Maine’s State Legislature Was Really A Democrat; The Lewiston Sun Journal Called Poliquin’s Claim “Clearly Deceptive.” “GOLDEN SUPPORTER SAVIELLO IS A DEMOCRAT? In a recent mailer, the Poliquin campaign called Golden a liar in part because the Democrat touts his support from state Sen. Tom Saviello as an indication that he’s willing to work across the aisle with Republicans. The ad shows photographs of Golden and Saviello with the senator’s picture circled in red and tied to a comment below it that states, ‘This guy Golden claims is a bipartisan ‘Republican’ was actually an elected Democrat.’ The ad is as close to false as you can get and clearly deceptive. Saviello is a Republican from Wilton. He ran for Senate as a Republican and continues to be a member of the Senate GOP caucus. When he first ran for the Maine House in 2002, Saviello was a Democrat. But in 2005, he switched his affiliation to independent. He said the Republicans recruited him to run on the GOP line for a Senate seat in 2009 and he’s remained a Republican ever since.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/1/18]

Poliquin Alleged Golden Improperly Worked Part-Time For A Dentist, Which The Lewiston Sun Journal Rated As A “False” Claim

Poliquin Alleged Golden Improperly Worked Part-Time For A Dentist, Which The Lewiston Sun Journal Rated As A “False” Claim. “A Poliquin mailer included a section headlined ‘Golden: a dental worker?’ that went on to say, ‘In official documents he claims work for a dentist. With no dental license he took home $23,000 from the office.’ The assertion aims to imply Golden did something fishy or improper after the number showed up on a the financial disclosure form he filed when he was an aide to U.S. Sen. Susan Collins on the Senate’s Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs seven years ago. Golden mentioned on the form that he earned $23,000 working at a dental office, where he was a part-time office manager mostly responsible for cleaning up the place. ‘I wasn’t working on anybody’s mouth,’ Golden said. ‘I didn’t need a license.’ The implication that Golden’s pay for part-time work for a dentist was improper is false.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/2/18]

2016 Campaign

October 2016: Portland Press Herald Editorial Board Endorsed Cain, Citing Poliquin’s Support For House Republicans’ Obstructionism

October 2016: Portland Press Herald Editorial Board Endorsed Cain Because Poliquin “Sided Regularly With The House Republicans Whose Obstructionism Gives Congress Its Bad Name.” “Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, has, through his energetic style and prodigious fundraising, earned attention in a way not often seen for a first-term congressman. But he has also sided regularly with the House Republicans whose obstructionism gives Congress its bad name, and whose efforts are largely centered on repealing the significant gains of the Obama administration. For those reasons, and for Democrat Emily Cain’s solid legislative record and firm grasp of the federal issues facing Maine, we are endorsing Cain in the Nov. 8 election.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 10/23/16]

October 2016: The NRCC Launched TV And Radio Ads That Claimed A Bill Cain Supported To Screen Students’ Weight To Combat Child Obesity Would Have Violated Teenage Girls’ Privacy. “The National Republican Congressional Committee released a radio ad that criticizes L.D. 1886, a bill Cain sponsored in 2007 that would have introduced a weight-screening process in public schools as a way to collect data on childhood obesity trends. The screening would have been confidential and parents could opt out of the program, but those details are left out of the radio ad and a similar television ad released Monday. The ad suggests the legislation Cain supported would have violated the privacy rights of students, ‘including teenage girls,’ while painting Cain as a lawmaker who favors unnecessary government regulations.” [Portland Press Herald, 10/7/16]

- The Maine Medical Association And Maine State Nurses Association Denounced The Ad As “Offensive,” “Outrageous,” And “False.” “An advertisement campaign aimed at candidate Emily Cain in the heated 2nd Congressional District race has stirred controversy among several medical associations in the state. […] The Maine Medical Association (MMA) spoke out on Tuesday against the ad, calling it flat-out false. ‘Well, it's pretty offensive actually,’ said MMA president Dr. Charles Pattavina. ‘It really disparages the reputations and work done by many people on a bipartisan commission back in 2005 to develop a lot of recommendations that are only about the health of Maine children.’ The Maine Medical Association is tied to the Maine Physician's Action Fund, a nonpartisan PAC that Pattavina said has chosen to stand behind Cain. It is not the only organization to speak out in opposition, though. The Maine State Nurses Association called the ad ‘outrageous and false,’ and even the Maine Parent Teacher Association has called the ad into question.” [NBC News Center Maine, 10/5/16]

- Leaders Of Maine Non-Profits That Advocated For Women’s Health Denounced The “Use Of Women’s Bodies As Political Fodder.” “Both Kelli McCannell, executive director of Hardy Girls Healthy Women, a Waterville-based nonprofit dedicated to the health and well-being of girls and women; and Eliza Townsend, executive director of the Maine Women’s Lobby, a nonprofit advocating freedom from violence and discrimination and access to health care, were quick to lament the use of women’s bodies as political fodder in interviews Friday. ‘Overall, it feels like election years bring up shallow and insulting references to women, not speaking to what actually matters to the women and girls we speak to and work with year round,’ McCannell said in an email. […] ‘We’ve issued press releases about both of those, and yet what do I get a phone call about? I get a phone call about bodies,’ [Townsend] said. ‘It’s very frustrating to think that this is the level on which our political campaigns are conducted.’” [Kennebec Journal, 10/7/16]

- In An Ad, Cain Said The NRCC Aimed To “Exploit The Insecurities Of Teenage Girls” And “Twist The Truth About A Public Health Policy That Republicans And Democrats Supported.” “Well, now we've seen it all. Special interests bankrolling Bruce Poliquin would rather talk about women's weight than Congressman Poliquin's ties to Wall Street. Their false attacks twist the truth about a public health policy that Republicans and Democrats supported. Like a lot of women, I've struggled with my weight. It's hard. It's very personal. So for the special interests backing Bruce Poliquin to exploit the insecurities of teenage girls, it's just a new low. I'm Emily Cain and I approve this message, because Maine deserves better.” [Cain for Congress, YouTube, 10/5/16] (VIDEO)

Poliquin Refused To Denounce The NRCC Ad. “Cain criticized Poliquin for voting to support a budget for the Department of Veteran's Affairs in 2015 that fell short of a request from President Barack Obama for more funding, a subject that is also the subject of the VoteVets ad; while Poliquin said he would not denounce an NRCC ad that criticized Cain for legislation aimed at monitoring childhood obesity.” [Portland Press Herald, 10/19/16]

October 2016: NFIB Endorsed Poliquin

October 2016: NFIB, The National Federation Of Independent Business, Endorsed Poliquin. “Sen Collins joins ME’s largest small business org (NFIB/ME) in announcing support of Cong Bruce Poliquin for re-election today. #mepolitics” [Bruce Poliquin Twitter, 10/18/16]
CNN: NFIB Was “One Of The Most Influential Small-Business Advocacy Groups In The Country” And Advocated Against The ACA. “The National Federation of Independent Business is one of the most influential small-business advocacy groups in the country. 2016: Poliquin Declined Debate Invitations From Three TV Networks And A Radio Station

2016: Poliquin spurned three other TV networks that planned to hold debates -- including the Maine Public Broadcasting Network -- in the nationally targeted campaign. [...] On Tuesday, the Republican's campaign said Poliquin would attend debates hosted on Oct. 19 by WAGM, a Presque Isle CBS affiliate, and on Oct. 26 on WCSH and WLBZ, the NBC affiliates in Portland and Bangor. That left out three other debates already confirmed by Cain. Those were on Oct. 17 on MPBN, Oct. 24 on WVII, Bangor's ABC affiliate, and Nov. 4 on WMTW and WABI, Portland's ABC affiliate and Bangor's CBS affiliate, respectively. Those networks got Tuesday emails from the Republican's campaign saying they are ‘respectfully declining’ the invitation. Poliquin also rejected an invitation for an Oct. 12 call-in show on WERU, a community radio station in Blue Hill.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 9/27/16]

September 2016: Poliquin Refused To Release His Tax Returns; Cain Released Hers To The Portland Press Herald

September 2016: Poliquin Refused To Release His Tax Returns; Cain Released Hers To The Portland Press Herald. “All four members of the congressional delegation – U.S. Sens. Susan Collins and Angus King, who are not up for re-election, and U.S. Reps. Chellie Pingree and Bruce Poliquin, who are running for re-election in November – declined to release copies of their 2015 tax records. […] Only Poliquin’s challenger, former state Sen. Emily Cain, an Orono Democrat, released her 2015 tax returns to the newspaper. She did so on condition that copies of the actual tax documents not be posted on the internet.” [Portland Press Herald, 9/24/16]

2014 Campaign

October 2014: Bangor Daily News Editorial Board Endorsed Cain And Criticized Poliquin For Shutting Down A State Program That Allowed Non-Profits To Borrow Money From The State Government

Bangor Daily News Endorsed Emily Cain For Congress. “We doubt that Poliquin would be nearly as effective an advocate for the 2nd District as Cain. Throughout the campaign, the former state treasurer has run on a simplistic message of less spending, less debt and more jobs without discussing the intricacies and difficult choices his supposed platform would entail.” [Bangor Daily News, Editorial Board, 10/23/14]

- Bangor Daily News Editorial Board Criticized Poliquin For Shutting Down A State Program That Allowed Non-Profits To Borrow Money From The State Government. “As he evokes fiscal responsibility, one of Poliquin’s lasting legacies as state treasurer is his role in effectively shutting down a state program that allows nonprofit organizations to borrow money through the Maine Health and Higher Educational Facilities Authority. In Augusta, MaineGeneral Medical Center will be left paying $42 million more over the next 30 years to finance its expansion than it would have if the money came through the authority. That’s $42 million more from Medicare, the state’s Medicaid program, and employers’ and residents’ pockets.” [Bangor Daily News, Editorial Board, 10/23/14]

October 2014: Poliquin Stated Emily Cain “Never Had A Full-Time Job”

- In The 2014 Republican Primary, The NRA Endorsed Poliquin’s Opponent, Kevin Raye. “Earlier in the year, the NRA had endorsed Poliquin’s Republican primary opponent, Kevin Raye. In the primary, Raye attacked Poliquin for his previous donation to a gun control organization and comments in the 2010 Republican gubernatorial primary that seemed to support mandatory background checks for gun purchases. In a column in the Bangor Daily News, Poliquin responded and clarified his earlier comments, declaring his commitment to defending the 2nd Amendment.” [Maine Wire, 10/2/14]

June 2014: Bangor Daily News Column: “Poliquin Pick Quickens The Pulse Of Maine’s Far Right”

Bangor Daily News Column Headline: “Poliquin Pick Quickens The Pulse Of Maine’s Far Right.” “The tea party candidate won GOP primary in Maine’s 2nd Congressional District, which had pitted pro-compromise, centrist Republican Kevin Raye against the starkly conservative Bruce Poliquin. While Raye (like the successful Democratic nominee, Emily Cain) pointed to accomplishments that depended on people working in a bipartisan way, Poliquin derided these as impure deviations from principle. What does purity mean to Poliquin? Well, he embraced a precept that basically rejects any future fiscal compromises with Democrats, even if those fulfill a good many of his goals.” [Bangor Daily News, Amy Fried Column, 6/17/14]

Each Of Poliquin’s House Races Broke Records For Campaign Spending In Maine

Poliquin And Golden’s 2018 Race Broke The Record For Maine’s Most Expensive Federal Election At $24.3 Million. “This year's 2nd District congressional race was the most costly federal election in Maine's history. Counting both contributions to the candidates and outside spending by political groups aiming to influence the outcome in a hotly contested race, at least $24.3 million poured in the largely rural district. Campaign finance reports filed with the Federal Election Commission show Democrat Jared Golden, who won, spent $5.6 million compared to the $4.1 million that Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin shelled out in his quest to secure a third term.” [Portland Press Herald, 12/10/18]

Poliquin And Cain’s 2016 Race Broke The Record For Maine’s Most Expensive Federal Election At $18.3 Million. “This year's 2nd District race topped the 2016 contest in which Poliquin defeated Democrat Emily Cain. That race cost about $18.3 million. The next costliest race for federal office was in 2008, when Sen. Susan Collins' re-election cost $17.6 million at a time when outside spending was much less of a factor. That year, outside committees accounted for only $3 million of the overall tab.” [Portland Press Herald, 12/10/18]
Poliquin And Cain’s 2014 Race Broke The Record For Maine’s Most Expensive House Race At $6.7 Million. “Many see the 2014 result between Cain and Poliquin as, at least partially, a byproduct of other factors. […] Still, the Poliquin-Cain race was the most expensive House race in Maine history, with the campaigns and outside groups spending a combined $6.7 million.” [Bangor Daily News, 6/20/16]

2012: Poliquin Lost His Campaign For U.S. Senate, Which He Launched At A Tea Party Event And Self-Funded With More Than $100,000, In The Republican Primary

Poliquin Launched His 2012 U.S. Senate Campaign At A Tea Party Event And “Courted Voters Within The Ultraconservative Movement.” “Two years ago, Bruce Poliquin kicked off his U.S. Senate campaign at a tea party event and courted voters within the ultraconservative movement.” [Fosters, 8/17/14]

- While Opening A Campaign Office In 2012, Poliquin Said He “Loves ‘To Argue With Liberals’” And Would Be “The Best Friend To The Conservative Movement” Maine “Has Ever Had, Ever.” “While opening a campaign office during a U.S. Senate bid in 2012, Republican Bruce Poliquin described himself as someone who loves ‘to argue with liberals.’ In Washington, he said would be ‘the best friend to the conservative movement’ that Maine ‘has ever had, ever.’” [Kennebec Journal, 11/8/14]

As Of June 2012, Poliquin Contributed $109,000 To His Senate Campaign, Which Raised $229,000 Total. “Maine State Treasurer Bruce Poliquin is giving his Senate campaign treasury a boost. Documents filed with the Federal Election Commission indicate he has raised more than $229,000 through May 23. And he provided nearly half of that himself. The FEC filings indicate Poliquin gave $109,000 to his campaign.” [Bangor Daily News, 6/4/12]

2011 – 2012: Poliquin Was Maine’s Treasurer In LePage’s Administration

January 2011: Poliquin Began Serving As Maine Treasurer In LePage’s Administration. “A day after being sworn in, Gov. Paul LePage administered the oath of office Thursday to three prominent state officials — the secretary of state, attorney general and treasurer. The Republican governor also issued a brief to-do list to the three: Make it easier to bring business to Maine. Fix the looming liability in the pension system, and work on the health care issue. With some pomp — but not to the level of the inauguration a day earlier — Charles Summers, Bill Schneider and Bruce Poliquin took their oaths in a House chamber packed with relatives, friends and state officials, including Chief Justice Leigh Saufley and U.S. Attorney Thomas Delahanty II.” [Bangor Daily News, 1/6/11]

2010: Poliquin Lost His Campaign For Maine’s Governor, Which He Mostly Self-Financed, Coming In Sixth In The Republican Primary

As Of May 2010, Poliquin Contributed More Than $711,000 To His Gubernatorial Campaign. “Poliquin, a business entrepreneur from Georgetown, reported spending more than $711,000 on his campaign so far, including $254,000 since late April. Poliquin has dipped into his own personal accounts for more than $300,000 of the total through ‘in-kind’ donations. He ended the reporting period with $26,700 in the bank.” [Bangor Daily News, 5/28/10]

- Poliquin Raised A Total Of $753,950.30 For His Gubernatorial Campaign. According to the Maine Ethics Commission, Poliquin raised $753,950.30 and spent $753,962.27 in his primary campaign for Maine Governor in 2010. [Maine Ethics Commission, Candidate Search, accessed 7/29/21]

2012 – 2014: Poliquin Faced Criticism In Republican Primaries For Contributing To Handgun Control Voter Education Fund

2014: The NRA Endorsed Poliquin’s Primary Opponent Kevin Raye, Whose Spokesperson Said, “Kevin’s Record Stands In Contrast To Bruce Poliquin’s History Of Donating To Handgun Control, Inc.” “Less than two weeks before the June 10 primary, the National Rifle Association’s Political Victory Fund on Friday endorsed Kevin Raye, one of two Republicans seeking to be the party’s candidate in the race for an open seat in Maine’s 2nd Congressional District. Mike Leavitt, a spokesman for the Raye campaign, announced the endorsement Friday morning. […] ‘Kevin’s record stands in contrast to Bruce Poliquin’s history of donating to Handgun Control, Inc., and his support for mandatory background checks while running for governor in 2010,’ Leavitt said. Poliquin was the only Republican in the 2010 Republican gubernatorial primary who said he supports mandatory background checks for gun purchases. In December 1989, he donated $500 to an organization known as Handgun Control, Inc., which later became The Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence.” [Bangor Daily News, 5/30/14]

2012: Senate Republican Primary Candidate Rick Bennett “Questioned A $500 Donation Poliquin Made In 1989 Made To Handgun Control Inc.” “I think it raises legitimate questions about his consistency on the issues,” said Rick Bennett, who along with Poliquin is among the six Republican hopefuls vying to replace U.S. Sen. Olympia Snowe, R-Maine. […] In addition to Poliquin’s involvement with pro-environment NRCM, Bennett also questioned a $500 donation Poliquin made in 1989 made to Handgun Control Inc., which is now the Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence. The group supports increased regulations on the sale of firearms, including mandatory background checks.” [Portland Press Herald, 6/2/12]

Bangor Daily News: Question 4 “Sought To Reduce The Excise Tax On Some Vehicles And Place Limits On State And Municipal Spending” And Was “Soundly Rejected” By Voters. “Maine voters soundly rejected a pair of tax-related referendums that sought to reduce the excise tax on some vehicles and place limits on state and municipal spending. Proponents of Question 2, the excise tax initiative, and Question 4, known as TABOR (Taxpayer Bill of Rights) II, both conceded defeat shortly after 10 p.m. on Tuesday.” [Bangor Daily News, 11/3/09]
Significant Findings

✓ In October 2021, Poliquin submitted his personal financial disclosure form six weeks late and potentially underreported his commercial property assets by more than half a million dollars.

✓ Candidates were required to submit personal financial disclosures 30 days after raising $5,000, which for Poliquin was September 10, 2021; Poliquin submitted his PFD on October 22, 2021.

✓ In his October 2021 PFD, Poliquin reported that his real estate company, Dirigo Holdings, owned between $450,005 and $900,000 worth of property in Phippsburg, Maine.

✓ According to Phippsburg property tax records, Dirigo Holdings owned $1.4 million worth of Phippsburg property in the 2022 fiscal year and $1.5 million in the 2021 fiscal year.

✓ In March 2012, the Maine Ethics Commission ruled Poliquin submitted an incomplete income disclosure statement after he did not disclose his ownership of two businesses as Maine’s Treasurer.

✓ Poliquin ran a real estate business, requested tax abatements, and petitioned a planning board while serving as Maine’s State Treasurer.

✓ Maine’s legislature voted to have the Maine Supreme Court rule on whether Poliquin’s business activities while in office violated the state constitution, which they declined to do.

✓ An op-ed writer called Poliquin “the most ethically challenged member of Gov. Paul LePage’s administration” due to his “egregious” business conflicts of interest.

✓ Poliquin’s former chief of staff and campaign manager never disclosed his ownership of Hutson Consulting on personal financial disclosures, and failed to report an estimated $120,557.50 in payments from Poliquin’s campaign to Hutson Consulting on personal financial disclosures.

✓ Hutson Consulting was registered in 2016 at Poliquin’s Oakland property.

✓ Poliquin lived in his DC office between 2015 and 2018, a practice that was subject to a request for an ethics investigation from 29 Congressional Democrats in 2017.

✓ The Democrats who requested an investigation said members who slept in their offices and received “free government benefits” and fostered a hostile work environment by interacting with their staff and Capitol employees “in their sleeping attire, underwear, and even partially nude.”

✓ As of January 2019, the House Ethics Committee had not addressed the issue.

✓ In 2015, Poliquin signed the NRCC’s “Patriot Program” contract, which was subject to an ethics complaint over alleged use of official resources for campaign activities.

✓ The NRCC “Patriot Program” contract required incumbents to outline their legislative goals and raise six figures for the NRCC in exchange for campaign support.

February 2011: Poliquin Submitted A Financial Disclosure In Which He Did Not Disclose His Self-Employment

February 2011: Poliquin Submitted A Financial Disclosure In Which He Did Not Disclose His Self-Employment. On February 16, 2011, Poliquin submitted a financial disclosure as Maine’s Treasurer on which he disclosed his only sources of income as Zweig-DiMenna Associates, CK Partners, and Vanguard Funds. Poliquin left the sections for income derived from self-employment, income derived employment by another, and income received by an immediate family member blank. January 2012: The Democratic Party Of Maine Filed A Complaint Against Poliquin Over His Financial Disclosure

January 2012: The Democratic Party Of Maine Filed A Complaint Against Then-State Treasurer Poliquin Alleging He Filed An Income Disclosure Statement That Failed To Comply With Statutory Reporting Requirements. “The complaint, dated January 18, and signed by state Democratic Party Executive Director Mary Erin Casale, begins, ‘On behalf of the Maine Democratic Party, I am filing a formal complaint against State Treasurer Bruce Poliquin. I respectfully request that the Commission find that the most recent income-disclosure statement filed by Treasurer Poliquin in February 2011 fails to comply with the statutory reporting requirements. After having made such a finding, I respectfully urge the Commission to assess, at the same time or later hearing, the maximum penalty available under Maine law.’” [Maine Wire, 2/4/12]

February 2012: Poliquin Stated He Was Involved In Four Businesses And Organizations He Had Not Disclosed, Including Two Businesses That He Owned, In Response To The Complaint

February 2012: In A Letter To The Democratic Party Of Maine, Poliquin Stated He Was Involved In Four Businesses And Organizations He Had Not Disclosed In February 2011. Question 6: In 2010, did you hold ‘[a]ny offices, trusteeships, directorships or positions of any nature,’ with Dirigo Holdings, LLC, or the Popham Beach Club, or ‘with any [other] for-profit or non-profit firm, corporation, association, partnership or business?’ Answer 6: As stated above, I am the sole member and the registered agent of Dirigo Holdings, LLC, which holds my real estate investment in the Popham Woods Condominium. I am the president of the non-profit Popham Woods Condominium Unit Owners’ Association. I am the owner of the Popham Beach Club, but do not hold any such offices in connection with the Popham Beach Club. I am a limited partner in Zweig-DiMenna Partners, LP, a New York investment management limited partnership; C.K. Capital, LP, a Delaware investment management limited partnership; and Marshall Mall Associates, a Pennsylvania real estate limited partnership. I hold no officer or director position in these partnership investments. I am not engaged in any way in the operation or management of these entities.” [Poliquin Letter to Maine Democratic Party, via Maine Wire, 2/3/12]

- Poliquin Did Not Disclose His Ownership Of Popham Beach Club And Dirigo Holdings. “As stated above, I am the sole member and the registered agent of Dirigo Holdings, LLC, which holds my real estate investment in the Popham Woods Condominium. I am the president of the non-profit Popham Woods Condominium Unit Owners’ Association. I am the owner of the Popham Beach Club, but do not hold any such offices in connection with the Popham Beach Club.” [Poliquin Letter to Maine Democratic Party, via Maine Wire, 2/3/12]

March 2012: The Maine Ethics Commission Ruled That Poliquin Filed An Incomplete Financial Disclosure
“The Maine ethics commission has ruled that state Treasurer Bruce Poliquin should not be fined for failing to fully report his income on a disclosure report to the state. The Commission on Governmental Ethics and Election Practices also voted 4-1 Wednesday that Poliquin had filed an incomplete report, but had since amended it to make it complete. The case stems from a Maine Democratic Party complaint alleging that Poliquin did not fully disclose the sources of his 2010 income in an annual statement filed with the commission.” [Portland Press Herald, 3/1/12]

- The Maine Ethics Commission Did Not Fine Poliquin Since He Submitted An Amended Disclosure. “The Maine ethics commission has ruled that state Treasurer Bruce Poliquin should not be fined for failing to fully report his income on a disclosure report to the state. The Commission on Governmental Ethics and Election Practices also voted 4-1 Wednesday that Poliquin had filed an incomplete report, but had since amended it to make it complete.” [Portland Press Herald, 3/1/12]

2011 – 2012: While Maine State Treasurer, Poliquin Ran A Real Estate Business, Requested Property Tax Abatements, And Petitioned A Planning Board

Poliquin Claimed He Was Not Attached To His Businesses While In Office, But Actively Sought Reduced Tax Abatements On Corporate Properties And Petitioned A Planning Board As State Treasurer

2011 – 2012: Poliquin Was Maine State Treasurer

December 2011: Poliquin Claimed He Was “Right By The Book” While Maintaining Ownership Of His Businesses While Serving As Maine’s Treasurer

December 2011: Poliquin Claimed He Was “Right By The Book” In Maine Ethics Law Regarding His Businesses, Which He Said Were “Run By Professionals [He] Trust[ed].” “Then-Attorney General Janet Mills, now vice chair of the Maine Democratic Party, said Tuesday that her office told Poliquin it could not give him legal advice until he actually took over as treasurer. ‘I think we encouraged him to seek his own private legal counsel if he had any questions – because he wasn’t a public official,’ Mills said. Whether he did isn’t clear. But in that interview last month – which he put off until he was driving home that night because ‘this deals with a private-sector thing … (and) I’m right by the book’ – Poliquin told me that his various businesses now ‘are run by professionals I trust and I’ve worked with for a number of years.’” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 1/18/12]

2011: Poliquin Requested Tax Abatements On Two Of His Phippsburg Properties And Successfully Obtained $1,833.88 In Tax Abatements

9/18/11: Poliquin Sought A Tax Abatement From The Phippsburg Town Assessor For His Two Business Properties Using His State Government Email. In September 2011, Poliquin corresponded with the Phippsburg town assessor via email about having both the Popham Beach Club property and 106 Sagamore Dr reassessed. Poliquin represented himself as one of the active contacts for the Popham Beach Club and the Popham Woods development. Poliquin also included his title, Maine State Treasurer, in his signature and sent the emails from his official state email address (bpol@maine.rr.com). [Email, Bruce Poliquin to Juanita Wilson, 9/18/11]

- Poliquin Received A Tax Abatement Of $1,833.88. On 29 September 2011, Poliquin received a Certificate of Abatement from the Phippsburg town assessor. “The enclosed copy of the Certificate of Abatement issued to

9/9/11: Poliquin E-Mailed The Phippsburg Assessor To Request A Meeting About His Property Taxes. On September 9, 2011, then-State Treasurer Bruce Poliquin sent an e-mail to Juanita C. Wilson-Hennessey, the “Contract Assessing Agent” for the Town of Phippsburg, stating the following: “I’d like to take you up on your offer to meet regarding my Phippsburg property taxes … I’m concerned about all the properties, especially Popham Woods Condominium and the Popham Beach Club.” [Phippsburg Assessor’s Office e-mail, 9/9/11]

- The Assessor Responded That “Certified Appraisal” And “Firsthand View” Would Be The Only Factors In A Potential Adjustment. On September 14, 2011, Wilson-Hennessey responded with the following: “The only paperwork that will be relevant is a certified appraisal for any of the units, which I am willing to review with an open mind, but my first view is likely to whether I see room for further value adjustment.” [Phippsburg Assessor’s Office e-mail, 9/14/11]

- Poliquin Replied With Concern Over The Assessed Value’s Impact On Condo Fees And Selling Units. On September 18, 2011, Poliquin responded with concern over the impact the high assessed values were having on the monthly condominium fees and, therefore, Poliquin’s ability to sell the units. “Besides the Popham Woods Units and the Popham Beach Club, a real concern of mine is the common land value at Popham Woods. As you know, it’s now values at several times the assessed value a few short years ago … This spiking common land value has driven up the monthly maintenance fee at PW to $303. This, in turn, is a major reason why we haven’t been able to sell the Units. Comparable condo homes in Brunswick, for example, have monthly fees roughly $150 – 200. The $303 per month fee scares potential buyers away. It happened again last week. Without a more realistic common land value, the Town will not receive the full tax benefit of building out the project and selling the homes. Lastly, I’d welcome you taking another look at Wood Island.” [Phippsburg Assessor’s Office e-mail, 9/18/11]

- Poliquin Used His “Maine State Treasurer” Signature In Both E-Mails To The Assessor. In both the September 9 and 14 e-mails, Poliquin indicated in his signature that he was the “Maine State Treasurer.” [Phippsburg Assessor’s Office e-mail, 9/18/11, 9/9/11]

December 2011: Poliquin Petitioned The Phippsburg Planning Board To Expand Operations At His Beach Club, Which He Later Admitted Was “A Dumb Thing To Do”

December 2011: Poliquin Personally Petitioned The Phippsburg Planning Board To Expand Operations At His Beach Club. “Last month, Poliquin appeared before the Phippsburg Planning board seeking to expand allowable uses for his beach club from a $1,950-per-season, members-only facility to ‘year-round catered functions including but not limited to corporate meetings, family, church, civic gatherings and health retreats.’” [Portland Press Herald, Bill Nemitz Column, 1/18/12]

- Poliquin Later Called His Petition Of The Phippsburg Planning Board “A Dumb Thing To Do.” “In December, Poliquin went before the Phippsburg Planning Board to expand operations at a beach club near a residential development he built. Poliquin now admits that was a mistake, telling a Portland radio station, ‘That was a dumb thing to do.’” [Portland Press Herald Editorial Board, 2/14/12]

February 2012: The Maine State Attorney General Suggested That Poliquin “Disassociate” Himself From His Business Entities While In Office

January 2012: Maine State Rep. Mark Dion Requested Maine’s Attorney General Opinion On Whether Poliquin’s Business Dealings In Office Violated The State Constitution. “Maine legislative Democrats say a second request is being filed with the state attorney general on whether Treasurer Bruce Poliquin’s private business dealings violate the state Constitution. Portland Democratic Rep. Mark Dion made a second request for a formal opinion on Poliquin’s business dealings as owner of the Popham Beach Club. Dion sent his initial request for an opinion to Attorney General William Schneider on Jan. 17. The Attorney General’s Office is investigating. Democrats say the Constitution bars the treasurer from engaging in any business of trade or commerce while serving in that office.” [Portland Press Herald, 1/30/12]

February 2012: Maine Attorney General Suggested That Poliquin “Disassociate” Himself From His Business Entities While In Office. “[Republican Attorney General of Maine William Schneider] did offer an opinion of what Poliquin should do next. ‘With respect to the Treasurer, any activities related to the active management of stock or other ownership interests should be handled by third persons in the absence of any authority suggesting that such activities are acceptable when undertaken directly,’ Schneider wrote. ‘During the Treasurer’s term in office he should take steps to disassociate himself from the active management of any of the entities in which he is invested and any entities in which he is the sole owner or principal or agent.’” [Bangor Daily News, 2/10/12]

Maine State Democrats And Opinion Writers Criticized Poliquin’s Handling Of His Real Estate Business While Serving As Maine’s State Treasurer

May 2012: Maine State Senator Phil Bartlett Called For Poliquin’s Resignation Over His Conflicts Of Interest: “[Poliquin] Has Thumbed His Nose At The Maine Constitution.” “Maine families are struggling in these tough economic times. They are concerned about putting food on their tables, making sure their children have health care and a decent education, and maybe someday having the means to retire. Maine’s public servants are tasked first and foremost with safeguarding the interests of our working families. Time and time again, Maine State Treasurer Bruce Poliquin has chosen not to answer this call. He has kowtowed to special interests and squandered state resources on a political witch hunt. He has exploited loopholes for personal gain, forcing his neighbors to pay more for services that he uses. He has thumbed his nose at the Maine Constitution by engaging in prohibited personal business dealings. For these reasons, he must resign.” [State Senator Phil Bartlett, Press Release, 5/30/12]

4/1/12: Elliott Epstein Op-Ed: Poliquin Was “The Most Ethically Challenged Member Of Gov. Paul Lepage's Administration.” “It seems appropriate that State Treasurer Bruce Poliquin, the most ethically challenged member of Gov. Paul LePage's administration, has declared his candidacy for the U.S. Senate, probably the most ethically challenged legislative body in the United States.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Elliott Epstein Guest Column, 4/1/12]

- Elliott Epstein Op-Ed: Poliquin’s Dealings With His Real Estate Company While State Treasurer Were “Particularly Egregious.” “Poliquin has been criticized for failing to disclose his business ties on a state conflict-of-interest form (a lapse he has since cured by amending his filing), for improperly using Maine's ‘tree growth’ tax break to reduce his real estate taxes on 10 acres of waterfront property (a lapse he has also cured by taking the land out of ‘tree growth’) and for running a real estate development business while acting as state treasurer. The last item involves Poliquin's ownership of Dirigo Holdings LLC, which runs Popham Woods Condominiums in Phippsburg that includes memberships in Poliquin's Popham Beach Club. Poliquin even appeared last year before the Phippsburg Planning Board on behalf of the Beach Club. Poliquin's participation in this business venture is particularly egregious. It violates more than just an inconsistently enforced and difficult-to-interpret legislative statute like the ‘tree growth’ law. It runs counter to a fundamental provision of the state's highest law, the Maine Constitution.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Elliott Epstein Op-Ed, 4/1/12]

“Poliquin’s participation in this business venture is particularly egregious. It violates more than just an inconsistently enforced and difficult-to-interpret legislative statute like the ‘tree growth’ law. It runs counter to a fundamental provision of the state's highest law, the Maine Constitution. Article V, section III of the Maine Constitution states: ‘The Treasurer shall not, during the treasurer's continuance in office, engage in any business of trade or commerce, or as a broker, nor as an agent or factor for any merchant or trader.’ It seems a reasonable requirement to impose on the official responsible for the state's finances. Unless ‘business of trade or commerce’ is read extremely narrowly to mean only the sale of goods (the kind you can bag or box and walk away with), it's hard to make a straight-faced argument that Poliquin is not engaged in the kind of business barred by Article V.”

March 2012: The Maine Supreme Court Declined To Rule After The Maine House Of Representatives Voted Unanimously To Request They Issue An Opinion On Whether Poliquin Had Violated The Maine Constitution By Engaging In Commerce While In Office

3/1/12: The Maine House Of Representatives Voted Unanimously To Request That The Maine Supreme Court Issue An Opinion On Whether Poliquin’s Business Dealings While In Office Violated The Maine Constitution. “The Maine House of Representatives unanimously passed an order Thursday requesting the state’s highest court to issue an opinion on whether Treasurer Bruce Poliquin has violated the state constitution by engaging in commerce while in office. By a 122-0 vote, lawmakers approved House Order 41, offered by Majority Leader Philip Curtis of Madison, that asks the Maine Supreme Judicial Court to weigh in Poliquin’s situation. Curtis’ order reads, in part: ‘If it is determined that the Treasurer of State has engaged in any business of trade or commerce, or as a broker, or as an agent or factor for any merchant or trader, does that finding affect or have an impact on the validity of the actions taken by the Treasurer of State in the performance of his official duties as used in the Constitution of Maine, Article V, Part 3, Section 3?’” [Bangor Daily News, 3/1/12]

3/29/12: The Maine Supreme Court Declined To Rule On Poliquin’s Potential Constitutional Violation. “Maine’s highest court has declined to issue a ruling on a complaint that state Treasurer Bruce Poliquin violated the state Constitution by engaging in commerce while in office. […] ‘The record contains no findings or adjudication regarding the nature of any alleged constitutional violation; no facts have been presented to the Justices through the communication from the House of Representatives; the questions themselves are presented in the abstract and do not indicate the context in which they should be evaluated; and the record is silent with regard to the need for the discharge of any duties of the House of Representatives or the proposed commencement of any action by the Executive or Legislative Branch or any other governmental entities,’ the opinion reads. ‘Absent clear facts on which to opine, the questions present too broad a range of potential factual and legal possibilities. Given the procedural posture of this matter, we cannot conclude that an unusual exigency exists concerning a matter of live gravity.’” [Bangor Daily News, 3/29/12]

In 2018, Poliquin Sold 123 Snow Pond Road And Said He Continued To Lease An Apartment On The Property. “He had some hits and misses in real estate, but the bottom line is that between his career in finance and his real estate dealings, Poliquin’s personal wealth totaled more than $5 million by 2015, according to his financial disclosure form. OpenSecrets.org, which studies congressional financial forms, estimated he had $11.6 million, putting him well ahead of most House members. Since then, he sold the Messalonskee Lake property he got from his parents in 2007, not long after they moved to a senior housing place in Brunswick, where they still reside. That netted him another $450,000. He leases an apartment on the property from the buyers.” [Bangor Daily News, 9/22/18]

2015 – 2018: Poliquin Lived In His DC Office, A Practice Subject To Request For An Ethics Investigation From 29 House Democrats In 2017

2015 – 2018: Poliquin Slept In A Murphy Bed In His DC Office

2015: Poliquin Purchased And Installed A Murphy Bed In His DC Office. “Poliquin, who has made no secret of his living arrangements in Washington, has touted the efficiency of sleeping in a pull-down bed that he purchased and installed in his office in 2015. He takes showers at the House gymnasium.” [Kennebec Journal, 3/7/18]

2016: Poliquin’s DC Office Moved Buildings; He Installed A Murphy Bed In His New Longworth Office. “Maine’s Republican congressman says he’s bringing his Murphy bed with him to his new office. U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin and his staff are moving from the Cannon House office building to the Longworth building. Poliquin literally lives in his office, where he prefers the efficiency of sleeping in his pull down bed and showering in the House gym. Many members of Congress rent apartments in Washington instead.” [Associated Press, 1/8/17]

As Of September 2018, Poliquin Slept In A Murphy Bed In His DC Office. “Poliquin said patience is one of his best skills, along with the ability to listen to what people tell him. He said he wakes up every morning ready to get to work. ‘I don’t have an apartment or a house’ in Washington, Poliquin said, pointing out that he sleeps on a pull-down Murphy bed in his congressional office, showers at the congressional gym and focuses from morning to night on doing what he can ‘for the folks in the 2nd District.’” [Bangor Daily News, 9/22/18]

December 2017: 29 House Democrats Requested An Ethics Committee Investigation Into Members Who Slept In Their Offices, Whom They Said Received Free Government Benefits And Fostered A Hostile Working Environment

December 2017: 29 House Democrats Requested An Ethics Committee Investigation Into Members Who Slept In Their Offices. On December 13, 2017, 29 House Democrats submitted a letter to Ethics Committee leadership reading, “We are writing to question the legality and propriety of a significant number of Members choosing to use their Congressional offices as overnight lodging facilities. The actions of these Members raise several obvious and potential violations that reflect negatively upon the decorum and credibility of the House as a body and as an institution.[…] Accordingly, we request that the House Committee on Ethics review this issue and provide us with an advisory opinion answering: (1) whether it is in any way a violation of any House rule for a Member to reside in and sleep overnight in their offices; (2) whether this practice has, at any previous time, been expressly approved by the Committee on Ethics; (3) whether any federal law (including tax laws relative to imputed income) is violated by this practice; and (4) whether there are penalties for Members who do not abide by House standards.” [Letter to Reps. Susan Brooks and Ted Deutch, via Politico, 12/13/17]

• The Letter Alleged Members Who Slept In Their Offices “May Be Receiving Free Government Benefits Worth Up To 10% Of Their Salary.” “Members who sleep overnight in their offices receive free lodging, free cable, free security, free cleaning services, and utilize other utilities free of charge in direct violation of the ethics rules which prohibit official resources from being used for personal purposes. It has been previously reported that Members who use their offices for lodging may be receiving free government benefits worth up to 10% of their salary. While Members’ parking is treated as taxable compensation, these other amenities are not.” [Letter to Reps. Susan Brooks and Ted Deutch, via Politico, 12/13/17]

- The Letter Alleged Members Who Slept In Their Offices Subjected Their Staff And Capitol Employees To A “Hostile Work Environment,” Interacting With Staff “In Their Sleeping Attire, Underwear, And Even Partially Nude.” “Staff members and other House employees are subjected to seeing and at times interacting with Members in their sleeping attire, underwear, and even partially nude. This is intimidating and offensive; thus, contributing to a hostile work environment. Such is disrespectful and inconvenient to the housekeeping and maintenance workers who are required to clean the office buildings in the evenings and the Members’ staff who may be performing duties late at night and in the early hours. Staff members are often required to clean up in the mornings after a Member has slept in the office, which could also create a hostile work environment.” [Letter to Reps. Susan Brooks and Ted Deutch, via Politico, 12/13/17]

- The Letter Did Not List Any Members Who Slept In Their Offices By Name. [Letter to Reps. Susan Brooks and Ted Deutch, via Politico, 12/13/17]

As Of January 2019, The House Ethics Committee Had Not Started A Process To Address Whether Members Who Lived In Their Offices Violated The Committee’s Guidelines

The Letter’s Signatories Requested A Response By January 5, 2018, Which They Did Not Receive. “Among the 30 CBC signatories to the previously unreported Dec. 13 letter are CBC Chairman Cedric Richmond (D-L.a.), Assistant Democratic Leader Jim Clyburn (D-S.C.) and Rep. Elijah Cummings of Maryland, the top Democrat on the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee. They asked for a response from the Ethics Committee by Jan. 5. Two months have since elapsed, and members say they’ve heard nothing back.” [Politico, 3/6/18]

As Of January 2019, The House Ethics Committee Had Not Started “The Process For Addressing The Housing Issue.” “Lofgren said the process for addressing the housing issue would start with public hearings, though she said it’s hard to say when that will happen since her committee has to attend to other priorities first. The final decision could ban members from living in their offices altogether or charge them for using the space.” [McClatchy DC, 1/22/19]

After House Democrats Submitted The Letter, Poliquin Defended His Practice Of Living In His Office

March 2018: Poliquin’s Spokesperson Defended Poliquin’s Practice Of Living In His Office “So He Can Focus All Of His Time Working On Behalf Of The Families Of Maine’s 2nd Congressional District.”

“Poliquin, who has made no secret of his living arrangements in Washington, has touted the efficiency of sleeping in a pull-down bed that he purchased and installed in his office in 2015. He takes showers at the House gymnasium. He ‘lives in Maine and works in his office during the week when he is in Washington, D.C., so he can focus all of his time working on behalf of the families of Maine’s 2nd Congressional District,’ said Brendan Conley, his spokesman.” [Kennebec Journal, 3/7/18]

Poliquin’s Spokesperson Said Poliquin “Chooses To Sleep In His Office, Without Any Additional Costs Or Burdens To The Taxpayer In Any Way, Shape Or Form.” “He ‘lives in Maine and works in his office during the week when he is in Washington, D.C., so he can focus all of his time working on behalf of the families of Maine’s 2nd Congressional District,’ said Brendan Conley, his spokesman. Poliquin ‘chooses to sleep in his office, without any additional costs or burdens to the taxpayer in any way, shape or form,’ Conley said.” [Kennebec Journal, 3/7/18]

Cynthia Dill Op-Ed: “As A Member Of Congress From Maine With Abundant Personal Resources, It’s Distasteful That Poliquin Flagrantly Freeloads And Gloats About Being A Squatter.” “It’s beneath the dignity of public office for the Couch Caucus to camp in the nation's government buildings. Staff and other public employees working on the premises should not have to tolerate these guys padding around in pajamas trimming their toenails. As a member of Congress from Maine with abundant personal resources, it's distasteful that Poliquin flagrantly freeloads and gloats about being a squatter. The Longworth House Office Building is not a public housing project. It's high time the good Congressman gets himself a room. Cynthia Dill is a civil rights lawyer and former state senator.” [Portland Press Herald, Cynthia Dill Op-Ed, 4/2/17]

- Poliquin Attacked Dill's Op-Ed As “False, Dishonest To Its Readers And Based On Personal, Inaccurate Attacks.” “Today, the Portland Press Herald published an article written by Cynthia Dill that is completely false, dishonest to its readers and based on personal, inaccurate attacks, specifically falsely claiming that Congressman Bruce Poliquin (ME-02) benefits from a special Congressional health care plan. Contrary to the narrative pushed in the published piece, built on numerous inaccuracies, Congressman Poliquin—on Day One in office—chose not to accept any special health care benefits or the Thrift Savings retirement plan afforded to Members of Congress.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 4/2/17]

2015: Poliquin Signed The NRCC’s “Patriot Program” Contract, Which Was Subject To An Ethics Complaint Over Alleged Use Of Official Resources For Campaign Activities

September 2015: The Washington Post Reported Poliquin Was Among Two Dozen Incumbent Republican Representatives Who Signed Onto The NRCC’s “Patriot Program.” “Two dozen House Republicans have agreed to privately detail their ‘legislative strategy’ to party operatives, promising to offer ‘political justifications’ for their goals in Congress. The Daily 202 obtained a copy of the three-page contract that the National Republican Congressional Committee requires members to sign if they want to participate in its Patriot Program. […] Here are Republicans members who are in the Patriot Program and apparently signed the contract: Barbara Comstock, Rodney Davis, Jeff Denham, Dan Benishek, Tim Walberg, Martha McSally, David Valadao, Mike Coffman, Carlos Curbelo, David Young, Bob Dold, Mike Bost, Bruce Poliquin, Frank Guinta, Cresent Hardy, Lee Zeldin, John Katko, Will Hurd, Ryan Costello, Steve Knight, Elise Stefanik, Dan Donovan and Mike Bishop.” [Washington Post, 9/3/15]

The Washington Post: The Patriot Program Promised “Access To Mounds Of Campaign Cash” With “Strings Attached,” Including The Submission Of A “Detailed, Written Legislative Strategy.” “The initiative, designed to protect potentially vulnerable incumbents, brings with it special attention and access to mounds of campaign cash. But strings are attached. One of the 13 requirements is to submit an off-year ‘campaign plan’ that includes: ‘Detailed, written legislative strategy that provides short-, intermediate-, and long-term legislative goals, including political justifications for those goals.’ ‘Be sure to include local issues unique to the district or region,’ the contract says. ‘Complete a Patriot Policy Priorities worksheet to be used by NRCC staff to evaluate legislative priorities for the current Congress and to promote and advocate for those priorities where appropriate.’” [Washington Post, 9/3/15]

The Patriot Program Required Incumbents To Only Use Party-Approved Vendors, Raise Six Figures For The NRCC, Attend Party Trainings, And Meet Campaign Fundraising Goals. “The closely-held document offers a window into how much autonomy lawmakers often must forfeit to unelected Washington insiders. For instance, in exchange for reelection support, lawmakers must promise to exclusively use vendors sanctioned by establishment-aligned party chieftains, attend training sessions and raise six figures for the NRCC. They must also commit to holding a certain amount of cash-on-hand at the end of each fundraising quarter and limit their spending. These goals are tailored to the individual member, so someone who sits on a prominent committee (say Financial Services) would be expected to bring in a bigger haul. And let’s face it, some of the goals are simply smart ways for members to prepare early in the era of the permanent campaign.” [Washington Post, 9/3/15]

October 2015: The American Democracy Legal Fund Filed An Ethics Complaint Against The Patriot Program Signatories And Alleged The Program Required Use Of Official Resources For Campaign Activities, Which Poliquin’s Advisor Denied

- The American Legal Democracy Fund Alleged The Patriot Program Required Representatives To Use Official Resources For Campaign Activities, Which Constituted An Ethics Violation. “The intent of the ‘Patriot Program Contract 2015’ is for Members to use their official resources available to them to coordinate and detail their legislative strategies and plans with the NRCC. The contract’s reference to the ‘MEMBER’ and explicit reference to, and separate signature line for, the Members’ Chief of Staff, makes clear that the contract is intended to reflect the Members’ official role. In that context, the demand for a legislative strategy plainly contemplates the use of official resources to accomplish that task. The House Ethics Manual provides that House employees may engage in campaign activities on ‘their own time, as volunteers or for pay, as long as they do not do so in congressional offices or facilities, or otherwise use official resources.’ If the Members and their staff use legislative plans and strategies crafted during House working periods and using House resources as required by the contract, they will violate federal law and House Ethics rules.” [American Legal Democracy Fund Office of Congressional Ethics Complaint, via Portland Press Herald, dated 10/7/15, published 10/8/15]

Poliquin’s Political Advisor Dismissed The Complaint As “Talk[ing] Politics” And “Vehemently Disputed” That Donors Drove Poliquin’s Legislative Priorities. “The agreement has opened the freshman congressman to criticism from Democrats that he is beholden to outside interests, and not his constituents, in the 2nd Congressional District. Democrats’ characterization of Poliquin has consistently included assertions that his campaign donors are driving his legislative agenda, a charge vehemently disputed by Brent Littlefield, Poliquin’s political adviser. Littlefield did not directly address the merits of the ethics complaint, instead dismissing it as a political stunt. ‘While some want to talk politics a year before an election, Congressman Poliquin just passed his first authored bill through Congress helping parents and he passed an amendment to encourage job creation around former Maine military bases,’ he said.” [Portland Press Herald, 10/8/15]

Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: The Patriot Program Contract “Raise[s] Questions Over Whether The Coordination Between The Candidates And The NRCC Oversteps The Law.” “Just the latest example is a confidential agreement signed by 2nd District U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin and 22 other Republican congressmen agreeing to disclose their legislative agenda and its ‘political justification’ to the National Republican Congressional Committee in exchange for financial support during the 2016 campaign. The sharing of some information between the candidates and the national party committee is expected and common. But the contract, its level of detail and its requirements appear to go beyond what is normal, and raise questions over whether the coordination between the candidates and the NRCC oversteps the law.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 9/11/15]

2012 – 2019: Poliquin Was Subject To Two FEC Ethics Complaints, Both Of Which Were Dismissed

2019: Poliquin Was Subject To An Ethics Complaint That Alleged He Accepted $1,500 From A
April 2019: Alexander Austin Submitted A Complaint To The FEC That Alleged Hundreds Of American Campaigns Accepted Direct Contributions From Enbridge, A Canadian Oil Pipeline Company. In a letter to the Office of the General Counsel of the FEC, Alexander Austin wrote, “At a high level, the violations can be summarized as: a foreign (Canadian) company (Enbridge Inc.) has made hundreds of contributions directly to American political campaigns and dozens of American political party committees; likewise, hundreds of American political campaigns and dozens of American political party committees accepted contributions from a foreign (Canadian) company (Enbridge Inc.). […] Enbridge Inc. is a publicly traded oil pipeline company based in Calgary, Canada.” [FEC, Case # WMUR-7594, Complaint, 4/8/19]

December 2019: The FEC’s General Counsel Recommended Closing The File Because The Complaint Was “Baseless” Since The Contributions Were Made By A PAC, Not A Company. “Enbridge Inc., Enbridge (U.S.) Inc., and Enbridge PAC (collectively, “Enbridge Respondents”) assert that the Complaint is baseless because the contributions were made by Enbridge PAC, not Enbridge Inc. […] RECOMMENDATIONS 1. Dismiss the allegation that Enbridge, Inc. violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121(a)(1) and send a letter of caution; 2. Dismiss the allegation that Enbridge (U.S.) Inc., Enbridge (U.S.) Inc. Political Action Committee and K. Ritu Talwar in her official capacity as treasurer, and Enbridge Energy Company, Inc. violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121(a)(1); 3. Find no reason to believe that the Federal and State Committee Respondents violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121(a)(2); 4. Approve the attached Factual and Legal Analysis; 5. Approve the appropriate letters; and 6. Close the file.” [FEC, Case # WMUR-7594, First General Counsel’s Report, 12/11/19]

July 2020: The FEC Closed The Case And Notified Poliquin’s Campaign That It Had No Reason To Believe It Violated The Law. “On April 18, 2019, the Federal Election Commission (‘Commission’) notified your clients, Poliquin for Congress and Thomas Datwyler, of a complaint alleging violations of certain sections of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (the ‘Act’). On July 2, 2020, based upon the information contained in the complaint and information provided by respondents, the Commission found no reason to believe that your clients violated 52 U.S.C. § 30121(a)(2). Accordingly, the Commission closed its file in this matter.” [FEC, Case # WMUR-7594, Notification to Poliquin for Congress, 12/11/19]

May 2012: Poliquin’s Senate Campaign Was Subject To An FEC Complaint That It Failed To File With The FEC After The Campaign Raised $5,000; The File Was Closed

May 2012: Gerald Weinand Filed An FEC Complaint Against Poliquin’s Senate Campaign For Allegedly Failing To File With The FEC After Raising $5,000 By April 2012. “This complaint is against Bruce Poliquin, the State Treasurer of Maine, who is seeking the Republican Party nomination for US Senate (see attached Statement of Organization). Mr. Poliquin did not file a financial report for the 1st Quarter of 2012, despite having contributions and expenditures (combined) of more than $5,000 before 31 March 2012. […] The expenditures that the Poliquin for US Senate campaign made qualifying for the ballot, as well as the kick-off party for the campaign, and the cost of creating and hosting a website, when combined with the $5,000 donation from Alamo PAC, trigger the requirement for a candidate to file.” [FEC, Case # WMUR-6571, Complaint, 5/1/12]

April 2013: The FEC General Counsel Recommended Closing The File Since Poliquin Did Not Receive $5,000 By April 2012. “$5,000 in contributions and made less than $5,000 in expenditures prior to April 1,2012. The Committee states that Poliquin did not receive Alamo PAC’s $5,000 contribution until April 20,2012, because the contribution had been sent to the wrong address. Resp. at 2. referencing the Alamo PAC contribution with the Commission until after April 20,2012, when its receipts exceeded $5,000. Resp. at 2 […] he Complaint makes several allegations against Poliquin and his Committee based upon inaccurate information. Upon a review of the record, it appears that Poliquin properly registered his candidacy and principal campaign committee and his Committee filed its initial disclosure report. Accordingly, the Office of General Counsel recommends that the Commission find no reason to believe that Bruce L. Poliquin and Poliquin for U.S. Senate and Timothy L. Thompson in his official capacity as treasurer violated the Act with regard to the allegations in this matter. Further, the Office of General Counsel recommends that the Commission approve the attached Factual & Legal Analysis and the appropriate letters, and close the file.” [FEC, Case # WMUR-6571, General Counsel’s Report, 4/29/13]

June 2013: The FEC Closed The Case And Notified Poliquin’s Campaign That It Had No Reason To Believe It Violated The Law. “On May 14,2012, the Federal Election Commission notified your clients, Bruce L. Poliquin and Poliquin for U.S. Senate and Timothy L. Thompson in his official capacity as treasurer, of a complaint alleging violations of certain sections of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (the ‘Act’). On June 11,2013, the Commission found that, on the basis of the information in the complaint, and information provided by your clients, there is no reason to believe they violated the Act. Accordingly, the Commission closed its file in this matter.” [FEC, Case # WMUR-6571, Notification to Poliquin for Congress, 6/14/13]

Congressional Perks

Health & Retirement Benefits

Poliquin Voted Three Times To Fully Repeal The Affordable Care Act, Which “Would Let Members Of Congress Keep Their Government-Subsidized Insurance Coverage After They Retire — A Benefit They Lost Under The Health Law”

The Hill: Repealing The ACA “Would Let Members Of Congress Keep Their Government-Subsidized Insurance Coverage After They Retire — A Benefit They Lost Under The Health Law.” “Repealing President Obama’s healthcare law would let members of Congress keep their government-subsidized insurance coverage after they retire — a benefit they lost under the health law. The Affordable Care Act — specifically, a Republican amendment to the Affordable Care Act — kicked members of Congress and their aides out of the healthcare program for federal employees. Instead, lawmakers and staff have to get coverage through the insurance exchanges created by the healthcare law. Sen. Charles Grassley (R-Iowa), who championed that provision, said it ensures that lawmakers live under the same rules as their constituents. Now, as the House prepares to vote on a bill to repeal the Affordable Care Act, some Democrats are arguing that repeal would reinstate a two-tiered system that gives lawmakers a leg up.” [The Hill, 7/9/12]

2016 – 2018: Poliquin Claimed He Refused The “Cadillac Health Care Plan” And Thrift Savings Plan Offered To Members Of Congress, Which He Could Not Decline Had He Become Eligible For A Pension

Members are eligible for a pension at age 50 if they have completed 20 years of service, or at any age after completing 25 years of service.” [Congressional Research Service, 8/8/19]

- Members Of Congress Who Entered Office After September 2003 Cannot Decline To Be Covered By The Federal Employees’ Retirement System (FERS). “These amendments also required all Members of Congress to participate in Social Security as of January 1, 1984, regardless of when they first entered Congress. Because CSRS [Civil Service Retirement System] was not designed to coordinate with Social Security, Congress directed the development of a new retirement plan for federal workers. The result was the Federal Employees’ Retirement System Act of 1986 (P.L. 99-335). Members of Congress first elected in 1984 or later are covered automatically under the Federal Employees’ Retirement System (FERS). All Senators and those Representatives serving as Members prior to September 30, 2003, may decline this coverage. Representatives entering office on or after September 30, 2003, cannot elect to be excluded from such coverage. Members who were already in Congress when Social Security coverage went into effect could either remain in CSRS or change their coverage to FERS.” [Congressional Research Service, 8/8/19]

2016: Poliquin Claimed He Refused The “Cadillac Health Care Plan” And “Thrift Savings Plan” Offered To Members Of Congress. I refuse the Thrift Savings Plan that’s offered to members of Congress.” [CSPAN, 2018 Maine Public ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/19/16] (VIDEO) 4:59

- Congressional Research Service: The Thrift Savings Plan Was An “Integral Component Of FERS.” “The Thrift Savings Plan: An Integral Component of FERS The TSP is a defined contribution retirement plan similar to those authorized under Section 401(k) of the tax code for employers in the private sector. For all federal employees enrolled in FERS, their employing agency contributes an amount equal to 1% of their base pay to the TSP, whether or not the employee chooses to contribute anything to the plan. FERS employee contributions of up to 5% of pay are matched by the employing agency. Employees covered by CSRS can participate in the TSP, but they receive no employer matching contributions. In 2019, employees enrolled in TSP can make voluntary contributions of up to $19,000. Employees aged 50 or older can contribute an additional $6,000 in 2019 (for a total contribution limit of $25,000).” [Congressional Research Service, 8/8/19]

2018: Poliquin’s Campaign Website Said He “Pays For His Own Health Insurance.” “[Poliquin] Has refused to accept special Congressional healthcare benefits for Members of Congress, he pays for his own health insurance.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/5/18]

Poliquin Said That Politicians Should Get No Special Health Care Or Retirement Benefits

Poliquin Said That Politicians Should Get No Special Health Care Or Retirement Benefits. POLIQUIN: “Now, there’s one way to fix our Social Security problem and our healthcare problem, and that’s to make sure every member of Congress and their staffs don’t have any special healthcare and retirement benefits. They get what we the people get. When that comes to fruition, we will fix these problems in lightning speed. I’m the sort of individual, what’s good for the goose is good for the gander. There should be no special opportunities or exemptions for members of Congress and their staffs. One of the things, and why people are so cynical about our public officials in Washington is because members of Congress and their staffs have been exempted, asked for an exemption from the President in regards to Obamacare’s expensive mandates. And they were granted that exemption. So that’s the sort of thing that gets under people’s skin.” [YouTube, Maine 02 RawFootage, WAGM Raye Poliquin Primary Debate, 5/30/14] (VIDEO) 48:01

The new language, added Monday night to the sections that establish the House Ethics Committee and the independent Office of Congressional Ethics, says the two bodies ‘may not take any action that would deny any person any right or protection provided under the Constitution of the United States.’ The language also states that a person subject to a review by the Office of Congressional Ethics ‘shall be informed of the right to be represented by counsel and invoking that right should not be held negatively against them.’ … ‘Clearly (the new language) was put in there to allow members of Congress to restrain certain activities of the ethics committees based on their own interpretation of what the Constitution means,’ said Craig Holman of the watchdog group Public Citizen.” The resolution passed 234-172. Poliquin Attacked The American Rescue Plan As The “Biden Spending Blowout” But Praised The CARES Act

4/1/21: Poliquin Op-Ed: “Less Than 10 Percent Of The Behemoth $1.9 Trillion Bill Will Help Battle The Pandemic.” “Speaking of spending, Biden and spendthrift liberals ignored Republican concerns and rammed through the largest spending and debt ‘COVID relief’ package in U.S. history. So much for bipartisan unity. Less than 10 percent of the behemoth $1.9 trillion bill will help battle the pandemic, like administering more vaccinations. But it does send $1,400 each to felons and some illegal immigrants instead of targeting checks to low-income families. Married couples earning up to $150,000 per year receive $2,800 plus more money for the kids.” [Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, Bangor Daily News, 4/1/21]

4/19/21: Poliquin Called The American Rescue Plan The “Biden Spending Blowout.” “Maine towns, cities and counties will soon receive millions from the federal government as a result of the Biden spending blowout, yet these same governments are moving to increase taxes this year. Property taxpayers already don’t get what they pay for with closed govt schools!”

[Bruce Poliquin Twitter, 4/19/21]

2/26/21: Poliquin Called The American Rescue Plan A “Democrat [Sic] Wishlist Disguised As Covid Relief Today, Including Checks For Illegal Immigrants, $15/Hr Minimum Wage, Fed Funding For Abortions.” “US House to approve $1.9 trillion democrat wishlist disguised as covid relief today, including checks for illegal immigrants, $15/hr minimum wage, fed funding for abortions, bailout of pre-covid fiscally irresponsible states like Cali & NY. Real relief isn't any of these things!”

10/23/20: Poliquin Praised Trump For The CARES Act’s Stimulus Checks And The Paycheck Protection Program. “Helping American families recover from the forced shutdown has been the President’s top priority. The CARES Act sent emergency relief checks directly to families to help them pay the bills while mostly staying home from work. The enormously successful Paycheck Protection Program awarded more than $2.2 billion of forgivable loans to help 28,000 Maine businesses stay afloat and preserve more than 200,000 jobs.” [Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, Maine Examiner, 10/23/20]

Brent Littlefield

Poliquin And Gov. Paul LePage Shared A Political Advisor, Brent Littlefield

Poliquin, LePage, And Ex-Gubernatorial Candidate Shawn Moody Shared A Political Advisor, Brent Littlefield. “Littlefield has served as a political consultant to a variety of conservative Maine politicians, including the elder LePage, former gubernatorial candidate Shawn Moody and former Rep. Bruce Poliquin.” [Bangor Daily News, 3/11/19]
• Littlefield Consulting Website: “Littlefield Was Credited With The Victory Of Governor Paul LePage Of Maine.” “In an Associated Press profile, published under headlines ‘adviser’s savvy helped win election,’ and ‘political wiz,’ Littlefield was credited with the victory of Governor Paul LePage of Maine. At the time, the only Republican Governor in all New England, Littlefield created the campaign’s strategy and message deployment that drove LePage to a 21-point victory in a seven-way primary and a substantial win in the general election. Littlefield served as a Senior Political Adviser to the Governor throughout his terms and as his adviser and consultant again in his 2014 re-election victory which saw LePage receive the largest number of votes in the state’s history at that time.” [Littlefield Consulting, accessed 9/27/21]

• September 2021: Littlefield Spoke To Reporters About LePage’s Gubernatorial Run As His “Longtime Campaign Media Consultant.” “LePage’s longtime campaign media consultant, Brent Littlefield, has pitched a kinder, gentler LePage and says the former governor in recent months has been on a statewide listening tour, meeting with small groups and hearing them out, largely in private settings or in visits to fairs and festivals over the summer. […] ‘This is not a presidential election, not an election for the governor of New England, or any other election,’ Littlefield said. ‘This is an election for the governor of Maine. We intend to keep it about that and the issues and concerns of Maine people.’” [Portland Press Herald, 9/21/21]

Littlefield Joined Poliquin’s 2014 Campaign In Summer 2013 And “Crafted” Its Messaging. “A consultant who crafted the successful campaigns of both LePage and Poliquin, Littlefield proved beyond a doubt in 2014 that he’s got a winning strategy for electing conservative Republicans in Maine. […] Littlefield said that when he joined Poliquin’s campaign in summer 2013, he knew that telling the candidate’s story was priority No. 1. Poliquin’s background as a trust fund manager could be turned into a negative, so setting the message early was key.” [Bangor Daily News, 1/4/15]

July – August 2016: Poliquin Spent $150,000 In Six Weeks On Franked Mail, More Than Any Other Representative. “Still, that Poliquin spent more than $150,000 on franked mail during the six weeks after July 1, 2016, more than any of the other 434 members of the House, means something.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/13/18]

July 2018: Poliquin Sent Franked Mail That Touted An Award He Received From An Organization That Supported Privatizing Social Security And Turning Medicare Into A Voucher-Like System

July 2018: Poliquin Sent A Piece Of Franked Mail That Touted The Guardian Of Seniors’ Rights Award He Received. “To that end, I was honored to be selected to receive the Guardian of Senior Rights’ award for 2018. This selective award is given to Members of Congress who vote to protect Medicare and Social Security and are outspoken advocates for programs that help our Senior Citizens. Please know that I am working hard to Preserve and Protect these important programs.”

- Columnist Amy Fried Wrote That The Letter Was Postmarked July 12, 2018. “I haven’t seen any publicity about this from Poliquin’s campaign or congressional office, but two days ago my household received a letter dated July 12 from the latter saying the congressman ‘was honored to receive the Guardian of Seniors’ Rights award for 2018.’ You can see the letter below and can see the portion quoted just below the envelope.” [Amy Fried Column, 7/23/18]

The 60 Plus Association Supported Republicans’ Proposals To Privatize Social Security And Turn Medicare Into A Voucher-Like System. “Despite its televised claims to want to defend Medicare, the 60 Plus Association backed former Republican House Speaker Paul Ryan’s 2011 plan to end the program and turn it into a capped voucher system, as well as former President George W. Bush’s push to privatize Social Security.” [The Intercept, 10/15/21]

Poliquin’s Spokesperson Defended His Use Of Franked Mail

Poliquin Spokesperson Defended Franked Mail As Necessary To Communicate With Constituents Of “One Of The Most Elderly And Rural Districts In The Nation.” “As one of the most elderly and rural districts in the nation, many of our constituents primarily use hard copy mail, Conley said. ‘Our office puts a premium on communicating with constituents, and does so without any extra burden to taxpayers whatsoever.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/13/18]

Poliquin Spokesperson: “There Is Absolutely No Extra Burden Or Cost To The Taxpayer For Franking - None.” “Brendan Conley, Poliquin's press secretary, said Monday it is important to note ‘there is absolutely no extra burden or cost to the taxpayer for franking - none.’ He said each member of the House receives an allocation for office expenses - staff salaries, office rent, travel reimbursement and more - and can choose how to divvy up the money. Poliquin's share is $1.37 million annually. For Poliquin, who spent $83,000 on mailings in August 2016, franked mail to constituents is an especially big priority.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/13/18]

Portland Press Herald On Poliquin’s Increased Franked Mail Spending During Campaign Season: “ No Honest Person Can Dismiss The Connection Between Franked Mail And Campaigning.” “No honest person can dismiss the connection between franked mail and campaigning, particularly when you consider which members spend the most on mailings. In the six weeks before the 2016 deadline, as he faced a tough challenge in his first re-election race, Poliquin spent $150,000 on franked mail, the most of any member of Congress.” [Portland Press Herald, 8/17/18]

2017 – 2018: Littlefield Consulting Accepted More Than $300,000 From The Welfare To Work PAC, Which Opposed Medicaid Expansion In Maine
September 2017: Littlefield And The Welfare To Work PAC “Spearheaded The Opposition” To Medicaid Expansion In Maine. “Countering expansion proponents will be many Maine Republicans, most notably LePage, U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin of the 2nd Congressional District, and Brent Littlefield, a behind-the-scenes political strategist who has long worked for LePage and Poliquin. Littlefield and the Welfare to Work Political Action Committee spearheaded the opposition Wednesday in a news release. Their arguments are the same as they’ve been for years: ‘Able-bodied adults’ should not be eligible for taxpayer funded health care and expansion would be financially ruinous for Maine in the long run. Another familiar argument that will continue is that expansion drains resources for programs that support some of Maine’s most needy people, though expansion proponents call that a false equivalency.” [Bangor Daily News, 9/7/17]

2017 – 2018: Littlefield Consulting Was Welfare To Work PAC’s Top Payee And Received $323,198.91 From The PAC. [Maine Ethics Commission, Committee Search, accessed 10/20/21]

2016 – 2017: Maine People Before Politics, A “Dark Money” Non-Profit That Previously Supported Gov. LePage’s Agenda, Paid Littlefield $65,000 When It Was “Nearly Dormant”

• “Around 2016,” Maine People Before Politics “All But Abandoned” Its Fundraising, Stopped Running Ads And Failed To Properly Disclose On Its 990 Tax Forms. “Around 2016, the group stopped running ads, rarely updated its website and social media accounts, and all but abandoned fundraising. But while the group slowly wound down at that time, it still paid a total of nearly $100,000 to the governor’s daughter and top political adviser in 2016 and 2017. The group also failed to properly disclose its activities to the IRS and the public by not submitting required information on its 990 tax forms, according to a former director of the agency’s division responsible for nonprofit groups, who said the group’s failure to disclose its activities was ‘weird in the sense that it’s not the way a well-run or even a poorly run tax-exempt organization operates.’” [Bangor Daily News, 3/11/19]

• While The Organization Was In “Sleep Mode” In Fiscal Years 2016 And 2017, It Paid Littlefield Consulting And LePage’s Daughter, Lauren LePage, $65,000 And “More Than $30,000,” Respectively. “The group was in sleep-mode the past couple of years,” [Maine People Before Politics’ director of policy and communication Julie] Rabinowitz wrote in an email. But ‘there still have been expenses related to keeping the lights on, software fees, website up, etc.’ Those expenses included paying [Paul LePage' daughter] Lauren LePage more than $30,000 for a total of 12 1/2 months of work as executive director over the course of fiscal years 2016 and 2017, a job she held while attending the University of Maine School of Law. Tax filings say she worked 40 hours a week. During that same period, the group paid $65,000 to the firm run by the former governor’s longtime political strategist, Brent Littlefield, who is now a media adviser for the group.” [Bangor Daily News, 3/11/19]

• Lauren LePage Served As The Group’s “Nominal” Executive Director Until June 2017. “When asked what the group was doing in 2016 and 2017, Rabinowitz said the ‘MPBP worked on policies to support economic growth in Maine,’ and provided the Bangor Daily News with copies of newsletters signed by Lauren LePage that the group sent to supporters in those years, as well as a screenshot of a link to a radio interview LePage gave as executive director of the group in January 2016. […] The younger LePage, who did not respond to four requests for comment, left the organization in June 2017 after graduating from the University of Maine School of Law, at which time the group seems to have gone completely dormant. [...] LePage also served as the ‘nominal’ executive director of the group in 2015, Rabinowitz said, although she was not paid by the group that year and was not listed on the group’s 2015 filings.” [Bangor Daily News, 3/11/19]

- Maine People Before Politics’ Leadership Said The Organization Paid Littlefield For “Consulting And Other Services, For Example, Media Buys, Message Delivery And Creative Services” In 2016 And 2017. “[Maine People Before Politics’ director of policy and communication Julie] Rabinowitz said that Littlefield was paid for ‘consulting and other services, for example, media buys, message delivery and creative services.’ But after the BDN asked for examples of media buys made in 2016 and 2017, she said she had reviewed the group’s invoices for those years and determined there were in fact no media buys made during that time.” [Bangor Daily News, 3/11/19]

- Maine People Before Politics Did Not Make Any Media Buys In 2016 Or 2017. “[Maine People Before Politics’ director of policy and communication Julie] Rabinowitz said that Littlefield was paid for ‘consulting and other services, for example, media buys, message delivery and creative services.’ But after the BDN asked for examples of media buys made in 2016 and 2017, she said she had reviewed the group's invoices for those years and determined there were in fact no media buys made during that time.” [Bangor Daily News, 3/11/19]

Political Relationships

Significant Findings

- In August 2020, Poliquin said Biden was in “cognitive decline” and called Harris a “California radical.”
- Kevin McCarthy campaigned for Poliquin in Maine in 2014 and claimed Poliquin won the 2018 election in 2019.
- Poliquin had a longstanding relationship with former Gov. Paul LePage, in whose administration he served as State Treasurer.
  - LePage encouraged Poliquin to run in 2022.
  - LePage sparred with Maine’s Secretary of State over whether he would certify Golden’s victory during Poliquin’s lawsuit, but eventually signed them and added “stolen election” on the documents.
- In January 2016, Poliquin refused to condemn LePage’s claim that drug dealers came to Maine and “impregnate a young white girl before they leave.”
- In 2012, the Portland Press Herald reported that Poliquin’s public image was “defined” by “allegiance to Gov. Paul LePage.”
- Poliquin opposed removing Marjorie Taylor Greene from her committee positions.
- In 2018, Poliquin repeatedly claimed Nancy Pelosi funded Golden’s campaign, which the Lewiston Sun Journal rated “iffy at best.”
- Poliquin said Nikki Haley would be well-received as a 2024 presidential nominee because she was a woman, which he said was “important, not to be sexist.”

Joe Biden

August 2020: Poliquin Said Biden Was In “Cognitive Decline” And Had A “Fading Memory And Impaired Judgment”

August 2020: Poliquin Said Biden Was In “Cognitive Decline” And Had A “Fading Memory And Impaired Judgment.” “Presumptive Democrat presidential nominee Joe Biden will be 78 on Election Day in November. At nearly every public appearance, it’s sad to see his cognitive decline. He jumbles words, thinks he’s in Vermont when he’s campaigning in New Hampshire, and gets angry at reporters and voters who challenge him. If Mr. Biden wins in November, common sense leads one to conclude he won’t run for re-election at age 82 after four more years of fading memory and impaired judgment.”
October 2020: Poliquin Claimed Hunter Biden “Was Influencing U.S. Foreign Policy In Ukraine” And “Peddl[ed] His Father’s Influence For Personal Profit”

October 2020: Poliquin Claimed Hunter Biden “Was Influencing U.S. Foreign Policy In Ukraine” And “Peddl[ed] His Father’s Influence For Personal Profit.” “Yesterday, social media giants Facebook and Twitter decided to limit the spread of an article potentially damaging to the Biden-Harris presidential campaign. The NY Post story published emails from Hunter Biden while he served on the board of the Ukrainian energy company, Burisma, during the time his father, Vice President Joe Biden, was influencing US foreign policy in Ukraine. The emails show son Biden peddling his father’s influence for personal profit. The trove of communications were allegedly obtained from a laptop computer dropped off at a Delaware repair shop by Hunter Biden but never picked up again. […] The series of New York Post articles over the past two days confirming possible corruption and inside-dealing at the highest level of our federal government should be allowed to be distributed far and wide. A free and open press, including social media, is necessary for an informed public to decide our future three weeks before a critical presidential election.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 10/15/20]
- Poliquin: “Hunter Biden, The Son, Was Peddling Influence, His Father’s Influence, For Profit.”

  POLIQUIN: “A big part of how people communicate today is through social media, and there are a handful of these private companies that run these platforms. They’re all private companies, like YouTube and Twitter and Facebook and Google. And when you have the fourth-largest newspaper in the country, the New York Post, it’s been around for 150 years or so, they come up with a story based on a laptop that used to be owned by Hunter Biden, they see a bunch of emails in there that confirm that Hunter Biden, the son, was peddling influence, his father’s influence, for profit. […] And now you have Twitter and Facebook who do not allow the sharing of that information across their platforms. […] What the heck are you doing, two weeks before an election, trying to suppress information that will hurt Joe Biden? That is absolutely horrible.” [WVOM, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 10/19/20] (AUDIO) 4:06

Kamala Harris

---

August 2020: Poliquin Called Kamala Harris A “California Radical”

August 2020: Poliquin Called Kamala Harris A “California Radical.” “BIDEN’S PICK OF CALIFORNIA RADICAL KAMALA HARRIS REFLECTS TODAY’S FAR LEFT DEMOCRAT PARTY Presumptive Democrat presidential nominee Joe Biden will be 78 on Election Day in November. At nearly every public appearance, it’s sad to see his cognitive decline. He jumbles words, thinks he’s in Vermont when he’s campaigning in New Hampshire, and gets angry at reporters and voters who challenge him. If Mr. Biden wins in November, common sense leads one to conclude he won’t run for re-election at age 82 after four more years of fading memory and impaired judgment. That puts the radical Kamala Harris, his newly-picked VP running mate, in the spotlight more than other past VP candidates. Regardless of who will sit in the Oval Office, a Biden-Harris administration should scare the daylights out of ordinary Americans.”
Kevin McCarthy

April 2019: McCarthy Claimed Poliquin’s 2018 Loss Demonstrated That Democrats Manipulated Ranked-Choice Voting “Because They Can’t Win In A Fair Fight”

- McCarthy On Fox News: “There’s A Member Of Congress Sitting Today Who Came In Second.” “You know what they did in Maine?” McCarthy asked Maria Bartiromo on Fox Business on Monday. “In Maine, they changed how you vote in federal offices.” He said Poliquin won his bid for re-election in the 2nd District race, ‘but at the end of the day he lost because he didn't get to 50 percent, so the person who came in fourth, their number dropped off and whoever they voted for second got the extra vote.’ As a result, McCarthy said, ‘there's a member of Congress sitting today who came in second,’ but because Jared Golden is a Democrat, ‘he got to go through.’ ‘Wow,’ Bartiromo said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 4/1/19]

2014: McCarthy Campaigned For Poliquin In Norway, Maine

October 2014: McCarthy Campaigned For Poliquin In Norway, Maine. “New York seems like a very good state for us. Maine as well, all the way out through California. That becomes a national majority party,” said McCarthy. The California congressman was in Norway on Sunday to attend a fundraiser for Poliquin. The seat is open and Poliquin is in a tight race with Democrat Emily Cain. This is a tremendous opportunity for our families in the second district because we will be in the majority and we'll increase our numbers and now Maine can be at the table in the majority,’ said Poliquin.” [WMTW, 10/20/14]

Paul LePage

Former Gov. Paul LePage Urged Poliquin To Run In 2022

August 2021: Bangor Daily News: Paul LePage Urged Poliquin To Run In 2022. “Poliquin cited family reasons for declining a return bid last year, but he has stayed active through party events and radio appearances since then. Former governor Paul LePage, a deeply polarizing figure but the most popular one among conservatives, has urged Poliquin to run, one source said.” [Bangor Daily News, 8/4/21]

During Poliquin’s Lawsuit Contesting His 2018 Election Loss, LePage Sparred With Maine’s Secretary Of State Over Whether To Certify Golden’s Election Results, But Eventually Signed Them

11/26/18: Maine’s Secretary Of State Submitted The Official Election Results To Gov. LePage

“The official tabulation of votes from the Nov. 6, 2018 General and Referendum Election is now complete, Secretary of State Matthew Dunlap announced Monday. The certified results will be submitted to Gov. Paul LePage today. The Maine Constitution provides up to 10 days for the governor’s signature and proclamation of the results.” [Press Release, Maine Secretary of State, 11/26/18]

12/18/18: Gov. LePage’s Office Told Reporters He Legally Could Not Certify Election Results While They Were Subject To Legal Action

“Meanwhile, Secretary of State Matthew Dunlap said he had already signed off on the election results and sent them to Gov. Paul LePage. ‘We have done our work, we certified the election,’ Dunlap said Tuesday. ‘All I can tell you is we've done our job and have certified the election. (Poliquin) is asking the court to intervene.’ LePage's office said the governor cannot legally certify the election results while the case is pending in the courts. State law declares that the governor will issue an election certificate ‘within a reasonable time after an election,’ but adds that the ‘governor may not issue a certificate while the election is contested before the court.’” [Portland Press Herald, 12/18/18]

12/18/18: Dunlap Sent The Certified Election Results To The Clerk Of The House Of Representatives Without LePage’s Signature, Leaving The House Speaker To Determine Whether To Seat Golden

“Secretary of State Matthew Dunlap appears to have cleared the way for U.S. Rep.-elect Jared Golden to be sworn in as the congresswoman representing Maine's 2nd Congressional District. That could effectively end Rep. Bruce Poliquin's legal efforts to retain his seat. In a Tuesday letter to Karen L. Hass, the clerk of the U.S. House of Representatives, Dunlap declared Golden the winner of the Nov. 6 election and enclosed a certificate of election. The House must receive the certificate before a representative can be sworn in. Typically it is signed by a state's governor. In Maine, however, the Secretary of State can sign it. ‘We presented the governor with a certificate of elections for Jared Golden,’ Dunlap said Tuesday. ‘I haven't heard anything back about that. The indication I've had indirectly is that [House Speaker Nancy] Pelosi would be just as happy with my signature to certify it.’” [Bangor Daily News, 12/19/18]

- 12/20/18: Poliquin’s Attorneys Accused Dunlap Of Engaging In A “A Bald And Irresponsible Effort To Frustrate Judicial Review” By Certifying The Election Results Without The Governor’s Signature. “In a legal response, the attorneys for Poliquin and the three other plaintiffs accused Dunlap and Golden of engaging ‘in a bald and irresponsible effort to frustrate judicial review.’ ‘The Secretary of State ... has self-certified the election results in violation of state law vesting that authority in the Governor in a transparent bid to convince this Court to cede its jurisdiction over constitutional claims to the U.S. House of Representatives,’ wrote Poliquin’s attorneys. ‘This Court should not permit such unlawful gamesmanship of the solemn judicial process by which citizens obtain review of constitutional claims.’” [Portland Press Herald, 12/20/18]

- 12/28/18: LePage Signed The Certified Election Results And Added “Stolen Election” Alongside His Signature. “Gov. Paul LePage certified the election results for Maine’s 2nd Congressional District after a recount and legal battle dragged out the final result in the race for almost two months, cementing a Democratic victory. But, LePage – a Republican firebrand – made one last jab at the drawn-out process when certifying the election, writing the words ‘stolen election’ next to his signature.” [CNN, 12/29/18]

January 2016: Poliquin Refused To Condemn LePage’s Claim That Out-Of-State Drug Dealers “Impregnate A Young White Girl Before They Leave.” “LePage’s comment Wednesday during the town hall meeting in Bridgton about out-of-state drug dealers who ‘impregnate a young white girl before they leave’ continued to trigger broad political fallout, with Democratic U.S. Rep. Chellie Pingree on Friday calling them ‘disgraceful and racist.’ […] Brendan Conley, a spokesman for U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, didn't return a phone message and an email seeking an interview or comment. It was the second day Collins, King and Poliquin didn't return requests for comment.” [Portland Press Herald, 1/8/16]

- Poliquin, Collins, And King Did Not Return Requests For Comment On LePage’s Statement For Two Days. “Brendan Conley, a spokesman for U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, didn't return a phone message and an email seeking an interview or comment. It was the second day Collins, King and Poliquin didn't return requests for comment.” [Portland Press Herald, 1/8/16]

2011 – 2012: Poliquin Served As Treasurer In LePage’s Administration And His Public Image Was “Defined” By “Allegiance To Gov. Paul LePage.”

2011: Poliquin Began Serving As Maine Treasurer In LePage’s Administration. “A day after being sworn in, Gov. Paul LePage administered the oath of office Thursday to three prominent state officials — the secretary of state, attorney general and treasurer. The Republican governor also issued a brief to-do list to the three: Make it easier to bring business to Maine. Fix the looming liability in the pension system, and work on the health care issue. With some pomp — but not to the level of the inauguration a day earlier — Charles Summers, Bill Schneider and Bruce Poliquin took their oaths in a House chamber packed with relatives, friends and state officials, including Chief Justice Leigh Saufley and U.S. Attorney Thomas Delahanty II.” [Bangor Daily News, 1/6/11]

Portland Press: LePage “Took The Unusual […] Step Of Endorsing Poliquin For Treasurer.” “However, some have worried that Poliquin, who was elected by the Legislature, is too closely affiliated with the governor’s office. That appears to have been the plan since LePage was elected. In December of 2010, the governor took the unusual — and, for some Republicans, unwelcome — step of endorsing Poliquin for treasurer.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/24/12]

2012: Portand Press Herald: Poliquin’s Public Image Was “Defined” By “Allegiance To Gov. Paul LePage,” Whose Administration Requested That Poliquin Act As A “Surrogate” For Him On Fiscal Issues. “Such a loss may complicate Poliquin’s polarizing public image, which has been defined mostly by political ambition, allegiance to Gov. Paul LePage and, more recently, controversy. […] However, some have worried that Poliquin, who was elected by the Legislature, is too closely affiliated with the governor’s office. That appears to have been the plan since LePage was elected. In December of 2010, the governor took the unusual — and, for some Republicans, unwelcome — step of endorsing Poliquin for treasurer. Emails between the governor’s transition team and state Senate President Kevin Raye, R-Perry, and House Speaker Robert Nutting, R-Oakland, show that the administration wanted Poliquin to be ‘a surrogate’ for LePage, ‘attending local Red Tape Workshops and occasionally speaking to reporters to provide details and context on fiscal matters.’” [Portland Press Herald, 5/24/12]

Maine ACLU: LePage “Took Countless Positions That Were Harmful And Hurtful To Mainers – Most Often People Of Color, Immigrants, Poor People, People With Substance Use Disorder And LGBTQ People.” “LePage ‘took countless positions that were harmful and hurtful to Mainers – most often people of color, immigrants, poor people, people with substance use disorder and LGBTQ people,’ says Alison Beyea, executive director of the ACLU of Maine. The governor ‘signed on to two legal briefs to make it OK to discriminate against transgender people,’ she explained. ‘He tried to take rent and food assistance away from immigrant families fleeing violence. He took a misguided approach to the drug problem, pushing for more law enforcement at the expense of prevention and treatment, and attempting to make it harder for people having an overdose to get lifesaving care.’” [Maine Monitor 12/19/18]

Maine Monitor: LePage Was Known For His “Combative Personality” And Had A History Of Taking Harmful Positions And Making Inflammatory Statements.

January 2011: LePage Told The NAACP To “Kiss [His] Butt” After He Refused To Meet With The Group Because He Considered It A “Special Interest.” “Gov. Paul LePage’s comment Friday that the NAACP can ‘kiss my butt’ outraged leaders of state and national civil rights groups, who called his remarks ‘astonishing’ and ‘troubling.’ After meeting with business leaders in Sanford, LePage told WCSH-TV that he will not attend Martin Luther King Jr. Day events in Portland and Orono because he considers the group a special interest. ‘They are a special interest,’ he told the station. ‘End of story. And I’m not going to be held hostage by special interests. And if they want, they can look at my family picture. My son happens to be black, so they can do whatever they’d like about it.’” [Portland Press Herald, 1/15/11]

Republican State Sen. Roger Katz Said That “Personal Attack And Name-Calling” Defined LePage’s “Brand Of Politics:” “He Chose To Characterize The Legislature As A Whole As The Enemy.” “‘My first experience with him was when we were both mayors – him of Waterville and me of Augusta, at a conference in Quebec,’ [Republican State Sen. Roger Katz] says. ‘He was a great guy to drink a beer with, that’s for sure. But I don’t know why, rather than try to find common ground, he chose to try to characterize the Legislature as a whole as the enemy.’ LePage’s brand of politics, the ‘personal attack and name-calling,’ Katz says, is ‘not consistent with collaboration at all. Whether it’s tax reform, or further welfare reform, or education reform, there was a lot left on the table because of his style of us vs. them. I wish it weren’t so.’” [Maine Monitor 12/19/18]

Marjorie Taylor Greene

Poliquin Said It Was Not Right For Democrats To Kick Marjorie Taylor Greene Off Of Her Congressional Committees. HOST: “[4:57] One of the other things, Bruce, that’s happening in Congress right now is the situation with Marjorie Taylor Greene here and what they’ve been doing as it relates to her committee assignments and all that stuff. […] Do you have any sort of sense of what you think should have happened there?” POLIQUIN: “Yeah. Look, you can’t stop crazy in America. Right? I mean, it’s a free country so far anyway. And if someone like this represents a congressional district in the state of Georgia, you know, says crazy things and she’s going to be accountable for those statements. However for the opposing party, in this case the Democrats, shutting out a Republican who is representing her district who was elected by her constituents, shutting her out from committee work so she’s unable to help pass legislation that will be helpful to her district, I don’t think it’s right.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 2/5/21] (AUDIO)

Nancy Pelosi

October 2021: Poliquin Criticized Golden For Allegedly Voting With Pelosi 84 Percent Of The Time

October 2021: Poliquin Criticized Golden For Allegedly Voting With Pelosi 84 Percent Of The Time. “Another story showing our campaign is #1 in the entire nation. Need everyone to start talking with their friends and neighbors now about the need to retake this seat. Our nation’s future is at stake. I am running to restore some common sense to Washington, not back Nancy Pelosi 84% of the time like Jared Golden has done. https://www.rollcall.com/2021/10/14/new-race-ratings-show-top-house-battleground-remains-in-maine/”
2018: Poliquin Repeatedly Tried To Tie Golden To Pelosi Politically And Financially, Which The Lewiston Sun Journal Rated “Iffy At Best”

October 2018: Poliquin “Nancy Pelosi Has Spent About $7 Million Lying And Attacking Me And Propping [Golden] Up.” “I think Jared Golden -- and I’m not criticizing him as an individual or anybody else, but his policies are so extreme and so radical. for him to look in the camera and tell people of Maine that Nancy Pelosi has spent about $7 million lying and attacking me and propping him up is something that just happened by accident. she loves Jared Golden’s voting record. 100% government takeover of health care, pushed into a government-run program. a second amendment that he doesn't support, and he votes against small businesses all the time and wants Maine to become the most -- excuse me, the highest taxed state in the country. that's why Nancy Pelosi supports Jared Golden, and that's the truth, and he should tell it..”” [WMTW via C-SPAN, 10/16/18] (VIDEO) 44:47

- Poliquin Criticized “All These Dark Money Groups That Are Pouring Money In Here.” “Poliquin, clearly feeling the heat, said he objected ‘to all these dark money groups that are pouring money in here’ to go after him with ‘completely false’ charges.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/16/18]

- 2017 – 2018: Independent Expenditures Spent $812,080.43 In Support Of Golden And $5.2 Million Against Him. [FEC, Committee Search, accessed 11/2/21]

October 2018: Poliquin: “Nancy Pelosi And Her Leadership Team Are The Biggest Funders Of Jared Golden’s Deceptive & Dishonest Campaign.” “Facts Matter: Nancy Pelosi and her leadership team are the biggest funders of Jared Golden's deceptive & dishonest campaign, pouring in nearly $4 million to falsely attack Bruce. Pelosi supports Sanctuary Cities, wants Open Borders and wants to increase your taxes. She knows she has an alley with radical Golden who agrees with her and who wants to end Medicare as we know it and supports increasing your home heating oil costs. Maine can't afford Golden's radical agenda. Please Share, Mainer's deserve to know the truth!"

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 10/3/18]

September 2018: Poliquin: “Golden Is Receiving Millions Of Dollars From Extreme, Liberal Nancy Pelosi’s Political Team Trying To Buy This Election From Mainers.” “Fact: Jared Golden is receiving millions of dollars from extreme, liberal Nancy Pelosi’s political team trying to buy this election from Mainers. She supports sanctuary cities, so does Jared. Pelosi supports not aiding ICE (Immigration and Customs Enforcement) and Jared's voting record would seem to agree. ICE is a law enforcement agency tasked to enforce the immigration laws of the United States and to investigate criminal and terrorist activity of foreign nationals residing in the United States. Jared Golden is no Momma’s Apple Pie, he is too radical for Maine. Please Share.”

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 9/21/18]
August 2018: Poliquin: “Nancy Pelosi’s Leadership Team Is Working Hand-In-Hand With Jared’s Campaign And Spending More Than $1 Million Of Out-Of-State Money On Ads.” “What the Portland Press Herald, the Bangor Daily News, and the Sun Journal are NOT reporting: Nancy Pelosi’s leadership team is working hand-in-hand with Jared’s campaign and spending more than $1 million of out-of-state money on ads. So far, Nancy Pelosi’s Super PAC has also reserved space to spend an additional $3 million of out-of-state money to prop up Jared Golden’s campaign. Meanwhile, to date, Congressman Poliquin has had well over $1 million spent against him in attack ads from out-of-state special interest groups in the past year alone. Pelosi is again trying to buy off Mainers with her hand-picked candidate, Jared Golden. What’s new?”

The Lewiston Sun Journal Rated Poliquin’s Attempts To Tie Golden To Pelosi “Iffy At Best”

Poliquin Repeatedly Tried To Tie Golden To Pelosi, Which The Lewiston Sun Journal Rated “Iffy At Best.” “IS NANCY PELOSI PULLING GOLDEN’S STRINGS? Poliquin has often tied Golden to U.S. House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., insisting that if the Democrats win the House she’ll become the next speaker. That’s probably true, though there’s a chance someone else will take over. But the GOP’s insistence that she’s pulling the strings for Golden is iffy at best given that Golden has said he won’t back her if Democrats take control of the House. Golden has gone on the record saying it’s time for congressional leadership to shift into the hands of a new generation.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/2/18]

Hillary Clinton

July 2016: Poliquin Said Leaders “Should Be Held Accountable” After Comey Recommended That The DOJ Not Prosecute Hillary Clinton Over Her Private Email Server

July 2016: Poliquin Said Leaders “Should Be Held Accountable” After Comey Recommended That The DOJ Not Prosecute Hillary Clinton Over Her Private Email Server. “Today, Maine’s 2nd District Congressman, Bruce Poliquin, released the following statement on FBI Director James B. Comey’s recommendation to the Justice Department not to prosecute former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton despite outlining numerous instances of her ‘extremely careless’ mishandling of top secret information: ‘Today, we learned the FBI’s investigations yielded alarming findings about Secretary Clinton’s ‘extremely careless’ mishandling of top secret information, as Director Comey stated,’ said Congressman Poliquin. ‘We learned for a fact that Secretary Clinton broke the rules and repeatedly used private email for top secret emails while ‘in the territory of sophisticated adversaries.’ These actions put her in a situation to compromise our national security as our Secretary of State. That is plainly unacceptable. The American People deserve to have leaders that are held accountable for their actions—it is as simple as that.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 7/5/16]

“Today, Maine’s 2nd District Congressman, Bruce Poliquin, introduced the Hold Top Officials Accountable Act, a bill that makes an important change in the law to ensure that top officials that have access to classified information—including Members of Congress, Senators, and presidentially appointed officials—are held accountable for negligence and mishandling of that classified information. […] This bill makes it explicitly clear that sharing classified information on unprotected electric devices and servers is unlawful.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 7/14/16]

Nikki Haley

January 2021: Poliquin Said Nikki Haley Would Be Well-Received As A 2024 Presidential Nominee

Poliquin Said Nikki Haley Would Be Well-Received As A 2024 Presidential Nominee Because She Was A Woman, Which He Said Was “Important, Not To Be Sexist.” POLIQUIN: “[5:36] I’m just throwing this out there, and for your audience, I’m not endorsing anybody, I’m not saying I support this individual but just as an example, Matt, someone like Nikki Haley. Nikki Haley is a woman. I think that’s important, not to be sexist. Just being political, being a realist here. I think the chances of Kamala Harris being the presumptive nominee in 2024 is probably pretty high so I think a woman on the Republican side probably would gain some traction. […] She’s tough, she communicates effectively, and she’s not someone who turns you off because of her persona.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 1/15/21] (AUDIO)

Maxine Waters

2018: Poliquin Accused Maxine Waters Of Inciting Violence

September 2018: Poliquin Accused Maxine Waters Of Inciting Violence In “A Shocking Video Urging People To Publicly Harass Elected And Appointed Officials With Whom They Disagree.” “Liberal California Congresswomen Maxine Waters has been seen on a shocking video urging people to publicly harass elected and appointed officials with whom they disagree. Her incitement to violence does not help our nation's political discourse, just the opposite. Nothing is solved by her encouraging protestors to stalk people who disagree with her political position. We have seen this happening in Maine now too, it's disgraceful and the American people deserve better.”

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 6/25/18]

July 2018: Poliquin Accused Waters Of “Inciting And Encouraging Violence Against People Who Disagree With Her Extreme, Liberal Ideology.” “Congresswoman Maxine Waters of California continues to stir up bitterness in our nation with videos inciting and encouraging violence against people who disagree with her extreme, liberal ideology. We deserve better. The national liberal Democratic organizations supporting both Waters, and my political opponent here in Maine, should call on her to end this rhetoric. Share if you agree.”

Andy Torbett

2020: Poliquin Endorsed Andy Torbett And Transferred $350 To His Campaign For Piscataquis County Commissioner

September 2020: Poliquin Endorsed Andy Torbett For Piscataquis County Commissioner. “I’ve known Andy Torbett and his wonderful family for 10 years. He’s running for the important position of Piscataquis County commissioner. Please vote for Andy. He’s the right person for the job. Andy and his lovely wife Sara have three terrific kids; they embrace traditional family values. […] I enthusiastically endorse Andy for your county commissioner. He’ll do a great job. I hope you’ll vote for him.” Bruce Poliquin Former U.S. Congressman, Maine 2nd District R-Georgetown” [Piscataquis Observer, Bruce Poliquin Letter to the Editor, 9/29/20]

August 2020: Poliquin For Congress Contributed $350 To The Committee To Elect Andy Torbett. [FEC, Committee Disbursements Search, accessed 9/27/21]

2016 – 2018: Torbett Wrote Letters To The Editor In Support Of Poliquin’s Ranked-Choice Voting Challenge, And Against Emily Cain

December 2018: Torbett Urged Poliquin To “Continue His Challenge To The Ranked-Choice Voting System” In A Letter To The Editor. “U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin will and must continue his challenge to the ranked-choice voting system and the constitutionality of the results. He will because it is his choice as a citizen of this republic, and he has the freedom to do so. He must because he is a representative of the voters in the 2nd Congressional District who twice voted against ranked-choice voting and feel disenfranchised by the results of the new voting system. […] No, Poliquin is bound to see this through, to finish this task. In so doing, perhaps, he can raise the awareness of the, too often, apathetic voter. Maybe there can arise enough passion to repeal this travesty. Andy Torbett Atkinson” [Bangor Daily News, Andy Torbett Letter to the Editor, 12/20/18]

January 2016: Torbett Wrote A Letter To The Editor Accusing Cain Of “Hypocritical Attacks On Rep. Poliquin That Reek With The Cloud Of Stupefaction That Blankets The Democrat Party. “While it's more than ironic that she wishes to represent a people whose lives she cannot comprehend or identify with, it's the hypocritical attacks on Rep. Poliquin that reek with the cloud of stupefaction that blankets the Democrat Party. Her claims that the self-made millionaire has somehow cheated the public would be laughable if they were bits in a cheap sitcom, but instead are a sad commentary on how completely detached from reality she is. Perhaps it is the term ‘self-made’ that she cannot grasp.” [Piscataquis Observer, Andy Torbett Letter to the Editor, 1/4/16]
Donald Trump

- Poliquin voted with Trump 96.8% of the time in 2017 and 2018, substantially more than Susan Collins, who had the second-highest Trump score of Maine’s delegation at 65.1%.

- Poliquin refused to tell constituents whether he planned to vote for Trump in 2016, or whether he voted for him in 2016 as recently as 2018, but in 2020, he wrote an op-ed urging Mainers to vote for Trump.

- Poliquin said there was “no evidence” to impeach Trump during his first impeachment trial.

- Poliquin claimed Trump’s actions “did not reach the level of incitement” of the January 6th insurrection and said he would have voted against his second impeachment.

- Poliquin repeatedly voted against investigating Russian interference in the 2016 election and said the Mueller investigation proved “no American – including President Trump or his campaign – worked with Russian operatives who tried to interfere in our elections.”

As Recently As 2018, Poliquin Refused To Tell Constituents Whether He Voted For Trump In 2016, Then Urged Mainers To Vote For Him In A 2020 Op-Ed

Poliquin Refused To Tell Constituents Whether He Supported Trump In 2016

2016: Poliquin Refused To Say Whether He Planned To Vote For Trump; His Spokesperson Denied That He Was “Avoiding Comment”

November 2016: Poliquin “Refused On Many Occasions To Say Whether He Endorses Trump.” “What makes it an odd twist is that her opponent, U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, the first-term Republican from Maine's hotly contested 2nd District, has made it clear to this point he will not say whether he supports GOP standard-bearer Donald Trump. […] Poliquin has refused on many occasions to say whether he endorses Trump.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/1/16]

- October 2016: Poliquin Dodged The Question When Asked Whether He Supported Trump For President. HOST: “[35:00] Bruce Poliquin, Emily Cain has endorsed her party’s nominee Hillary Clinton, do you endorse your party's nominee for President Donald Trump?” POLIQUIN: “You know, this is something, Jennifer, that you folks in the press not of course, not Jennifer Roxon, not MPBN, but the media has been so consumed with this frenzy, this media circus around the presidential election. The people in our second district hired me to do a job to help build a stronger economy and more jobs and bring my business skills down to Washington. That's exactly what I've done. I'm not getting involved in this media frenzy. And I know what upsets a lot of folks in the media, because they live on confrontation that causes more people to watch the show.” [CSPAN, 2018 Maine Public ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/19/16] (VIDEO)

- Poliquin On Whether He Supported Donald Trump For President: “I’m Not Getting Involved In This Media Frenzy […] I Cannot Control Who’s Going To Be The Next President.” HOST: “[37:00] Are you not going to state whether you’re endorsing Donald Trump?” […] “I’m not getting involved in this media frenzy.” HOST: “So you’re not going to say whether or not you endorse your party’s presidential candidate.” POLIQUIN: “I cannot control who’s going to be the next president. Here's what I can control, working with everybody have a strong voice in Congress for more jobs, a better economy.” [CSPAN, 2018 Maine Public ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/19/16] (VIDEO)

- October 2016: Poliquin Dismissed The Question Of Whether He Supported Trump As A “Media Circus.” “Poliquin was asked about Trump during his final debate with Cain in the 2nd Congressional District contest a day after Donald Trump Jr. said Republican officeholders who decline to endorse his father are ‘just protecting themselves and the little environment they’ve created.’ Poliquin told WCSH-TV moderator Pat Callaghan ‘nice try’ and insisted he won’t be drawn into the heated presidential race, which has featured incendiary criticisms from Trump about women, Hispanics and others. ‘The people of Maine didn’t elect me to get involved in this media circus around this election,’ he said. ‘I’m not getting involved in this campaign.’” [Associated Press, 10/26/16]
October 2016: Poliquin Turned His Back And Walked Away From Reporters Who Asked If He Thought Trump Should End His Campaign; Poliquin’s Spokesperson Called The Questions “Ridiculous.” “When asked if Trump should drop out of the race, Poliquin said he'd ‘continue to do’ his job and talked at length about shoe-making legislation that benefits New Balance and helps protect the company's ‘900 good-paying jobs with benefits.’ ‘I am not getting involved in any of this media circus surrounding our presidential election. I am working for these people and I am so proud to do it,’ Poliquin said. When reporters questioned him again on Trump, Poliquin turned and walked away. Brent Littlefield, a campaign spokesman for Poliquin, said in an email after Tuesday's visit that it was ‘ridiculous’ for the media to ask questions about Trump, citing a statement Poliquin released over the weekend that responded to Trump's remarks on women, but didn't answer the question about whether Poliquin will support him.” [Kennebec Journal, 10/11/16]

August 2016: After Trump Became The Presumptive Republican Nominee, Poliquin Stated “Only One Candidate Has Been A Major Job Creator” But His Spokesperson Refused To Say Trump’s Name. “A statement released by Poliquin's campaign on the presidential race doesn't name Trump, but says that of the two candidates for president, ‘only one candidate has been a major job creator.’ When asked for clarification, a spokesman for Poliquin refused to say Trump's name.” [Kennebec Journal, 8/9/16]

July 2016: Poliquin: “I Don’t Get Involved In The Presidential Election. They’re Doing That In Cleveland.” “Tuesday night, party delegates formally nominated Trump for president at the Republican National Convention in Cleveland. ‘I don't get involved in the presidential election. They're doing that in Cleveland,’ Poliquin said Wednesday when asked if he supports Trump. ‘I'm here to learn as much as I can about leather making by the folks here at Tasman.’” [Portland Press Herald, 7/20/16]

May 2016: Asked If He Would Support Trump, Poliquin “Stared Straight Ahead And Occasionally Looked At His Phone, Walking Briskly From The House Floor To Another Press Conference.” “But on Capitol Hill, Poliquin was mum on the presumptive GOP nominee. The congressman was asked three times on Friday by CQ Roll Call whether he is supporting Trump as the nominee but he refused to answer or acknowledge the questions. He stared straight ahead and occasionally looked at his phone, walking briskly from the House floor to another press conference.” [Roll Call, 5/13/16]

March 2016: When Asked If He Would Appear With Trump At Events In His District, Poliquin Said, “Good Question,” Then Silently Waited For An Elevator. “Rep. Bruce Poliquin (R-Maine), a top target for Democrats in 2016, would only say it was a ‘good question’ whether he would appear with Trump if the presidential contender traveled to his district. An uncomfortable pause ensued as the question hung in the air and Poliquin waited for an elevator to the House floor.” [Politico, 3/18/16]

June 2016: Poliquin Did Not Attend Trump’s Campaign Event In Bangor. “Trump's Bangor trip can be read as an attempt at a historic electoral bank shot: Maine has voted for Democrats in every presidential election since 1992, and although it's one of two states to allocate Electoral College votes by congressional district, Maine's two districts have never split. […] Collins was in Washington for votes on Wednesday, and Poliquin was at a previously scheduled business stop in Lewiston, making the rally an event for Maine's Trump hoi polloi.” [Bangor Daily News, 6/29/16]

March 2016: Poliquin Refused To Say Which Republican Presidential Candidate He Caucused For. “Poliquin said he thought the high turnout for the caucus was a sign that ‘people think that this country is going in the wrong direction.’ He hasn't endorsed a candidate in the race and declined to say who he caucused for.” [Bangor Daily News, 3/5/16]

December 2015: Poliquin’s Consultant Declined To Say Whether Poliquin Endorsed Any Republican Presidential Candidate. “Poliquin's political adviser, Brent Littlefield, said he doesn't anticipate an endorsement from the freshman congressman, and others are also holding out.” [Bangor Daily News, 12/20/15]

Portland Press Herald: Poliquin “Has Done All He Can To Avoid Even Mentioning Trump’s Name.” “No legislative race in Maine illustrates Trump’s potential toxicity for a candidate like the race for Maine’s 2nd U.S. Congressional District seat. Poliquin has done all he can to avoid even mentioning Trump’s name, while his campaign and the Maine Republican Party have chastised the state’s press on social media and elsewhere for being ‘obsessed’ with the presidential election.” [Portland Press Herald, 8/22/16]

July 2016: Poliquin’s Consultant Denied That Poliquin Was “Avoiding Comment” On Whether He Supported Trump: “Just Because The Paper Doesn’t Like The Comment […] Is Irrelevant.” “Brent Littlefield, a political consultant for Poliquin, would not comment on Trump's speech when contacted Friday and referred instead to a statement released by the campaign several weeks ago that talks about ‘one candidate’ but does not name Trump. He also accused MaineToday Media - publishers of the Portland Press Herald/Maine Sunday Telegram, Kennebec Journal and Morning Sentinel - of trying to ‘create news’ and ‘playing politics’ in reporting on Poliquin's stance on the issue. ‘To say he had no comment on the presidential race or is avoiding comment, that's absolutely not true,’ Littlefield said. ‘He's provided a comment repeatedly on the presidential race, and just because the paper doesn't like the comment, or doesn't like the fact that the comment was issued two months ago or six weeks ago or three hours ago, is irrelevant.’” [Portland Press Herald, 7/23/16]

July 2016: Poliquin’s Spokesperson Refused To Say Whether Poliquin Met With Trump. “A spokesman for Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, refused to say whether he was among the more than 200 Republican members of Congress who met with Donald Trump in Washington on Thursday. […] ‘He has nothing additional to add to the presidential race,’ Brent Littlefield said in an email. ‘His focus has been on House passage of the Senior Safe Act, on calling for implementation of the recent veterans' commission urging the VA to authorize local doctor visits, and trumpeting the Department of Commerce ruling on Chinese subsidies harming Maine jobs.’” [Portland Press Herald, 7/7/16]

May 2016: At A Private Conservative Event, Poliquin Predicted Trump Would “Win It All”

May 2016: At A Private Event Hosted By A Conservative Group, Poliquin Said, “Trump’s Going To Win It All.” “Maine Rep. Bruce Poliquin believes Donald Trump will win the presidency, but the vulnerable Republican is still refusing to answer whether or not he’ll support him. ‘Trump’s going to win it all,’ Poliquin said at an event Monday hosted by the conservative Informed Women’s Network in Portland, Maine.” [Roll Call, 5/13/16]

2018: Poliquin Refused To Say Whether He Voted For Trump In 2016

October 2018: Poliquin Refused To Say Whether He Voted For Trump In 2016 During A Public Candidate Debate. “Several times during Tuesday’s congressional debate in Maine’s 2nd District, Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin assailed Nancy Pelosi, the California Democrat who serves as her party’s leader in the U.S. House of Representatives. […] Poliquin also refused to name the candidate for whom he voted in the 2016 presidential election, when Donald Trump carried his district against Democrat Hillary Clinton. ‘That's my business,’ Poliquin said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/16/18]

October 2020: Poliquin Wrote An Op-Ed Urging Mainers To “Stay The Course With Trump”

10/31/20: Poliquin Op-Ed Headline: “Stay The Course With Trump To Get Our Jobs And Lives Back To
Poliquin Op-Ed: “After Four Years Of Prosperity And Promises Kept, The President Has Earned All Four Of Our State’s Electoral Votes.” “In 2016, we Mainers bucked a 24-year trend and awarded Donald J. Trump one of our state’s four electoral votes. After four years of prosperity and promises kept, the President has earned all four of our state’s electoral votes. Last year, Maine recorded its lowest unemployment rate ever recorded, 2.9%. Before the pandemic, there were more jobs available than workers willing or able to fill them. For the first time in decades, wages were rising for those at the low end of the pay scale. That strong economy with better paying jobs didn’t happen by accident. It was the result of pro-growth policies passed by President Trump and Congressional Republicans. For example, the Trump Administration ended eight unnecessary regulations for every new one created by bureaucrats. Less red tape to navigate leads to more successful small businesses and more jobs.” [Maine Examiner, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 10/23/20]

Poliquin Op-Ed: “Go Vote For Another Four Years Under President Donald J. Trump.” “Maine voters will play a key role in helping decide which path America chooses. Let’s choose sunshine and success, not fear and failure. Go vote for another four years under President Donald J. Trump.” [Maine Examiner, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 10/23/20]

October 2018: Trump Endorsed Poliquin

10/25/18: Trump Endorsed Poliquin On Twitter. “President Donald Trump took to Twitter on Thursday to express his ‘full endorsement’ of Maine’s 2nd District Republican congressman Bruce Poliquin. In a late-afternoon statement on the social media site, the president called Poliquin ‘a great congressman.’ ‘He is in a tough fight against a very liberal Nancy Pelosi Democrat,’ Trump said, referring to Lewiston state Rep. Jared Golden, the Democratic contender. Poliquin said in response, ‘I appreciate the support of the president and voters of all parties who back my efforts to create jobs and grow the economy of rural Maine.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/25/18]

2019 – 2020: Poliquin Praised Trump’s Handling Of The Economy

August 2019: Poliquin Praised Trump For Creating “A New Positive Business Climate” In Maine At An Event Hosted By The RNC And Trump’s Campaign

August 2019: Poliquin Spoke At An “Open For Business” Round Table Hosted By The RNC And The Trump Campaign. “Thursday's events will start with an economic roundtable led by prominent Maine Republican political figures, including former Gov. Paul LePage, former U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin and businessman Shawn Moody, who was the 2018 Republican nominee for governor. The event, held at the Moody's Collision Center headquarters in Gorham at 11 a.m., is part of an ‘Open for Business’ tour by the Republican National Committee and the Trump campaign. LePage was a Trump surrogate dating back to the president's 2016 primary campaign. Poliquin did not publicly endorse Trump in 2016.” [Bangor Daily News, 8/22/19]

February 2020: Poliquin Predicted Voters Would Choose Between “Plenty Of Jobs” Under GOP
2/24/20: Poliquin Predicted Voters Would Choose Between “Plenty Of Jobs” Under GOP Or “Fewer Jobs” Under A Democratic President. “Looks like voters in Nov. will have to choose between strong GOP economy, plenty of jobs, more money in their pockets, secure borders & safer communities; or Bernie’s world of sky high taxes, fewer jobs, open borders & ‘free’ stuff for everybody, including noncitizens.”

USA Today: Job Losses Under Trump Totaled 4 Million, More Than Any Other Presidency. “More jobs were lost during the Trump administration than any other in history. Approximately 4 million fewer people were employed from January 2017 to September 2020, according to the most recent publicly available data.” [USA Today, 11/6/20]

August 2020: Poliquin Praised Trump For Recovering The Economy

August 2020: Poliquin Praised Trump For His Economic Response To The COVID-19 Pandemic. “LePage was joined by former 2nd District U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin and Maine Republican Party Chairperson Demi Kouzounas in a conference call with the media. ‘This election is about whether the United States remains a capitalist country or whether we become a socialist country,’ LePage said. The former governor is the honorary chairman of Trump’s reelection campaign in Maine and remains a formidable force in the state Republican Party. LePage moved to Florida and changed his residency to the Sunshine State when he left office in 2019, but has since re-established residency in Edgecomb and has publicly flirted with running for governor again in 2022. He and Poliquin credited Trump for an economy that was surging to record levels prior to the COVID-19 pandemic.” [Portland Press Herald, 8/27/20]

Poliquin Said 2024 Republican Primary Voters Would Be Looking For Someone Who Embraces Trump’s Policies, But Communicates Them Differently. POLIQUIN: “[1:49] I’ll tell you, from someone who comes from the business community, I think the likelihood of Trump running again, Matt, is low. Notwithstanding other issues he has, but business people when they leave that world, which is based on their performance and being accountable for their decisions, when they leave that role and they go into politics, it’s a totally different kettle of fish. It really is. And when you leave politics and go back to something you’re comfortable with which is the business community I think it’s very hard for him to go back. I just don’t think he runs again. Now, that being said, one of the things that jumped out to me is that 95, 96, 97 percent of the folks at CPAC said they love his policies. […] The part that really surprised me as you mentioned a minute ago, only 55 percent said they’d vote for him again. […] That surprised me. And I’ve been saying this for quite some time, I think what happens in four years – it’s a long way off. Matt – I think what happens in four years is that the Republican Party is clearly becoming the party of the working family, the working individuals and the Democrat Party is really the party of governing elites and Hollywood money and so forth and so on. But I think what happens is they’re, the Republicans, are going to be looking for individuals that embrace these free market policies and secure borders and lower taxes and strong economy but someone different to deliver that message. I don’t think Trump runs again.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 3/1/21] (AUDIO)

April 2017: Poliquin Unsuccessfully Acted As A Liaison For Trump’s Agenda With Democrats

April 2017: Poliquin Was “Among The Trump Administration’s Liaisons” To Set Up Meetings Between Trump Officials And Democrats To “Discuss Bipartisan Approaches” To Job Creation And Infrastructure. “Poliquin has been among the Trump administration’s liaisons. The second-term Republican representing Maine’s 2nd District, which Trump won in the November election, reached out to at least one Democratic colleague, Rep. Stephen Lynch of Massachusetts, in the hopes of setting up a meeting with White House officials to discuss bipartisan approaches to creating jobs and repairing roads, bridges and other infrastructure.” [Portland Press Herald, 3/31/17]

• Poliquin: “I Only Work For The People Of Maine, And Right Now The People Want A Government Which Works, Not Partisan Bickering.” “I’ve repeatedly said I do not work for the Democrats, the Republicans, any special interest, or party bosses,” Poliquin said in a written statement to the Press Herald on Friday night. “I only work for the people of Maine, and right now the people want a government which works, not partisan bickering.”” [Portland Press Herald, 3/31/17]

Poliquin Failed To Set Up A Meeting Between Trump Officials And Democratic Rep. Stephen Lynch, Who Declined And Said Trump’s Budget “Has Been So Extreme That There Is No Middle Ground.” “The Boston Globe reported Wednesday that Poliquin first approached the South Boston Democrat on the House floor about meeting administration officials a few weeks ago, and that Lynch formally declined Monday. ‘I felt like they were trying to divide our party so I declined the invitation,’ Lynch said in a statement to the Globe. ‘My feeling is that the Trump White House has taken a ‘scorched earth’ approach so far. … I am usually someone who looks for middle ground, but Mr. Trump’s opening position, especially as reflected in his budget, has been so extreme that there is no middle ground. It’s a non-starter for me.’” [Portland Press Herald, 3/31/17]

Trump’s First Impeachment Trial

January 2020: Poliquin: Pingree And Golden “Voted To Impeach President Trump Based On Hearsay And No Evidence Of An Impeachable Crime”

February 2021: Poliquin Called Trump’s Second Impeachment A “Sham,” “Divisive,” And A “Show Trial”

2/9/21: Poliquin: “Another Divisive, Sham #Impeachment Trial Starts Today. What A Waste Of Time, Effort & Resources.” “Another divisive, sham impeachment trial starts today. What a waste of time, effort & resources. Dems would rather ‘impeach’ someone who doesn't even hold elective office than tackle the issues facing our nation. I assume its purpose is to distract from #Biden's exec orders.”

Poliquin On Trump’s Second Impeachment: “Democrats Believe Sullying The Name Of President Trump
And All Republicans Will Help Them At The Polls In 2022.” “So, why hasn’t President Joe Biden called on his far left Congressional majority to spare American families another political circus when the end result of acquittal is not in question? Why not try to unite the country instead of pushing those of different political views farther apart? Because Democrats believe sullying the name of President Trump and all Republicans will help them at the polls in 2022. Or, maybe, they don’t want to talk about their recent actions to open our border with Mexico, raise taxes, end carbon energy, and send $1,400 stimulus checks to illegals.”

February 2021: Poliquin Called Trump’s Second Impeachment A “Show Trial.” POLIQUIN: “[1:47] I’m glad it’s behind us. It was a show trial I think in many regards, Matt. Even before the trial started, 44 senators voted that this wasn’t even constitutionally allowed to impeach a president that’s no longer sitting as president. But during the proceedings, it is a trial – it’s a political trial, but it’s still a trial – the Democrat impeachment managers had to prove that Mr. Trump incited this riot in the Capitol and they were unable to do that. You’ve got to prove it. Now, clearly, he called folks to Washington and encouraged them to express their views, but it did not reach the level of incitement which includes intent. So they just didn’t prove their case.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 2/15/21] (AUDIO)

Poliquin: Trump’s Actions “Did Not Reach The Level Of Incitement” Of The January 6th Insurrection

Poliquin Said The Democratic Impeachment Managers Were Unable To Prove Trump Incited The Capitol Riot On January 6, 2021. POLIQUIN: “[1:47] I’m glad it’s behind us. It was a show trial I think in many regards,

Poliquin Said He Would Have Voted Against Impeaching Trump For His Involvement In The Capitol Riot On January 6, 2021. HOST: “[4:21] I’d love to get your thoughts on what you think about frankly her vote and then the reaction to it from the state GOP.” POLIQUIN: “Yeah well Senator Collins just won a new, six-year term against pretty big odds. […] I think a lot of this debate is fine. Republicans have a very big tent, Matt, as you know, and there’s all kinds of room for different decisions and different ideas. But for the most part, I don’t think it makes a lot of difference. I personally, and I think that was part of your question, I would have voted differently. I looked at the issues differently than the Senator did but she made the decision she did based on the information she has and she was elected to be in this case an impartial jurist and I’m sure she weighed all the facts. So I think this is a lot to do about nothing.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 2/19/21] (AUDIO)

Access Hollywood Tape

October 2016: Poliquin Called Trump’s Comments On The Access Hollywood Tape “Repulsive,” Then Said Clinton Would “Say Anything To Get Elected.” “Donald Trump’s comments were repulsive. There is no place in Maine and America to demean any person. I’m proud of the professional women who I’ve hired in my office to work hard for our 2nd District families. It’s also disturbing to learn about Secretary Clinton’s paid speeches where she stated her support for open borders and open trade, and then turned around and lied to the public about those positions. It appears she’ll say anything to get elected.”

Poliquin Repeatedly Voted Against Investigating Russian Interference In The 2016 Election

Poliquin Voted For Blocking A Bipartisan Commission To Investigate Russian Interference In The 2016 Election. In November 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Burgess, R-Texas, motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and the possibility of amendment),” According to a House floor speech by Rep. Louise Slaughter, D-NY: “If we defeat the previous question, I will offer an amendment to the rule to bring up Representative Swalwell and Representative Cummings’ bill, which would create a bipartisan commission to investigate the Russian interference in the 2016 election.” A vote for the amendment was a vote to block the bipartisan commission to investigate Russian interference in the 2016 election. The motion was agreed to 230-193. [HRes 600, Vote #600, 11/2/17; CQ, 11/2/17, Congressional Record, 11/2/17]

Poliquin Voted Against A Resolution To Require The Treasury Department To Turn Over Documents Relating To Financial Ties Between Trump And Russia. As a member of the House Committee on Financial Services, Poliquin voted to block “on a party-line vote a resolution of inquiry by Democrats that would require the Treasury Department and its Financial Crimes Enforcement Network to turn over documents relating to financial ties between President Donald Trump and Russia. The committee voted 34-26 to report the resolution unfavorably to the House. The vote means the measure won’t be taken up on the floor.” [H Res 442, Committee On Financial Services, Vote FC-72, 7/25/17; CQ Committee Coverage, 7/25/17]

Poliquin Voted For Blocking Consideration Of A Bill To Establish The National Commission On Foreign Interference In The 2016 Election. Poliquin Voted For Killing A Procedural Move To Bring Up A Bill Creating An Independent Commission To Investigate Russian Interference In The 2016 Election. “House Republicans blocked a vote Wednesday on legislation to create an independent commission to investigate Russian interference in the 2016 election. A Democratic effort to force a vote failed, with only one Republican – Rep. Walter Jones of North Carolina – joining them in a procedural vote that would have allowed them to bring up the bill. But Democrats also launched a petition Wednesday that would allow them to force a vote on the bill at a later date if they get a majority of lawmakers to sign on.” [H Res 323, Vote #259, 5/17/17; USA Today, 5/17/17]

Presidential Election. - The Bill Would Create A 12-Member. Bipartisan, Independent Commission To Examine Attempts By The Russian Government To Influence The 2016 Elections. “The bill would create a 12-member, bipartisan, independent commission empowered to interview witnesses, obtain documents, issue subpoenas, and receive public testimony to examine attempts by the Russian government and others to use electronic means to influence, interfere with, or sow distrust in this year’s U.S. elections. The commission — which would examine similar efforts by any other foreign governments or entities — would issue a final report with recommendations for future security protections to Congress and the President within 18 months of the bill’s enactment.”

April 2019: Poliquin: “No American - Including President Trump Or His Campaign - Worked With Russian Operatives Who Tried To Interfere In Our Elections”

April 2019: Poliquin: “No American - Including President Trump Or His Campaign - Worked With Russian Operatives Who Tried To Interfere In Our Elections.” “I agree with Attorney General Barr’s statement today that ALL Americans should be grateful to have confirmed that no American - including President Trump or his campaign - worked with Russian operatives who tried to interfere in our elections. I also agree with AG Barr that we, as Americans, should be concerned about the efforts of the Russian government to interfere in our elections.”

March 2019: Poliquin: The Findings Of The Mueller Investigation “Should Serve As A Warning To Anyone Who Would Unfairly Attack And Impugn Another Person Repeatedly Over An Unproven Allegation.” “The Mueller investigation was thorough and the report is clear: there was no conspiracy or collusion between President Donald Trump or the Trump campaign and the nation of Russia. This should serve as a warning to anyone who would unfairly attack and impugn another person repeatedly over an unproven allegation.”
June 2018: Poliquin Voted For A Resolution Believed To Be An Attempt To Discredit The Mueller Investigation

Poliquin Voted For Insisting That The Justice Department Fully Comply With The Document Requests And Subpoenas Issued By The Intelligence And Judiciary Committees. In June 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Adoption of the resolution that would insist that the Justice Department fully comply with the document requests and subpoenas issued by the Intelligence and Judiciary committees with regard to potential violations of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) by Justice Department personnel and related matters, by Friday, July 6, 2018.” The resolution was adopted 226-183. [H. Res. 970, Vote #306, 6/28/18; CQ, 6/28/18]

- Freedom Caucus Leaders Spearheaded The Resolution To Pressure The Deputy Attorney General To Comply With Congressional Demands Related To FBI Investigations Of Hillary Clinton And Russian Election Interference. “The resolution, which was spearheaded by House Freedom Caucus leaders Mark Meadows and Jim Jordan, is the latest step by conservatives who have been ratcheting up the pressure on Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein to comply with congressional demands related to the FBI’s Hillary Clinton and Russia investigations. The measure itself is effectively symbolic, but Republicans intend to send a message to the Justice Department that the full Congress is demanding compliance with their document requests -- or else.” [CNN, 6/26/18]

- Democratic Critics Said The Resolution Was An Attempt To Discredit The Mueller Investigation, And Give Trump An Excuse To Fire Rosenstein. “But Democratic critics say this is all a plot to discredit the Mueller investigation. They think Trump’s allies are trying to hit the Justice Department with impossible demands, so they’ll either have to turn over extremely sensitive information about an ongoing message, or look bad by withholding it. Some even think this is mainly about giving Trump an excuse to fire Rosenstein, who, again, is Mueller’s boss.” [Vox, 6/28/18]

March 2018: Poliquin Said He Would Let The Mueller Investigation Play Out And Planned To “Thoroughly Review Any Findings And Conclusions From The Independent Investigations.” “Last fall, Poliquin said it ‘is important this work remains bipartisan to ensure the American people have confidence in any conclusion.’ ‘Any indictments could be concerning, but we must let the court process work as it relates to their specific findings,’ Poliquin said at the time. Brendan Conley, his spokesman, said Monday that Poliquin’s position hasn’t changed. ‘He will thoroughly review any findings and conclusions from the independent investigations,’ Conley said.” [Portland Press Herald, 3/19/18]

October 2017: After The Indictments Of Three Former Trump Campaign Staffers, A Poliquin Spokesperson Said “We Must Let The Court Process Work As It Relates To Their Specific Findings.” “Members of Maine’s congressional delegation had mixed reactions Monday to the indictments of three former Trump campaign officials stemming from an investigation into Russian attempts to influence the U.S. elections. […] But the office of Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, was more willing to wait for the probe by special counsel Robert Mueller, as well as separate investigations by the House and Senate Intelligence Committees, to play out. ‘It is important this work remains bipartisan to ensure the American people have confidence in any conclusion,’ Poliquin spokesman Brendan Conley said in a statement. ‘Any indictments could be concerning, but we must let the court process work as it relates to their specific findings. Right now these matters remain in the purview of the committees of jurisdiction and the courts.’” [Kennebec Journal, 10/30/17]

July 2018: Poliquin Opposed Impeaching Rosenstein And Said That the “Investigation By Robert Mueller Should Run Its Course.” “I do not support moving to impeach Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein. July 2018: Poliquin Urged Recognition Of “The Consensus That Russia Did Try To Interfere In Our Election”

July 2018: Poliquin Urged Recognition Of “The Consensus That Russia Did Try To Interfere In Our Election.” “While we should seek to improve the situation in Syria and seek cooperation on other issues, we must

January 2018: Poliquin Supported The Declassification Of A Partisan Memo That Faulted The FBI For Mishandling Russian Election Interference Allegations

January 2018: Poliquin Supported The Declassification Of A Partisan Memo That Faulted The FBI For Mishandling Russian Election Interference Allegations. “Maine's congressional delegation is urging President Donald Trump to proceed with caution as he weighs the release of a classified memo from a U.S. House Intelligence Committee. […] The Republican memo is purported to allege misconduct by top officials within the FBI over their handling of an investigation into whether Russian agents collaborated with the president's election campaign in 2016. […] A spokesman for Rep. Bruce Poliquin said the Republican representing Maine's 2nd District wants the memo released, but also suggested redaction. ‘Congressman Poliquin has personally reviewed the classified memo and has stated that he believes it should be declassified so the American people can read the contents,’ Brendan Conley wrote in an email to the Portland Press Herald. ‘He wants to make sure our federal agencies are transparent and he is performing his duty as a member of a co-equal branch of government to hold agencies and bureaucrats accountable.’” [Portland Press Herald, 1/30/18]

July 2017: Poliquin Refused To Comment On Donald Trump Jr’s Emails That Indicated He Met With Russian Officials During His Father’s Campaign

July 2017: When Asked About Donald Trump Jr’s Meeting With Russian Officials During The 2016 Campaign, Poliquin’s Spokesperson Said, “There Remain Three Separate Investigations On This Matter.” “Members of Maine's congressional delegation reacted to Donald Trump Jr.'s emails that indicate he met with Russian officials during last year's presidential campaign. […] U.S. Representative Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, issued a one-sentence statement Tuesday concerning the Trump Jr. emails. ‘There remain three separate investigations on this matter - one in the House, one in the Senate, and one by a specially appointed counsel - and Congressman Poliquin will thoroughly review any findings and conclusions,’ Poliquin's spokesman, Brendan Conley, said.” [Portland Press Herald, 7/11/17]

July 2017: Poliquin “Declined To Comment” On Trump’s Threats To Interfere With The Russia Investigation

July 2017: Poliquin “Declined To Comment” On Trump’s Threats To Interfere With The Russia Investigation. “POLIQUIN DECLINES TO TAKE STANCE Maine's congressional delegation was not unanimous in their concern. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, the Republican representing Maine's 2nd District, declined to comment directly on Trump's implied threats against the probe, saying through a spokesman only that he ‘will thoroughly review any findings and conclusions’ generated by Mueller's team or the Senate and House investigations into the Russia issue. The Washington Post reported Friday that Trump was seeking ways to curtail Mueller’s probe, including an effort to compile alleged conflicts of interest against him.” [Kennebec Journal, 7/21/17]

5/16/17: Poliquin: “These Allegations, If Substantiated, Raise Grave Concerns.” “These allegations, if substantiated, raise grave concerns. It is incredibly important our investigative agencies like the FBI have the impartiality to conduct their business independently and always in the best interest of our Nation. I look forward to the House Oversight Committee’s review of the matter and specifically of the memo that’s been reported to media outlets, to gain clarity on the situation. In addition, it will be important now especially for the Senate to do its work in fully reviewing the candidates for the next FBI director.”

It includes additional language that says the American public need to know more about Trump’s business interests in order to ‘ensure that all policies put forward by the Trump Administration solely benefit the American public and not his corporate business partners.’ As was the case in past weeks, Crowley tried to offer the resolution as ‘privileged,’ meaning the House would have to act on it within two legislative days. But Rep. Mike Simpson (R-Idaho), who was presiding over the House, ruled that the measure was not privileged, and the vast majority of Republicans voted to table Crowley’s appeal of that ruling, 223-183.” [The Hill, 3/15/17]

- Democrats Offered A Resolution To “Instruct The House To Request Trump’s Tax Returns From The Last Decade So That The House Ways And Means Committee… Can Review Them In A Closed Session.” “Democrats have offered similar resolution three other times in the last four weeks, which all resulted in procedural votes. October 2017: Poliquin Voted For Consideration Of A 20-Week Abortion Ban

October 2017: Poliquin Voted For A 20-Week Abortion Ban Imposing Criminal Penalties On Doctors And Against An Amendment That Exempted Cases Where A Woman’s Health Was At Risk

In October 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would prohibit abortions in cases where the probable age of the fetus is 20 weeks or later and would impose criminal penalties on doctors who violate the ban. It would provide exceptions for cases in which the woman’s life is in danger as well as for pregnancies that are a result of rape for pregnancies that are a result of rape against an adult woman, if the woman received counseling or medical treatment for the rape at least 48 hours prior to the abortion. An exception would be provided for pregnancies resulting from rape or incest against a minor if the rape or incest had been previously reported to law enforcement or another government agency authorized to act on reports of child abuse. The bill would require a second doctor trained in neonatal resuscitation to be present for abortions where the fetus has the ‘potential’ to survive outside the womb.” The bill passed, 237-189, [HR 36, Vote #549, 10/3/17; CQ, 10/3/17]

- Abortion Rights Groups Said The Legislation Had No Exception If The Pregnancy Threatened The Mother’s Health, And The Rape And Incest Exceptions Were Too Narrow. “Abortion rights groups and Democratic lawmakers panned the legislation ahead of its passage, arguing it is based on faulty science and contains no exception if a pregnancy would threaten a mother’s health. They also said the rape and incest exceptions are too narrow and that the bill is likely unconstitutional under existing Supreme Court rulings.” [Washington Post, 10/3/17]

- Poliquin Voted For Consideration Of A 20-Week Abortion Ban. In October 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Adoption of the rule (H Res 548) that would provide for House floor consideration of the bill (HR 36) that would prohibit abortions in cases where the probable age of the fetus is 20 weeks or later and would impose criminal penalties on doctors who violate the ban, with certain exceptions.” The rule was adopted, 233-187. [HR 36, Vote #547, 10/3/17; CQ, 10/3/17]

In October 2017, Poliquin voted against: “Brownley, D-Calif., motion to recommit the bill to the House Judiciary Committee with instructions to report it back immediately with an amendment that would add an exception to the 20-week abortion ban for abortions necessary to save the health of the pregnant woman.” The motion was rejected, 238-187. Poliquin Voted For Banning Abortion After 20 Weeks, Including Requiring A 48-Hour Waiting Period For Rape Survivors. In May 2015, Poliquin voted for “a bill banning abortions after 20 weeks of pregnancy in a party-line vote on Wednesday.” According to The Hill, “But the bill did not change a provision that allows victims of incest to receive an abortion only if they are under 18 years old … The new version of the House bill also includes a two-day waiting period for rape victims. Doctors must also ensure that victims have received medical treatment or counseling during that time.” [HR 36, Vote #223, 5/13/15; The Hill, 5/13/15; The Hill, 5/11/15]

Poliquin Voted Against Adding An Exception To The Abortion Ban To Protect The Health Of The Woman. In May 2015, Poliquin voted against adding a woman’s health exception to a 20-week abortion bill. “U.S. Rep. Julia Brownley’s attempt to amend a bill calling for a ban on abortions after 20 weeks of pregnancy was defeated Wednesday, and the House went on to pass the ban. The Westlake Village Democrat’s motion and amendment would have added language to the Pain Capable Unborn Child Protection Act that would have permitted abortions after 20 weeks if a woman’s health were at risk. It was defeated on a mostly party-line 181-246 vote.” [H.R. 36, Vote #222, 5/13/15; Ventura County Star, 5/13/15]

Planned Parenthood: 20 Week Abortion Ban Was Unconstitutional

Planned Parenthood: “20-Week Bans Are Unconstitutional.” “20-week bans are unconstitutional. 20-week bans are a clear attempt to erode Roe v. Wade. In fact, 20-week ban proponents are outspoken about their goal to challenge the 1973 Supreme Court decision protecting a woman’s right to safe and legal abortion.” [Planned Parenthood, accessed 7/12/18]

Poliquin Shifted His Stance On When Women Had The Right To Choose From Extreme To More Extreme

2012: Poliquin Said “Nobody Has The Right” To End The Life Of A Fetus, Which He Said Began At Conception, “Before Its Natural Conclusion”

2012: Poliquin: “When One Mom And One Dad Get Together With The Help Of God And They Create New Life, Nobody – Nobody – Has The Right To End That Life Before Its Natural Conclusion.” HOST: “This one is about abortion and the government funding of abortion, and please describe your chance on pro-choice.” POLIQUIN: “Sure. I believe that when one mom and one dad get together with the help of God and they create new life, nobody – nobody – has the right to end that life before its natural conclusion.” [YouTube, Toby Hoxie, Senate Candidate Q&A on Abortion, 5/10/12] (VIDEO, 0:05)

2012: Poliquin Said He Believed Human Life Began At Conception, And That Human Life From Conception “Should Be Protected.” POLIQUIN: “I remember when my son was in my late wife’s womb. I used to go to all the doctor’s appointments. It was just fascinating with the sonogram, and to see that child grow. Now, can someone tell me, when is that child a life? When the head is developed? Or do you have to wait until the arms and legs are developed? Or do you have to wait until the fingers and toes, when you can see the eyes? I happen to believe, as a Catholic, that when a mom and a dad get together, with help from above, that that life is a life at that time and should be protected. I also believe very strongly in the Constitution, and the Constitution should honor religious belief. And so it should not force folks to use their tax dollars to fund something against their belief.” [YouTube, Dirigo Blue, ME-Sen Values Forum: Should Planned Parenthood be defunded, 4/24/12] (VIDEO, 0:45)

And that is a life that should be protected. […] Now, I am also a strong believer that the federal government is too intrusive. The only exception that I can think of right now is that when a doctor decides that the life of the mother or the child is in jeopardy. Government does not belong in that decision. Government should not choose who lives. That decision, in my opinion, belongs to the mom, the dad, if there is one, and the doctor.” [YouTube, Dirigo Blue, ME-Sen Values Forum: Should abortion ever be legal?, 4/24/12] (VIDEO, 2:04)

2012: When Asked If He Supported A Woman’s Right To Abortion, Poliquin Only Mentioned That The Federal Government “Has No Place To Make Such A Decision” If The Mother’s Life Was At Risk. “[Bangor Daily News:] Do you support a woman’s right to an abortion? [Poliquin:] If the life of the mother and the unborn child are both in jeopardy, the mother and her family and doctor should decide how to deal with such a tragic situation. The federal government has no place to make such a decision.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/10/12]

2012: Poliquin Said “The Only Exception I Can Think Of” When Abortion Was Permissible Was If The Life Of The Woman Or The Unborn Child Was In Jeopardy. Abortion Restrictions

Poliquin Voted For Bills That Limited Health Insurance Coverage Of Abortion Care

January 2017: Poliquin Voted For Prohibiting Federal Funds From Being Used To Pay For Abortion Care Or Health Insurance Plans That Cover Abortion

Poliquin Voted For Prohibiting Federal Funds, Including Individual And Small Business Tax Credits Under The ACA, From Being Used To Pay For Abortion Serves Or Health Insurance Plans That Include Abortion Coverage And Would Ban Multistate Health Plans The Provide Abortion Coverage From State Exchanges. In January 2017, Poliquin voted for “passage of the bill that would permanently prohibit federal funds from being used to pay for abortion services or health insurance plans that include abortion coverage. It also would prohibit the District of Columbia from using its own local funds to provide or pay for abortions. Individuals and small businesses also could not receive tax credits under the 2010 health care law related to purchases of health insurance plans that include abortion coverage. The bill would require the Office of Personnel Management to ensure that, starting in 2018, no multistate qualified health plan offered in a state insurance exchange provides coverage that includes abortion. The provisions would not apply to pregnancies resulting from rape or incest, or to situations where the woman would die unless an abortion is performed.” The bill passed by a vote of 238-183. [HR 7, Vote #65, 1/24/17; CQ, 1/24/17]

January 2017: On His Vote, Poliquin’s Spokesperson Said He Opposed Public Funding For Abortion Care And “Understands That This Topic Raises Passionate Discussion.” “The proposal, approved on a mostly party-line vote, seeks to make a prohibition on taxpayer funding of abortion permanent and, for the first time, to stymie private insurance plans from offering coverage for abortions. […] U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, a Republican whose 2nd District includes Lewiston-Auburn and Franklin and Oxford counties, has a different take on the proposed legislation. ‘The congressman understands that this topic raises passionate discussion, on both sides of the issue,’ his spokesman, Brendan Conley, said. ‘He agrees that all of us should extend compassion and support to every woman in need of care -- and always offer help, never condemnation.’ He added, ‘For nearly 40 years, majorities in Democratic- and Republican-controlled congresses have agreed that federal tax dollars should not be used to fund elective abortions. As a Franco-American Catholic, the congressman agrees.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 1/24/17]

July 2016: Poliquin Voted For Allowing Health Care Providers To Deny Abortion Coverage

Poliquin Voted For Allowing Health Care Providers To Deny Abortion Coverage. [S 304, Vote #443, 7/13/16; AP, 7/13/16]

January 2015: Poliquin Voted For Bill Blocking Federal Funding For Abortion, Including Tax Credits For Small Businesses Providing Health Care That Included Abortion Coverage

Poliquin Voted For Bill Blocking Federal Funding For Abortion, Including Tax Credits For Small Businesses Providing Health Care That Included Abortion Coverage. In January 2015, Poliquin voted for the No Taxpayer Funding for Abortion Act, which restricted federal funding for abortions and abortion coverage. “The House did easily pass H.R. 7, the No Taxpayer Funding for Abortion and Abortion Insurance Full Disclosure Act of 2015, sponsored by Rep. Chris Smith (R-N.J.). White House advisers said they would recommend a veto should the bill reach the president’s desk. The Hyde Amendment already prevents the use of federal funds to pay for abortion, except in cases of incest, rape and life endangerment of the mother. That is passed every year as part of an appropriations bill, but this bill would make that permanent law. The House bill would also restrict small businesses from getting an Affordable Care Act tax credit if they purchase employee health plans that include abortion coverage on the Small Business Health Options Program, or SHOP exchange.” [HR 7, Vote #45, 1/22/15; Politico, 1/22/15]

• The Bill Would Give Big Insurance Companies Incentive To Drop Abortion Coverage. “The bill gives insurers a big incentive to drop abortion coverage from their plans, or risk losing the large pool of consumers who receive the law's subsidies. Abortion coverage is historically relatively ubiquitous in health plans, so the effect could be far-reaching.” [National Journal, 1/28/14]

• Bangor Daily News: Poliquin “Solidified His Position As The Only Anti-Abortion Member Of Maine’s Congressional Delegation” By Voting For The No Taxpayer Funding for Abortion And Abortion Full Disclosure Act of 2015. “U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin solidified his position as the only anti-abortion member of Maine’s congressional delegation Thursday when he cast his first vote against abortion on the 42nd anniversary of Roe v. Wade, the landmark U.S. Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion. Thursday’s vote on the No Taxpayer Funding for Abortion and Abortion Full Disclosure Act of 2015 is widely seen as a case of majority Republicans in the House trying to make a point and appeal to their constituents, even though the measure has no chance of surviving a veto by President Barack Obama.” [Bangor Daily News, 1/22/15]

- Poliquin On His Vote: “I Don’t Believe Requiring Taxpayers To Fund Abortions Reflects The Values Of Our 2nd District Families.” “In a written statement, Poliquin cited his Catholic upbringing and the fact he is a single father for his stance against abortion and justification for his vote. ‘I don’t believe requiring taxpayers to fund abortions reflects the values of our 2nd District families,’ said Poliquin, a Republican who represents Maine’s 2nd U.S House District. ‘Additionally, doing so would be in contrast to the moral conscience and religious beliefs of many taxpayers.’ Poliquin was at times cagey about his abortion stance during his 2014 campaign, insisting that his views were personal and not political.” [Bangor Daily News, 1/22/15]

- Bangor Daily News: “Democrats Assailed Poliquin For Being Tone-Deaf To The Attitudes Within His District.” “A Planned Parenthood poll conducted last year in Maine found that 68 percent of respondents from the 2nd Congressional District said they preferred to vote for a gubernatorial candidate who supports a woman’s right to make decisions about abortions. […] Democrats assailed Poliquin for being tone-deaf to the attitudes within his district while 1st Congressional District Rep. Chellie Pingree aimed her ire at Republican congressional leaders. ‘This is another example of how Republicans in Congress just don’t understand women’s lives,’ said Pingree in a written statement. ‘Over and over again, they have tried to restrict abortion, drive women’s health clinics out of business, and generally get in the way of what should be a private conversation between a woman and her doctor.’” [Bangor Daily News, 1/22/15]

May 2019: Poliquin Said He Opposed The State Of Maine’s Decision To Cover Abortion Procedures Under Medicaid

2019: Poliquin Said He Opposed The State Of Maine’s Decision To Cover Abortion Procedures Under Medicaid. POLIQUIN: “There are movements in both bodies, the federal and the state government – here, we’re talking about Augusta specifically – to use for the first time in I think 45 or 50 years taxpayer dollars to pay for abortion. Whether you’re pro-life like me or pro-choice, that’s not the issue. The issue is do you want to use taxpayer dollars to pay for abortion. At the federal level, it’s been the law of the land that you do not do that for about 40 or 50 years with the exception of rape, incest, and life of the mother. But now there’s a movement in Maine to use state, not federal because it’s illegal at the federal level, but state taxpayer dollars to pay for abortion. I think that’s a really bad idea. It can violate folks’ religious beliefs and all kinds of other problems with it.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 5/7/19] (AUDIO) 12:28

Poliquin Voted For Considering Legislation To Require Medical Practitioners To Care For So-Called “Born-Alive” Babies. [HR 36, Vote #549, 10/3/17; CQ, 10/3/17]

Poliquin Voted For A Bill Requiring Doctors To Provide Medical Care To Aborted Fetuses That Show Signs Of Life. In September 2015, Poliquin voted for legislation that “amends the federal criminal code to require any health care practitioner who is present when a child is born alive following an abortion or attempted abortion to: (1) exercise the same degree of care as reasonably provided to any other child born alive at the same gestational age, and (2) ensure that such child is immediately admitted to a hospital. The term ‘born alive’ means the complete expulsion or extraction from his or her mother, at any stage of development, who after such expulsion or extraction breathes or has a beating heart, pulsation of the umbilical cord, or definite movement of voluntary muscles, regardless of whether the umbilical cord has been cut.” The bill passed, 248 to 177. - The President Of The American Congress Of Obstetricians And Gynecologists Called The Legislation “A Disservice To America’s Women And Gross Legislative Interference Into The Practice Of Medicine.” “In a statement, Mark S. DeFrancesco, MD, president of the American Congress of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, called the passage of H.R. 3504 ‘a disservice to America’s women and gross legislative interference into the practice of medicine, putting politicians between women and their trusted doctors. This bill and others like it are part of a larger attempt to deny women access to safe, legal, evidence-based abortion care,’ he said in the statement. ‘We urge the United States Senate and the President to stand with women and stand up for safe medical care, by preventing this and other legislation like it to become law.’” [Yahoo News, 9/18/15]

2012: Poliquin Said It Was “Completely Inappropriate For The Federal Government To Mandate Taxpayers To Fund [Abortion] Against Their Belief.” REPRESENTATIVE, MAINE RIGHT TO LIFE: “Would you vote for legislation much like the April 14 vote last year in the U.S. Senate to defund Planned Parenthood?” HOST: “We’ll begin with Bruce Poliquin.” POLIQUIN: “Yes, I would.” REPRESENTATIVE, MAINE RIGHT TO LIFE: “Thank you.” POLIQUIN: “If we want – I believe that the federal government should not intrude upon someone’s religious beliefs, and there are those taxpayers who believe in life like I do, and so I think it’s completely inappropriate for the federal government to mandate taxpayers to fund this sort of practice against their belief.” [YouTube, Dirigo Blue, ME-Sen Values Forum: Should Planned Parenthood be defunded, 4/24/12] (VIDEO) 00:00

Abortion In Past Campaigns

2014: Poliquin Contrasted His Anti-Choice Views In A Primary Against A Pro-Choice Republican

April 2014: Poliquin “Used [His Anti-Choice Stance] As A Wedge” In A Republican Primary Debate Against Kevin Raye. “Kevin Raye and Bruce Poliquin, the candidates for the Republican nomination to Maine's 2nd congressional district seat, will speak back to back to the party faithful at the state GOP convention in Bangor on Saturday, one of the first times they have shared a stage in an already-feisty campaign. […] Raye didn't discuss his stance on abortion, but Poliquin used it as a wedge, saying the death of his first wife in a 1992 accident affirmed his anti-abortion position.” [Portland Press Herald, 4/26/14]

2014: Poliquin Said He Was Proud To Have Been Endorsed By National Right To Life As The Only Pro-Life Candidate In The GOP Primary. POLIQUIN: “I’m also very proud to tell you that I’m the only pro-life candidate in this race. For me, this is my belief. This is not about politics. I have one son, Sam, who I just love to death, who I’ve raised since he’s been in diapers. I know how precious life is. I know how fragile life is. I’ve been endorsed by the National Right to Life group and also by the Christian Civic League. I’m very proud of that.” [YouTube, Maine 02 RawFootage, WAGM Raye Poliquin Primary Debate, 5/30/14] (VIDEO) 8:34

2014: Poliquin Attacked His GOP Primary Opponent For Being Endorsed By “Abortion Providers.” POLIQUIN: “I’m a conservative when it comes to traditional family values. […] I mentioned to you, I’m very proud to be pro-life. I’m the only pro-life candidate in this race, and I’ve been endorsed by various organizations who support that. My opponent, to answer your question Jason, how are we different, my opponent has been endorsed by abortion providers and I think one of his largest contributions in this campaign is from a pro-abortion group. So we’re very different in that regard.” [YouTube, Maine 02 RawFootage, WAGM Raye Poliquin Primary Debate, 5/30/14] (VIDEO) 8:34

June 2014: Christian Civil League Board Chairman Bob Emrich On The Republican Primary: Poliquin “Has That Core Conviction That Abortion Is Wrong.” “Bob Emrich, former chief of staff for the Senate Republicans and the current board chairman of the Christian Civic League of Maine, says that while many of the league's members may not support all of Poliquin's views, the fact that he is pro-life makes it easy for them to get behind a person who shares one of their fundamental beliefs. ‘He's not going to Congress to become a pastor, right, but he's going to go because part of the reason is that he has that core conviction that abortion is wrong and that there needs to be some restriction and so forth but he believes in life and as a result the policies will come and that's what we're looking for,’ Emrich said.” [Maine Public Radio, 6/11/14]

Poliquin Cited The Death Of His First Wife To Justify His Anti-Choice Stance

2016: Poliquin Campaign Website: “I Understand The Many Challenges As Well As The Special Joys Of Rising [Sic] Children Alone. [...] I Am The Only Candidate In This Congressional Race Who Is Pro-Life.” “From that upbringing, reinforced by a family tragedy when my son was still in diapers, I developed a deep appreciation for the invaluable role families play in our society. I believe that our government policies should support and strengthen American families. These experiences also reminded me how fragile and precious life is. Raising my son as a single dad, I understand the many challenges as well as the special joys of raising children alone. The Declaration of Independence gave birth to our country. It states that we Americans are ‘endowed by (our) Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness.’ I believe in strong family values and in life. I am the only candidate in this Congressional race who is pro-life, and I’m proud of it.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/29/16]

2012: Poliquin Said He Was “Completely Against” Requiring Insurance Companies To Cover The Cost Of Contraceptives

2012: Poliquin Said He Was “Completely Against” Requiring Insurance Companies To Cover The Cost Of Contraceptives. POLIQUIN: “When you have this recent example of the federal government mandating the availability of contraceptives in specific health plans, I’m completely against that for a number of different reasons. First of all, I think that women who want to have available contraceptives and they will have those but the federal government should not mandate insurance companies, the private sector, to create specific policies, specific products. They can do that themselves, and I’m sure contraception will be available to women. However, when it comes to religious belief, if the federal government is mandating specific insurance policies to provide that product against the religious beliefs of those institutions that support that plan, that is a clear, in my mind, violation of someone’s religious beliefs. As a United States Senator, I will vote against that.” [YouTube, Dirigo Blue, ME-Sen Values Forum: Should civil rights trump religious rights, 4/24/12] (VIDEO) 1:13
Poliquin Said He Would Vote Against Legislation Mandating Employer-Sponsored Health Care Plans To Cover The Cost Of Contraceptives Even If Those Employers Disagreed From A Religious Perspective.

Poliquin Voted For Reversing Obama Rule Preventing States From Withholding Grants From Planned Parenthood. In February 2017, Poliquin voted for: overturning “an Obama-era rule banning states from denying federal funds to Planned Parenthood and other health care providers that perform abortions. The rule was designed to prohibit states from withholding family planning funding from providers for reasons other than their ability to offer family-planning services.” The resolution was passed by a vote of 230-188. [HJRes 43, Vote #99, 2/16/17; USA Today, 2/16/17]
Poliquin Voted For Doubling The Budget For Select Committee Targeting Planned Parenthood. In December 2016, Poliquin voted for: “an additional $800,000 for the select committee investigating abortion provider practices, doubling its budget for the year. The motion was agreed to 241-181. [H Res 771, Vote #285, 6/9/16; CQ Floor Votes, 6/9/16; Office of the Democratic Leader, 6/9/16]

Poliquin Voted For Overriding The President’s Veto Of A Bill To Repeal The Affordable Care Act And Block Funding Of Planned Parenthood For A Year. In February 2016, Poliquin voted for: overriding the President’s veto of a bill to “repeal portions of the 2010 health care law and block federal funding for Planned Parenthood for one year. The bill would zero-out the law’s penalties for noncompliance with the law’s requirements for most individuals to obtain health coverage and employers to offer health insurance. The bill would scrap in 2018 the law’s Medicaid expansion, as well as subsidies to help individuals buy coverage through the insurance exchanges. It also would scrap certain taxes included in the law, including the tax on certain high-value employer-sponsored health insurance plans.” The override required a two-thirds majority to pass, but failed 241 to 186. [HR 3762, Vote #53, 2/2/16; CQ Floor Votes, 2/2/16]

Poliquin Voted For Repealing The Affordable Care Act And Defunding Planned Parenthood For One Year. In January 2016, Poliquin voted for: “Price, R-Ga., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the bill that would repeal portions of the 2010 health care law and block federal funding for Planned Parenthood for one year. The bill would zero-out the law’s penalties for noncompliance with the law’s requirements for most individuals to obtain health coverage and employers to offer health insurance. The bill would scrap in 2018 the law’s Medicaid expansion, as well as subsidies to help individuals buy coverage through the insurance exchanges. It also would scrap certain taxes included in the law, including the tax on certain high-value employer-sponsored health insurance plans.” The bill passed by a vote of 240 to 181. [HR 3762, Vote #6, 1/6/16; CQ, 1/6/16]

Poliquin Voted For Reconciliation Bill To Repeal Key Sections Of The Affordable Care Act And Defund Planned Parenthood. In October, 2015, Poliquin voted for: a “budget reconciliation bill that seeks to gut Obamacare by repealing key sections of the law, including the individual and employer mandate and the so-called ‘cadillac’ tax, which targets high-end employer-sponsored health plans. In addition, it would block funding for Planned Parenthood for one year and divert that spending to other women’s health programs.” The bill passed 240-189. [HR 3762, Vote #568, 10/23/15; Washington Post, 10/23/15]

Poliquin Voted For Establishing Select Committee To Investigate Fetal Tissue Donation. In October 2015, Poliquin voted for: a bill that would “establish a select investigative subcommittee under the House Energy and Commerce Committee. The panel would be responsible for investigating and reporting on issues related to fetal tissue donation, fetal tissue procurement, federal funding for abortion services, and late-term abortions.” The bill passed 242-184. [H Res 461, Vote #538, 10/7/15; CQ Floor Votes, 10/7/15]

- Select Committee Targeting Planned Parenthood Given Broad Jurisdiction To Investigate Abortion Practices, Including Recommendations To Change Abortion Laws. Although the select committee was formed in response to videos edited to implicate that Planned Parenthood sold fetus tissue for profit, “[t]he words ‘Planned Parenthood’ do not appear in the resolution establishing the special committee. Its jurisdiction is considerably broader, encompassing ‘medical procedures and business practices used by entities involved in fetal tissue procurement’ and ‘any other relevant matters with respect to fetal tissue procurement.’ It also permits the committee to probe the subject of federal funding for abortion providers generally, the practices of providers who perform abortions in the second and third trimesters, and ‘medical procedures for the care of a child born alive as a result of an attempted abortion.’ The committee is also empowered to recommend changes in laws or regulations based on its findings.” [Washington Post, 10/7/15; USA Today, 10/7/15]

- Vox: Republicans On The Select Committee On Planned Parenthood “Used Shoddy Evidence To Promote A Predetermined, Partisan Conclusion Instead Of Making Any Genuine Efforts At Fact-Finding.” “But by all appearances — as detailed in the Democrats’ report, and based on the reporting I’ve done both on the select panel since its inception and on the similar hearings that preceded it — Republicans on the select committee have abused their subpoena power to intimidate doctors and medical researchers, flouted House rules and traditions, and used shoddy evidence to promote a predetermined, partisan conclusion instead of making any genuine efforts at fact-finding. Excessive scrutiny from the House panel has interfered with the jobs of scientists and medical providers. […] It's a taxpayer-funded witch hunt, and it's doing active harm to science and medicine.” [Vox, 4/29/16]

Poliquin Voted For Adding Language To Continuing Resolution To Defund Planned Parenthood. In September 2015, Poliquin voted for: “adoption of the concurrent resolution (H Con Res 79) that would require the House enrolling clerk to add language to the CR defunding Planned Parenthood before it is sent to the president.” The resolution passed 241-185. [H Con Res 79, Vote #527, 9/30/15; CQ Floor Votes, 9/30/15]

- Republicans Attempted To Attach Measure To Defund Planned Parenthood To Spending Measure Necessary To Avert Government Shutdown. “With only hours to spare on the last day of the fiscal year, Congress averted a government shutdown on Wednesday by approving a temporary spending measure to keep federal agencies operating through Dec. 11. […] In one last display of their fury, House Republicans on Wednesday adopted another resolution to cut off government financing to Planned Parenthood. The resolution was to be sent to the Senate, where Democrats were certain to block it.” [New York Times, 10/1/15]

Poliquin Voted For Bill Making It Easier For States To Defund Planned Parenthood. In September 2015, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of a bill that would amend title XIX of the Social Security act to allow states to exclude medical providers who perform abortions from the state’s Medicaid contracts. The bill would expand the exceptions for which a state is not required to provide Medicaid reimbursements, allowing states to deny non-abortion health care reimbursements to medical providers such as Planned Parenthood.” The bill passed by a vote of 236-193. [HR 3495, Vote #524, 9/29/15; CQ Floor Votes, 9/29/15]

Poliquin Voted Against Motion To Protect Women’s Access To Life-Saving Health Services, Including Planned Parenthood. In September 2015, Poliquin voted against: motion to recommit the Women’s Public Health and Safety Act. “The Democratic Motion to Recommit protects American women’s access to life-saving health care services from Republicans’ attempt to defund Planned Parenthood by protecting any organization that provides life-saving health services, such as preventive care and cancer screenings, from being stripped of vital federal resources to serve America’s families.” The motion was rejected by a vote of 184-242. [HR 3495, Vote #523, 9/29/15; Democratic Leader – Motions to Recommit, 9/30/15]

Poliquin Voted For Defunding Planned Parenthood. In September 2015, Poliquin voted for: the Defund Planned Parenthood Act 2015 that “would bar, for one year, federal funding for Planned Parenthood and its affiliates unless they certify that, during that period, they will not perform abortions or provide funds to other entities that perform abortions. The prohibition would apply to all federal funds, including Medicaid. The bill would provide exceptions for abortions provided in the case of rape, incest, or threat to the life of the mother. As amended, the bill would effectively redirect funds from Planned Parenthood to the community health center program; specifically, it would appropriate $235 million for community health centers, in addition to any other funds available to the program.” The bill passed 241 to 187. [H.R. 3134, Vote #505, 9/18/15; CQ, 9/18/15]

- Mike Tipping Column: “Rep. Poliquin Flips On Planned Parenthood, Votes Against Women’s Health. “I was surprised and pleased to hear Second-District Representative Bruce Poliquin’s statement to Maine Public Radio last week on Planned Parenthood. Sure, he used the opportunity to repeat some of the worst lies about the organization promoted by anti-abortion rights activists, but at least he said he would vote against the attempt to strip away federal funding for the clinics. ‘We should fund the other parts of Planned Parenthood that allows other services for women to go on,’ he told MPBN. All federal funding to Planned Parenthood goes for services other than abortion, including cancer screenings and birth control. Just four days later, however, Poliquin had changed his mind. He voted in favor of a measure to halt funding for Planned Parenthood across the country. To justify his quick flip-flop, he claimed that he’s still in favor of funding for women’s health care and that he simply voted that way because there are no Planned Parenthood clinics in the Second District. That is one of the lamest excuses I’ve ever heard. It would be like voting against FEMA funds for hurricane relief because Bangor is less vulnerable than than New Orleans. Plus, he had specifically said he was in favor of funding those services through Planned Parenthood. There’s no wiggle room in that quote.” [Bangor Daily News, Mike Tipping Column, 9/25/15]

Poliquin Voted Against Preventing Attempt To Defund Planned Parenthood. In September 2015, Poliquin voted against: a motion that “shields American women’s access to lifesaving health care services from Republicans’ attempt to defund Planned Parenthood by protecting any organization that provides women’s health services, such as preventive care and cancer screenings, from being stripped of vital federal resources to serve America’s families.” A yes vote was a vote against defunding Planned Parenthood. The resolution failed, 183 to 245. [H.R. 3134, Vote #504, 9/18/15; Democratic Leader – Motions To Recommit, 9/18/15]

Poliquin Voted Against Shutting Down The Government Over Planned Parenthood Funding

Poliquin Voted For A Government Funding Bill That Included Funding For Planned Parenthood. In September 2015, Poliquin voted for: a continuing resolution that would fund the government until December 11 because it would continue federal funding of Planned Parenthood. “Congress is sending President Obama legislation to prevent a government shutdown following a 277-151 vote in the House that will keep federal agencies funded through Dec. 11. More Republicans voted against the spending bill than in favor of it, however. Republicans objected to the inclusion of money for Planned Parenthood in the bill, leading 151 GOP lawmakers to vote against the bill, compared to only 91 who supported it.” The bill passed 277 – 151. [H.R. 719, Vote #528, 9/30/15; The Hill, 9/30/15]

Poliquin Voted Against Consideration Of An Amendment That Prevents Health Insurance Plans From Charging Women Higher Premiums Than Men. In January 2017, Poliquin voted against the “Schakowsky, D-Ill., motion to recommit the bill to the House Energy and Commerce Committee with instructions to report back immediately with an amendment that would state that the bill could not be interpreted to allow health insurance plans to charge women higher premiums than they charge men.” The motion was rejected by a vote of 187-235. Federally Qualified Health Centers

Poliquin Touted His Support For Funding Federally Qualified Health Centers Instead Of Planned Parenthood

Poliquin Touted His Support For Funding Federally Qualified Health Centers: “As You May Know, The Planned Parenthood Organization Does Not Have Any Facilities In The 2nd District Of Maine.” “As you may know, the Planned Parenthood organization does not have any facilities in the 2nd District of Maine. This is the largest District east of the Mississippi River and Congressman Poliquin understands the need to have health care close to home. There are more than 40 Federally Qualified Health Centers (FQHC’s) located directly in the 2nd District of Maine which provide women’s health care services. These facilities are by and large located at health facilities and health offices all across the District. These services at various locations include annual exams, STD and HPV testing, breast and cervical exams; among others. […] Congresswoman Poliquin has repeatedly voted to increase federal funding for these services so they are available to women in Maine.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, captured 12/22/18]

Poliquin Defended His Votes To Defund Planned Parenthood By Claiming They Would Increase Funding For Health Clinics In Maine’s 2nd District

September 2015: Poliquin Spun His Vote To Defund Planned Parenthood As A Measure To Increase Funding For Health Clinics In ME-02. “Additionally, as amended, this bill will redirect $235 million to Federally qualified health centers that provide health services for women. Since Maine’s Second District does not have any Planned Parenthood locations, but is home to many Federally qualified health care centers all across the Second District, the vote would increase funding for women’s health care initiatives in Maine’s 2nd Congressional District.” [Poliquin Official Press Release, 9/18/15]

2018: Poliquin Pushed For Work Requirements On SNAP In The Farm Bill, Which Maine Editorialists And Food Bank Leaders Said Would Worsen Hunger In Maine

Poliquin Pushed For Work Requirements On SNAP In The 2018 Farm Bill

6/21/18: Poliquin Touted His Contribution Of “Maine-Based Welfare Reforms That Include Sensible Work Requirements For Work-Capable Adults With No Dependents” To The Farm Bill. “Today, the U.S. House of Representatives passed the Farm Bill, which includes two major pieces Congressman Bruce Poliquin (ME-02) helped author: (1) Maine-based welfare reforms that include sensible work requirements for work-capable adults with no dependents, and (2) his bipartisan bill to help Maine’s wild blueberry industry and give our children greater access to healthy fruits and vegetables in their school cafeterias. ‘It’s critical we help those who are capable of working and who are stuck in welfare learn the skills they need to be successful,’ said Congressman Poliquin.” [Poliquin Press Release, House of Representatives, 6/21/18]

August 2018: Poliquin Pushed For Work Requirements On SNAP To “Help” “Individuals Stuck In Government Dependency To Get The Opportunities To Be Successful And Become Independent And Self-Sufficient.” “Poliquin, a two-term lawmaker seeking re-election, said he pushed for the farm bill provision to help ‘individuals stuck in government dependency to get the opportunities to be successful and become independent and self-sufficient.’” [Portland Press Herald, 8/29/18]

- Poliquin Defended His Proposal Citing “A Finite Amount Of Money Out There” For Government Programs. “Poliquin said there is ‘a finite amount of money out there’ so it is important that the government give people a push to better themselves. He said he believes pushing SNAP recipients to work ‘will give young adults the opportunity to learn the skills they need to be successful.’” [Portland Press Herald, 8/29/18]

- Poliquin Said “A Rising Economy Lifts All Boats,” Including Donors Who Would Provide To Food Banks For People Experiencing Hunger. “Poliquin said the best answer to the problem of hunger is for the economy to grow. ‘A rising economy lifts all boats,’ he said, and ensures donors will keep assisting the food bank in its quest to help anyone in dire straits. Without the assistance of organizations such as Good Shepherd, the congressman said, ‘I hate to think what would happen.’” [Portland Press Herald, 8/29/18]

- Poliquin Promoted Work Requirements On SNAP As He Toured A Food Bank Whose Leadership Called His Proposal “Just Scary To Us.” “The proposal, pushed by Rep. Bruce Poliquin of Maine, R-2nd District, would force many more able-bodied adults to work at least 20 hours a week to receive Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program benefits. Because of the numbers involved, the proposal is ‘just scary to us,’ said Kristen Miale, president of the Good Shepherd Food Bank in Auburn. […] During a tour of the food bank Wednesday, Poliquin said the training he envisions and the push toward employment included in the measure would help put people on the path to a better life.” [Portland Press Herald, 8/29/18]

Poliquin Claimed Work Requirements On Food Assistance Programs In Maine “Helped Lift Thousands Out Of Poverty And Into Independence And Better Lives Through Employment.” “The bill submitted by Poliquin would also require able-bodied adults between 18 and 50 who don't have dependents to work at least 20 hours per week, get job training, or perform community service ‘in order for taxpayers to help them out with food assistance.’ Poliquin said that ‘similar reforms in Maine have helped lift thousands out of poverty and into independence and better lives through employment. We have plenty of jobs available.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 7/21/17]

- Center For Budget And Policy Priorities: Reports Of Maine Studies That Claimed Work Requirements On Food Assistance Increased Employment Overstated Work Requirements’ Impact. “For Maine, the Department of Health and Human Services’ press release reported that among the individuals whose SNAP was cut off, ‘Incomes rose 114 percent within a year of leaving the program,’ and ‘nearly half (48%) worked at least one quarter in 2015.’ These reports, however, dramatically overstate the increase in work rates and wages that resulted from the reimplementation of the time limit because many of the SNAP recipients affected were working, or would have started working anyway, albeit mostly in low-wage jobs with high turnover.” [Center For Budget And Policy Priorities, 12/14/16]

- Poliquin Wrote He “Worked For Three Years To Include Common-Sense Work Requirements For Those Applying For Food Stamps.” “We Mainers are hard-working. We also have big hearts. That’s why I worked for three years to include common-sense work requirements for those applying for food stamps, the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, or SNAP. Giving up on fellow Mainers who are less fortunate is mean-spirited. Bipartisan, good government should always show compassion for our friends and neighbors needing a helping hand, including those training for a job or seeking employment.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 9/8/18]

12/5/19: Poliquin: “Do You Think It’s Fair To Require Food Stamp Recipients To Work If Able? I Do. Do you think it’s fair to require food stamp recipients to work if able?

I do. That’s why I pushed to include the requirement in U.S. House-passed Farm Bill.

Able-bodied adults w/out children or disabilities should work, job train, or do community service to receive benefits.

Maine Food Bank Leaders Said Poliquin’s SNAP Proposal Would Worsen Hunger And Create A “Vast New Bureaucracy”

President Of The Good Shepherd Food Bank In Auburn, Maine Called Poliquin’s Farm Bill Proposal “Just Scary” And Said The Bill’s Savings “Come From People Losing Access” To Food. “Because of the numbers involved, the proposal is ‘just scary to us,’ said Kristen Miale, president of the Good Shepherd Food Bank in Auburn. Food bank officials said that if Poliquin’s proposal wins passage, hunger will become even more common in Maine, which already has one of the highest rates of food insecurity in the nation – only Alabama and Louisiana have a higher percentage of people in dire straits. […] Miale said the billions in savings GOP lawmakers see nationwide in the farm bill mostly ‘come from people losing access’ to food assistance they need.” [Portland Press Herald, 8/29/18]

• “Poliquin’s SNAP Proposal Would Create ‘A Vast New Bureaucracy’ To Administer Benefits.” “Miale said the average household that qualifies gets about $124 a month for food, which falls well short of what many need to get by. She said nobody is avoiding work in order to collect such a small amount. She said the House farm bill’s provisions that Poliquin pressed to include would make it more difficult for some to get food assistance while simultaneously creating ‘a vast new bureaucracy’ to oversee the administration of a work requirement. States would be required to keep tabs on each recipient and track his or her work record each month, an expense that would be paid through the savings in what is shelled out for food.” [Portland Press Herald, 8/29/18]

Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: Under Poliquin’s SNAP Proposal, “The Poorest, Most Vulnerable Americans Will Be Made Further Poor And Vulnerable.” “Poliquin wants Maine’s experience repeated all over the country. He’s had the work-requirement language inserted in the House version of the 2019 farm bill, which will soon be reconciled with the Senate version into a compromise bill. If his language survives, the federal government will surely spend less on hunger assistance – but that won’t mean that fewer people are hungry. Instead, the poorest, most vulnerable Americans will be made further poor and vulnerable. SNAP benefits – an average of $124 a month per household – are not enough alone to get people by, but they can make the difference between sickness and health, or living on the margins and falling off altogether.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 8/31/18]

Poliquin Voted For House Versions Of The 2018 Farm Bill That Were Projected To Worsen Hunger For Hundreds Of Thousands Of Households With Work Requirements On SNAP

June 2018: Poliquin Voted For The House Version Of The 2018 Farm Bill. In June 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would reauthorize and extend federal farm and nutrition programs through fiscal 2023, including crop subsidies, conservation, rural development and agricultural trade programs and the Supplemental Nutritional Assistance Program. It would require individuals receiving SNAP benefits, who are 18-59 years old, to work or participate in work training programs for a minimum of 20 hours per week, and would require the Department of Agriculture to establish a database to track individuals receiving SNAP benefits. The bill would reauthorize and extend supplemental agricultural disaster assistance programs, the current sugar policies and loan rates, several international food aid programs, nonrecourse marketing assistance loans for loan commodities, several dairy programs, including the dairy risk management program (previously the margin protection program) and would modify certain utility standards in the Home Energy Assistance Program to require SNAP benefits recipients to provide documentation of such expenses in order to receive increased benefits using the Standard Utility Allowance.” The bill passed, 213-211. - The Bill Would Tighten Eligibility For SNAP, Resulting In 400,000 Households Losing Benefits, And Would Risk Free And Reduced-Price School Meals For Thousands For Children. “The House farm bill would also tighten eligibility criteria under SNAP — changes that would result in some 400,000 households losing SNAP benefits. Thousands of children would also risk losing their enrollment in free and reduced-price school meal programs.” [Politico, 6/21/18]

- Anti-Hunger Groups Said The Changes Would Make It More Difficult For Millions To Receive Nutrition Assistance, While Investing In Job Training Programs That Are Not Proven To Move People Out Of Poverty. “Republicans contend the plan would put people on a pathway to self-sufficiency. Democrats and anti-hunger groups say it would make it more difficult for millions of needy Americans to receive nutrition assistance, and also would invest in a state-run job training bureaucracy under SNAP that has yet to prove it helps people move out of poverty.” [Politico, 6/21/18]

Poliquin Voted For The House Version Of The 2018 Farm Bill, Which Would Reauthorize SNAP And Farm And Rural Programs. In May 2018, Poliquin voted for reauthorization, rural development and agricultural trade programs and the Supplemental Nutritional Assistance Program. It would require individuals receiving SNAP benefits, who are 18-59 years old, to work or participate in work training programs for a minimum of 20 hours per week, and would require the Department of Agriculture to establish a database to track individuals receiving SNAP benefits.” The bill failed 198 to 213. - The House Farm Bill Included Strict Work Requirements For Food Aid Recipients, While Maintaining Farm Subsidies For Rural Communities. “The twice-a-decade measure — which would have imposed strict new work requirements on food aid recipients while maintaining farm subsidies important to rural lawmakers — failed on a 213-to-198 vote. It was a rebuke of Speaker Paul D. Ryan by a key bloc of conservatives over his refusal to schedule an immediate vote on a restrictive immigration bill sponsored by the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.” [New York Times, 5/18/18]

Poliquin Voted For The Farm Bill Conference Report, Funding Farm And Nutrition Programs Through FY 2023. In December 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Adoption of the conference report on the bill that would reauthorize and extend federal farm and nutrition programs through fiscal 2023, including crop subsidies, conservation, rural development and agricultural trade programs and the Supplemental Nutritional Assistance Program. It would reauthorize and extend supplemental agricultural disaster assistance programs, sugar policies and loan rates, several international food aid programs, nonrecourse marketing assistance loans for loan commodities, and several dairy programs, including the dairy risk management program (previously the margin protection program). It would create new pilot programs that would test strategies for improving the accuracy of the SNAP income verification process. It would allow industrial hemp to be grown in the United States, subject to close regulation at the state level. It would modify the activities permitted on land contracted under the conservation reserve program.” The conference report was adopted by a vote of 369-47. [HR 2, Vote #434, 12/12/18; CQ, 12/12/18]
• December 2018: Poliquin: The Farm Bill “Will Support Maine’s Forestry Workers, Rural Broadband Development, And Maine Farmers.” “Today, Congressman Bruce Poliquin (ME-02) helped pass major legislation in the House that will support Maine’s forestry workers, rural broadband development, and Maine farmers. The final Farm Bill, which passed by a wide 369-47 margin in the U.S House of Representatives, includes key provisions of the Timber Innovation Act, legislation Congressman Poliquin cosponsored that would help spur new uses for cross-laminated timber (CLT) in tall wood building construction—buildings of about seven stories or higher, or 85 feet and above. There have already been two separate CLT producers that have announced new projects in Maine, LignaTerra Global and SmartLam, LLC of Montana.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 12/12/18]

• May 2018: Poliquin Voted To Allow States To Privatize SNAP

Poliquin Voted For An Amendment To Allow States To Use Private Companies To Carry Out Program Eligibility Functions Of The Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program. In May 2018, Poliquin voted for “Faso, R-N.Y., amendment that would allow states to carry out program eligibility and other administrative functions of the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program in a number of different ways, including the use of non-governmental contractors, as long as such personnel have no direct or indirect financial interest in an approved retail food store.” The amendment was adopted, 222-192. [HR 1865, Vote #196, 5/17/18; CQ, 5/17/18]

The Amendment Would Allow States To “Privatize SNAP Operations.” “An amendment from Representative John Faso (R-NY) that would allow states to privatize SNAP operations. This change would allow private companies to take over administration of the program, despite failed attempts in some states over the years.” [CLASP, 6/12/18]

• May 2018: Poliquin Voted To Keep Version Of The Farm Bill That Cut SNAP Funding By $3.8 Billion

Poliquin Voted Against Motion To Amend The Farm Bill To Remove Provision That Takes Away $3.8 Billion In Food Assistance For Hungry Families. In May 2018, Poliquin voted against “Maloney, D-N.Y., motion to recommit the bill to the House Agriculture Committee with instructions to report back immediately with an amendment.” According to the Democratic Leader’s office, “Democrats’ Motion to Recommit would strike the SNAP child support enforcement provision that perversely spends more than $2 for every $1 in savings while taking away $3.8 billion in SNAP benefits from hungry families. By striking the provision, the amendment restores these vital SNAP benefits and eliminates wasteful administrative spending. It invests the remaining savings in 1) opioid addiction and treatment services and rural mental health services; 2) broadband connectivity to help rural communities compete in the modern economy; 3) increased export marketing to offset the uncertainty caused by the Administration’s trade policies; 4) support for the Beginning Farmer and Rancher Development Program to develop the next generation of producers; 5) scholarships at 1890 Institutions; and 6) research on organics and specialty crops.” The motion was rejected 183-226. [HR 2, Vote #204, 5/18/18; CQ, 5/18/18]

• May 2018: Poliquin Voted Against An Amendment To Reduce Work-Requirement Exemptions To Five Percent Of SNAP Recipients

Poliquin Voted Against An Amendment To Reduce Work-Requirement Exemptions To Five Percent Of SNAP Recipients. In May 2018, Poliquin voted against “McClintock, R-Calif., amendment that would reduce work-requirement exemptions from 15 percent to five percent of SNAP benefit recipients; would reduce the qualifying age of children from three-years-old to six-years-old with respect to work requirement-exempted parents; would set the same hour-per-week work Requirement for married parents as for single parents; and would require employment and training program participants to have their work eligibility electronically verified through the E-verify system.” The amendment failed, 83-330. May 2017: Poliquin Said He Supported The “Welfare Agenda” Of A Trump Budget That Cut SNAP Funding, Citing Unfairness To “Middle-Class Taxpayers.”

May 2017: Poliquin Said He Supported The “Welfare Agenda” Of A Trump Budget That Cut SNAP Funding By Roughly 25 Percent, Citing Unfairness To “Middle-Class Taxpayers.” “President Trump's budget proposal would affect thousands of Mainers by slashing spending for health and safety net programs, including Medicaid, food stamps and Social Security disability. […] But Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, supported Trump's welfare reform agenda, but opposed cuts to heating assistance and environmental programs. ‘It is unfair for middle-class taxpayers to be burdened with funding for able-bodied adults when there are so many others at risk who could be receiving this important support instead,’ Poliquin said in a statement. ‘Simply put, we should use our tax dollars to help those who need the support most, like the elderly and disabled, and not to those who are capable of working, joining a job training program, or doing community service.’ […] The Trump budget also slashes $72 billion over 10 years from Social Security Disability Insurance, a 4 percent cut, and $193 billion over the same period from SNAP, also known as food stamps, a roughly 25 percent drop.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/23/17]

- Executive Director Of The Maine Children’s Alliance On The Budget: “This Could Result In A Lot Of Hungry Children In Our State.” “It's alarming they want to do this on the backs of children,' said Claire Berkowitz, executive director of the Maine Children's Alliance, an Augusta-based nonprofit that advocates for public policies on behalf of children. 'It's very short-sighted.' The Trump budget also slashes $72 billion over 10 years from Social Security Disability Insurance, a 4 percent cut, and $193 billion over the same period from SNAP, also known as food stamps, a roughly 25 percent drop. About 185,000 Mainers have food stamps, and 71,000 have Social Security disability, according to the Maine Department of Health and Human Services. Berkowitz said nearly 70,000 Maine children benefit from food stamps. ‘This could result in a lot of hungry children in our state,’ Berkowitz said.' [Portland Press Herald, 5/23/17]

July 2016: Poliquin Introduced A Bill To Make It More Difficult To Replace Lost EBT Cards And Ban People Convicted Of Drug Or Fraud Charges From SNAP For Life

July 2016: Poliquin Introduced A Bill To Make It Harder To Replace Lost EBT Cards, Permanently Ban People Convicted On Drug Or Fraud Charges From SNAP, And Put Work Requirements On SNAP. “U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin said he will submit a federal bill this week to attack welfare fraud, making it harder for people to get replacement Electronic Benefit Transfer cards and banning people convicted of fraud and drug offenses from getting benefits for life. […] It also targets drug and fraud convicts, permanently disqualifying them from getting Supplemental Nutritional Assistance Program benefits. Currently, people convicted of welfare fraud can get benefits back after a yearlong ban; drug traffickers can get them back after two years. It also targets parents delinquent in paying child support. They lose their benefits unless they agree to an approved payment plan with state agencies. Finally, it requires aid recipients to work, volunteer or be in work training to get SNAP benefits.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 7/19/16]

- Poliquin Called The Bill “Compassionate In Saving Precious, Limited Taxpayer Money For Those Who Truly Need It” And Said It “Encourages Able-Bodied Individuals To Work.” “U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin said he will submit a federal bill this week to attack welfare fraud, making it harder for people to get replacement Electronic Benefit Transfer cards and banning people convicted of fraud and drug offenses from getting benefits for life. ‘This bill is compassionate,’ Poliquin said during a Tuesday morning news conference in Lewiston's Kennedy Park. ‘It is compassionate in saving precious, limited taxpayer money for those who truly need it. It is compassionate in that it reduces food stamp fraud so that we save money. And it encourages able-bodied individuals to work and make sure they move themselves forward.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 7/19/16]

Poliquin: Stolen EBT Cards “Helps Fuel The Drug Trade That’s Killing Our Kids,” “Cheat[s] Those Individuals That Desperately Need This Assistance,” And “Cheat[s] The Taxpayers.” “‘Stolen EBT cards hurt us three ways,’ he said. ‘First, it helps fuel the drug trade that's killing our kids. Secondly, it is cheating those individuals that desperately need this assistance. And thirdly, it's cheating the taxpayers that pay the bills.”” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 7/19/16]

Poliquin On His Bill: “Too Often We Have Seen Drug Traffickers Abuse Our Public Assistance Programs To Finance Their Operations.” “Today, Maine’s 2nd District Congressman, Bruce Poliquin, announced he will be introducing a new bill, the Food Stamp Integrity Act of 2016, to make important reforms to the welfare system to help deter serious fraud and abuse and better ensure that taxpayer-funded benefits are going to those who truly need them. [...] ‘In the last few years, fraud in the federal food stamp program has more than doubled,’ said Congressman Poliquin. ‘Too often we have seen drug traffickers abuse our public assistance programs to finance their operations. In Maine, there have been dozens of drug busts where EBT cards are found registered in another person’s name and in many of those cases, the cardholders had those cards automatically replaced at taxpayer expense, including in one case 47 times.’” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 7/19/16]

January 2016: Poliquin Introduced A Bill To Ban People Convicted Of Federal Terrorism Crimes From Receiving SNAP Benefits

January 2016: Poliquin Introduced A Bill To Ban People Convicted Of Federal Terrorism Crimes From Receiving SNAP Benefits. “Maine's 2nd District U.S. congressman said Thursday he wants to make sure those convicted of federal terrorism crimes are not allowed to receive welfare benefits after they have served their prison sentences. U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, a Republican, said current law allows some categories of terrorist criminals to apply for and receive benefits under the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, formerly known as food stamps, upon leaving prison. During a news conference Thursday at his local office on Lisbon Street, Poliquin unveiled a federal bill he said would change that.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 1/29/16]

- Poliquin Called His Bill “A Common-Sense Closing Of A Loophole.” “‘What it is is a common-sense closing of a loophole,’ Poliquin said, noting that those convicted of violent terrorism-related acts are already prohibited from receiving SNAP benefits under federal law. His bill would also have that prohibition apply to convicted accomplices of violent terrorists. ‘What we are talking about are the most brutal acts of terror in America, the most violent acts -- and when those individuals leave prison, I don't think we should be providing them welfare,’ Poliquin said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 1/29/16]

- Poliquin Said The Bill Would Apply To 49 “Homegrown Terrorist Plotters” And Did Not Know Of Any Terrorists Who Ever Benefitted From SNAP. “Poliquin said by phone Wednesday that he is unaware of anyone convicted of involvement in a terrorist action receiving food stamps in the past, but he is more concerned with the future. ‘This is a classic example of a loophole in federal law that we can fix and hopefully fix quickly,’ said Poliquin. ‘It absolutely makes no sense whatsoever to have folks who are trying to kill us, and have been successful to some degree, to provide welfare for them. It’s just crazy.’ According to material provided by Poliquin’s office, there are 49 ‘homegrown terrorist plotters’ serving time in U.S. prisons who will be released in the next 25 years. Poliquin said examples of the people bill would affect include friends and associates of the 2013 Boston Marathon bombers, including three who were arrested for destroying evidence or lying to investigators.” [Bangor Daily News, 1/27/16]

May 2015: Poliquin Supported Converting SNAP Into A State Program

May 2015: Poliquin Supported Converting SNAP Into A State Program. “SNAP welfare funding, or Food Stamps, increased in spending and cost from $21 billion to over $75 billion in just twelve years. That’s right, the cost of food stamps paid for by taxpayers increased by 350% in just twelve years. I am supporting an effort which will convert SNAP to a State Flexibility Fund. This change will allow Governors and local leaders to work toward eliminating waste, fraud, and abuse while ensuring dollars go to those who are truly in need.” [Poliquin Editorial, Maine Wire, 5/12/15]

March 2015: Poliquin Voted For A Conference Report On The Republican Congressional Budget For Fiscal Year 2016 That Cut Funding For SNAP

Poliquin Voted For A Conference Report On The Republican Congressional Budget For Fiscal Year 2016. In April 2015, Poliquin voted for a conference report outlining the Republican Congressional budget for fiscal year 2016 and budget levels for 2017 through 2025. “House and Senate Republicans agreed on a unified budget plan Wednesday that would allow them to bypass Democrats and send President Barack Obama legislation to repeal or revise his landmark health-care law. The budget proposal spells out the Republican Party’s priorities by calling for $5.3 trillion in spending cuts to reach balance in nine years.” An agreement to pass the Conference Report passed 226 to 197. [S CON RES 11, Vote #183; On Agreeing to the Conference Report, 4/30/15; Bloomberg, 4/29/15]

- The Conference Report Reduced Funding For Pell Grants, Low-Income Housing Assistance Programs, And SNAP. “The budget slashes domestic discretionary spending by trimming away at several major priorities for Democrats. The final bill includes a reduction in funding for federal Pell Grants and housing programs for low-income earners, and cuts to the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, also known as food stamps.” [Washington Post, 4/29/15]

USDA Blueberry Buyouts

September 2018: Struggling Maine Blueberry Farmers Criticized USDA Buyouts That Poliquin “Worked To Secure” As Inequitable For Small-Scale Growers

2018: Maine’s Blueberry Prices Reached Their Lowest Point In 32 Years Amid A Record Domestic Supply And Expanded Blueberry Operations In Canada. “Even if [Maine blueberry farmer Greg Bridges] had the money to improve the crop, it wouldn’t have been worth it. After farm expansions and record harvests, both in Maine and in Canada, the market has been glutted with wild blueberries, and there simply hasn’t been enough demand to use up the supply. Last year, Maine’s blueberry farmers got 26 cents a pound for the fruit they sold to the processors, who freeze and store it. That was the lowest price paid in 32 years. The business is brutal. […] In recent years, Canadian farmers have rapidly expanded wild blueberry farming operations, with much help in the form of land deals and subsidies from their government.” [Portland Press Herald, 9/9/18]

2018: The USDA Planned A Buyback To Purchase Surplus Blueberries And Awarded Its Only Bid To Cherryfield Foods, A Subsidiary Of A Canadian Company And Largest Blueberry Supplier In The World. “The USDA buyback, the fifth the Maine blueberry industry has received since 2012, is part of the Section 32 government appropriation, established in 1935, to buy surplus commodities. It involves a bidding program that allows only the biggest growers and processors to participate. […] This year, just one company, Cherryfield Foods, Inc., was awarded the bid, according to Nancy McBrady, executive director of the Wild Blueberry Commission of Maine. That was in late July. What stings for the Maine growers is that Cherryfield Foods is a subsidiary of a Canadian company called Oxford Frozen Foods, the largest supplier of wild blueberries in the world. Cherryfield Foods is one of the Maine companies that straddles the border, growing wild blueberries in both Maine and Canada.” [Portland Press Herald, 9/9/18]

- Maine Blueberry Farmer John Antil On The USDA Buyout: “No Small Grower Saw Any Of That Money.” “Cherryfield will get $9.36 million for 8.57 million pounds of frozen blueberries, both ones harvested in 2018 and reaching back to 2016 (after three years in the freezer, the crop is no longer considered viable to sell). Much of it will begin moving into the National School Lunch Program and other domestic food assistance programs such as food banks later this year. [Maine blueberry farmer Greg] Bridges won’t get any of that $9.36 million. Neither will the rest of the small blueberry farmers in Maine, even ones who sold their crops to Cherryfield Foods. ‘No small grower saw any of that money,’ said farmer John Antil, who has about 71 acres of wild blueberries on Harmon Mountain Farms in the Washington County town of Northfield. ‘Not a red cent.’”” [Portland Press Herald, 9/9/18]

- Antil: “Poliquin, He Thinks It Is A Wonderful Thing To Get These USDA Buyouts,” Which The Portland Press Herald Reported He “Worked To Secure.” “‘Poliquin, he thinks it is a wonderful thing to get these USDA buyouts,’ he said, referring to U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, whose district encompasses most of the blueberry barrens in Maine and has worked to secure the USDA deals.” [Portland Press Herald, 9/9/18]

Poliquin Spokesperson: “Congressman Poliquin Certainly Doesn’t Believe That The USDA Buybacks Are A Silver Bullet Solution.” “Congressman Poliquin certainly doesn’t believe that the USDA buybacks are a silver bullet solution,’ said Brendan Conley, Poliquin’s spokesman, in an email. Poliquin ‘cares deeply’ about the industry, Conley added. ‘The Congressman wants to do everything he can to help.’” [Portland Press Herald, 9/9/18]

The program covers schools in every state – 165 in Maine – and typically provides snacks several times a week that vary from place to place but often include fresh grapes, apples, bananas, oranges, strawberries or carrots.” [Portland Press Herald, 4/19/18]

Poliquin Said His Bill Would Help Maine Blueberry Farmers And Improve Children’s Nutrition

Poliquin Said His Bill Would Increase “The Market For Maine’s Hardworking Farmers” And Teach “Children That Nutritious Foods Come In Many Different Sizes, Shapes, Colors And Packages.” “When Poliquin introduced a similar bill two years ago, he said he was committed to having children eat well. ‘When I was raising my son,’ he said, ‘nothing mattered more to me than his health and well-being, and I was very mindful of the meals we ate and the food we purchased.’ ‘I believe it's very important for our kids to have the opportunity to Poliquin On Fresh Fruits And Vegetables Bill: “As A Parent, I Know How Important It Is For Our Kids To Be Able To Eat Healthy All Year Round With Nutritious Products From Across The Country.” “Poliquin’s bill, which now has the support of 14 Democratic and Republican cosponsors, will allow schools to have the option to use the money from USDA’s Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Program (FFVP) to purchase additional forms of fruits and vegetables—fresh, frozen, canned, pureed, and dried—expanding the number of nutritious food options for schoolchildren. ‘Making sure our children have better access and more nutritious choices at the school cafeteria is a goal that is shared across party and state lines,’ said Congressman Poliquin. ‘As a parent, I know how important it is for our kids to be able to eat healthy all year round with nutritious products from across the country. This bipartisan bill’s inclusion in the farm bill is a huge win for our school children and the hardworking producers in Maine, such as our wild blueberry harvesters, who provide these nutritious foods.’” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 4/12/18]

Portland Press Herald Editorial Board Wrote That Poliquin’s Bill Would “Water Down Funding” For A Program To Increase Low-Income Kids’ Access To Fresh Produce

- Poliquin Reintroduced A Bill To Allow Pureed, Frozen, Canned, And Dried Produce Into The Fresh Fruit and Vegetables Program, Which Distributed Fresh Produce To Low-Income Schools. “The Fresh Fruit and Vegetables Program has a single narrow goal – to introduce fresh fruits and vegetables to students who otherwise wouldn’t get much of either. Started as a pilot 15 years ago and now available in more than 7,500 schools across all 50 states, it helps low-income schools provide fresh produce as a between-meals snack, and it has been a success. However, Poliquin has reintroduced a bill that would allow into the program frozen, canned, dried or pureed fruits and vegetables. Those are just as healthy as their fresh counterparts, Poliquin argues, and allowing other forms would make things easier on school food directors.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 8/8/17]

- Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: Poliquin’s Bill Would Benefit Food Companies At The Cost Of Low-Income Children’s Long-Term Nutritional Habits. “What’s more, the experience of eating corn on the cob, freshly picked strawberries or a carrot that was in the ground last week is a singular one. It’s different from eating a handful of raisins or a serving of applesauce – it makes more of an impression on an impressionable mind, and makes it more likely that students will keep eating fruits and vegetables into adulthood. Now others want a crack at those impressionable minds. Producers know that when they sell their food to schools, they are making customers not only of school districts, but of students, too, and possibly for a long time to come. That’s why Poliquin’s bill has bipartisan support – because food companies in other congressional districts want access to developing palates, and a piece of the $180 million spent annually by the Fresh Fruit and Vegetables Program, just as Poliquin wants to help blueberry growers get their product into schools.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 8/8/17]
Nutrition Advocate Said Poliquin’s Proposal Was “A Slippery Slope From Minimally Processed Fruits To Pizza Sauce Being Counted As A Vegetable”

Nonprofit Focused On Helping Students Eat More Healthily Co-Founder Curt Ellis: “It’s A Slippery Slope From Minimally Processed Fruits To Pizza Sauce Being Counted As A Vegetable.” “Poliquin's proposal would open the door to more processed food that students don't really need, said Curt Ellis, the co-founder of FoodCorps, a nonprofit focused on helping students eat more healthfully. [...] But, he said, it's far more likely that students would wind up eating canned fruit and dried raisins instead, the sorts of stuff they don't really need. ‘It’s a slippery slope from minimally processed fruits to pizza sauce being counted as a vegetable,’ Ellis said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/4/17]

Former Sen. Harkin, Who Created The Fresh Fruit And Vegetables Program, Criticized “This Character From Maine” For Allowing “Processed Foods” Into The Program

Former Sen. Harkin, Who Created The Fresh Fruit And Vegetables Program, Criticized “This Character From Maine” For Allowing “Processed Foods” Into The Program. “The retired U.S. senator from Iowa who created the national Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Program is accusing Maine Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin of taking steps that could destroy it. Former U.S. Sen. Tom Harkin, who served for three decades until his 2015 retirement, said, ‘This character from Maine’ is so determined to let schools buy more frozen blueberries from 2nd District farms that he’s willing to undermine the entire rationale for a program that gives more than 4 million low-income schoolchildren fresh produce. [...] Harkin said the snack program he created to get fresh fruit and vegetables to children is one of his proudest achievements and he would hate to see it undermined by turning it into yet another excuse to shovel ‘processed food’ at youngsters.” [Portland Press Herald, 4/19/18]

December 2019: Poliquin Wrote A Letter To Trump Urging Him To Reverse Reductions In Permitted Vertical Trap Lines For Lobstermen

December 2019: Poliquin Wrote A Letter To Trump Urging Him To Reverse Reductions In Permitted Vertical Trap Lines For Lobstermen. “On Monday, I sent an urgent appeal to President Trump to personally intervene in the ongoing dispute between federal regulators and our lobstermen, which is threatening their livelihoods. The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration is considering a drastic 50 percent cut in the number of permitted vertical trap lines in hopes of reducing the number of right whale deaths from entanglements. However, none of the nine right whale deaths along the U.S. coast since June 2017 have occurred in the Gulf of Maine. That’s because our lobstermen have already taken effective measures to adjust their lines and other gear to protect the whales. It’s not fair to punish these hardworking fellow Mainers. They’ve done nothing wrong – quite the opposite. In my letter to the president, I point out that the 10,000 rugged Maine lobstermen and their crews are the backbone of our prized coastal economy. Helping them solve the right whale issue would be a visible example of supporting Maine and America’s rural economy and jobs. These workers and their families are President Trump’s most loyal backers. NOAA and Maine officials are in the final phase of addressing the right whale matter. President Trump’s personal intervention would be an appreciated Christmas gift to the hardworking people of Maine. Poliquin Voted For Requiring Several Studies On The Management And Operations Of Fisheries. In December 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Graves, R-La., motion to suspend the rules and pass the bill that would require several federal studies by the comptroller general, Commerce secretary, and National Academies on the management and operation of fisheries. It would also direct the Commerce Department collect and report data on recreational fisheries and create grants to assist states in complying with data collection.” The motion was agreed to by a vote of 350-11. July 2018: Poliquin And Pingree Co-Sponsored An Amendment To Evaluate Unnecessary Federal Fees On The Lobster Industry

July 2018: Poliquin And Pingree Co-Sponsored And Passed An Amendment To Evaluate Unnecessary Federal Fees On The Lobster Industry. “In an effort to cut unnecessary federal fees for lobstermen, dealers and processors, Congressman Bruce Poliquin (R-2nd Dist.) and Congresswoman Chellie Pingree (D-1st Dist.) joined forces across the political aisle to amend a fisheries bill that is currently before the U.S. Senate. The bill, H.R. 200 - Strengthening Fishing Communities and Increasing Flexibility in Fisheries Management Act, passed the U.S. House 222-193 on July 11. The amendment, offered by Poliquin and co-sponsored by Pingree, directs NOAA to conduct a study of all fees imposed on all sectors of the lobster industry. ‘The intent is to identify areas where fees are overly burdensome and, ultimately, to help eliminate any unnecessary costs for Maine’s lobster industry,’ said Poliquin’s press secretary Brendan Conley. The amendment was one of 10 successfully added before the House voted to approve the bill.” [Island Advantages, 7/19/18]

Poliquin Said He Won “Bipartisan Support For An Amendment Which Will Force The Government To Re-Assess Fees Charged To Our Lobster Industry.” “BIG NEWS FOR MAINE: Bruce is continuing to ignore the outside distractions in Washington and he is focusing on getting things done for Maine. This week he won bipartisan support for an amendment which will force the government to re-assess fees charged to our lobster industry and cause an immediate review to find out how we can limit, reduce, and repeal unnecessary costs. These Maine small businesses deserve a government that works for them, not against them. Bruce is fighting for our lobster industry so they can create more jobs and hire more of our fellow Mainers. Please share.”

2015 – 2017: Poliquin Introduced Legislation To Ease Inspections Of Commercial Sea Urchin & Sea Cucumber Harvests
December 2015: Poliquin And Pingree Introduced A Bill To Exempt Sea Urchin And Sea Cucumbers From Inspections That They Said Caused Products To Spoil Before They Could Be Exported. “Pingree and Poliquin introduce a bill that would exempt sea urchins from inspections that have caused product to spoil before it can be exported. Sea urchins would become exempt from federal inspections, as shellfish currently are, under a bill introduced Friday by the U.S. representatives from Maine, the state with the second most valuable sea urchin industry. Since 2011, sea urchins have been subject to inspections when entering the state from Canada for processing and when exported from the country. But that process delays the perishable product in getting to its markets, which are mostly in Asia, sometimes causing it to go bad beforehand, according to a news release from Reps. Chellie Pingree, a Democrat, and Bruce Poliquin, a Republican.” [Portland Press Herald, 12/11/15]

- March 2016: Poliquin Urged Easing Inspections Of Sea Urchin And Sea Cucumbers, From Which Lobster Was Already Exempt: “They’re Little Critters. Give Them The Same Exemption You Give Lobsters.” “He also noted his work to improve federal inspection regimes for those who export sea urchins and sea cucumbers to markets in Asia. Poliquin said federal inspections at warehouses in New York were delaying shipments and spoiling a valuable commodity that is considered a delicacy in some countries. The industry in Maine provides employment for as many as 600 workers, including the sea divers who harvest them. He said lobsters and other Maine shellfish were largely exempt from the inspections, which saved them time when shipping in the global marketplace. ‘Don’t pick on ‘em,’ Poliquin said later. ‘They’re little critters. Give them the same exemption you give lobsters.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 3/10/16]

May 2017: Poliquin And Pingree Re-Introduced Their Bill To Exempt Sea Urchin And Cucumbers From Inspections

May 2017: Poliquin And Pingree Re-Introduced Their Bill To Ease Inspections On Sea Urchins And Cucumbers. “U.S. Reps. Bruce Poliquin (R-Maine) and Chellie Pingree (D-Maine) have reintroduced their bill to make it easier for Maine seafood dealers to export sea urchins and sea cucumbers outside of the United States. The bill puts an end to repetitive, mandatory inspections of urchins and sea cucumbers being exported from the country, which cause the highly perishable products to be held in warehouses for prolonged periods and spoil.” [Ellsworth American, 5/19/17]

- Poliquin: “There’s No Reason The Federal Government Should Get In The Way Of Our Maine Businesses With Costly And Unnecessary Regulations, Putting In Jeopardy” Hundreds Of Jobs. “Poliquin represents the area of the state where the bulk of Maine’s sea urchin harvest occurs. ‘Diving for, harvesting and processing urchins and cucumbers is an especially difficult task, and there is only a limited amount of time each year for these workers to do it,’ Poliquin said. ‘There’s no reason the federal government should get in the way of our Maine businesses with costly and unnecessary regulations, putting in jeopardy the hundreds of jobs the industry supports.’” [Ellsworth American, 5/19/17]

Poliquin Voted To Reauthorize Magnuson-Stevens Fishing Regulations, Which Faced Criticism For Potentially Depleting Fish Stocks, In 2015 And 2018

July 2018: Poliquin Voted To Reauthorize And Modify The Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation And Management Act Through 2020, Which Received A Mixed Reaction From Maine Fishing Groups

Poliquin Voted For A Bill That Would Reauthorize And Modify The Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation And Management Act Through 2020. In July 2018, Poliquin voted for “Passage of the bill that would reauthorize and modify the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act through fiscal 2022 and would provide greater authority to regional fishery management councils in setting the conditions under which overfished or depleted fisheries are to be restored. The bill would eliminate the current 10-year requirement for rebuilding overfished or depleted fisheries and would allow fishery councils to set rebuilding periods that reflect the individual fish species' ability to recover. The bill would also modify catch limits for specific species and would prohibit fisheries councils in four regions from implementing any new ‘catch share’ programs unless such plans had been approved by an industry referendum vote. The bill would authorize $397 million annually for fiscal 2018 through fiscal 2022 to carry out the bill's provisions.” The bill passed, 222-193. [HR 200, Vote #321, 7/11/18; CQ, 7/11/18]

Poliquin Voted For Considering A Bill Reauthorizing The Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation And Management Act Through Fiscal Year 2022. In July 2018, Poliquin voted for “Adoption of the rule (H Res 965) that would provide for House floor consideration of the bill (HR 200) that would reauthorize the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act through fiscal 2022 and would provide greater authority to regional fishery management councils in setting the conditions under which overfished or depleted fisheries are to be restored.” The resolution was adopted 227-184. [H Res 965, Vote #317, 7/11/18; CQ, 7/11/18]

- 2018 Magnuson-Stevens Reauthorization Allowed Regional Councils To Set Catch Limits, Which “Could Be A Good Thing For Maine Fishermen [...] As Long As It Is Not Exploited To Try To Eliminate Science-Based Decision-Making.” “The law was up for review again in 2016, but efforts have stalled as interest groups square off over its future and how science fits into it. The House reauthorization of the bill removes the requirement to attempt to rebuild depleted stocks within 10 years of being declared overfished and gives the regional councils the ability to set annual catch limits with more flexibility, taking non-scientific factors into consideration. That kind of flexibility could be a good thing for Maine fishermen, and their rebounding fish stocks, as long as it is not exploited to try to eliminate science-based decision-making, said Carla Guenther, the senior scientist at the Maine Center for Coastal Fisheries in Stonington. For example, it would open the door for the regional fishing council to use the center’s groundfish survey.” [Portland Press Herald, 7/12/18]

Maine Coast Fishermen’s Association Executive Director: “In Maine, We’ve Seen Rebounds Because Of Those [Fish Stock Rebuilding] Targets. It Gets Much Harder Without Them.” “While flexibility is good, hard-and-fast safeguards like stock rebuilding deadlines keep regulatory bodies focused on the prize, which is rebuilding the fisheries that fishermen depend on, and help them make the hard management decisions that protect fisheries for future generations, said Ben Martens, executive director of Maine Coast Fishermen’s Association. Those deadlines have helped rebuild some of Maine’s most vulnerable stocks, like scallops and haddock, Martens said. ‘Without fish in the ocean, we don’t have fishermen,’ Martens said. ‘Our goal as an organization is to always make sure there is fish in the ocean next year, and the year after, building toward a better future. We need those timelines. Without targets, there’s nothing to drive change and action. In Maine, we’ve seen rebounds because of those targets. It gets much harder without them.’” [Portland Press Herald, 7/12/18]

June 2015: Poliquin Voted Magnuson-Stevens Reauthorization, Which The Bangor Daily News Criticized For “Putting Short-Term Economics Above All Else”

Poliquin Voted For Bill Removing The Timeframe Which Allowed For The Rebuilding Of Depleted Fishing Stocks. In June 2015, Poliquin voted for the reauthorization of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act, to remove the ten-year timeframe, which allowed for the rebuilding of depleted fishing stocks. “Defying a White House veto threat, the Republican-controlled House on Monday approved a bill to give regional fisheries managers more power to set local fishing levels in federal waters. The bill, sponsored by Rep. Don Young, R-Alaska, would remove a 10-year timeframe for rebuilding depleted fish stocks and allow fisheries managers to consider the economic needs of fishing communities in setting annual catch limits.” The bill passed 225 to 152. [HR 1335, Vote #267, 6/1/15; Associated Press, 6/1/15]

- Alaska Public Radio: Opponents Believed The Bill Would Allow Commercial Interests To Push Managers To Set Harvest Levels Too High. “A bill to reauthorize the Magnuson-Stevens Act, the nation’s primary fishing law, passed the U.S. House this evening, largely on party lines. The sponsor, Alaska Congressman Don Young, says the bill makes practical revisions to continue a law that has restored the health of America’s fisheries. … Young’s bill also introduces a controversial element of flexibility in fisheries management. It would eliminate the mandatory 10-year planning period for rebuilding depleted stocks. Opponents says that allows for commercial interests to pressure managers to set harvest levels too high. Young, though, says the rebuilding time frame should vary, depending on the needs of the species.” [Alaska Public Radio, 6/1/15]

- Report By The Independent National Research Council: 43-Percent Of Fish Stocks Classified As Overfished Were “Rebuilt Or Showed Good Progress Toward Rebuilding Within 10 Years.” “A 2013 report by the independent National Research Council found that federal efforts to rebuild depleted fish populations have largely been successful, but said pressure to overfish some species remains high and some fish stocks have not rebounded as quickly as projected. Forty-three percent of fish stocks identified as being overfished were rebuilt or showed good progress toward rebuilding within 10 years, the time limit required by the Magnuson-Stevens law, the report said. Another 31 percent were on track to rebuild if sharply reduced fishing levels remain in place, the report said.” [Associated Press, 6/1/15]

fishery managers and stability for fishermen[.]” U.S. Rep. Don Young (R-Alaska) has proposed several changes to the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act that he says will give fishery managers more flexibility in rebuilding fish stocks. He has said the changes will allow fishery managers to address the economic needs of fishermen. But some fishermen and environmentalists said Young’s proposal creates dangerous exemptions from catch limits that are designed to prevent overfishing. They point to a recent federal report that says several economically valuable East Coast fish stocks are rebounding and no longer subject to overfishing as evidence that the Magnuson-Stevens act is effective in its current form.” The resolution passed 237 to 174. • 2015: Center For American Progress Recommended Reauthorization With Directions For Regulators To Use “Ecosystem-Based Management Methods” To Sustainably Manage Changing Species Populations. “The Obama administration should request and Congress should appropriate additional funding for ocean observation and baseline scientific research to give scientists, regulators, and industry members a clearer picture of how climate change is affecting fish populations. The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, or NOAA, should also address the issue, prioritizing funding from sources such as the Saltonstall-Kennedy Grant Program and industry funding sources from profitable fisheries, as permitted under the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act. Congress should include language in legislation reauthorizing the Magnuson-Stevens Act that directs regulators, including the regional fishery management councils, to work with scientists and industry members to develop a greater understanding of species that have begun to shift their population range beyond traditional areas, including by prioritizing ecosystem-based management methods.” [Center for American Progress, Press Release, 1/15/15]

• CAP Based Its Recommendations On A Survey Of 600 New England Commercial Fishermen, Including Maine Lobstermen, 65 Percent Of Whom Said Climate Change Could Leave Them “Unable To Profit.” “To determine fishermen’s perspectives on these changes, the Center for American Progress contracted with Edge Research to conduct a survey of New England commercial fishermen in summer 2014. Edge Research completed telephone surveys of nearly 600 permit holders in the northeast multispecies fishery—better known as the groundfishery because it targets bottom-dwelling fish such as cod, haddock, and flounders—as well as the lobster fisheries in Maine and Massachusetts. The results clearly show that although fishermen generally tend to be politically conservative, they believe climate forces such as ocean warming and acidification are not only happening but also rank among the gravest environmental threats to their employment and the future of their industry and their communities. Here are a few key results from the fishermen surveyed: Although roughly two-thirds of them identify politically as either ‘conservative’ or ‘moderate,’ fishermen who say climate change is happening outnumber deniers by four-to-one. 65 percent of fishermen surveyed believe climate change could leave them ‘unable to profit’ and ultimately ‘forced out’ of their fishery.” [Center for American Progress, Press Release, 1/15/15]

• Bangor Daily News Editorial Board: 2015 Magnuson-Stevenson “Offers A Kind Of Flexibility [To Manage Fish Stocks] That Could Dangerously Put Short-Term Economics Above All Else.” “But those 10-year plans are generating political conflict in Washington, D.C., where the Republican-led U.S. House earlier this month passed an update to the nation’s four-decade old law regulating the nation’s fisheries, the Magnuson-Stevens Act. […] There’s a need for more flexibility and some level of hyper-local control when it comes to managing fish stocks. But the House fisheries bill offers a kind of flexibility that could dangerously put short-term economics above all else. The bill’s authors missed an opportunity to build a regulatory scheme that actually reflects how complicated the ocean is and differences between and within each commercial fish species. The U.S. has long struggled to rein in overfishing and strike the right balance between reasonable regulations and the economic interests of those who depend on the fisheries for their livelihood.” [Bangor Daily News, Editorial Board, 6/11/15]
Poliquin Voted Against A Motion To Recommit With Instructions To Require The Secretary Of Commerce Or State Governments To Declare A Fishery Disaster If Unilateral Tariffs Affect The Economic Viability Of The U.S. Fishing Industry. In July 2018, Poliquin voted against “Gomez, D-Calif., motion to recommit the bill to the House Natural Resources Committee with instructions to report it back immediately with an amendment that would require the Commerce Department, or a relevant state government, to declare a fishery disaster if any unilateral tariffs imposed by any countries on U.S. seafood exports affect the economic viability of the U.S. fishing industry.” The motion was rejected, 187-228. None of it is excusable or should be tolerated. Anyone who injures someone else or damages property in the name of political ideology should be arrested and prosecuted. Otherwise, we have no civil society. Peaceful protests are part of our Constitutional right to speak freely and assemble openly. Passionate demonstrations in support of particular causes are also embedded in our American heritage. But, there’s no room for storming the Capitol Building, or burning a small main street business in Minneapolis in the name of social justice. Or clubbing a police officer in Seattle because of racial inequality. Or throwing a brick at someone in Portland, Maine because of hatred for his or her political views. It should be our collective expectation of all elected officials to immediately denounce and condemn political violence when it occurs, no matter who commits it or for what purpose.”

TALK ABOUT A DOUBLE STANDARD!

Democrats in Congress are proceeding with the second impeachment trial of former President Donald Trump, even though he is no longer in office, for “inciting” the riot that occurred inside the U.S. Capitol on January 6.

To be clear, there is no excuse for violence of any sort to advance a political agenda, period. But I can’t resist to point out the double standard from many of my former colleagues in Congress.

At a June 2018 rally in Los Angeles, Democrat Congresswoman Maxine Waters whipped up supporters by bellowing “If you see anybody from that (Trump) Cabinet in a restaurant, in a department store, at a gasoline station, you get out and you create a crowd and you push back on them and you tell them they’re not welcome anymore, anywhere.”

During a March 2020 rally on the steps of the U.S. Supreme Court in Washington, D.C., Democrat Senator Chuck Schumer stirred up protesters by shouting “I want to tell you, (Justice) Gorsuch. I want to tell you, (Justice) Kavanaugh. You have released the whirlwind, and you will pay the price. You won’t know what hit you if you go forward with these awful (pro-life) decisions.”

Last summer, there were almost nightly political protests across the country, many of which turned into violent riots. Social justice and racial equality mobs looted and burned small businesses and clubbed police officers. Dozens of innocent Americans died.

All the while, Democrat elected officials were generally silent. They dropped the ball by not immediately condemning fellow liberals Maxine Waters, Chuck Schumer and other radicals for encouraging intimidation and violence against Americans with different political beliefs. And, their decisions not to arrest and prosecute many of the far-left criminal rioters last summer, including those in Portland, ME, speaks volumes.

Engraved above the front entrance to the Supreme Court is “EQUAL JUSTICE UNDER LAW.” So, why the double standard?

Acceptance Of 2020 Election Results

November 2020: Poliquin Said He Agreed With Trump’s Decision To Take The Results Of The 2020 Presidential Election To Court

Poliquin Said He Agreed With Trump’s Decision To Take The Results Of The 2020 Presidential Election To Court. POLIQUIN: “[1:47] I remember having experienced this in a little way, Matt, two years ago in my second re-election in 2018 which I won and then nine days later they scammed it with this ranked voting. But it was my responsibility to take this to court to make sure everything was up to snuff but once the election was certified, it becomes very difficult to do that. So what Trump is doing is what he should be doing. It’s his responsibility, win or lose, to make sure he challenges these results because they are so close and it was so unconventional, the way we voted this way with mail-in voting, to give people confidence that their vote counted. So he’s got to go through this process. He should. It’s his responsibility. But he’s got an uphill climb.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/13/20] (AUDIO)

POLIQUIN: “If Trump had won the election, and he still may, but it looks like he probably won’t, if Trump had won the election, this would be dead on arrival. […] Now, however, that Biden is likely the President-elect and likely will be seated on January 20, she probably wants to give him some sort of win.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 12/4/20] (AUDIO) 4:23

December 2020: Poliquin: “IS A LIKELY BIDEN PRESIDENCY ENCOURAGING THE RESTART OF MIGRANT CARAVANS?”
July 2021: Poliquin Said It Was Not Helpful For Trump To Continue To Publicly Relitigate The Results Of The 2020 Election

July 2021: Poliquin Said It Was Not Helpful For Trump To Continue To Publicly Relitigate The Results Of The 2020 Election. POLIQUIN: “[8:20] I’ll tell you the way Mr. LePage – excuse me, Mr. Trump – can help. If he focuses on open borders, out of control spending, inflation, losing our energy independence, taxes going up, all the things that these liberals are doing, he can be very helpful in that regard. But when he goes on the stage and it’s televised whenever he speaks, right, and he starts relitigating the last election – I understand all the problems with the last election. It is not helpful, Mike. You’ve got to focus on what’s coming down the pike tomorrow and if he focuses on these issues like I think LePage will, it’s going to be very helpful.” [WSKW, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 7/12/21] (AUDIO)

• Poliquin On Trump Fighting The Results Of The 2020 Election: “It’s A Distraction, Mike. You’ve Got To Get Beyond That. I Know People Are Upset. I Was Upset. […] But Now We’ve Got To Focus On The Elections Next Year.” HOST: “[9:10] I’m talking, I think he ought to focus on cancel culture. I think he ought to focus on critical race theory and this crap. More of that. The borders absolutely. […] POLIQUIN: “Fine. Fine. As long as he doesn’t continue to relitigate the last election. It’s a distraction, Mike. You’ve got to get beyond that. I know people are upset. I was upset. A lot of people were upset. But now we’ve got to focus on the elections next year. If he is able to stay focused and put the spotlight on these extreme liberal policies that are hurting families, […] there are all kinds of issues he can focus on. […] Focus on that and it’ll help our candidates instead of relitigating the last election.” [WSKW, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 7/12/21] (AUDIO)

As Of October 2021, Poliquin Accepted $62,400 From Members Of The Sedition Caucus After They Voted To Overturn Results Of The 2020 Election

The 147 Republicans Who Voted To Overturn 2020 Election Results Were Known As The “Sedition Caucus.” “Pingree is also among 54 Democratic co-sponsors of a resolution, HR 25, directing the House Ethics Committee to investigate the so-called ‘Sedition Caucus’ — the 147 Republican members of Congress who voted to undo the results of the 2020 election by blocking the certification of the Electoral College votes of Georgia and other key swing states.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 4/7/21]

January 2021: Poliquin Called On Biden To “Ask Big Corporate CEOs To Abandon Their Plan To Cut Off Investment And New Jobs In Congressional Districts Represented By Republicans”

January 2021: Poliquin: “Biden Should Publicly Ask Big Corporate CEOs To Abandon Their Plan To Cut Off Investment And New Jobs In Congressional Districts Represented By Republicans.” “Second, Mr. Biden should publicly ask big corporate CEOs to abandon their plan to cut off investment and new jobs in Congressional districts represented by Republicans. Penalizing workers because of their political beliefs, and those of their elected representatives, is wrong and un-American.”
THREE STEPS TOWARD UNITY

I wish our new president Joe Biden success in protecting our sacred Constitutional rights and hard-earned American way of life. If he and his Administration succeed, we all benefit. Good luck, Mr. President!

For that to happen, and for our divided country to heal, every American must be allowed to openly and confidently engage in healthy public debate about the important issues of our time, like keeping taxes low so the economy recovers and continuing to improve border security to prevent drugs and illegals from entering our country.

Sadly, that’s not happening. That’s why President Biden should use his new influence to protect the free speech of all Americans, regardless of their political stripes.

First, the President should demand that big social media companies like Facebook and Twitter stop silencing common sense right-of-center voices. He should back this up by leading the effort to remove Section 230 of the Communications Decency Act.

Second, Mr. Biden should publicly ask big corporate CEOs to abandon their plan to cut off investment and new jobs in Congressional districts represented by Republicans, penalizing workers because of their political beliefs, and those of their elected representatives, is wrong and un-American.

Third, President Biden should insist that left-leaning unions and employers not blacklist right-leaning fellow citizens from jobs in and outside of government. It’s just horrible to prevent a fellow American from earning a living and supporting his/her family.

Passionate debate about our path forward as a country is healthy, whereas trying to silence and harm someone with different political views is horrific.

More than half of the 33 chief executives gathered on a virtual call this week said they would reconsider investments in states where elected officials are impeding an orderly presidential transition, said Jeffrey Sonnenfeld, founder of the Yale School of Management’s Chief Executive Leadership Institute, who organized the call.” [Washington Post, 1/8/21]

Budget Issues

Significant Findings

✓ In October 2021, Poliquin criticized Golden for “vot[ing] to go down this reconciliation path,” which he claimed would increase taxes and inflation.

✓ In December 2018, Poliquin voted to authorize $5.7 billion in funding for Trump’s border wall, which risked $200 million for projects at Maine’s Portsmouth Naval Shipyard and a government shutdown.

✓ After Trump declared a national emergency to fund his wall proposal in 2019, the Department of Defense announced $200 million for the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard on the Maine-New Hampshire border was on the chopping block to fund it.

✓ In September 2019, the revised list of DoD projects losing funding did not include the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard.

✓ Poliquin voted for the FY 2018 House Republican Budget Resolution, which proposed turning Medicare into a voucher-like program.

✓ Poliquin voted for the FY 2016 Republican Budget to repeal the Affordable Care Act, slash Pell grants, and turn Medicare into a voucher-like program.

✓ Poliquin championed a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution by co-sponsoring four resolutions in favor of the proposal, calling on Republican presidential candidates to support it, and writing on social media and in op-eds in support of the amendment.

✓ In 2018, Poliquin voted to block an amendment to the balanced budget proposal to protect Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid.

✓ AARP opposed the proposed amendment due to its “potentially deep cuts” to Social Security and Medicare.

✓ In 2014, Poliquin indicated on a candidate questionnaire that he would “oppose any debt limit increase;” in 2021, he said it would be “a real financial calamity” for the U.S. to default on its debt.

Government Funding And Shutdowns

2021 Budget Reconciliation

October 2021: Poliquin Criticized Golden For “Vot[ing] To Go Down This Reconciliation Path To Start Spending” Trillions On Entitlement Spending Without Work Requirements. “Poliquin said it was not surprising for him to see the disastrous jobs report for September under President Biden’s watch. Breitbart News reported on Friday that data from the Labor Department revealed, ‘The U.S. economy added 194,000 jobs in September, and the unemployment rate fell by 0.4 percent to 4.8 percent.’ These numbers were less than half of the 500,000 predicted jobs that would be created in the mouth. The Maine Republican blamed the radical agenda from the Democrats’ policies, saying, ‘Now we’re paying people 300 bucks a month to have kids if they’re younger than six, and there are no work requirements. Remember, what this far-left agenda has done is stripped out work requirements from all of these entitlement programs, and now this $3.5 trillion package they’re working on, which further expands the entitlement, that Golden, you know, voted to go down this reconciliation path to start spending this money. There are no work requirements in here.” [Breitbart, 10/10/21]

October 2021: Poliquin Claimed The “Spending Programs That Pelosi And Golden And Schumer And All These People, You Know, Want In Washington” Drive “Up Taxes Further” And Increase Inflation.

“Poliquin spoke about what a Republican House majority would do in Congress versus a Democrat majority, saying the GOP would first stop the ‘trillions and trillions of dollars of unnecessary spending that’s driving up inflation. That’s the first thing that we would do is, is just not approve this sort of out of control spending.’ He said, second, the Republicans would not ‘jack up taxes.’ He added, ‘The state of Maine has the fifth largest, highest rather, tax burden in the country. That’s because we have high state taxes, and we have lower wages. So the tax burden to pay off our taxes are the fifth highest in the country. And in these spending programs that Pelosi and Golden and Schumer and all these people, you know, want in Washington, it drives up taxes further. So we would stop the spending that’s unnecessary. We would not raise taxes — we keep taxes low — and we would certainly not pay people to stay at home.’” [Breitbart, 10/10/21]

2018: Poliquin Voted To Authorize Billions In Funding For Trump’s Border Wall, Which Risked $200 Million For Vital Improvement Projects At Maine’s Portsmouth Naval Shipyard And A Government Shutdown

December 2018: Poliquin Voted To Authorize $5.7 Billion For Building Trump’s Border Wall, Which He Called “The Greatest Christmas Gift For America” Though It Risked A Government Shutdown

Poliquin Voted For Funding The Government Through Feb. 2019 And Authorizing $5.7 Billion For Construction Of A Border Wall On The U.S.-Mexico Border. In December 2018, Poliquin voted for “Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the House amendment to the Senate amendment to the bill, with a further House amendment. The bill is the legislative vehicle for a short-term continuing resolution that would fund the government through Feb. 8, 2019. It would also authorize $5.7 billion for construction of a border wall on the U.S.-Mexico border, as well as an estimated $7.8 billion in emergency disaster relief funding.” The bill passed by a vote of 217 – 185. [H.R. 695, Vote #472, 12/20/18; CQ Floor Votes, 12/20/18]

- Headline: CNBC: House Passes Spending Bill With Border Wall Money — Setting Up Shutdown Stalemate With Senate. [CNBC, 12/20/18]

- Eight Republicans Joined All 177 Voting Democrats To Oppose The Measure. “The House of Representatives Thursday approved a bill that would fund most of the federal government through early February -- and provides $5.7 billion for President Trump's long-promised border wall, increasing the chances of a partial government shutdown later this week. Eight Republicans joined all 177 voting Democrats to oppose the measure, which passed 217-185. The bill now goes to the Senate, where it is certain to fall short of the 60 votes needed for passage since the chamber's 49 Democrats are against funding the wall.” [Fox News, 12/20/18]

- Voting Yes On Wall Funding, Which Was “Certain To Fall Short” Of Senate Passage, Made It More Likely That A Partial Government Shutdown Would Occur. “The bill now goes to the Senate, where it is certain to fall short of the 60 votes needed for passage since the chamber's 49 Democrats are against funding the wall. That, in turn, makes it more likely that parts of the federal government, including nine of 15 Cabinet-level departments and dozens of agencies, will cease operations at midnight Friday.” [Fox News, 12/20/18]

December 2018: Poliquin Called Trump’s Border Wall “The Greatest Christmas Gift For America.” “In his last days in the U.S. House, U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin has been pressing to help President Donald Trump get the wall he wants along the country’s border with Mexico. ‘The greatest Christmas gift for America is securing our borders,’ the two-term, lame duck lawmaker said. He insisted that drugs coming across the border are hurting rural Maine, though experts have said most of the opioids that have been the focus of attention are coming from China. ‘We have one heck of a problem on our southwest border with Mexico: in California, New Mexico, and Arizona,’ Poliquin said. ‘We have a very dangerous and very unhealthy situation just on the other side of the fence, in particular now, with Mexico.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 12/21/18]

March 2019: The Department Of Defense Put $200 Million For Improvement Projects At Maine’s Portsmouth Naval Shipyard On The Chopping Block To Fund Trump’s Border Wall

February 2019: Trump Declared A National Emergency At The Southern Border, Which Allowed Him To Allocate $3.6 Billion From Military Construction Projects To Construct A Border Wall. “Trump declared a national emergency at the Mexican boundary last month after Congress limited him to just under $1.4 billion to build border barriers. That could allow him to siphon $3.6 billion from military construction projects to fulfill his 2016 campaign promise for a border wall. The 21-page Defense Department list released Monday targets projects around the world.” [Concord Monitor, 3/19/19]

March 2019: The Department Of Defense Released A List Of Projects That Could Be Cut To Fund Trump’s Border Wall, Including $200 Million For Projects To Improve Portsmouth Naval Shipyard. “The Defense Department’s list of projects that could be cut to fund President Donald Trump’s wall at the southern border includes more than $200 million of projects that are aimed at making Portsmouth Naval Shipyard more efficient in refueling and overhauling nuclear-powered submarines. Projects that could be slashed include $110 million for dry dock improvements; $62 million for a paint, blast and rubber facility; and $40 million for an extended crane rail.” [Conord Monitor, 3/19/19]

• The Portsmouth Naval Shipyard Was Located In The Piscataqua River Between Maine And New Hampshire. “The shipyard, which opened in 1800, is located on Seavey Island in the Piscataqua River, which separates Maine and New Hampshire.” [Concord Monitor, 3/19/19]

$110 Million For A Dry Dock, Which Would Allow The Shipyard To Accept Newer Submarines After Old Models Were Scheduled To Be Phased Out, Was On The Chopping Block For Trump’s Border Wall. “Critical work on Dry Dock 1 at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard could be on the chopping block along with several other projects at the yard in order to pay for President Donald Trump’s border wall, according to a new list compiled by the Department of Defense. Funding could be slashed for the $110 million superflood basin for Dry Dock 1; a $62 million paint, blast and rubber facility; $42 million for an extended portal crane rail; and a $12 million warehouse. According to the DOD list, some $6.8 billion in projects already approved by Congress in fiscal year 2019 alone are also in jeopardy. [...] The upgrades to Dry Dock 1 are crucial in order for the shipyard to meet future demands, shipyard commander Capt. David Hunt told the Herald in a 2018 interview. The work will allow the dry dock to accept the newer Virginia Class submarines. Currently, it can only accept the older Los Angeles Class subs, which will be phased out by 2029. Design work for the superflood basin is underway, preparing for the $109 million basin project.” [Seacoast Online, 3/18/19]

• Chair Of The Seacoast Shipyard Association JJ Joyal Said Funding For A Dry Dock At Portsmouth Naval Shipyard “Will Enable The Shipyard To Continue For The Next 100 Years.” “Critical work on Dry Dock 1 at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard could be on the chopping block along with several other projects at the yard in order to pay for President Donald Trump’s border wall, according to a new list compiled by the Department of Defense. [...]This most recent list of the DOD now puts that superflood basin in question. And that is ‘unfortunate,’ said JJ Joyal, a retired longtime shipyard worker and now chair of the Seacoast Shipyard Association. ‘That dry dock is critical. It will enable the shipyard to continue for the next 100 years,’ he said. ‘And this money has already been allocated by the US Congress. They’re moving full steam ahead with the construction on that dry dock. To derail something like this is tinkering with national security.’” [Seacoast Online, 3/18/19]

September 2019: Sen. Collins Announced Portsmouth Naval Shipyard Would Not Be Affected By Border
September 2019: Sen. Collins Announced Portsmouth Naval Shipyard Would Not Be Affected By Border Wall Funding. “No infrastructure projects at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard will be affected by the Trump Administration's plan to move money from military projects to fund a southern border wall, according to Maine Republican Sen. Susan Collins. In March, the Defense Department's listed projects that could be cut to fund President Donald Trump's border wall includes more than $200 million at Portsmouth Naval Shipyard.” [WMTW, 9/5/19]

- The Department Of Defense “Put 127 Military Construction Projects On Hold” To Provide $3.6 Billion In Funding For The Border Wall. “Defense Department officials said on Tuesday that 127 military construction projects were being put on hold in order to use the $3.6 billion to fund building 175 miles of southern border wall.” [WMTW, 9/5/19]

November 2019: Poliquin Said It Was “Shameful” That Democrats Refused To Include Border Wall Funding In Stopgap Measure To Keep The Government Open

November 2019: Poliquin Said It Was “Shameful” That Democrats Refused To Include Border Wall Funding In Stopgap Measure To Keep The Government Open. “In passing stop-gap funding to keep the federal government open through December 20, open border Democrats, again, refused to include money to secure our border with Mexico. It’s shameful they continue to refuse to work with President Trump and Republicans to control who is entering our country. During the 12 months ending September 30, Homeland Security apprehended 851,000 individuals who crossed our southwest border illegally, including several hundred who arrived in Portland earlier this year. [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 11/22/19]
Poliquin Voted For Funding The Government For An Additional 2.5 Months Through December 2018. In September 2018, Poliquin voted for “Adoption of the conference report to accompany the bill that would provide $855.1 billion in discretionary funding for fiscal 2019 to various departments and agencies, including $674.4 billion for the Defense Department and $178.1 billion for the Labor, Health and Human Services and Education departments. The Defense Department total would include $606.5 billion in base Defense Department funding subject to spending caps, and would include $67.9 billion in overseas contingency operations funding. The bill would provide $90.3 billion in discretionary spending for the Health and Human Services Department, $71.4 billion for the Education Department and $12.1 billion for the Labor Department. The measure would also provide funding for federal government operations until Dec. 7, 2018, at an annualized rate of approximately $1.3 trillion.” The amendment was adopted 361-61. [HR 6157, Vote #405, 9/26/18; CQ, 9/26/18]

Poliquin Voted For Passing $1.3 Trillion FY18 Omnibus That Prevented A Government Shutdown

Poliquin Voted For The $1.3 Trillion FY 2018 Omnibus Spending Package That Funded The Government Through September 30, 2018. In March 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the bill with a further amendment that would provide roughly $1.3 trillion in funding for federal government operations and services through Sept. 30, 2018. The measure would provide a total of $654.6 billion in additional funding to the Defense Department […] $98.7 billion to the Health and Human Services Department, […] $3.4 billion to the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration for substance abuse block grants, and would provide roughly $3.7 billion to the National Institutes of Health, including an additional $500 million for research into opioid addiction. It would provide $47.7 billion to the Homeland Security Department, including $1.6 billion for the purpose of bolstering security measures on the U.S.-Mexico border, including the construction of new fencing along sections of the border, and would provide $7.1 billion for Immigration and Customs Enforcement operations and enforcement. The measure includes provisions from multiple bills related to school safety and firearms regulations, including a bill (S 2135) that would require the Department of Justice to certify that appropriate records have been submitted to the National Instant Criminal Background Check System by federal agencies and state governments with respect to individuals who are not eligible to purchase firearms. The measure includes language from the bill (S 2495) that would authorize $75 million a year through fiscal 2028 for the Secure Our Schools grant program and would revise it to more explicitly focus the program on preventing student violence.” The motion as agreed to, 256-167. [H Res 796, Vote #127, 3/22/18; CQ, 3/22/18]

Poliquin Voted For Passing The House Version Of $1.23 Trillion Fiscal 2018 Omnibus Appropriations Bill

Poliquin Voted For Passing The $1.23 Trillion Fiscal 2018 Omnibus Appropriations Bill. In September 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill, as amended, that would provide $1.23 trillion for federal departments and agencies covered by the 12 unfinished fiscal 2018 spending bills, including $621.5 billion for defense and $511 billion for nondefense discretionary spending.” The bill passed by a vote of 211-198. [HR 3354, Vote #528, 9/14/17; CQ, 9/14/17]

- The Omnibus Appropriations Bill Was Not Taken Up In The Senate. [HR 3354, last action 9/27/17]

2018 Short Term Government Shutdowns

February 2018: Poliquin Voted For Concurring With The Senate On The Short-Term Continuing Resolution That Funded The Government Through March 23, 2018

Poliquin Voted For Concurring With The Senate On The Short-Term Continuing Resolution That Funded The Government Through March 23, 2018. In December 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the House amendment to the Senate amendment to the bill that would provide funding for federal government operations and services at current levels through March 23, 2018. The bill would increase defense spending caps to $629 billion for fiscal 2018 and $647 billion for fiscal 2019, and would increase non-defense spending caps by $63 billion in fiscal 2018 and $68 billion in fiscal 2019. It would suspend the debt ceiling through March 1, 2019, and would provide $89.3 billion in emergency supplemental funding including $23.5 billion in funding for the Federal Emergency Management Agency Disaster Relief Fund, $28 billion in funding to the Department of Housing and Urban Development Community Development Fund, and $4.9 billion in additional Medicaid funding for Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands. It would authorize funding for community health centers through fiscal 2019, and would provide for an additional authorization of the Children’s Health Insurance Program from fiscal 2023 to fiscal 2027. The underlying bill would allow the governor of a state, territory, possession or the mayor of the District of Columbia to order that the United States flag be flown at half-staff to honor the death of a first responder who dies while serving in the line of duty.” [HR 1892, Vote #69, 2/9/18; CQ, 2/9/18]

The bill passed 245-182, but this is just the first step. The bill will next go the Senate, where Democrats are expected to oppose it because it doesn’t also provide longer term money for domestic programs like opioid recovery efforts, transportation, and education. […] GOP leaders tacked on a full year of defense funding to sweeten the deal for conservative and defense hawks in their ranks who have been emphatic that they wouldn’t support the fifth continuing resolution in six months without some kind of certainty for the country’s military.” [CNN, 2/6/18]

- Poliquin Voted For House Passage Of Continuing Resolution To Fund The Government Through March 23. In February 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the bill with an amendment that would provide for an extension of the current continuing resolution through March 23, 2018. The measure would provide for $659.2 billion in discretionary funding for the Defense Department through fiscal 2018 and would provide $3.6 billion annually for community health centers through fiscal 2019. It would also eliminate the cap on various Medicare payments and would extend funding for rural hospitals that see large numbers of Medicare patients.” The motion was adopted, 245-182. January 2018: Poliquin Voted To Fund CHIP For Six Years And Reopen The Government

Poliquin Voted For Reopening The Government And Funding It Until February 8, 2018 As Well As Funding CHIP For Six Years. In January 2018, Poliquin voted for: “McCarthy, R-Calif., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the House amendment to the Senate amendment to the bill that would that would provide funding for federal government operations and services at current levels through Feb. 8, 2018. The measure would fund the state Children’s Health and Insurance Programs at $21.5 billion annually starting in fiscal 2018 and would gradually increase the funding annually through fiscal 2023. It would suspend or delay three health-related taxes enacted as part of the 2010 health care overhaul. It would allow the ballistic missile defense funding included in the last short-term funding bill to be used for certain related intelligence activities. Additionally, it would prohibit the Government Publishing Office from providing a free printed copy of the Federal Register to any member of Congress or other U.S. government office unless a specific issue or a subscription was requested by the member or office.” The motion passed 266-150. [H.R. 195, Vote #44, 1/22/18; CQ, 1/22/18]

- The Measure Ended A Three-Day Government Shutdown. “Congress voted late Monday to reopen the government after a three-day shutdown, sending President Trump a short-term spending bill that passed after Senate Republican leaders pledged to act on immigration policy next month. […] Roughly 60 hours after government funding lapsed, a bipartisan group of negotiators in the Senate prevailed with leadership and trading Democratic support for reopening the government for a commitment by Republicans to hold a vote resolving the status of young undocumented immigrants by mid-February.” [Washington Post, 1/22/18]

Poliquin Voted For Funding The Government Until February 16, 2018 And Funding CHIP For Six Years. In January 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the bill with an amendment that would provide funding for federal government operations and services at current levels through Feb. 16, 2018, at an annualized rate of $1.23 trillion for federal departments and agencies covered by the 12 unfinished fiscal 2018 spending bills, of which an annualized rate of $621.5 billion would be designated for defense and an annualized rate of $511 billion for nondefense discretionary spending. The measure would fund the state Children’s Health and Insurance Programs at $21.5 billion annually starting in fiscal 2018 and would gradually increase the funding annually through fiscal 2023. It would suspend or delay three health-related taxes enacted as part of the 2010 health care overhaul. Additionally, it would prohibit the Government Publishing Office from providing a free printed copy of the Federal Register to any member of Congress or other U.S. government office unless a specific issue or a subscription was requested by the member or office.” The motion passed 230-197. [H.R. 195, Vote #33, 1/18/18; CQ, 1/18/18]

- The Measure Failed To Protect DREAMers, Aid Puerto Rico, Or Respond To The Opioid Crisis. “In the Senate, at least about a dozen Democratic votes would be needed to approve the measure, and there was little chance that those would materialize. Democrats are intent on securing concessions that would, among other things, protect from deportation young immigrants brought to the country illegally as children, increase domestic spending, aid Puerto Rico and bolster the government’s response to the opioid crisis.” [New York Times, 1/18/18]

- The Bill Failed In The Senate, Leading To A Government Shutdown – The First Time A Shutdown Involving Furloughs Occurred While One Party Controlled Washington. “The federal government entered the 18th partial shutdown of the modern budget era at midnight Saturday after the Senate failed to reach a deal on a funding bill. The modern budget process began with the passage of the Budget Act of 1974. Since then, there have been a slew of different circumstances that prompted shutdowns, but this shutdown is unique for one reason. This is the first time that one party has controlled the House, the Senate, and the White House during a shutdown in which federal employees are furloughed.” [Business Insider, 1/20/18]

January 2018: Poliquin Said He Was “Infuriated” By The Government Shutdown, Which He Added “CANNOT Be Blamed On A Single Party.” “Congressman Bruce Poliquin (ME-02) released the following statement today on the possibility of a government shutdown: ‘Those who voted against funding the government are playing with fire. I’m infuriated, as are Mainers who depend on critical services, with what we’ve seen in the past week—Congress bringing the federal government to the brink of shutdown. ‘The House voted to keep the government open and avert a shutdown, with the support of Democrats and Republicans. 60 votes are needed to pass a bill in the Senate. Neither party has that many seats in the Senate. ‘Put simply: a government shutdown CANNOT be blamed on a single party—this is a problem that Democrats and Republicans share.’” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 1/19/18]

Poliquin Voted For An Overwhelmingly Bipartisan Budget Deal To Keep The Government Open Through September 2016

Poliquin Voted For An Overwhelmingly Bipartisan Budget Deal To Keep The Government Open Through September 2016. In December 2015, Poliquin voted for: the omnibus spending package. According to The Hill, “The House on Friday overwhelmingly approved a $1.1 trillion spending package that includes the first major change approved by Congress to ObamaCare, and keeps the government open through September 2016 … In the end, there was no drama in the 316-113 vote … Only 18 Democrats voted against the spending bill, while 166 supported it.” [HR 2029, Vote #705, 12/18/15; The Hill, 12/18/15]

• The Omnibus Bill Would End U.S. Ban On Crude Oil Exports. According to Congressional Quarterly, “The measure would end the U.S. ban on crude oil exports and would reauthorize health care and victim compensation programs for 9/11 first-responders.” [CQ, 12/18/15]

• The Omnibus Bill Would Reauthorize The 9/11 Responder Compensation Program. According to Congressional Quarterly, “The measure would end the U.S. ban on crude oil exports and would reauthorize health care and victim compensation programs for 9/11 first-responders.” [CQ, 12/18/15]

December 2015: Poliquin Supported Elements Of The Budget That Authorized BIW Construction, But Condemned “Secret Deals” That Created The Bill

December 2015: Poliquin Supported A Budget That Authorized BIW Construction, But Condemned “Secret Deals” That Created The Bill. “Members of Maine’s congressional delegation applauded the $1.1 trillion spending bill that became law on Friday, putting aside concerns over its cost and the process that led to its passage to praise how it would benefit the state. Of particular importance for Maine is the $4.6 billion the legislation authorizes for Navy destroyer programs, Sen. Angus King said. He said this includes $433 million for the construction of Zumwalt destroyers, which are being built at Bath Iron Works, $3.1 billion for the procurement of two Arleigh Burke-class destroyers, one of which will be built at Bath, and $1 billion toward the construction of another Arleigh Burke destroyer, which likely would be built at Bath […] Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Maine’s 2nd District congressman, said the bill would bolster national security but took issue with how the agreement was reached. ‘The negotiation process for this massive bill needs to be much more transparent,’ Poliquin said. ‘Secret deals are not the way that these enormous spending bills were meant to be brokered … .” [Portland Press Herald, 12/18/15]

2015: Poliquin Voted For A Short-Term Continuing Resolution To Prevent A Government Shutdown

2015: Poliquin Voted For A Short-Term Continuing Resolution To Prevent A Government Shutdown. In September 2015, Poliquin voted for: a motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the bill that would continue funding the government through Dec. 11, 2015 at an annualized rate of $1,017 trillion, the top-line post-sequester discretionary spending level for FY 2016 set by the Budget Control Act. It also would fund for Overseas Contingency Operations at a rate of $74.8 billion, roughly equal to the FY 2015 level. Under the bill, most programs would be funded at a rate that is 0.21 percent less than their FY 2015 funding level, although the measure would include increases for certain activities including $700 million in emergency funding for fighting fire in western states; it would give the VA budget flexibility in constructing a facility in Denver, and would not defund Planned Parenthood. Further, the measure would extend through Dec. 11 the ban on state taxation of Internet access and the E-Verify employment verification system. The motion was agreed to by a vote of 277-151. [HR 719, Vote #528, 9/30/15; CQ Floor Votes, 9/30/15]

- All Of The Votes Against Were Republicans, Who Were Upset By Their Inability To Force The Obama Administration To Defund Planned Parenthood. “With only hours to spare on the last day of the fiscal year, Congress averted a government shutdown on Wednesday by approving a temporary spending measure to keep federal agencies operating through Dec. 11. In the House, the legislation was approved only because of strong support by Democrats — a sign of how angry rank-and-file Republicans remain over their powerlessness to force policy changes on the Obama administration. The House vote was 257 to 151, with 186 Democrats and 91 Republicans in favor. All of the ‘no’ votes were by Republicans. In one last display of their fury, House Republicans on Wednesday adopted another resolution to cut off government financing to Planned Parenthood.” [New York Times, 9/30/15]

Budget Resolutions

NOTE: Unlike appropriations bills, budget resolutions are not signed by the President and do not enact spending. Instead, the resolutions set targets for Congressional committees who will then write appropriations bills.

Trump FY 2019 Budget Proposal

February 2018: Poliquin Opposed Trump’s Budget Proposal That Cut Funding For Heating Oil For Low-Income Mainers, As Well As Maine Infrastructure Projects, Research Programs, And Public Radio And TV

February 2018: Poliquin Opposed Trump’s Budget Proposal To Cut Funding For Heating Oil For Low-Income Mainers, As Well As Maine Infrastructure Projects, Research Programs, And Public Radio And TV. “President Donald Trump released a proposed budget for the next fiscal year Monday that, if enacted, would have serious consequences across Maine. The sweeping plan again proposes to eliminate the programs that provide heating oil to low-income Mainers, legal aid to indigent citizens, and grants to towns and cities to rehabilitate housing, infrastructure, and services. It also would stop federal funding for Maine Public's television and radio outlets, the University of Maine's Sea Grant research program and the Wells Reserve at Laudholm, which again would face closure. […] Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, who represents the 2nd District, said in a statement that he was pleased the budget request strengthened national security and supported the armed forces but was opposed to many of the president’s proposed program eliminations, including heating assistance, public broadcasting, Sea Grant and Wells.” [Portland Press Herald, 2/12/18]

- Poliquin Promised “To Push For Continued Support For These And Other Programs And Agencies That Do Good For Maine Families” During Budget Debates. “As I have said before, we must make sure we maintain support for programs and agencies that serve our families and communities and help protect our environment,’ Poliquin said. ‘As Congress begins its work in the coming months on the federal budget, I will continue to push for continued support for these and other programs and agencies that do good for Maine families.’” [Portland Press Herald, 2/12/18]

FY 2018

Poliquin Voted For Motion Concurring With FY18 Senate Republican Budget

Poliquin Voted For Agreeing To The Senate Republican’s Version Of The FY18 Budget That Provided $3.1 Trillion In New Budget Authority. In October 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Black, R-Tenn., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the concurrent resolution that would provide for $3.1 trillion in new budget authority in fiscal 2018, not including off-budget accounts. It would allow the cap on defense spending to be raised to $640 billion for fiscal 2018, without the need for offsets. It would require the Senate Finance Committee to report legislation under the budget reconciliation process that would increase the deficit by no more than $1.5 trillion over the period of fiscal 2018 through fiscal 2027. It would also instruct the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee to report legislation under the budget reconciliation process that would reduce the deficit by $1 billion over the period of fiscal 2018 through fiscal 2027. The concurrent resolution would authorize the establishment of various reserve funds, including a deficit-neutral reserve fund related to repealing or replacing the 2010 health care overhaul law, and a revenue-neutral reserve fund related to modifying the federal tax system.” The budget passed 216-212. Those savings are likely to come in the form of legislation that would open ANWR to oil and gas leasing, which would generate revenues from the sale of federal leases to drilling companies and from royalties on the sale of oil and gas extracted from federally owned land.” [CQ, 10/17/17]

Poliquin Voted For Considering The Senate Republican’s Version Of The FY18 Budget. In October 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Adoption of the rule (H Res 580) that would provide for House floor consideration of the fiscal 2018 budget resolution (H Con Res 71) that would provide for $3.1 trillion in new budget authority in fiscal 2018, not including off-budget accounts.” The resolution was adopted 233-188. Poliquin Voted For FY18 House Republican Budget

Poliquin Voted For FY 2018 House Republican Budget Resolution. In October 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Adoption of the concurrent resolution that would provide for $3.2 trillion in new budget authority in fiscal 2018, not including off-budget accounts. It would assume $1.22 trillion in discretionary spending in fiscal 2018. It would assume the repeal of the 2010 health care overhaul law. It also would propose reducing spending on mandatory programs such as Medicare and Medicaid and changing programs such as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (also known as food stamps). It would call for restructuring Medicare into a "premium support" system beginning in 2024. I would also require the House Ways and Means Committee to report out legislation under the budget reconciliation process that would provide for a revenue-neutral, comprehensive overhaul of the U.S. tax code and would include instructions to 11 House committees to trigger the budget reconciliation process to cut mandatory spending. The concurrent resolution would assume that, over 10 years, base (non-Overseas Contingency Operations) discretionary defense spending would be increased by a total of $929 billion over the Budget Control Act caps and non-defense spending be reduced by $1.3 trillion.” The concurrent resolution was adopted, 219-206. - Politico: The House Budget Included “$203 Billion In Mandatory Cuts Achieved Largely By Cutting Safety Net Programs.” “Under the House budget, any tax reconciliation bill would have to include the $203 billion in mandatory cuts achieved largely by cutting safety net programs. That prompted some GOP moderates to warn of the political optics of cutting food stamps or Medicaid to pay for corporate tax breaks. The House budget also lays out strict parameters to prevent a tax plan from adding to the deficit, even short-term. And that language has given heartburn to Budget panel members like Rep. Jim Renacci (R-Ohio), who almost voted against the resolution because he was afraid it doesn’t provide tax writers with enough funding flexibility to achieve desired cuts.” [Politico, 10/2/17]

Poliquin Voted For Consideration Of The Fiscal 2018 House Republican Budget Resolution. In October 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Adoption of the rule (H Res 553) that would provide for House floor consideration of the fiscal 2018 budget resolution (H Con Res 71).” The rule was adopted, 232-188. [H Res 553, Vote #552, 10/4/17; CQ, 10/4/17]

2017: Poliquin Voted Against FY2018 Republican Study Committee Budget That Cut $10 Trillion Over A Decade, Repealed Obamacare And Would Raise The Retirement Age For Social Security

Poliquin Voted Against A Republican Study Committee Alternative FY18 Budget. In October 2017, Poliquin voted against: “McCintock, R-Calif., substitute amendment that would provide for $2.9 trillion in new budget authority in fiscal 2018. It would balance the budget by fiscal 2023 by reducing spending by $10.1 trillion over 10 years. It would cap total discretionary spending at $1.06 trillion for fiscal 2018 and would assume no separate Overseas Contingency Operations funding for fiscal 2018 or subsequent years and would incorporate funding related to war or terror into the base defense account. It would assume repeal of the 2010 health care overhaul and would convert Medicaid and the Children’s Health Insurance Program into a single block grant program. It would require that off budget programs, such as Social Security, the U.S. Postal Service, and Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, be included in the budget.” The amendment was rejected, 281-139. - The RSC Budget Would Gradually Raise The Retirement Age For Social Security To 69. “The RSC budget would eliminate Social Security’s long-run shortfall and make the program sustainably solvent by adopting Representative Sam Johnson’s (R-TX) “Social Security Reform Act,” which would slow initial benefit growth for higher-earners, gradually raise the normal retirement age to 69, and means-test annual cost-of-living adjustments, which would be calculated based on the chained Consumer Price Index (CPI).” [Committee for a Responsible Federal Budget, 9/11/17]

- The RSC Budget Targeted Medicare And Medicaid, As Well As Food Assistance For Families In Need. “The trillions of dollars in RSC-backed cuts are mainly for show, as there is little appetite within the conference

The RSC budget targets the major health care benefit programs Medicare and Medicaid and overhauls other means-tested benefits for the poor such as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, formerly known as food stamps, and Temporary Assistance for Needy Families.” [Roll Call, 10/3/17]

- The RSC Budget Included More Than $10 Trillion In Spending Cuts Over A Decade, About Twice As Much As The House Republican Budget. “House Republicans will get the chance Thursday to vote for an alternative budget blueprint that offers up more than $10 trillion in spending cuts over a decade. […] The Budget Committee-approved plan also proposes sizable cuts to mandatory programs, but only about $5.4 trillion in total reductions, about half of what the RSC wants. In addition, the RSC budget proposes to get to balance by fiscal 2023, as opposed to fiscal 2027 in the underlying resolution headed to the floor Thursday.” [Roll Call, 10/3/17]

September FY 2018 Budget Proposal

September FY 2017: Poliquin Declined To Comment On His Vote For A Budget That Rejected Trump’s Proposed Cuts To Legal Aid, Coastal Clean Ups, Public Media, And Homeless Aid Programs In Maine

March 2017: Trump Proposed Budget Cuts To Maine Programs That Provided Heating Oil Assistance To Low-Income Mainers, Services To The Homeless, Public Media, And Coastal Clean Up Sites. “When Trump released his proposed budget in March, it was subjected to withering bipartisan condemnation from Maine's congressional delegation, with Republican U.S. Sen. Susan Collins promising it would be ‘subject to ‘significant revision’ by Congress. […] Trump's budget proposed stripping federal dollars from programs that provide heating oil to low-income Mainers, legal aid to indigent citizens and funding for services that help the homeless. It would stop federal funds from flowing to Maine Public's television and radio outlets, the University of Maine's Sea Grant research program and research efforts at the Wells Reserve at Laudholm, which could end up closing. Money Maine towns and cities use to clean up contaminated industrial sites so they can be redeveloped would be slashed, and programs that help abate radon in drinking water, lead paint in old buildings, and pollution on Maine beaches would be eliminated altogether.” [Portland Press Herald, 9/17/17]

Trump Proposed Cutting The Northern Border Regional Commission, Which Spent Millions On Maine Infrastructure Projects. “President Donald Trump’s budget outline released this week is drawing mixed to negative reviews from Maine’s congressional delegation on how it would change the order of business for many government programs. […] It would also end a federal-state commission established to aid struggling border communities. The relatively small Northern Border Regional Commission, which serves Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and New York, would be cut. Between 2010 and 2015, it put nearly $3.9 million into economic and infrastructure projects in Maine, unlocking $11 million in matching funds.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 3/17/17]

- As Passed, The Omnibus Appropriations Bill Did Not Include Trump’s Proposed Cuts To Maine Programs. “Congress appears poised to reject a wide range of cuts to federal programs proposed by President Trump that would have serious consequences across Maine, disrupting scientific research and social services, affecting everyone from the elderly and unemployed to those who rely on the sea to earn their living. […] But the omnibus appropriations bill passed Thursday by the House of Representatives rejects all of those proposals, restoring most or all funding for most of these programs and in some cases raising it.” [Portland Press Herald, 9/17/17]

September 2017: Poliquin Declined To Comment “Directly” On His Vote For The Budget; His Spokesperson Said He “Voted On The House Bill, One Step In A Long Process.” “U.S. Rep. His spokesman, Brendan Conley, would say only that Poliquin had ‘voted on the House bill, one step in a long process, and looks forward to seeing what comes back from the Senate.’ In August, Poliquin told supporters he avoided speaking to the press about his positions for fear of losing his seat.” [Portland Press Herald, 9/17/17]

Poliquin Voted For FY 2016 Republican Conference Report On Budget

2015: Poliquin Voted For FY16 Republican Conference Report On Budget. In April 2015, Poliquin voted for: “Adoption of the conference report on the concurrent resolution that would reduce spending by $5.3 trillion over the next 10 years, including $2 trillion in reductions from repeal of the 2010 health care overhaul. The concurrent resolution would reduce spending in the areas of Medicare, Medicaid and other mandatory programs. It would call for a deficit-neutral overhaul of the tax code that lowers rates and assumes $124 billion in additional savings through ‘dynamic scoring.’ It would increase the amount of uncapped funding for war and related activities in the Overseas Contingency Operations (OCO), allowing $96.3 billion in fiscal 2016. It also includes reconciliation instructions to the House and Senate committees to focus on repeal of the 2010 health care overhaul and to report legislation by July 24, 2015.” The budget was adopted 226-197. [S CON RES 11, Vote #183; On Agreeing to the Conference Report, 4/30/15; Bloomberg, 4/29/15]

Poliquin Voted For The FY 2016 Republican Budget To Repeal The Affordable Care Act, Slash Pell Grants, And Alter Medicare

2015: Poliquin Voted For FY 2016 Republican Budget To Repeal The Affordable Care Act, Slash Pell Grants, And Alter Medicare. In March 2015, Poliquin voted for: the FY16 Republican House budget that would repeal the Affordable Care Act, slash Pell grants and alter Medicare. “It also includes parliamentary language, called reconciliation that orders House committees to draft legislation repealing the Affordable Care Act. Under budget rules, that reconciliation repeal bill cannot be filibustered in the Senate and would need only a majority vote to pass. The budget would turn Medicaid into block grants to the states, cutting health care spending for the poor by $900 billion. The food stamp program would also be turned into block grants and cut by hundreds of billions of dollars. Special education, Pell Grants, job training and housing assistance would all be cut. Medicare would transition to a system where future seniors would be encouraged to use government-funded vouchers to purchase insurance in the private market.” The resolution passed 228 to 199. [H. Con Res. 27, Vote #142, 3/25/15; New York Times, 3/25/15]

- National Committee To Preserve Social Security & Medicare: 2015 House GOP Budget Would Leave “Seniors And The Disabled – Some Of Our Most Vulnerable Americans – Hostage To The Whims Of Private Insurance Companies.” “Once again, the House GOP’s budget would privatize Medicare with a voucher plan, leaving seniors and the disabled – some of our most vulnerable Americans – hostage to the whims of private insurance companies. Over time, this will end traditional Medicare and make it harder for seniors to choose their own doctor. Vouchers will not keep up with the increasing cost of health insurance… that is why seniors will pay more.” [National Committee to Preserve Social Security & Medicare, 3/17/15]

- New York Times: 2015 House GOP Budget Would Turn Medicare Into A “Voucherlike” Program. “House Budget Committee members previewed their plans in an unusual, campaign-style video on Monday. The plan envisions a remaking of the federal government. Future recipients of Medicare would be offered voucherlike ‘premium support’ to pay for private insurance rather than government-provided health care. Spending on Medicaid would be cut substantially over 10 years, with the money turned into block grants to state governments, which in turn would have much more flexibility in deciding how it is allocated.” [New York Times, 3/17/15]

Poliquin Voted For Blocking Consideration Of Holding A Hearing For The President’s FY16 Budget

2016: Poliquin Voted For Blocking Consideration Of Holding A Hearing For The President’s FY16 Budget. In March 2016, Poliquin voted for: blocking consideration of holding a hearing for the Obama Administration’s fiscal year 2017 budget proposal. “The Democratic Previous Question gives Republicans a third chance to call for an immediate vote on Budget Committee Ranking Member Chris Van Hollen’s H.R. 624 to demand a fair hearing on the President’s Budget by demanding that House Republicans hold a Budget hearing with the Director of the Office of Management and Budget.” [H Res 635, Vote #106, 3/3/16; Democratic Leader – Previous Questions, 3/3/16]

Poliquin Voted For FY 2016 Budget Price Amendment That Would Repeal The Affordable Care Act, Slash Pell Grants, And Alter Medicare While Requiring No Offsets For Increased OCO Defense Spending

2015: Poliquin Voted For A FY 2016 Price Budget Amendment To Repeal The Affordable Care Act, Slash Pell Grants, And Alter Medicare While Requiring No Offsets For Increased OCO Defense Spending. In March 2015, Poliquin voted for: a budget alternative known as Price amendment #2 offered as an amendment on the floor that would repeal the Affordable Care Act, slash Pell grants and alter Medicare while requiring no offsets for increased OCO defense spending. “Tom Price, R-Ga., also submitted an amended version that included increased defense funding without requiring cuts in other areas to offset the spending. Price’s plan increased funding to the Overseas Contingency Operations Fund by $2 billion over the committee plan, to $96 billion, and requires no offsets. The version that passed out of committee would have required offsets over $73.5 billion in the OCO fund, which pays for wars and other overseas activities and is not subject to sequester caps.” The resolution passed 219 to 208. [H. Con Res. 27, Vote #141, 3/25/15; US News and World Report, 3/25/15]

Poliquin Voted Against The FY 2016 Republican Study Committee Budget That Would Balance The Budget In Six Years, Cut Retirement Programs, And Called For A Balanced Budget Amendment
2015: Poliquin Voted Against The FY2016 Republican Study Committee Budget. In March 2015, Poliquin voted against: the Republican Study Committee budget that would cut spending by $7.1 trillion over 10 years. “A conservative budget released by the House Republican Study Committee (RSC) on Monday would balance in five years by cutting $7.1 trillion in spending over the next decade. The cuts are much more than the $5.5 trillion in proposed cuts included in the main House GOP blueprint unveiled last week by Budget Committee Chairman Tom Price (R-Ga.). The RSC budget, prepared by RSC and Budget Committee member Marlin Stutzman (R-Ind.), would increase spending for the Pentagon.” The amendment failed 132 to 294. [H Con Res 27, Vote #138, 3/25/15; The Hill, 3/23/15]

- The RSC Budget Would Cut FY16 Nondefense Discretionary Spending By $88 Billion Below Sequestration Levels. “The RSC blueprint would lower nondefense discretionary spending for domestic programs next year to $405 billion, $88 billion below the baseline set by the 2011 deal. Altogether, discretionary spending next year would total $975 billion under the RSC’s budget, much lower than the $1.018 trillion top-line number established by the 2011 law. Over the 10-year window, the RSC budget would cut nondefense spending by $1.3 trillion and increase defense spending by $435 billion.” [The Hill, 3/23/15]

- The RSC Proposed An “Aggressive” Plan That Would Balance The Budget In Six Years. “Conservative members of the House Republican caucus outbid their party’s official budget Monday, offering a plan to cut planned government spending by more than $7.1 trillion and balance the budget in just six years. The aggressive plan to cut spending from all areas of government and erase deficits was introduced by the Republican Study Committee, a group of congressmen organized to push policy to the right.” [Washington Examiner, 3/23/15]

The FY2016 RSC Budget Raised The Retirement Age To 70. “The Republican Study Committee would raise the retirement age to 70 for people born after 1962, use a definition of inflation that would lower benefits, and reduce benefits for wealthier retirees.” [ Examiner, 3/23/15]

The RSC Budget Balanced By “Cutting More Deeply Into Federal Healthcare And Retirement Programs.” “The Republican Study Committee on Monday unveiled its plan to cut spending by $7.1 trillion over 10 years, reaching a surplus in six years by cutting more deeply into federal healthcare and retirement programs as well as domestic agency budgets.” [ Reuters, 3/23/15]

The RSC Budget Called For A Balanced Budget Amendment To The Constitution. “It is the policy of this resolution that Congress should pass a joint resolution incorporating the provisions set forth in subsection (b), and send such joint resolution to the States for their approval, to amend the Constitution of the United States to require an annual balanced budget.” [RSC Budget Proposal, 3/22/15]

FY 2015

Poliquin Supported Ryan’s FY 2015 Budget, Which Would Have Given Corporations And Millionaires Like Himself A Tax Cut While Raising Taxes On Families Making Less Than $200,000, Slashing Medicare, And Adding $1.2 Trillion To The National Deficit

July 2014: Bangor Daily News Editorial Headline: “Bruce Poliquin Supports The Paul Ryan Budget. But What’s Actually In It?” “Poliquin, the Republican former state treasurer, says he supports the Ryan plan. He told the BDN editorial board in May that he would like to see the plan balance the federal budget more quickly.” [Bangor Daily News, Editorial, 7/25/14]

CBPP: Families Making Less Than $200,000 Would Face Average Tax Hike of $3,000 Under Ryan’s Budget. “Families with children that have incomes below $200,000 would have to face tax increases averaging more than $3,000 a year, if policymakers were to avoid increasing the deficit while reaching Chairman Ryan’s 25-percent top-tax-rate goal… If policymakers enacted the same extremely ambitious reductions in tax expenditures for filers with incomes above $200,000…, filers with incomes of $1 million or more would lose tax breaks totaling about $90,000 on average – still leaving them with an average net tax cut of about $245,000…” [Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, 3/17/13]

CBPP: Millionaires Would Likely Experience A $245,000 Net Tax Cut Under Ryan’s Budget. According to an analysis of the Ryan Budget conducted by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, “If policymakers enacted the same extremely ambitious reductions in tax expenditures for filers with incomes above $200,000 that TPC assumed when it analyzed Romney’s tax plan, filers with incomes of $1 million or more would lose tax breaks totaling about $90,000 on average – still leaving them with an average net tax cut of about $245,000. Households with incomes above $200,000 would get a net cut of about $16,000.” [Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, 3/17/13]

• 2014: Poliquin Reported He Had An Estimated Net Worth Between $9,971,062 And $37,690,000.

Ryan Budget Would Slash The Corporate Tax Rate From 35 Percent to 25 Percent. “Under the Ryan plan, the corporate tax rate would also fall, from 35 percent to 25 percent – although all those tax changes are supposed to be crafted to bring in the same amount of revenue as the current tax code, a tall order.” [New York Times, 3/12/13]

National Journal: “For Those Younger Than Age 55, Medicare Could Look Unrecognizable” If Ryan Budget Were Implemented. “And, for those younger than age 55, Medicare could look unrecognizable: People receive a fixed sum of money from the federal government to buy health insurance in their old age, regardless of the way inflation has caused health care costs to increase.” [National Journal, 3/10/13]

• CBPP: Ryan Budget Would Cut Medicare Spending By A Total of $356 Billion.” According to an analysis of the Ryan budget conducted by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities: “Over the 2013 to 2023 period, the Ryan budget would cut Medicare spending by a total of $356 billion. His budget would save $129 billion compared to current law from limiting medical malpractice awards, increasing income-tested premiums, and repealing the Medicare benefit improvements in health reform, including closure of the prescription drug ‘donut hole.’ Ryan’s baseline includes $138 billion in scheduled cuts from Medicare’s sustainable growth rate formula for physicians and $89 billion in Medicare cuts from sequestration, bringing his total Medicare reductions to the aforementioned $356 billion.” [Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, 3/12/13]

EPI: “Ryan Budget Would Increase The Unemployment Rate By Between .6 [And] .8 Percentage Points.” According to an analysis of the Ryan budget conducted by the Economic Policy Institute, “We estimate that the Ryan budget would increase the unemployment rate by between 0.6 percentage points and 0.8 percentage points.” [Economic Policy Institute, 3/12/13]

CBPP: Ryan Budget “Would Likely Add To Deficits, Undercutting […] Claim To Balance The Budget Within A Decade.” The Center on Budget and Policy Priorities dismissed Ryan’s claim that his budget would balance within a decade, by writing: “Nor is his vow to raise $6 trillion by scaling back tax expenditures plausible, given that the most costly of them, such as the mortgage interest deduction and deduction for charitable giving, tend to be the most politically popular. As a result, if policymakers were to cut taxes enough to meet Chairman Ryan’s goal, they would likely add to deficits, undercutting Chairman Ryan’s claim to balance the budget within a decade.” [Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, 3/17/13]

Ryan’s “Budget Would Add About $1.2 Trillion to the National Debt.” “With $41.5 trillion in spending over the next decade and $40.2 trillion in revenues, Ryan’s budget would add about $1.2 trillion to the national debt. But shrinking deficits would reduce borrowing and cause the debt to shrink as a percentage of the economy. By the time a $7 billion surplus emerges in 2023, Ryan predicts that the Treasury would owe $14.2 trillion to outside creditors (compared with $11.8 trillion today), or about 55 percent of the gross domestic product (compared with about 76 percent today).” [Washington Post, 3/12/13]

2018: Poliquin Voted For Proposing A Balanced Budget Amendment To The Constitution

Poliquin Voted For Proposing A Balanced Budget Amendment To The Constitution

In April 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Goodlatte, R-Va., motion to suspend the rules and pass the joint resolution that would propose a constitutional amendment that would require the U.S. government to operate under a balanced budget each year, beginning five years after ratification. Under the proposal, three-fifths of the entire House and Senate would be required to approve deficit spending or an increase in the public debt limit, but a simple majority would be sufficient to waive the requirement in times of congressionally declared war or in the face of a serious military threat.” The motion was rejected by a vote of 233-184. [H J Res 2, Vote #138, 4/12/18; CQ, 4/12/18]

- Center for American Progress: The Balanced-Budget Amendment Threatens Americans’ Health Care, Social Security, and Jobs. [Center for American Progress, 4/11/18]

- AARP Opposed The Balanced Budget Amendment Because It Would “Likely Harm Social Security And Medicare, Subjecting Both Programs To Potentially Deep Cuts.” “AARP is writing to express our opposition to a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution of the United States. [...] A balanced budget amendment would likely harm Social Security and Medicare, subjecting both programs to potentially deep cuts without regard to the impact on the health and financial security of individuals. It would also likely diminish the resources available for programs assisting Americans who are least able to provide for themselves – services such as meals or heating for those who are too poor or physically unable to take care of their basic needs without some support.” [AARP, Letter, 4/9/18]

- Senator Corker: “Republicans Control The House, Senate And White House. If We Were Serious About Balancing The Budget, We Would Do It. But Instead Of Doing The Real Work, Some Will Push This Symbolic Measure So They Can Feel Good When They Go Home To Face Voters.” [Sen. Corker, Twitter, 3/29/18]

2018: Poliquin Voted For Blocking An Amendment To The Balanced Budget Amendment To Protect Social Security, Medicare, And Medicaid

Poliquin Voted For Blocking An Amendment To The Balanced Budget Amendment To Protect Social Security, Medicare, And Medicaid

In April 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Buck, R-Colo., motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and possibility of amendment) on [...] providing for the speaker to entertain motions to suspend the rules on April 12, 2018, relating to the joint resolution (H J Res 2) that would propose a balanced budget amendment to the U.S. Constitution.” According to Rep. McGovern, “If we defeat the previous question, I will offer an amendment to the rule which would amend the bill to exempt Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid, vital pillars of our social safety net.” A vote for the motion was a vote to block consideration of the amendment. The motion was agreed to by a vote of 231-186. [H Res 811, Vote #133, 4/11/18; CQ, 4/11/18; Congressional Record, H3018, 4/11/18]

2018: Poliquin Co-Sponsored A Balanced Budget Amendment That Would Threaten Social Security And Medicare

2018: Poliquin Co-Sponsored A Balanced Budget Amendment

2018: Poliquin Co-Sponsored A Balanced Budget Amendment. [H J Res 2, co-sponsored 1/8/18]
A Balanced Budget Amendment Would Override All Government Guarantees And Promises Written Into Law – Including Social Security, Medicare, Veterans Benefits, And Military Pensions. “In general, a balanced budget requirement in the U.S. Constitution would override any and all government guarantees and promises written into law: the guarantee to pay interest on the debt; or to pay insurance and guarantee claims for bank deposits, floods, loan defaults, and nuclear accidents; or to pay program benefits for Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, unemployment benefits, veterans’ benefits, or military and civil service pensions; or to pay contractors who have delivered goods or services to the federal government.” [CBPP, 3/16/18]

Under A Balanced Budget Amendment, It Would Be Unconstitutional For Social Security To Use Its Savings – What Workers Already Paid In To – To Pay Promised Benefits; Benefits Could Have To Be Cut. “Currently, Social Security holds $2.9 trillion in Treasury securities. But under the balanced budget amendment, it would essentially be unconstitutional for Social Security to draw down these savings to pay promised benefits. Instead, benefits could have to be cut, because all federal expenditures would have to be covered by tax revenues collected during that same year.” [CBPP, 3/16/18]

Poliquin Co-sponsored a Balanced Budget Amendment Four Times

Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: “Poliquin Doesn’t Let His Commitment To Fiscal Restraint Doesn’t Stop Him From Lining Up When They’re Handing Out The Goodies In Washington.” “Rep. Bruce Poliquin must think the people back home just aren’t paying attention. The 2nd District congressman sent out a peppy news release last week, cheerleading a balanced budget amendment that would make deficit spending unconstitutional. The reform is necessary, Poliquin said, ‘to ensure a financially sustainable future for our nation.’ But what Poliquin left out is his role in making that future unsustainable. In December, Poliquin voted for a tax reform bill that will borrow $1.9 trillion to dole out to the most profitable businesses and wealthy families. In February, Poliquin voted for a spending plan that adds $300 billion to $400 billion to the annual deficit, creating permanent $1 trillion annual deficits starting in 2019. Apparently, Poliquin doesn’t let his commitment to fiscal restraint doesn’t stop him from lining up when they’re handing out the goodies in Washington.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 4/16/18]

Poliquin Denied That His Support For A Balanced Budget Was A “Messaging Ploy To Score Political Points.” “Their first claim: My support for a balanced-budget amendment is nothing but a messaging ploy to score political points. The truth: I have supported a balanced-budget amendment for years, dating back to my work as your state treasurer. In Congress, I signed on as an original co-sponsor of this budget discipline the day after being sworn in to office in January 2015. Since then, I have continuously pushed for a vote on this legislation. Last week, my hard work paid off. The House finally had a floor vote on a balanced-budget amendment to the Constitution. There is absolutely no ambiguity about my longtime support for a legal requirement for Washington to balance its books. Anything reported differently is pure fiction.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 4/19/18]

- Poliquin Op-Ed: “We Need A Balanced-Budget Amendment To The U.S. Constitution To Force Washington To Spend Only What It Takes In, Like Nearly Every State Government Across America.” “We need a balanced-budget amendment to the U.S. Constitution to force Washington to spend only what it takes in, like nearly every state government across America. This will prioritize spending just like frugally managing a household or small-business budget. When you run out of money, that’s it – no more spending, or borrowing money your kids will have to repay. Only then will our nation’s books balance. With this discipline, we can then start chipping away at the $21 trillion mountain of public debt. This is what I support. I hope it’s crystal clear.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 4/19/18]

2016 – 2021: Poliquin Advocated For A Constitutional Amendment To Require A Balanced Budget

July 2021: Poliquin Said He Supported A Balanced Budget Amendment To The Constitution. HOST: “Let’s say we made you King of America. What would you do?” POLIQUIN: “Well first of all what you do is pass a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution so the federal government would only be able to spend what they take in instead of borrowing and printing money to make up the difference, just like the state of Maine has.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 7/15/21] (AUDIO) 5:02

January 2021: Poliquin: “We’ve Got To Have A Balanced Budget Amendment To The Constitution, The Federal Constitution.” POLIQUIN: “I got a stomachache, frankly. This is why we’ve got to have a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, the federal Constitution. We have one at the state level. […] What the federal government does, Matt, is these folks that represent us, they just spend as much money as they want. If they run out of money, they just print more.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 1/15/21] (AUDIO) 9:34

August 2018: Poliquin: “We Need A Balanced Budget Amendment To Our Constitution.” “We need a Balanced Budget Amendment to our Constitution. We cannot afford Career Politicians like Jared Golden who, like Nancy Pelosi, vote for every radical tax increase. Like Maine families, DC must learn to live within its means and start paying off the twenty one trillion dollar national debt.”

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 8/20/18]

August 2018: Poliquin: “The Only Way To Force A Separation Of The Good From The Bad And Require Hard Choices Is A Constitutional Balanced Budget Amendment.” “Every budget in Washington has something good or bad in it, including jobs at BIW, support for our Veterans, and other needed items. The only way to force a separation of the good from the bad and require hard choices is a Constitutional Balanced Budget Amendment. Bruce will not stop fighting for this common sense measure. If you agree in working for a Balanced Budget Amendment to force both political parties to balance the budget, please share!”
April 2018: Poliquin Said A Constitutional Amendment To Require A Balanced Budget Would “Force Politicians In Washington To Think More Seriously About These Fiscal Decisions.” “Poliquin, a 2nd District Republican who is seeking a third term, has pushed for the measure since 2015 because of what he sees as a need ‘for our government to get our spending under control.’ ‘We need to reform how Congress operates in order to truly fix this enormous problem and I believe that starts’ with a constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget, Poliquin said in a prepared statement. The lawmaker, who in recent months voted for a $1.5 trillion tax cut and a $1.3 trillion spending plan for the next fiscal year, said it would ‘force politicians in Washington to think more seriously about these fiscal decisions and force all members, from both political parties, to make the right decision.’” [Kennebec Journal, 4/6/18]

February 2016: Poliquin Led A Group That Called On Republican Presidential Candidates To Support A Balanced Budget Amendment. “A group of freshmen Republicans in Congress is calling on the party’s presidential candidates to focus less on bickering and more on the national debt in advance of the South Carolina primary. Maine Rep. Bruce Poliquin is leading the group, which is sending a letter to the candidates Wednesday. Poliquin and the lawmakers want Republican candidates to put aside personal jabs and show support for a balanced budget amendment. The letter says candidates need to back spending restraints and show debt is one of the ‘primary threats to our freedoms.’ The signers are from more than a dozen states and many haven’t endorsed a candidate for president.” [Seacoast Online, 2/17/16]

2016: Poliquin Campaign Website: “Amending The U.S. Constitution For The 28th Time To Require An Annual Balanced Budget Would, Finally, Start Putting Our Fiscal House In Order And Keep It There.” “Amending the U.S. Constitution for the 28th time to require an annual balanced budget would, finally, start putting our fiscal house in order and keep it there. A balanced budget amendment would force Congress and the White House to start paying off the reckless $17 trillion national debt that is suffocating our economy. Business owners would have the confidence to invest in America, grow their companies, and create more jobs. Families could keep more of their own hard-earned wages as taxes could be lowered. The expanding economy would create more opportunities, more freedom, and more tax revenues to fund essential government programs.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/29/16]
Poliquin Voted Three Times To Raise The Debt Limit

2018: Poliquin Voted For A Continuing Resolution That Suspended The Debt Limit Through March 2019. In February 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the House amendment to the Senate amendment to the bill that would provide funding for federal government operations and services at current levels through March 23, 2018. The bill would increase defense spending caps to $629 billion for fiscal 2018 and $647 billion for fiscal 2019, and would increase non-defense spending caps by $63 billion in fiscal 2018 and $68 billion in fiscal 2019. It would suspend the debt ceiling through March 1, 2019, and would provide $89.3 billion in emergency supplemental funding including $23.5 billion in funding for the Federal Emergency Management Agency Disaster Relief Fund, $28 billion in funding to the Department of Housing and Urban Development Community Development Fund, and $4.9 billion in additional Medicaid funding for Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands. It would authorize funding for community health centers through fiscal 2019, and would provide for an additional authorization of the Children’s Health Insurance Program from fiscal 2023 to fiscal 2027. The underlying bill would allow the governor of a state, territory, possession or the mayor of the District of Columbia to order that the United States flag be flown at half-staff to honor the death of a first responder who dies while serving in the line of duty.” [HR 1892, Vote #69, 2/9/18; CQ, 2/9/18]

2017: Poliquin Voted For Suspending The Public Debt Limit For Three Months. In September 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the House amendment to the Senate amendment to the bill that would make available $15.25 billion in emergency supplemental funding for fiscal 2017 to partially cover the costs of responding to multiple natural disasters, including Hurricane Harvey. The measure would suspend the public debt limit from the bill’s date of enactment until Dec. 8, 2017, and would provide for government operations to be funded at fiscal 2017 levels until Dec. 8, 2017.” The motion passed, 316-90. [HR 601, Vote #480, 9/8/17; CQ, 9/8/17]

2015: Poliquin Voted For The Bipartisan Budget Act That Suspended The Debt Limit Until March 2017. “Rogers, R-Ky., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the bill with a modified Boehner amendment that would replace the bill with legislation that would suspend the debt limit until March 15, 2017 and increase the discretionary spending cap for fiscal 2016 by $50 billion and for fiscal 2017 by $30 billion, with the increases split equally between defense and non-defense spending. Offsets through mandatory spending cuts and revenue increases would include increasing premiums companies pay to the Pension Benefit Guarantee Corporation to insure private pension plans, the sale of oil from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve, and changes to the federal crop insurance program. It would prevent an estimated 52 percent premium increase for certain Medicare beneficiaries and instead provide for a lower increase, and would make changes to keep the Social Security disability insurance trust solvent until 2022.” [HR 1314, Vote #579, 10/28/15; CQ, 10/28/15]

January 2021: Poliquin Said America Would Be In “A Real Financial Calamity” If It Was Forced To Default On Its Debt

Poliquin Said America Would Be In “A Real Financial Calamity” If It Was Forced To Default On Its Debt. POLIQUIN: “One of the things you cannot avoid is paying the interest on the money that you have borrowed. You’ve got to pay that or our country defaults, which would be a real financial calamity.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 1/22/21] (AUDIO) 8:03

May 2021: Poliquin: “This Year Alone, President Biden And The Democrats Will Add More Than $3 Trillion To The Already Smothering $28 Trillion National Debt.” “Don’t forget, these trillions of dollars of new government spending are borrowed - every penny. This year alone, President Biden and the Democrats will add more than $3 trillion to the already smothering $28 trillion national debt. Guess who pays the current $400 billion annual interest on that public debt (the principal amount must also be repaid down the road)? You and your kids and grandkids do. Thank you, Washington!” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 6/15/21]

February 2021: Poliquin Claimed Government Spending Under Democrats Would Grow National Debt “So Large That It Starts To Crowd Out Other Places To Spend Your Tax Dollars.” “During the previous fiscal year ending September 30, 2020, politicians in Washington spent $3.1 trillion more than they took in. Each annual budget shortfall, or deficit, adds to the national debt. Of course, it’s important to help those hurt financially from the economic shutdown in response to COVID-19. However, at some point, this must end. Unfortunately, reckless spending by career politicians will stop only when there’s a financial crisis. The most likely such event will be when the annual interest payments on the $28 trillion debt grows so large that it starts to crowd out other places to spend your tax dollars (by the same politicians who created the mess in the first place). Right now, those interest payments are approaching $400 billion per year. The annual cost to care for our 7 million Veterans is roughly half that amount - about $200 billion per year. With interest rates starting to climb, the turning point of suffocating interest payments might not be far away.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 2/4/21]

July 2011: Poliquin Op-Ed: “Don’t Be Fooled By The Proclamation That Not Raising The Legal Borrowing Limit Will Cause By Itself A Financial Meltdown.” “We taxpayers spend roughly $200 billion per year on the interest payments for the $14 trillion monster national debt. That’s approximately nine percent of total federal tax revenues. If our spendthrift politicians find the common sense to cut spending in other areas by this amount, we’ll have enough money to make the debt payments. Don’t be fooled by the proclamation that not raising the legal borrowing limit will cause by itself a financial meltdown.” [Gorham Weekly, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 7/13/11]

Congressional Budget Office

August 2017: Poliquin Privately Supported Newt Gingrich’s Proposal To Replace The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) With Private Consultants

• Lewiston Sun Journal: Poliquin Privately “Lashed Out” At The Congressional Budget Office At A Closed-Door Event Hosted By The Maine Heritage Policy Center. “U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, the Republican from Maine’s 2nd District, voted last month to protect the CBO from a conservative assault in the House, but a secret recording last week shows the agency may not be able to count on that support in the future. In a recording obtained by the Maine People’s Alliance of a closed-door Poliquin address to Maine Heritage Policy Center supporters in Bangor, the congressman lashed out at the the job done by CBO.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/28/17]

• In A Leaked Recording From An L.L. Bean Event, Poliquin Said He Told Newt Gingrich He Was “Completely With [Him]” To Replace The CBO With A Private Consultant. “Poliquin, who is seeking a third term in 2018, told the Bangor group he spoke six weeks ago with former House Speaker Newt Gingrich, who remains an influential GOP leader, about the CBO’s estimates. Poliquin said the ex-speaker told him, ‘Bruce what we need to do is drop a bill that folks can get behind to replace the CBO with private enterprise, private consultant firms that we hire to do real studies.’ Poliquin then expressed support for the idea in concept, but insisted the timing isn’t right. ‘Here’s the problem: Right now, where we stand on the ground now, the last thing we want to do is shoot the referee,’ Poliquin told the gathering, which evidently had many CBO skeptics present. ‘I hear you, I’m with you completely and I bet everyone else in this room is. The question is: When do we do that?’ Poliquin said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/28/17]

- Poliquin Claimed The CBO Evaluated Bills On A “Cash In, Cash Out” Basis Without Considering Whether Measures “Add To Growth.” “For instance, Poliquin said, ‘if you’re cutting taxes, you’re receiving less revenue,’ so the CBO would simply say that the bill ‘adds to the deficit’ without considering that putting more money in people’s pockets could also have an impact. ‘Does it add to growth? Does it mean people will invest more and grow more and more jobs and more money and therefore there’s more tax revenue coming in? And that’s what they should score and they don’t do that,’ Poliquin said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/28/17]

- Lewiston Sun Journal: Poliquin “Was Wrong About The CBO’s Scoring Method” Which Was Designed To “Incorporate Behavioral Responses” To Bills. “Poliquin, though, was wrong about the CBO’s scoring method. In 2015, the Republican-controlled Congress changed the rules to require CBO analysts to ‘incorporate behavioral responses’ to policy changes instead of looking solely at conventional cost estimates. Since then, the impact of people’s response to policy shifts is supposed to be included in figuring out the savings or costs associated with proposals that legislators are eyeing.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/28/17]

| July 2017: Poliquin Voted To Preserve The Budget Analysis Division Of The Congressional Budget Office |

July 2017: Poliquin Voted Against An “Amendment That Would Eliminate The Budget Analysis Division Of The Congressional Budget Office”. In July 2017, Poliquin voted against: “Griffith, R-Va., amendment that would eliminate the budget analysis division of the Congressional Budget Office and would transfer the responsibilities of the division to the CBO's office of the director.” Rejected in Committee of the Whole by a vote of 116-309. [H R 3219, Vote #417, 7/26/17; CQ, 7/26/17]
In January 2017, Poliquin pressured McConnell to abolish the filibuster at a private Republican retreat.

Poliquin told the Lewiston Sun Journal that the filibuster would prevent the Senate from defunding sanctuary cities and “stop[ping] illegal entry.”

Poliquin supported twelve-year term limits for members of Congress.

January 2017: Poliquin Supported Abolishing The Filibuster And Pressured McConnell To Do So At A Private GOP Retreat

“Congressional Republicans came here for a private retreat this week hoping to get on the same page on plans to repeal Obamacare and overhaul the tax code. […] It was during the closing question-and-answer session that Franks and Poliquin made their pitch to McConnell. As a social conservative, Franks for years has advocated restricting access to abortions, and with Republicans controlling all the levers of power in Washington, he argued now was the best shot to do it. McConnell, however, would not commit to bringing the anti-abortions bills to the Senate floor. The measures have been approved by the House repeatedly. A few moments later, when Poliquin took Trent’s question a step further, asking: Why don’t you just change the rules? McConnell told him to tune into C-SPAN next week to see how hard the Senate is working.” [Politico, 1/25/17]

After His Conversation With McConnell, Poliquin Told Politico, “We Have A Very Impatient Republican House And A Very Impatient Electorate… We Want To Get Things Done.” “In an interview after the session, Poliquin said he raised the Senate rules matter because it’s ‘not a Constitutional issue’ but ‘an internal rule’ that sometimes stifles progress. He said if McConnell doesn’t change the rules, he encouraged him to require those filibustering legislation to go to the Senate floor and do so publicly to be held to account — an idea that has gained traction with House members. ‘We have sent border security bills to the Senate that go nowhere. Sanctuary city bills that get stuck. We stood up against the Iran nuclear deal. The Senate never even voted on it,’ he said. ‘We have a very impatient Republican House and a very impatient electorate… We want to get things done.’” [Politico, 1/25/17]

Poliquin: “A 50 Percent-Plus-One Majority Vote Passes Almost Everything At Our Local Maine Town Meetings And At Our Kids’ Student Councils. […] It’s Time The Senate Does The Same.” “Other measures that ‘never even reached the Senate floor’ in the last congressional session despite House approval, he said, include measures ‘to secure our borders, stop illegal entry, and defund sanctuary cities to protect our families and communities.’ ‘It goes on and on, and has for years,’ the congressman said. ‘We all know that a 50 percent-plus-one majority vote passes almost everything at our local Maine town meetings and at our kids’ student councils,’ he said. ‘The U.S. House uses this same common-sense process. It’s time the Senate does the same.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 1/25/17]
• Poliquin Cited Measures To “Stop Illegal Entry, And Defund Sanctuary Cities To Protect Our Families And Communities” That Were Approved By The House But “Never Even Reached The Senate Floor.”

“Poliquin expanded on his stance Friday. He pointed out that in the fall of 2015, the House voted 269-162 — a majority that included a number of Democrats — ‘to stop the reckless Iran nuclear deal.’ But the Senate ‘never even voted to approve or disapprove this crucial measure for national security,’ Poliquin said. Other measures that ‘never even reached the Senate floor’ in the last congressional session despite House approval, he said, include measures ‘to secure our borders, stop illegal entry, and defund sanctuary cities to protect our families and communities.’ ‘It goes on and on, and has for years,’ the congressman said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 1/25/17]

Term Limits

2016: Poliquin Supported Limiting Members Of Congress’ Terms To Twelve Years

2016: Poliquin Supported Limiting Members Of Congress’ Terms To Twelve Years. “The best way to break this dysfunctional cycle is to limit the terms of our elected officials in Washington. Twelve years (six terms) in the House of Representatives and twelve years (two terms) in the Senate are reasonable periods of time to get the People’s work done. Term limits will encourage elected officials to do what’s right instead of what’s politically advantageous to get re-elected.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/29/16]
Consumer Issues & Regulations

Significant Findings

- Poliquin voted to block rules requiring ISPs to protect the privacy of internet users three times.
- In 2017, Poliquin said that before rules on net neutrality, the “internet was able to grow and prosper.”
- In 2021, Poliquin said he supported repealing Section 230 of The Communications Decency Act, which would allow individuals to sue social media companies.

Internet Privacy

Poliquin Voted Repeatedly To Block Rules Requiring ISPs To Protect The Privacy Of Internet Customers

Poliquin Voted For Blocking A Bill To Subject Providers Of Broadband Internet Access To Privacy Rules Adopted By The FCC In October of 2016. In July 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Byrne, R-Ala., motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and possibility of amendment) on the rule (H Res 431) that would provide for House floor consideration of the bill (HR 2810).” According to the Democratic Leader’s office, the motion prevented “consideration of the bill (H.R. 1868) to provide that providers of broadband Internet access service shall be subject to the privacy rules adopted by the Federal Communications Commission on October 27, 2016.” A vote for the previous question was a vote to block consideration of HR 1868. The motion passed, 234-183. [H Res 431, Vote #347, 7/12/17; CQ, 7/12/17; DemocraticLeader.gov, 7/12/17]

Poliquin Voted For Blocking A Bill To Reinstate FCC Rules Protecting The Privacy Of Broadband Customers. In May 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Byrne, R-Ala., motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and possibility of amendment) on the rule (H Res 299).” Upon defeat of the motion, Democrats planned to offer an, “amendment to the Rule, which would make in order Ms. Rosen of Nevada’s bill, H.R. 1868. H.R. 1868 would reinstate the Federal Communications Commission’s rules adopted on October 27, 2016 that protect the privacy of broadband customers.” A vote yes was a vote to block the Democratic amendment. The motion was agreed to by a vote of 233-190. [HR 1868 (H.Res 299), Vote #240, 5/2/17; CQ, 5/2/17]

Poliquin Voted For Nullifying A Rule Requiring Internet Providers To Obtain Permission From Customers Before Using Or Selling Their Sensitive Information. In March 2017, Poliquin voted for: “passage of the joint resolution that would disapprove and nullify a Federal Communications Commission rule that requires broadband internet service providers to obtain affirmative permission from customers to use or share their sensitive information, such as web browsing history, geolocation information, content of communications and Social Security numbers; to take reasonable measures to secure customer information; and to notify customers, the commission and law enforcement when a data breach occurs that could result in harm.” The resolution passed (thus cleared for the president) by a vote of 215-205. A “yea” was a vote in support of the president’s position. [SJRes 34, Vote #202, 3/28/17; CQ, 3/28/17]

Industry Regulation

Poliquin Voted For A Bill To Allow Industries To Influence Pending Regulations Without Public Knowledge
Poliquin Voted For The Unfunded Mandates Information And Transparency Act, Which Required Federal Agencies To Analyze Their Regulatory Effects On Industries And To Meet With Private-Sector Stakeholders. In July 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would require independent agencies to conduct analyses of their proposed rules and the effect thereof on the private sector and on state and local governments. The bill would require that independent federal regulatory agencies, except for the Federal Reserve, conduct unfunded mandate analyses of their proposed rules and would require all agencies that conduct unfunded mandate reviews, including both independent and non-independent federal agencies, to consult with private-sector stakeholders on the potential impact of regulations being developed. The bill would also require federal agencies, if requested by a committee chairman or ranking member, to conduct retrospective unfunded mandate analyses of existing regulations. The bill would transfer authority for oversight of UMRA activities to the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs within the Office of Management and Budget.” The bill passed, 230-168. [H R 50, Vote #328, 7/13/18; CQ, 7/13/18]

- The Bill Would Require Agencies To Alert And Solicit Feedback From Regulated Industries Before Notifying The Public; Business Could Block New Regulations Without Any Broader Public Knowledge. “The Unfunded Mandates and Information Transparency Act would require federal agencies to alert regulated industries when they are considering drafting a rule and solicit their feedback—before the public learns there may be a rule under consideration. Businesses could block even a hypothetical future rule and the public might never find out.” [Coalition For Sensible Safeguards, accessed 7/13/18]

Net Neutrality

November – December 2017: Poliquin Opposed Net Neutrality Regulations

December 2017: Poliquin Opposed Net Neutrality Regulations: “Before [Net Neutrality], The Internet Was Able To Grow And Prosper.” “Republican Rep. Bruce Poliquin of Maine’s 2nd District said in a written statement that he wants to return to the less-restrictive rules that were in place before the 2015 change under Obama. ‘Before then, the internet was able to grow and prosper without evidence that the worst-case scenarios from the proponents of this rule ever coming to fruition,’ Poliquin said. ‘We want to ensure the internet is regulated in a common sense manner.’” [Bangor Daily News, 12/11/17]

Social Media Companies

Poliquin Said He Supported Repealing Section 230 Of The Communications Decency Act, Which Created Protections That Would Allow People To Sue Social Media Companies

October 2020: Poliquin Said He Supported Repealing Section 230 Protections, Which Would Allow People To Sue Social Media Companies. POLIQUIN: “I’ll tell you, they have no right to suppress free speech in this country and the good news is a fellow I’ve met named Ajit Pai, he’s a smart guy, the smartest guy in the President’s Cabinet, he runs the Federal Communications Commission. He’s looking at Section 230 of the communications Decency Act which gives these companies protection against lawsuits if they’re libelous to someone. Now, you can sue the Bangor Daily News or the Portland Press Herald or VOM if they say that, you know, Poliquin committed a murder or something that wasn’t true. But you cannot sue the social media companies because they say, well, we’re just sharing information instead of editorializing. Well, they’re suppressing it. So I think down in Washington, they’re going to start repealing the Section 230 protections, meaning people can sue these companies.” [WVOM, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 10/19/20] (AUDIO) 4:50

January 2021: Poliquin: Biden Should Lead “The Effort To Remove Section 230 Of The Communications Decency Act.” “Second, Mr. Biden should publicly ask big corporate CEOs to abandon their plan to cut off investment and new jobs in Congressional districts represented by Republicans. Penalizing workers because of their political beliefs, and those of their elected representatives, is wrong and un-American.”
THREE STEPS TOWARD UNITY

I wish our new president Joe Biden success in protecting our sacred Constitutional rights and hard-earned American way of life. If he and his Administration succeed, we all benefit. Good luck, Mr. President!

For that to happen, and for our divided country to heal, every American must be allowed to openly and confidently engage in healthy public debate about the important issues of our time, like keeping taxes low so the economy recovers and continuing to improve border security to prevent drugs and illegals from entering our country.

Sadly, that's not happening. That's why President Biden should use his new influence to protect the free speech of all Americans, regardless of their political stripes.

First, the President should demand that big social media companies like Facebook and Twitter stop silencing common sense right-of-center voices. He should back this up by leading the effort to remove Section 230 of the Communications Decency Act.

Second, Mr. Biden should publicly ask big corporate CEOs to abandon their plan to cut off investment and new jobs in Congressional districts represented by Republicans, penalizing workers because of their political beliefs, and those of their elected representatives, is wrong and un-American.

Third, President Biden should insist that left-leaning groups and employers not blacklist right-leaning fellow citizens from jobs in and outside of government. It's just horrible to prevent a fellow American from earning a living and supporting his/her family.

Passionate debate about our path forward as a country is healthy, whereas trying to silence and harm someone with different political views is horrific.
COVID-19, Pandemic Relief, & Vaccines

Significant Findings

- Poliquin supported “reopen[ing] Maine” as early as late April 2020, and claimed Gov. Mills’ coronavirus restrictions hurt jobs and increased cases throughout 2020 and 2021.

- In June 2020, Poliquin called the closure of indoor bars in Maine “just not fair.”

- In February and May 2021, Poliquin supported reopening schools even if teachers were unvaccinated because he claimed children were “generally not affected by this virus.”

- Poliquin touted the Trump Administration’s role in developing the Moderna and Pfizer vaccines.

- Poliquin called coronavirus vaccines “very effective” and said he hoped the Biden administration would not discourage people from getting vaccinated.

- Poliquin supported stimulus checks under the CARES Act, but criticized the American Rescue Plan as the “Biden spending blowout” and a “democrat [sic] wishlist disguised as covid relief.”

- When asked about the eviction moratorium in August 2021, Poliquin said Democrats would “push to give everybody as much government handouts as humanly possible.”

- As Maine’s Treasurer and an ex officio member of the Maine Vaccine Board from 2011 to 2012, Poliquin never attended a single meeting; his deputy missed 84% of Maine Vaccine Board meetings.

Masks And COVID-19 Mitigation Efforts

April 2021: Poliquin Criticized Gov. Mills For COVID-19 Mitigation Measures That Cancelled Large Summer Events

April 2021: Poliquin Criticized Gov. Mills For COVID-19 Mitigation Measures That Cancelled Large Summer Events. “WILL GOV. MILLS ALLOW MAINERS TO ENJOY THIS SUMMER? Already, hugely popular festivals and parades have been cancelled, again, in part due to limits on outdoor gatherings and social distancing mandates. The Yarmouth Clam Festival is pure joy for tens of thousands of Mainers and tourists alike, and badly needed income for vendors selling everything from tasty fried clams to handmade woolen mittens. The 55-year-old July classic was recently cancelled. [...] Since March of 2020, every month, Governor Mills has extended her emergency powers so she alone decides how we can live our lives. Now, cabin-fevered Mainers are anxious about how much of another precious Maine summer will be lost. Maine is one of the most rural states in the nation. But, Governor Mills has imposed on the good people of Maine one of the most extended and severe lockdowns in America. How and when will it all end?” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 4/13/21]

March 2021: Poliquin Criticized “The Mills Lockdown” For Damage To Educational Achievement, Small Businesses, And Preventative Health Care

March 2021: Poliquin Criticized “The Mills Lockdown” For Damage To Educational Achievement, Small Businesses, And Preventative Health Care. “LONG LASTING LOCKDOWN DAMAGE TO MAINE FAMILIES AND SMALL BUSINESSES Maine is one of the most rural states in the nation, but Governor Mills and her staff have imposed one of the most severe lockdowns in the country. Many students are falling behind because of not being in the classroom for one full year. 160,000 family members and neighbors filed for unemployment because their employers were shut down. An untold number of small businesses forced to close for good. Early cancer diagnosis have dropped 47% because hospitals were closed to non-COVID patients. Seniors isolated in nursing homes, assisted living facilities, and Veteran homes - not receiving badly needed hugs from their children and grandchildren. Depression, anxiety, anger, alcoholism, domestic violence, drug overdoses and suicidal thoughts all spiking among fellow Mainers. In this 4-minute video, a small town grocer in Patten tells his story about how the Mills lockdown impacted his community.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 3/20/21]

12/14/20: Poliquin: “0 Cases Is An Unrealistic Goal, Though It’s Been Mills’ Objective All Along.” “Maine NEEDS a balanced approach. We can't keep governing with only COVID in mind. Depression, isolation, drug & alcohol abuse, domestic abuse, etc. are taking a toll on Mainers. 0 cases is an unrealistic goal, though it's been Mills' objective all along. https://t.co/IwWwNNYqet?amp=1”

November 2020: Poliquin Opposed The Maine Mask Mandate And Curfew

11/18/20: Poliquin Questioned The Maine Mask Mandate: “What Science Serves As The Foundation Of This Mandate?” “The governor's mask mandate states that, if you’re walking your dog down the street with nobody else around, you still must wear a mask. What science serves as the foundation of this mandate? #mepolitics”

[Bruce Poliquin Twitter, 11/18/20]
11/22/20: Poliquin On Maine Curfew: “All This Will Do Is Hurt More Struggling Mainers.” “Sad to see @GovJanetMills piling on more arbitrary restrictions. Why is the new curfew set at 9pm? Why not 9:30, 7:15 or 10:45? All this will do is hurt more struggling Mainers. #mepolitics”

[Bruce Poliquin Twitter, 11/20/20]

November 2020: Poliquin On Maine’s Mask Mandate: “Mainers Alike Have Been Subjected To Arbitrary, One-Size-Fits-All Orders Which Defy Common Sense.” “GOVERNOR MILLS TIGHTENS ARBITRARY RESTRICTIONS Starting last night, the Mills Administration is requiring restaurants, movie theaters, tasting rooms and other businesses to close at 9pm to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Why not 7:45 or 10:15pm? What’s the science behind this decision? Two weeks ago, Governor Mills issued another Executive Order requiring Mainers to wear face coverings in public places, even if they’re outdoors and not close to anyone else. You’re in violation if you’re out walking the dog and then quickly slip on your mask as someone approaches. Sorry, her mandate states you must wear a mask if you’re in a public space - period. During the past six months, rural and urban Mainers alike have been subjected to arbitrary, one-size-fits-all orders which defy common sense.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 11/21/20]

11/6/20: Poliquin Said Maine’s Mask Mandate Was “Really Insulting To A Lot Of People.” “However, you got to use common sense, and for Janet Mills to continue to extend her emergency powers, given to her by the legislature, and her continuing to tell us that we don’t have enough common sense to know where and when we should wear a mask is really insulting to a lot of people.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/6/20]

10/23/20: Poliquin Op-Ed: Trump’s “Decisive Leadership Likely Saved Hundreds Of Thousands Of American Lives” Through Travel Bans During Pandemic. “Maine has suffered along with the rest of the country and world from the coronavirus pandemic. Against harsh criticism from Joe Biden and many other career politicians, President Trump was right to stop travel early on from hotspots like China and Europe. That decisive leadership likely saved hundreds of thousands of American lives. Trump then harnessed the strength and ingenuity of U.S. companies to work with the federal government to fast-track the production of tens of thousands ventilators and more than 140 million COVID-19 tests, and the development of new vaccines to beat the virus.” [Maine Examiner, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 10/23/20]

To Resolving Pandemic. “Together, we should continue down the path of getting our lives back to normal. This means reopening the economy so we can get back to work, and reopening schools so kids can learn, grow and be with their friends once again. Seven short months ago we had all this. We can get there again, but we need the right leader in the White House – President Donald J. Trump. Joe Biden’s endless lockdowns and a long, dark winter are not the answer. Maine voters will play a key role in helping decide which path America chooses. Let’s choose sunshine and success, not fear and failure. Go vote for another four years under President Donald J. Trump.” [Maine Examiner, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 10/23/20]

October 2021: The Trump Administration's Former Coronavirus Advisor Deborah Birx Said 30 To 40 Percent Of Deaths From Covid In The U.S. Could Have Been Prevented. “The Trump administration's former coronavirus advisor, Dr. Deborah Birx, estimated that 30 to 40 percent of the 738,000 COVID-19 deaths in the U.S. could have been prevented had the White House taken necessary steps to curb the spread of the virus. In a closed-door testimony conducted by the House Select Coronavirus Subcommittee on October 12 and 13, Birx testified that more than 130,000 American lives could have been saved if the administration promoted mask-wearing and social distancing in the early days of the pandemic.” [Newsweek, 10/26/21]

- Birx: Trump Administration Was “Distracted” From Pandemic Response By The Election. “Asked whether former President Donald Trump did everything he could have to handle the pandemic, Birx said, ‘No, and I’ve said that to the White House in general, and I believe I was very clear to the president in specifics of what I needed him to do.’ The former health official also accused Trump’s team of being ‘distracted’ from the national COVID-19 response, turning their efforts to campaigning for the 2020 election instead.” [Newsweek, 10/26/21]

October 2020: Poliquin Posed Maskless At Crowded Trump Rallies And Encouraged Mainers To Bring Their Loved Ones To Them

October 2020: Poliquin Posed For Photos At A Trump Rally Maskless And Without Quarantining Afterwards. “An Ellsworth physician’s assistant who attended Sunday’s rally with President Donald Trump is self-quarantining for 14 days after posing unmasked for pictures with both of the Republican Party’s congressional candidates in Maine, as well as former U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin and White House Chief of State Mark Meadows. Michelle Kaplan, a Republican state House candidate in Ellsworth, told The Quietside Journal she is ‘voluntarily self-quarantining’ for two weeks ‘out of an abundance of caution.’ There is no indication that Meadows, Crafts, Allen or Poliquin are doing the same. Each of them has often been at public events with many others who are not wearing face coverings.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/27/20]

- Maine State House Republican Candidate And Physician Michelle Kaplan Faced A “Firestorm” Of Criticism For Posing With Poliquin And Others Unmasked At The Rally. “On Sunday afternoon, a Republican candidate for the state House ventured from her home in Ellsworth to attend President Donald Trump’s impromptu rally at an orchard near Bangor, where she took pictures with prominent politicians in which nobody is wearing a mask or maintaining social distance. Then Michelle Kaplan, a physician assistant in the emergency department at Mount Desert Island Hospital in Bar Harbor, posted a couple of the pictures on Instagram and went to work, filling in on a short-staff shift even though she was on vacation. She had no inkling that she would soon be in the middle of a firestorm, a symbol of anti-maskers. […] The problem, for her, is that she had a chance to take a picture of herself with White House Chief of Staff Mark Meadows, former U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin and two Republican congressional candidates, Dale Crafts and Jay Allen. None of the men wore masks.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/28/20]

October 2020: Poliquin Attended A Pence Campaign Event That Was Subject To Contact Tracing Due To Pence’ Aides’ Positive Cases. “At least one elected official in Maine who attended Vice President Mike Pence's campaign event in Hermon last week was alerted that he may have had close contact with someone who tested positive for COVID-19. Andre Cushing, a Penobscot County commissioner and former state senator from Hampden, said he was contacted last Tuesday - the day after the event - and took a test later that day. He found out Wednesday he was negative. News didn't break until late Saturday that several staff members of the vice president had tested positive, including a personal aide and Pence's chief of staff. Cushing said he was part of the local advance team in Maine that helped the campaign with logistics for the event last Monday at Dysart's, a truck stop in Hermon. He was backstage before the event and then sat in the outdoor VIP section during Pence's remarks, along with several other high-profile Republicans, including former Gov. Paul LePage, former Congressman Bruce Poliquin and state Rep. Dale Crafts, who is running against U.S. Rep. Jared Golden in Maine's 2nd Congressional District.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/26/20]

- Poliquin Did Not Take A COVID-19 Test After The Event And Was Not Contacted For Contact Tracing. “Poliquin, reached by phone on Monday, also said he had not been contacted by the White House or tested.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/26/20]

10/25/20: Poliquin Encouraged Mainers To “Bring A Friend, Neighbor Or Family Member” To A Crowded Trump Rally. “Good to see President Trump back in Maine today! Huge crowd of enthusiastic patriots cheering him to victory in nine days. GO VOTE and don’t forget to bring a friend, neighbor or family member! #mepolitics”

10/22/20: Poliquin Praised Trump For Traveling And “Talking To Tens And Tens And Tens Of Thousands Of Real People During The Pandemic. “If you look at the president the last five days, he’s been in five states, talking to tens and tens and tens of thousands of real people with real airtime, and he’s travelled about 6,000 miles, whereas Mr. Biden has been at home in his basement, I don’t know, but not talking to voters. I think the American public, I think the people of Maine want to see [inaudible] the president’s who’s going to work hard and fight for them. We have one candidate who’s doing it, and one not.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 10/22/20] (AUDIO) 7:06

June 2020: Poliquin Called The Closure Of Indoor Bars In Maine “Just Not Fair”
June 2020: Poliquin Called The Closure Of Indoor Bars In Maine “Just Not Fair.” HOST: “I’d love to kick things off here by having your reaction to what you saw with the decision on bars reopening. Obviously, we had the original July 1st date that bars, or indoor service within bars, excuse me, was supposed to be happening, that has now been pushed back with no real idea of when it’s going to be lifted. Your thoughts, Mr. Poliquin?” POLIQUIN: “It’s another kick in the teeth to our small businesses, Matt. This is just not fair. It’s just not fair.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 6/23/20] (AUDIO) 00:13

June 2020: Poliquin Criticized Maine’s Stay-At-Home Order As Unscientific And Inconsistently Enforced Against Protests For Racial Justice

June 2020: Poliquin: “It’s OK To Wander The Aisles Inside Walmart, But You Can’t Enjoy An Outdoor Picnic On The Bangor Waterfront.” “Welcome to Vacationland! It's OK to wander the aisles inside Walmart, but you can't enjoy an outdoor picnic on the Bangor Waterfront. But don't worry -- it's all based on science! Give me a break!” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 6/4/20]

June 2020: Poliquin: “To Promote Public Health, It Doesn’t Make Sense To Encourage A Crowded Protest With Thousands Of Strangers But Reject An Outdoor Family Picnic On The Bangor Waterfront.” “The job of public health officials is to keep us safe from contagious diseases like COVID-19. How does encouraging us to join crowded protests help stop the spread of the coronavirus? What happened to social distancing? […] I support peaceful, non-violent demonstrations. Our Constitution guarantees that right. However, to promote public health, it doesn’t make sense to encourage a crowded protest with thousands of strangers but reject an outdoor family picnic on the Bangor Waterfront.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 6/9/20]

June 2020: Poliquin: “It’s Hypocritical Of Elected Officials And Medical ‘Experts’ To Encourage Packed Social Justice Protests But Not Allow Other Types Of Gatherings.” “HOW DOES PROTESTING KEEP US SAFE FROM COVID-19? As good citizens, I thought we were all supposed to keep our distance from one another to help stop the spread of COVID-19. Common sense tells us that packed protests like these across the country are contributing to a rise in positive cases. It’s hypocritical of elected officials and medical ‘experts’ to encourage packed social justice protests but not allow other types of gatherings, including attending church, sporting events, graduations, etc.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 6/30/20]

6/25/20: Poliquin: “MAINE’S SEVERE LOCKDOWN RESULTS IN MORE COVID CASES AND JOB LOSSES PER CAPITA THAN STATES WITHOUT LOCKDOWNS” “MAINE’S SEVERE LOCKDOWN RESULTS IN MORE COVID CASES AND JOB LOSSES PER CAPITA THAN STATES WITHOUT LOCKDOWNS […] It’s smart to be diligent about protecting the public against COVID-19, especially our most vulnerable senior citizens in nursing homes and assisted living facilities. However, it doesn’t make sense to arbitrarily close down our businesses across different industries, and throughout all corners of Maine, forcing 130,000 friends, neighbors and family members on unemployment. I fear the long-term damage to our health from increased isolation, depression, anxiety and poverty will be felt for years. This did not have to happen.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 6/25/20]

6/22/20: Poliquin Called Delayed Re-Opening Of Maine Bars “Another Last Minute Shutdown Kick In The Teeth To Maine Businesses.” “Another last minute shutdown kick in the teeth to Maine businesses. There’s no need for this. Mainers are smart enough to keep safe without further damaging our state economy. #mepolitics”
6/11/20: Poliquin: “[Mills] Must Believe That 100,000+ Unemployed Private Sector Workers Is A Worthwhile Price To Pay To Rid Maine Of COVID-19.” “Governor Mills is using the emergency powers given to her by the Democrat majority in the state legislature to keep Maine in one of the most severely locked down states in the country. She decides which of Maine’s once successful small businesses can reopen and which ones must remain closed. She must believe that 100,000+ unemployed private sector workers is a worthwhile price to pay to rid Maine of COVID-19, which epidemiologists say will not happen anytime soon.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 6/11/20]

6/5/20: Poliquin: “Gov. Mills Should End Her Lockdown And Reopen Maine.” “In May, the economy ADDED 2.5 million jobs instead of losing the millions of jobs predicted. Unemployment expected to surge to nearly 20% but dropped to 13.3%. Gov. Mills should end her lockdown and reopen Maine. It’d be a shame for us to miss out on this rebound. #mepolitics”
Today, concerned Mainers peacefully demonstrated around our State Capitol about the continued lockdown on their lives and jobs. We can do both – protect our vulnerable citizens and safely reopen the economy -- so Mainers can get on with their lives. #mepolitics

- Poliquin Op-Ed: “Our Economy Must Start Reopening In A Thoughtful And Measured Way, And Soon.” “Our Maine economy is in big trouble. More than 100,000 family members, friends and neighbors have lost their jobs over the last five weeks. A short time ago, Maine’s unemployment rate was at a 50-year low, there were more jobs than available workers, and wages were rising faster than at any other time over the past decade. The national economy, which greatly impacts Maine’s well-being, is also in dire straits. [...] This debilitating lockdown can’t go on forever. Our economy must start reopening in a thoughtful and measured way, and soon. The longer it’s shuttered, the more businesses will disappear, the more jobs will be lost and the more suffering by our families.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 5/1/20]

- Poliquin Supported Reopening State And National Parks And Rural Areas. “Second, open up all of our 48 spectacular state parks and historic sites, including ones on the coast. Let the kids run around in the healthy fresh air, and keep Mom and Dad from going batty being inside with them all day. Baxter State Park spans more than 200,000 acres of easy hiking trails, wilderness campsites and wide open ponds. I’m sure a couple thousand cooped-up state employees can be quickly trained to monitor traffic and social distancing at these special outdoor recreation areas. Third, allow our rural areas to carefully get back to normal life. Piscataquis County has had one confirmed COVID-19 case, who recovered. Its land mass is almost one-half the size of New Hampshire. Its population is 4,378 compared to New Hampshire’s 1.4 million.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 5/1/20]

- Poliquin Supported “Fully Reopen[ing] Our Health Care System” “Fourth, fully reopen our health care system. Doctors and dentists aren’t seeing patients, and our hospitals are almost empty. Thank God there has not been a stampede of COVID-19 patients overwhelming the system. In Maine, we have 36 hospitals with approximately 3,600 beds. As of this writing, 39 coronavirus patients are hospitalized. It’s dangerous for Mainers to not be able to receive the mammograms, cardiac care, chemotherapy and other important procedures
4/29/20: Poliquin: “Sign The Petition To Reopen Maine, And Send This Urgent Message To Governor Mills And Her Democrat Majority In Augusta.” “Small business owners are perfectly able to use common sense and follow the CDC's health and safety guidelines to open their doors. It doesn't make sense to rely on politicians and bureaucrats with no business experience to decide IF they can reopen. More than 100,000 fellow Mainers have already lost their jobs because of the governor's economic shutdown. How many tens of thousands more will be out of work if Maine is not allowed to reopen for the critically important summer tourist season? Click the link below to sign the petition to Reopen Maine, and send this urgent message to Governor Mills and her Democrat majority in Augusta.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 4/29/20]

COVID-19 Mitigation At Schools

Lewiston Sun Journal Columnist: Poliquin “Misrepresented” Biden Measure To Protect School Board Members From Violence And Harassment At Anti-Masking Protests

October 2021: Poliquin: “Biden Is Using His U.S. Attorney General As A Weapon Against Parents Who Want To Make Their Voices Heard At School Board Meetings And Other Taxpayer-Funded Gatherings.” “BIDEN’S ATTORNEY GENERAL TARGETING PARENTS? It seems almost unbelievable but it’s true. While Jared Golden remains silent, Joe Biden is using his U.S. Attorney General as a weapon against parents who want to make their voices heard at school board meetings and other taxpayer-funded gatherings. What will this extreme liberal agenda include next?!” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 10/8/21]

- Collins Column: The Biden Administration Was Trying To “Stop A Growing Trend Toward Violent, Disruptive Activities, Many Tied To Anti-Masking Protests” Against School Board Members. “Poliquin, who aims next year to win back the 2nd Congressional District seat he lost in 2018, said in a Facebook post that it ‘seems almost unbelievable, but it’s true’ that U.S. Attorney General Merrick Garland is ‘targeting parents’ who want to ‘make their voices heard at school board meetings and other taxpayers-funded gatherings.’ Garland and the FBI, though, are not targeting parents for speaking out. They are looking into ways to stop a growing trend toward violent, disruptive activities, many tied to anti-masking protests, that are making it difficult for many school board members across the country to do their volunteer or low-paid jobs.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Steve Collins Column, 10/8/21]

- Collins Column: “There Is No Indication That Federal Officials Have Any Intention Of Shutting Down Public Debate.” “We cannot allow federal officials to use law enforcement to shut down passionate public debate with school administrators and boards about their kids’ education. It’s not right and it’s not fair,’ Poliquin said. But there is no indication that federal officials have any intention of shutting down public debate. Garland said in his memo that he was taking steps because there has been a spike in ‘threats of violence or efforts to intimidate individuals based on their views’ across the country. Those threats against public servants such as school board members, Garland said, ‘are not only illegal, they run counter to our nation’s core values. Those who dedicate their time and energy to ensuring that our children receive a proper education in a safe environment deserve to be able to do their work without fear for their safety.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Steve Collins Column, 10/8/21]

May 2021: Poliquin Said Schools Should Not Close ForCOVID-19 Since “School-Aged Kids [Were] Generally Not Affected By This Virus”

Poliquin Said It Was A Big Mistake To Close Schools In Response To COVID-19, As “School-Aged Kids [Were] Generally Not Affected By This Virus.” POLIQUIN: “We also learned about a year ago that school-aged kids are generally not affected by this virus so schools should have been opened and they have not been. Some are still closed. Big mistake.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 5/14/21] (AUDIO) 2:05

May 2021: Poliquin Criticized Mask Requirements For Kids: “Medical Study After Study Confirm That Children Are Generally Less Susceptible To COVID-19 And Are Not Major Transmitters Of The Virus.”

“GOV. MILLS CONTINUES TO FORCE MASKS ON KIDS. WHERE’S THE SCIENCE? Effective yesterday, Governor Janet Mills mostly ended the mask mandate for Mainers indoors and outdoors. However, children age 5 and older must continue to wear face coverings in public settings like schools and daycare. For months, medical study after study confirm that children are generally less susceptible to COVID-19 and are not major transmitters of the virus. Two months ago, the Centers for Disease Prevention and Control (CDC) encouraged teachers and students to return to full-time, in-person instruction because it's safe to do so, even if unvaccinated.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 5/25/21]

February 2021: Poliquin Supported Reopening Schools Even If Teachers Were Unvaccinated

February 2021: Poliquin Supported Reopening Schools Even If Teachers Were Unvaccinated. “THERE'S NO REASON TO KEEP SCHOOLS CLOSED The Mills Administration claims to rely on science in making its decisions to lock down our economy and shut down public schools. Last week, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) confirmed that it’s safe for teachers to go back to the classrooms even if they have not (yet) been vaccinated against COVID-19.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 2/16/21]

September 2020: Poliquin Supported Resuming In-Person School Sports

9/8/20: Poliquin: “Our Kids Should Be Practicing Right Now. Very Sad The Mills Administration Is Holding This Up.” “Our kids should be practicing right now. Very sad the Mills Administration is holding this up. Should have trusted the experts at the MPA! #mepolitics https://t.co/QCYdMSV8QT?amp=1”

July 2020: Poliquin Supported Returning Maine Schools To In-Person Instruction
7/13/20: Poliquin: “Parents And Students Want To Return To In-Classroom Instruction In The Fall. Isn't Teaching Our Kids An 'Essential Service' ??”

[Bruce Poliquin Twitter, 7/13/20]

7/16/20: Poliquin: “ISN'T TEACHING OUR KIDS AN 'ESSENTIAL SERVICE'? Over the past four months, students, parents and teachers have experienced that, generally, online learning doesn’t cut the mustard. Students learn better by interacting with real people -- teachers and other students. It’s common sense. So, will the Mills Administration allow schools to reopen this fall? In March, when Governor Janet Mills started shutting down the Maine economy, she decided selling marijuana and whiskey is essential to our well-being. Those outlets were allowed to remain open. At the same time, she determined that going to church or walking the beach were not essential for your mental, spiritual and physical health. If you did it, you could get fined or arrested. Now, what science is the Mills Administration looking at to decide if our kids will get a real, in-person education? Mountains of data confirm that it’s rare for K-12 children and teenagers to catch and transmit COVID-19. Surely there’s a way to keep them safe while allowing them to go back to school.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 7/16/20]

COVID-19 Vaccines

July 2021: Poliquin Suggested The Biden Administration Should Curb Illegal Immigration Instead Of Offering Incentives For Vaccination Domestically

July 2021: Poliquin Suggested The Biden Administration Should Curb Illegal Immigration Instead Of Offering Incentives For Vaccination Domestically. “WHEN WILL THE BIDEN ADMINISTRATION SECURE OUR BORDERS? Today, President Biden and his supporters asked states and municipalities to pay $100 each to newly vaccinated Americans. The money can be drawn from the $350 billion state government bailout distributed earlier this year. As the Delta variant surges across the globe, the Biden Administration is pushing new incentives to increase vaccination rates here at home. Here’s a helpful suggestion: Secure our border with Mexico and stop the ongoing surge of 175,000 illegal immigrants each month -- 1 million so far this year. Health officials report approximately 25% of illegal entrants test positive for COVID. Still, they’re being released and transported throughout our country with only a promise to report to a local immigration office. Good luck with that!” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 7/29/21]

May 2021: Poliquin Said COVID-19 Vaccines Were “Proving To Be Very Effective”

Poliquin Said COVID-19 Vaccines Were “Proving To Be Very Effective.” POLIQUIN: “Everyone was surprised by the announcement. It’s common sense when you have cases and hospitalizations and deaths across the country down 90 or so percent, and these vaccines are proving to be very effective.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 5/14/21] (AUDIO) 1:25

November – December 2020: Poliquin Credited The Trump Administration For The Development
Of The Pfizer And Moderna Vaccines, Which He Said Would Reduce The COVID-19 Death Rate

Poliquin Credited The Trump Administration For The Development Of The Pfizer And Moderna Vaccines

November 2020: Poliquin On The Development Of The Pfizer Vaccine: “Kudos To The Trump Administration For Fast-Tracking A Hopeful End To The Destructive Pandemic.” “Kudos to the Trump Administration for fast-tracking a hopeful end to the destructive pandemic. Operation Warp Speed is the successful partnership between the federal government and private biomedical research companies. Unnecessary regulations were removed and taxpayer dollars committed to incentivize Pfizer and other companies to find a path out of the pandemic woods.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 11/10/20]

READY TO GET BACK TO NORMAL? IT CAN’T COME SOON ENOUGH!

Exciting health care news! Yesterday, U.S. pharmaceutical company Pfizer and its German partner BioNTech announced they have developed a vaccine to protect against the COVID-19 virus which is 90% effective! Commonly used vaccines are approximately 85% effective against whooping cough (pertussis), 90% against shingles, and 95% against measles.

Pfizer’s ongoing clinical trial includes 43,000 participants. It’s the first of nine other late stage trials being conducted to find a successful vaccine for the highly contagious coronavirus. If the Pfizer-BioNTech results continue to prove effective, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) could issue emergency approval for its use during late November.

Kudos to the Trump Administration for fast-tracking a hopeful end to the destructive pandemic. Operation Warp Speed is the successful partnership between the federal government and private biomedical research companies. Unnecessary regulations were removed and taxpayer dollars committed to incentivize Pfizer and other companies to find a path out of the pandemic woods.

Won’t it be terrific to get back to our normal lives?! Parents back to work, students back in school, family members visiting loved ones, restaurants and movie theaters busy again. It simply can’t come soon enough!

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 11/10/20]
November 2020: Poliquin Said The Major COVID-19 Vaccines Were “Highly Effective Vaccines” And “A Huge Success Story For The Trump Administration.” POLIQUIN: “We have an administration and a president who comes from the business community. He understands the power of the private sector. And remember, the government – federal government, state government, or local – they don’t invent vaccines. They don’t distribute vaccines. They don’t manufacture vaccines after they’ve been created. The private sector does that. […] The great thing about this, Aaron, is that these vaccines, we have three now that are just about to come out, Pfizer, Moderna, and AstraZeneca, they are all 90 to 95 percent effective. If you get a shingles shot, it’s about 80 percent effective. If you get a measles shot, it’s about 95 percent effective. So these are highly effective vaccines and it’s the power of the business community in partnership with the federal government that put a boatload of money into this. […] A huge success story for the Trump administration.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/27/20] (AUDIO) 2:39

Poliquin Credited The Trump Administration With “Removing Roadblocks And Providing Incentives To Inventive American Companies” To Create The Moderna Vaccine. “STRONG U.S. ECONOMY ENSURES AMERICANS ARE FIRST IN LINE FOR COVID-19 VACCINE Two weeks ago, New York-based pharmaceutical company Pfizer formally applied to the FDA for emergency approval to start using its 95% effective vaccine to protect against the coronavirus. The expected approval is December 11. Vaccinations for our vulnerable seniors, health care workers and first responders are planned to start the next day. Yesterday, another innovative U.S. company, Moderna Therapeutics, also applied to the FDA for approval of its 95% effective COVID vaccine. Approval is expected around December 11 with inoculations set to begin almost immediately thereafter. The Trump Administration’s Operation Warp Speed has been a tremendous success by removing roadblocks and providing incentives to inventive American companies to create, manufacture and distribute new life-saving vaccines in eight months instead of 4-5 years. There’s no better example of why government at all levels should help our private sector employers be successful.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 12/1/20]

November – December 2020: Poliquin Predicted Vaccines Would Reduce The COVID-19 Death Rate And Said He Hoped The Biden Administration Would Not Discourage People From Getting Them

Poliquin: “My Hope Is That The Biden Administration Will Not Try To Discourage People From Getting The Vaccine [...] Because The Would Be A Terrible Public Health Issue.” POLIQUIN: “My hope is that the Biden administration will not try to discourage people from getting the vaccine if they want it. Now, they did that during the campaign. But I hope they end that because that would be a terrible public health issue.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/27/20] (AUDIO)

December 2020: Poliquin Said COVID-19 Vaccines Would Reduce The COVID-19 Death Rate. POLIQUIN: “Another thing we’re going to see is as these vaccines take hold in Maine and across the country what I think we’re going to start seeing is the death rate among our seniors will start to go down very noticeably. […] When these vaccines start to take hold, we’re going to start to see those death rates go down. This is going to give a lot of folks confidence that this is working and turning a corner.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 12/28/20] (AUDIO) 3:22

State COVID-19 Relief

February 2021: Poliquin Suggested Maine’s State COVID-19 Relief Hurt Taxpayers

2/1/21: Poliquin: “When Maine Grabs Every Possible Tax Dollar, You Lose! Whether Its [sic] PPP Funds Or Emergency Unemployment Aid, The Governor Must Tax It To Keep The Books Balanced.” “When Maine grabs every possible tax dollar, you lose! Whether its PPP funds or emergency unemployment aid, the governor must tax it to keep the books balanced. Families and small biz will struggle as long as Augusta politicians continue to tax every dollar they can! #mepolitics”

6/22/20: Poliquin Claimed Mainers Could “Get Back To Normal Lives” By “Keep[ing] Taxes Low + Cut[ting] Red Tape.” ‘Help Wanted’ signs popping up again all over Maine. Businesses are reopening across the country and jobs are coming back. We can get back to normal lives by doing what we did before the virus hit -- keep taxes low + cut red tape. Keep the recovery going strong!

June 2021: Poliquin: “We May Never Know The True Origin Of COVID-19 In Part Because Of The Censorship Of Free Speech By The Woke Mob”

May 2021: Poliquin: “We May Never Know The True Origin Of COVID-19 In Part Because Of The Censorship Of Free Speech By The Woke Mob.” “During the past couple of months, growing evidence has surfaced that COVID-19 could very well have been genetically modified to increase its potency by workers at the Wuhan lab, some of whom became sick and needed hospitalization. The lab has close connections to the Chinese military. It’s a violation of international law to create bioweapons. I wonder why the Chinese Communist Party long ago destroyed evidence of the lab research including scientific papers and viral samples? Maybe the worst part of the story is that some of your U.S. tax dollars were sent to the Wuhan Institute of Virology to advance the research, and many of our public health officials and the media covered it up. This horrible pandemic has killed more than 600,000 Americans and nearly 4 million worldwide, and has caused unthinkable suffering and poverty across the globe. We may never know the true origin of COVID-19 in part because of the censorship of free speech by the woke mob. That means we’ll be less prepared for the next natural or manmade disaster.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 6/30/21]
Economic Relief

CARES Act

10/23/20: Poliquin Praised Trump For The CARES Act’s Stimulus Checks And The Paycheck Protection Program. “Helping American families recover from the forced shutdown has been the President’s top priority. The CARES Act sent emergency relief checks directly to families to help them pay the bills while mostly staying home from work. The enormously successful Paycheck Protection Program awarded more than $2.2 billion of forgivable loans to help 28,000 Maine businesses stay afloat and preserve more than 200,000 jobs.” [Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, Maine Examiner, 10/23/20]

American Rescue Plan

October 2021: Poliquin Called The Expanded Child Tax Credit An “Entitlement” And Criticized It For Not Having Work Requirements

October 2021: Poliquin Called The Expanded Child Tax Credit An “Entitlement.” “The Maine Republican blamed the radical agenda from the Democrats’ policies, saying, ‘Now we’re paying people 300 bucks a month to have kids if they’re younger than six, and there are no work requirements. Remember, what this far-left agenda has done is stripped out work requirements from all of these entitlement programs, and now this $3.5 trillion package they’re working on, which further expands the entitlement, that Golden, you know, voted to go down this reconciliation path to start spending this money. There are no work requirements in here.’” [Breitbart, 10/10/21]

October 2021: Poliquin Attacked Democrats For Voting To Expand The Child Tax Credit Without Work Requirements. “The Maine Republican blamed the radical agenda from the Democrats’ policies, saying, ‘Now we’re paying people 300 bucks a month to have kids if they’re younger than six, and there are no work requirements. Remember, what this far-left agenda has done is stripped out work requirements from all of these entitlement programs, and now this $3.5 trillion package they’re working on, which further expands the entitlement, that Golden, you know, voted to go down this reconciliation path to start spending this money. There are no work requirements in here.’” [Breitbart, 10/10/21]

5/11/21: Poliquin Criticized The American Rescue Plan For Potentially Providing “Higher Wages, Richer Pension And Healthcare Benefits, And/Or More Paid Time Off” For Municipal Employees. “TRILLIONS OF YOUR HARD-EARNED TAX DOLLARS FALL FROM THE SKY As President Joe Biden and his Democrat majority continue their spending tidal wave, click the link below to see how much ‘free’ money your Maine city, town or county is receiving from the $1.9 trillion COVID relief package, only 10% of which actually fights the pandemic, like paying for more vaccinations. For those who live in Lewiston, for example, you’ll find that City Hall is about to receive nearly $23 million of your federal tax dollars out of thin air. Orono will receive more than $1 million and Belfast $665,000. All told, Governor Mills alone is deciding how to spend the $1 billion windfall from Washington. Prudent local officials will use the funds to pay off debt and other ways to reduce property taxes. But, I fear some will instead choose to grow government with more employees, higher wages, richer pension and healthcare benefits, and/or more paid time off. If so, when the Democrats’ sugar high wears off, residents will be forced to pay for bigger government with still higher taxes.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 5/11/21]

4/1/21: Poliquin Editorial: “Less Than 10 Percent Of The Behemoth $1.9 Trillion Bill Will Help Battle The Pandemic.” “Speaking of spending, Biden and spendthrift liberals ignored Republican concerns and rammed through the largest spending and debt ‘COVID relief’ package in U.S. history. So much for bipartisan unity. Less than 10 percent of the behemoth $1.9 trillion bill will help battle the pandemic, like administering more vaccinations. But it does send $1,400 each to felons and some illegal immigrants instead of targeting checks to low-income families. Married couples earning up to $150,000 per year receive $2,800 plus more money for the kids.” [Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, Bangor Daily News, 4/1/21]

4/19/21: Poliquin Called The American Rescue Plan The “Biden Spending Blowout.” “Maine towns, cities and counties will soon receive millions from the federal government as a result of the Biden spending blowout, yet these same governments are moving to increase taxes this year. Property taxpayers already don’t get what they pay for with closed govt schools!”

Maine towns, cities and counties will soon receive millions from the federal government as a result of the Biden spending blowout, yet these same governments are moving to increase taxes this year. Property taxpayers already don’t get what they pay for with closed govt schools!

March 2021: Poliquin Claimed The American Rescue Plan Would Grant $4.4 Billion In Stimulus Checks To Undocumented Immigrants: “Is That Fair?” “I have a simple question for President Biden and his far left supporters: when is enough illegal immigration enough? We’re on pace for more than 1 million additional illegals during 2021. Is that enough, or should we welcome another 2 or 3 million illegals this year? Here’s something else to think about... It’s estimated that 2.6 million illegal immigrants today have Social Security numbers. That means they could receive stimulus checks from the $1.9 trillion ‘COVID relief’ bill passed by Democrats three weeks ago - up to $4.4 billion of your hard-earned tax dollars. Is that fair? It’s clear that Biden and the Democrats want unlimited illegal immigration. They have no plan to stop the surge of illegal entry. They believe more people dependent on government for ‘free’ healthcare, housing and cash assistance means more Democrat voters. We’ll see if they’re able to convince enough American citizens when we go to the polls next year.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 3/30/21]

3/17/21: Poliquin On The American Rescue Plan: “This Historic Surge In Government Spending Will Lead To Inflation, Higher Interest Rates, More Taxes, And Fewer Jobs.” “Here’s the punchline: none of this borrowed money is free, including the $1.9 trillion passed last week. Every six months, we taxpayers pay interest to the owners who purchased our government bonds. Then, the original principal amount borrowed must be repaid to the bond holders. Right now, the annual interest and principal payments total roughly $400 billion on the nearly $30 trillion national debt -- twice what we spend to care for our 7 million Veterans through the VA. Amazingly, the liberal Democrat majority in Washington is now teeing up ANOTHER $3-4 trillion to spend on Green New Deal climate initiatives. The package is expected to be announced in April. This historic surge in government spending will lead to inflation, higher interest rates, more taxes, and fewer jobs. No wonder the GOP has become the champion of working families and small businesses.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 3/17/21]

2/26/21: Poliquin Called The American Rescue Plan A “Democrat [Sic] Wishlist Disguised As Covid Relief Today, Including Checks For Illegal Immigrants, $15/Hr Minimum Wage, Fed Funding For Abortions.” “US House to approve $1.9 trillion democrat wishlist disguised as covid relief today, including checks for illegal immigrants, $15/hr minimum wage, fed funding for abortions, bailout of pre-covid fiscally irresponsible states like Cali & NY. Real relief isn't any of these things!”

“DEMOCRAT WISHLIST DISGUISED AS COVID RELIEF […] Here are some priorities President Joe Biden and his Democrat majority have included in their behemoth package, which you’ll pay for, that have nothing to do with beating COVID-19: * $1,400 checks to illegal immigrants. * $15 per hour minimum wage, which will kill 1.4 million jobs according to the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office. * Billions of dollars for teacher unions with no requirement that schools reopen. * Federal taxpayer dollars to pay for abortions. * Billions of dollars to bailout pre-COVID financially reckless states, like New York and California.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 2/24/21]
Eviction Moratorium

August 2021: When Asked About The Eviction Moratorium, Poliquin Said Democrats Would “Push To Give Everybody As Much Government Handouts As Humanly Possible.” HOST: “Finally here, Bruce, some current events, the non-eviction issue. The Centers for Disease Control issued a new eviction moratorium that’s going to go I think until October third. […] How much longer are we going to be paying rent for people?” POLIQUIN: “As long as Jared Golden is in the majority, and enables this to happen, and says nothing, by the way. As long as the Democrats are in the majority, and I really want to make this clear, Mike, is that the spending will continue. It will not stop, they’re going to push to give everybody as much government handouts as humanly possible, whether it be food assistance, housing assistance, paying people to stay at home and not work when their jobs are available and they’re perfectly capable.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 8/4/21] (AUDIO) 13:45
The Maine Vaccine Board Oversaw Purchases Of Vaccines For Maine Children

The Maine Vaccine Board oversaw purchases of vaccines for Maine children. “The Maine Vaccine Board (MVB) was formed by the state legislature in 2010 to help the State of Maine reinstate its universal purchase of vaccines for children under age 19. The MVB assures the necessary flow of vaccine purchase funds by collecting payments from health plans, insurance companies, and other payers and remitting the funds to the state. Through the Maine CDC’s Childhood Vaccine Program, the state purchases vaccines at favorable rates and distributes them to providers at no charge.” [Maine Vaccine Board, accessed 11/17/21]

January 2011: Poliquin Began Serving As Maine Treasurer In LePage’s Administration. “A day after being sworn in, Gov. Paul LePage administered the oath of office Thursday to three prominent state officials — the secretary of state, attorney general and treasurer. The Republican governor also issued a brief to-do list to the three: Make it easier to bring business to Maine. Fix the looming liability in the pension system, and work on the health care issue. With some pomp — but not to the level of the inauguration a day earlier — Charles Summers, Bill Schneider and Bruce Poliquin took their oaths in a House chamber packed with relatives, friends and state officials, including Chief Justice Leigh Saufley and U.S. Attorney Thomas Delahanty II.” [Bangor Daily News, 1/6/11]

Significant Findings

- Poliquin voted for Republican budgets to slash Pell Grant funding, which more than 11,000 students in his district benefited from, then claimed he “voted to strengthen the solvency” of the program.

- Beginning in July 2021, Poliquin claimed children were learning to “hate our country” through “critical race theory” being taught in schools.

- In 2018, Poliquin voted to block consideration of a bill to invest $100 billion in American schools’ physical and digital infrastructure.

- In May 2021, Poliquin said he opposed increasing Maine’s education funding because school performance was “horrendous” during the pandemic.

- In July 2021, Poliquin claimed teachers’ unions were “more concerned about their political muscle than student welfare and education.”

- The FY18 House Republican Budget Cut Pell Grants By More Than $75 Billion. “The budget calls for significantly scaling back Pell Grants, which help nearly 8 million students from low- and moderate-income families afford college. […] The Pell cuts of more than $75 billion would occur even though Pell Grants currently cover just 29 percent of the costs of college — the smallest portion covered in the program’s history. The cuts in Pell would be accompanied by up to $120 billion in cuts to student loans.” [CBPP, 9/5/17]

• The FY16 House Republican Rolled Back Expansion Of The Pell Grant Program, Freezing The Maximum Grant For 10 Years. “House Republicans looking for ways to balance the budget want to roll back President Obama’s expansion of a federal program allowing many of the country’s poorest students attend college. On Tuesday, the House GOP released a budget memo that would freeze the maximum amount students receive from the government to pay for college; the grants would be held at $5,775 per school year for the next 10 years.” [Washington Post, 3/18/15]

May 2010: Poliquin Criticized Federal Student Loans For “Taking Competition Out Of The Program,” Which He Said Raised Student Loan Interest Rates

May 2010: Poliquin Criticized Federal Student Loans For “Taking Competition Out Of The Program,” Which He Said Raised Student Loan Interest Rates. “This is what happens when you get the federal government intruding in the private sector. We now have roughly $1 trillion of outstanding student loans around the country. And a year ago, the federal government made a decision that they’re going to get into that business at the exclusion of everybody else. And so, on a lot of these loans, students are looking not at a 3.6% rate, but almost three points higher than that. The reason is that they’re taking competition out of the program. So now commercial banks are no longer doing this, the federal government will be doing – the only one offering these loans, and as a result, prices go up.” [YouTube, Toby Hoxie, Student loan debt- Schneider-Poliquin- D'Amboise-from GOP Senate candidates Q&A 05/10/2012, 5/10/12] (VIDEO) 1:48

July 2021: Poliquin Said Tuition-Free Community College Was Unfair To People Who Did Not Go To College

July 2021: Poliquin Said Tuition-Free Community College Was Unfair To People Who Did Not Go To College. “Free community college. What if you did not go to college? What if you didn’t have that opportunity? It means you’re paying for somebody who did go to college, and you’re likely going to be paying off their debt.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 7/15/21] (AUDIO) 2:24

October 2016: Poliquin On Tuition-Free College: “Whenever Anybody That Makes A Career In Politics Says That Something Is Free, They’re Not Telling The Truth.” “Both Cain and Poliquin said they worked their way through college, but both differed on whether college tuition should be free. Cain said that Mainers who make good grades and follow the rules should be able to graduate ‘debt-free.’ Poliquin supported boosting existing grant programs. ‘Whenever anybody that makes a career in politics says that something is free, they’re not telling the truth,’ he said.” [Associated Press, 10/26/16]

[H R 5, Vote #423, 7/8/15; CQ Synopsis, 7/8/15]

- The Student Success Act Would Allow Funding To Follow Students From Lower Income Families To Other Schools And Eliminate And Merge The Funding Of 65 Elementary And Secondary Education Programs. “Passage of the bill, as amended, that would reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (ESEA) and would make fundamental changes to many of its programs through Fiscal 2019. 2010: Poliquin Said Publicly Funded Charter Schools Would Improve Innovation In Maine’s K-12 Education System

2010: Poliquin Said Publicly Funded Charter Schools Would Improve Innovation In Maine’s K-12 Education System. HOST: “How important do you believe it is to allow charter schools in the state of Maine?” POLIQUIN: “I think it’s very important. One of the reasons, Logan, that we’ve been unsuccessful in being innovative in our education system here in Maine is because we have not allowed publicly-funded charter schools. They are laboratories of innovation. We can be very flexible in how we pay the teachers based in part on merit. We can be innovative in the programs we offer in charter schools. It’s a terrific opportunity for our public schools to learn to do things maybe slightly differently. So we have to be very, very open.” [YouTube, Bruce for Maine, Youth in Politics Interview Part 2, 4/19/10] (VIDEO) :09

“Critical Race Theory” & Curriculum Issues

November 2021: Poliquin Said Parents “Want To Be Sure They Have A Say In What Their Kids Are Being Taught In School”

November 2021: Poliquin Said Parents “Want To Be Sure They Have A Say In What Their Kids Are Being Taught In School.” “Poliquin sat down on Wednesday morning with community members to chat about how best to help and serve veterans in Maine. He told NEWS CENTER Maine yesterday's voting results didn't surprise him. He said Mainers don't want higher taxes or more inflation, and those are some of the reasons he's running. ‘It didn't surprise me. Folks in this county and in the state of Maine have a lot of common sense, and they are losing their freedoms, and they are pushing back. Moms and dads want to be sure they have a say in what their kids are being taught in school, and they don't want this out-of-control spending and higher taxes and more inflation,’ Poliquin said.” [News Center Maine, 11/3/21]

July – August 2021: Poliquin Claimed Children Were Learning To “Hate Our Country” Through Critical Race Theory

August 2021: Poliquin Campaign Website Claimed Democrats Pushed Critical Race Theory. “Even more extreme elements are behind Critical Race Theory, CRT. They want to teach kids to treat each other differently based on skin color and tell young, white kids that they are inherently racist just based on how they are born. It is wrong.” [Poliquin for Congress, accessed 8/5/21]

8/4/21: Poliquin Claimed Children Were Learning To “Hate Our Country” Through Critical Race Theory On The Radio Show In Which He Launched His Campaign. Poliquin appeared on WGAN Radio, where he launched his campaign and stated, “And where has he been? You know, in these classrooms, what moms and dads are finding out that their kids are being taught this Critical Race Theory to hate our country. America is a racist country and if the color of your skin is white you should be ashamed, you should be guilty. And you should treat people with different skin color differently. That is wrong Matt.” [Bruce Poliquin, Interview with Matt Gagnon on WGAN Radio, , 8/4/21] (AUDIO) 7:13

July 2021: Poliquin Claimed “Parents Are Alarmed At Departments Of Education And Local School Boards Teaching Their Children To Hate America.” “And, third, parents are alarmed at departments of education and local school boards teaching their children to hate America. Kids are asking parents: Is it right to be judged based on the color of their skin instead of who they are as individuals? Is it true America is a racist country even though they feel no hate toward classmates, regardless of how they were born?” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 7/6/21]

K-12 Education & Teachers’ Salaries

June 2021: Poliquin Said He Opposed Growing Maine’s Education Budget Since School Performance Was “Horrendous” During COVID-19. POLIQUIN: “The state of Maine has already received several billion dollars from the federal government dealing with this COVID situation, much of which has nothing to do with COVID. There’s been a lot of money that’s gone to the schools and still we’ve had roughly 4,000 kids that have dropped out of public schools and instead their parents have opted to put them into parochial schools, religious schools, or independent schools, private schools, because the government doesn’t know how to keep these public schools open.
So to put more money into an organization that’s unable to deliver a service effectively just doesn’t make any sense to me. It just doesn’t. […] This is just more money going to the schools even though their performance over the last year has been horrendous.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 6/4/21] (AUDIO) 5:54

May 2018: Poliquin Voted For Blocking The Rebuild America’s Schools Act That Would Invest $100 Billion In Physical And Digital Infrastructure

It’s crucial for Congress to invest in infrastructure for our schools to ensure our children receive the education they deserve.” A vote for the motion was a vote to block consideration of the bill. [S 1177, Vote #665, 12/2/15; CQ Floor Votes, 12/2/15]

• States Would Still Be Required To Test Students Annually And Report Scores. “States will still be required to test students annually in math and reading in grades three through eight and once in high school and to publicly report the scores according to race, income, ethnicity, disability and whether students are English-language learners.” [Washington Post, 12/10/15]

• States Would Decide How To Remedy “Troubled Schools”, How To Weigh Test Scores, And How To Evaluate Teachers. “[S]tates will decide what to do about the most troubled schools, those where test scores are in the lowest 5 percent, achievement gaps between groups of students are greatest, or where fewer than two-thirds of students graduate on time. And states will decide how to weigh test scores and whether or how to evaluate teachers. They will be allowed to consider other factors, such as whether a school offers challenging courses or the degree of parent involvement. They will set their own goals and timelines for academic progress, though their plans must be approved by the federal Department of Education.” [Washington Post, 12/10/15]

In July 2015, Poliquin voted against providing dropout protection and grants to raise academic achievement. “The U.S. House of Representative reconsidered and ultimately passed Wednesday a Republican-backed reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act—though it’s far from the measure that President Barack Obama may eventually sign into law when it's all said and done …Rep. Wilson: Would provide for school dropout prevention and reentry and provide grants to raise academic achievement levels for all students.” The amendment failed, 192 to 237. 2010: Poliquin Said He Supported Cutting Funding From Administrative Overhead In K-12 Education

2010: Poliquin Said He Supported Cutting Funding From Administrative Overhead In K-12 Education. POLIQUIN: “Companies want to come to Maine only if there’s going to be an educated workforce ready to proceed. The problem is we are spending so much on administrative overhead that we can’t get the money in the classrooms where it belongs. We have to be very serious about reducing the administrative overhead and getting that money into the classroom where the kids are and as I mentioned earlier being innovative.” [YouTube, Bruce for Maine, Youth in Politics Interview Part 2, 4/19/10] (VIDEO) 1:50

2010: Poliquin Said He Supported Paying K-12 Public School Teachers “In Part On Merit”

2010: Poliquin Said He Supported Paying K-12 Public School Teachers “In Part On Merit.” POLIQUIN: “Great teachers, Logan, inspire kids. So we need to do everything humanly possible to retain the best teachers possible for our students in the state. However, there are lots of tools we can help them that we’re not providing for them. One is a very innovative way to pay teachers based in part on merit. There are a lot of folks, a lot of, rather, school systems around the country that have adopted these new strategies that we should look at very seriously.” [YouTube, Bruce for Maine, Youth in Politics Interview Part 2, 4/19/10] (VIDEO) 3:25

2010: Poliquin Criticized State Lawmakers For Spending 50 Percent Of The State's Budget On Education While Receiving A “Subpar Product”

2010: Poliquin Criticized State Lawmakers For Spending 50 Percent Of The State's Budget On Education While Receiving A “Subpar Product.” POLIQUIN: “I know how important education is to our kids in this state. It’s their ticket out of poverty, to avoid drug and alcohol abuse. It’s also an economic engine for our state. […] Now, the fact of the matter is, we’re out of money. I’m not a politician, I’m a manager, so I’m going to give it to you straight. We have no more money. So it becomes a management issue. Here’s how a manager would look at the problem. We are spending 50 percent of our budget on education. The biggest part is kindergarten through 12th grade. We spend the 7th highest cost per student in the country on education so by any metric we’re spending a lot on education in the state. Now, how are we doing? […] We’re spending a lot of money on education and getting a subpar product.” [YouTube, Bruce for Maine, In and Around Augusta Interview Part 1, 2/4/10] (VIDEO) 1:40

That is why, if we defeat the previous question, I am going to offer an amendment to the rule to bring up Education and the Workforce Committee Ranking Member Scott’s bill, H.R. 3773, the Child Care for Working Families Act.” A vote for the

Teachers’ Unions

July 2021: Poliquin Claimed Teachers’ Unions Were “More Concerned About Their Political Muscle Than Student Welfare And Education”

July 2021: Poliquin Denigrated Teachers’ Unions As “More Concerned About Their Political Muscle Than Student Welfare And Education.” “First, teachers unions are more concerned about their political muscle than student welfare and education. There are many outstanding teachers dedicated to the progress of their students, but the union bosses are a different story. Parents won’t forget the isolation, depression and falling test scores stemming from shuttered government schools while independent and parochial schools remained open for in-person instruction 5 days per week.”
PARENTS OF SCHOOL-AGED KIDS ARE ALARMED

It's hard to find much positive coming out of the pandemic which resulted, directly or indirectly, in the deaths of more than 600,000 Americans and ruined the livelihoods of tens of millions more when the government shutdown our booming economy. That said, parents of school-aged children become more in tune with their kids' education. That's a positive. Here's some of what they found...

First, teachers unions are more concerned about their political muscle than student welfare and education. There are many outstanding teachers dedicated to the progress of their students, but the union bosses are a different story. Parents won't forget the isolation, depression and failing test scores stemming from shuttered government schools while independent and parochial schools remained open for in-person instruction 5 days per week.

Second, online teaching and learning doesn't work for most students. Parents won't forget their kids being forced to sit in front of computer screens day after day when, months ago, the Centers of Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) reported teachers and students were safe to return to the classroom even if not vaccinated.

And, third, parents are alarmed at departments of education and local school boards teaching their children to hate America. Kids are asking parents: Is it right to be judged based on the color of their skin instead of who they are as individuals? Is it true America is a racist country even though they feel no hate toward classmates, regardless of how they were born?

It's no wonder there's a surge of everyday moms and dads publicly challenging principals and school boards, and some running for those powerful positions themselves. You can bet they support school choice and will show up in droves to vote next year.

✓ Poliquin voted absentee twelve times, including three times in 2020, and had not voted in-person since 2014 – but claimed that vote-by-mail compromised the integrity of the 2020 election.

✓ Poliquin claimed the For The People Act would invite “shenanigans” by expanding vote-by-mail access and serve Democrats’ political interests.

✓ In April 2019, Poliquin falsely told Maine college students that they needed a Maine driver’s license to vote in the state and that they should not participate in local elections.

✓ In 2015, Poliquin voted to block restoration of the Voting Rights Act.

✓ Poliquin claimed he supported “complete transparency” in campaign finance, but voted five times to block measures to require disclosure of political donors.

Poliquin Was The First Candidate To Lead After One Round, Then Lose Under Maine’s Ranked-Choice Voting System.

Poliquin Was The First Candidate In A Federal General Election To Lose Under A Ranked-Choice Voting System. “A spokeswoman for the Maine secretary of state’s office said the results remained unofficial pending certification by Nov. 26. But, if certified, the results would make Mr. Golden the winner of a four-candidate race in which Mr. Poliquin received 2,632 more first-choice votes but failed to reach the 50 percent needed to win. Instead, Mr. Golden was declared the winner Thursday with 50.53 percent of the vote — or by 2,905 votes — once the second and third choices of voters who originally chose the two lagging candidates were added. The district covers a majority of the state’s land area, much of it rural and densely forested. The contest was the first general election to federal office under a ranked-choice system.” [New York Times, 11/15/18]

Maine Voters Approved Of Ranked-Choice Voting In 2016 And 2018 Referenda

November 2016: 52 Percent Of Maine Voters Voted For A Referendum To Institute Ranked-Choice Voting In Congressional, Gubernatorial, And State Legislative Races. “Q: How did the switch to ranked-choice voting happen in Maine? A: In November 2016, 52 percent of Maine voters approved a ballot question that called for using a ranked-choice system in elections for governor, Congress and the Legislature. That didn't, however, end the debate or controversy.” [Portland Press Herald, 11/15/18]

June 2018: 54 Percent Of Maine Voters Approved A “People's Veto” To Begin Ranked-Choice Voting In November 2018 After The State Legislature Voted To Delay Implementation Of Ranked-Choice Voting. “Responding to a query from the Republican-controlled Maine Senate, the state's Supreme Judicial Court issued an advisory opinion that the Maine Constitution dictates that general elections for governor and legislative seats must be decided by a ‘plurality’ of votes, not a majority. However, the Constitution is silent on primary elections for those offices, as well as all elections for Congress. The Legislature then passed a law delaying the implementation of ranked-choice voting for several years - and only then if voters amended the Constitution to address the concerns. Undeterred, supporters of ranked-choice voting organized a ‘people's veto’ campaign to override the Legislature. An even wider margin of voters - 54 percent - approved that ballot question in June, clearing the way for the system's use in congressional elections this month.” [Portland Press Herald, 11/15/18]

Poliquin Refused To Say He Would Accept The Results Of The Ranked-Choice Election, Then Declared Victory Before The Ranked-Choice Count Was Complete

VIDEO: Poliquin Did Not Answer When He Was Asked Whether He Would Accept The Results Of The Ranked Choice Voting Election. HOST: “With the new ranked choice voting method, will you accept the outcome of this race?” POLIQUIN: “I’m going to circle in Bruce Poliquin, one and only vote, drop it in the box and go forward.” [C-SPAN, 2018 ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/16/18] (VIDEO) 49:00

10/22/18: Poliquin Refused To Say He Would Accept The Results Of A Ranked-Choice Election And Instead Said He Would “Circle In ‘Bruce Poliquin,’ […] One And Only One Vote.” “One of the more telling moments in the two debates between the four congressional candidates in Maine’s 2nd District came during the final question they faced. Asked if they’d accept the outcome of the ranked-choice voting contest, three of the contenders say they would. But U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, a two-term Republican from Oakland, passed up the chance to rule out a possible legal challenge if he comes up short Nov. 6. ‘I'm going to circle in 'Bruce Poliquin',’ the incumbent said, adding ‘one and only vote, drop it in the box and go forward.’ ‘I don't think he answered the question,’ said Democratic challenger Jared Golden of Lewiston.” [Portland Press Herald, 10/22/18]

• 10/22/18: Poliquin’s Campaign “Ignored Requests For Comment” On Whether Poliquin Would Accept Election Results. “Golden, Bond and Hoar said that if ranked-choice voting leads to an outcome they don't like -- such as losing out in the second round -- they will accept the decision made by voters. But Poliquin has never made that assertion. His campaign ignored requests for comment on the issue Monday. Instead, its spokesman, Brendan Conley, said only that Poliquin ‘cannot in good conscience support any of the other candidates in this race.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/22/18]

• 11/6/18: Poliquin Refused To Say He Would Accept The Results Of A Ranked-Choice Election, Which He Dismissed As A “Hypothetical.” “Poliquin hasn’t said whether he'd accept the results of a ranked-choice election, saying Saturday it was a ‘hypothetical.’ Chatter about a lawsuit could heighten if Poliquin emerges as the first-round leader only to lose to Golden after the independents' votes are re-allocated.” [Bangor Daily News, 11/7/18]

11/10/18: Poliquin: “It's Clear That Bruce Won Election Day By A Margin Of Over 2,000 Votes, Defeating All 3 Other Opponents. In Any Other Federal Election Across America This Process Would Be Complete.” “As Rank Choice Voting begins, it's clear that Bruce won Election Day by a margin of over 2,000 votes, defeating all 3 other opponents. In any other federal election across America this process would be complete. Maine is the only state subject to this Rank Choice Voting system which allows people multiple votes, via the reallocation of their vote, if they didn't initially select one of the two top vote earners. We will continue to monitor this process, as there have been ongoing concerns.”

November 2018: Poliquin Sued Maine’s Secretary Of State In District Court To Stop The Count Of Ranked-Choice Votes

11/13/18: Poliquin Filed A Lawsuit In District Court Against Maine Secretary Of State Matthew Dunlap To Stop The Second Round Of Vote Counting In The Ranked-Choice Voting System. “That new system became the focus of Mr. Poliquin’s ire on Tuesday, when he filed a lawsuit in federal court against Maine’s secretary of state, Matthew Dunlap, to stop the runoff, asserting that he would have won the election under the old voting system and that the new system was unconstitutional.” [New York Times, 11/15/18]

- 11/13/18: Poliquin Claimed RCV Was “Ripe For Mishandling And Unlawful Electioneering Actions, As Evidenced Already.” “6 days and 15 hours after the polls have closed and because of rank choice voting we still have no final election result. This system only adds additional cost to taxpayers, creates overwhelming confusion for our citizens, and is ripe for mishandling and unlawful electioneering actions, as evidenced already. Mainers deserve better than their money being wasted, their frustrations growing, and their sacred right of voting being manipulated.”

- 11/13/18: Poliquin Defended His Lawsuit And Said Walking Away Would Send “Absolutely The Wrong Message” To “Our Kids.” “At a State House news conference Tuesday afternoon, Poliquin said he and other critics of ranked-choice voting believe the process could be ‘illegal’ under federal law. He said it's not true that he is challenging the process because he is likely to lose his seat if more than 23,000 votes received by two independent candidates get redistributed to second-choice candidates. ‘The people of the 2nd District have put their trust in me to do what's right,’ Poliquin said. ‘Not addressing this important constitutional issue would be completely irresponsible. I'll tell you this would be a heck of a lot easier on me if I just walked away from this vote-counting mess. But what kind of message would that send to our kids? Absolutely the wrong message.’” [Portland Press Herald, 11/13/18]

- 11/14/18: Poliquin: “The Easiest Thing Would Be To Walk Away, But That Is Not The Right Thing To Do.” “I am standing up for Maine's 2nd District voters who voted against Ranked Choice Voting at the ballot box, as recent as June of this year. The easiest thing would be to walk away, but that is not the right thing to do. We hold voting rights sacred, meaning one vote per person, which has always been the successful system used. This RCV process no doubt gives additional preference to those who voted for a candidate that did not end up as one of the top two vote earners, thereby allowing them multiple votes. Whether that vote was for me or my opponent, it should not matter. The process is flawed, creates tremendous confusion, and is proving to be a recipe for disaster, as Maine's Second District predicted when they voted against it.”

Golden Won 50.6 Percent Of Ranked-Choice Votes And Determined Second Round Of Ranked-Choice Votes. [Maine Secretary of State, Election Results, 11/15/18]

- Poliquin Alleged Ranked-Choice Voting Forced Voters “To Guess Whether There Would Be An ‘Instant Runoff’ Election And Who The Candidates Would Be,” Violating The 1st And 4th Amendments.

  “Poliquin’s case boils down to the proposition that in ranked-choice voting, those casting ballots cannot know the identities of the candidates who will remain in contention after the first round, forcing them ‘to guess whether there would be an ‘instant runoff’ election and who the candidates would be.’ That ‘lack of access to such basic information’ prevents them, Goodman argued, ‘from choosing among candidates and casting their votes effectively,’ a situation he insisted violated both the 1st and 14th amendments to the U.S. Constitution. “This system forces voters to make blind guesses about the ultimate matchup in the final round of vote,” said James Gimpel, a University of Maryland political science professor who offered his testimony to the court Wednesday to bolster Poliquin’s case. Gimpel testified that in his study of the results, he found that 46 percent of voters only made one first-place pick and no others.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/28/18]

- Poliquin And Three Residents Of Maine’s Second Congressional District Who Voted For Him Were The Plaintiffs In The Case. “Plaintiff Brett Baber is a resident of and duly registered voter in Maine’s Second Congressional District. Consistent with Maine’s use of ranked choice voting in federal elections, the details of which are described more fully infra, in the November 6 general election Mr. Baber voted for Republican Bruce Poliquin as his first choice to serve as Maine’s Second District Congressional Representative. Mr. Baber did not rank or otherwise vote for any of the other remaining choices on the ballot for that office. […] Plaintiff Terry Hamm-Morris, a veteran of the U.S. Navy, is a resident of and duly registered voter in Maine’s Second Congressional District. Consistent with Maine’s use of ranked choice voting in federal elections, in the November 6 general election Ms. Hamm-Morris voted for Republican Bruce Poliquin as her first choice to serve as Maine’s Second District Congressional Representative. […] Plaintiff Mary Hartt is a resident of and duly registered voter in Maine’s Second Congressional District. Consistent with Maine’s use of ranked choice voting in federal elections, in the November 6 general election Ms. Hartt voted for Republican Bruce Poliquin as her first choice to serve as Maine’s Second District Congressional Representative. […] 10. Plaintiff Bruce Poliquin is the incumbent Member of Congress from Maine’s Second Congressional District.” [U.S. District Court District of Maine (Bangor), Baber, et al v. Dunlap, et al, 1:18-cv-00465-LEW, Complaint, 11/13/18]

- Poliquin’s Complaint Alleged RCV Violated The First And Fourteenth Amendments Because Voters Would Not Know Which Candidates Would Be In Later Rounds Of Ranked-Choice Voting When They Voted. “Here, Defendant’s implementation of the RCV Act denies Plaintiffs the opportunity to cast their votes effectively. At the time Plaintiffs cast their ballots in this election, and at the time they will cast their ballots in future elections, they do not know the identities of the candidates who are on the ballot, nor the match-ups of candidates who will be on the ballot, after the first round of voting. The lack of access to such basic information about which candidates will be on the ballot and the match-up of candidates who will be on the ballot prevents Plaintiffs from choosing among candidates and casting their votes effectively, causing them irreparable injury under the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution. Since no other adequate remedy at law is available, Plaintiffs are entitled to preliminary and permanent injunctive relief to prevent this injury.” [U.S. District Court District of Maine (Bangor), Baber, et al v. 11/15/18: Trump-Appointed District Court Judge Lance Walker Denied Poliquin’s Request To Stop Counting The Votes. “District Court Judge Lance Walker, recently appointed by President Donald Trump, has not shown much sympathy for Poliquin’s argument that ranked-choice voting is unconstitutional. His initial ruling on a Poliquin request to stop the ranked-choice tally allowed the count to continue, and Walker pointed out that Maine voters had chosen to use the ranked-choice system.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/28/18]

They showed Golden won the election with 50.5 percent of the second round tallies. Shortly after the results were announced, Poliquin issued this convoluted, and deceptive, statement: “It is now officially clear I won the constitutional ‘one-person, one-vote’ first choice election on Election Day that has been used in Maine for more than one hundred years.”” [Editorial, Bangor Daily News, 11/16/18]

December 2018: Poliquin Called Ranked-Choice Voting “Unconstitutional” But Voluntarily Dismissed The Lawsuit The Same Day Gov. LePage Certified The Results
12/24/18: Poliquin Stated That Ranked-Choice Voting Was Unconstitutional But That It Was “In The Best Interests Of My Constituents […] To Close This Confusing And Unfair Chapter Of Voting History.” “Even though rank voting is unconstitutional, and therefore illegal, under Maine law in general elections to choose state officials like our Governor and State Legislators, the Maine District Court and 1st Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston both disagreed with the Constitutional arguments raised by the former Chairman of the Federal Election Commission and his legal team. As such, despite winning the largest number of votes on Election Day, I believe it's in the best interest of my constituents and all Maine citizens to close this confusing and unfair chapter of voting history by ending any further legal proceedings.”” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 12/24/18]

- 12/28/18: LePage Signed The Certified Election Results And Added “Stolen Election” Alongside His Signature. “Gov. Paul LePage certified the election results for Maine’s 2nd Congressional District after a recount and legal battle dragged out the final result in the race for almost two months, cementing a Democratic victory. But, LePage – a Republican firebrand – made one last jab at the drawn-out process when certifying the election, writing the words ‘stolen election’ next to his signature.” [CNN, 12/29/18]

Golden’s Attorneys And Pelosi Wrote Off Poliquin’s Lawsuit As “Sour Grapes”

11/28/18: Golden Attorney: “Poliquin's Sour Grapes Preliminary Injunction Is Too Little, Too Late, And Is Outweighed By The [Maine Voters] Who Would Be Disenfranchised” By Poliquin’s Lawsuit. “Golden's attorney, James Kilbreth, responded Wednesday in a brief that called Poliquin's legal challenge to ranked-choice voting ‘sour grapes.’ ‘Now, after 296,077 Maine citizens have voted based on their understanding that the [ranked-choice voting] system would be used to determine the winner of the election, Poliquin would like to change the rules,’ he wrote. ‘Poliquin's sour grapes preliminary injunction is too little, too late, and is outweighed by the injury to the thousands of Maine voters who selected Golden over Poliquin and who would be disenfranchised by Poliquin's attempt to use the courts to overturn the results of the election,’ Kilbreth said. ‘Further, the chaos, disruption, and violation of fundamental rights that would result from Poliquin's attempt to rewrite the rules after the election is anathema to the public interest. Golden won the election fair and square.’” [Bangor Daily News, 11/28/18]

12/6/18: Pelosi On Poliquin’s Lawsuit: “But If [Republicans] Won, Of Course, There’d Be No Question About The Constitutionality” Of Ranked-Choice Voting. “Talking with reporters, U.S. Rep. Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., cited three races in which there may be objections filed about incoming lawmakers, especially one in North Carolina that appears to have involved cheating. ‘To add insult to injury about what the Republicans did in these races, they are now challenging the seating of our member in Maine,’ Pelosi said. She said they are ‘questioning the process’ of ranked-choice voting that delivered victory to Golden last month in his race against two-term U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, a Republican. ‘You know,’ Pelosi said, ‘they have ranked voting, which has been voted on twice by the people of Maine as their method of having an election. And now the Republicans are saying, ‘Well …’ ‘There’s even a question as to the constitutionality of ranked voting, in their view,’ Pelosi said. ‘But if they won, of course, there’d be no question about the constitutionality of it.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 12/6/18]

Poliquin’s Lawyers From His Case Against Ranked-Choice Voting Went On To Testify Against The For The People Act And Join The RNC’s “Election Integrity” Committee In 2021, Seeking To Restrict Access To The Ballot

Lee Goodman And Josh Tardy Represented Poliquin And Three Other Plaintiffs In Their 2018 Case Against Maine’s Ranked-Choice Voting System. “Plaintiffs Brett Baber, Terry Hamm-Morris, Mary Hartt, and Bruce Poliquin (collectively ‘Plaintiffs’), by and through their attorneys, file this complaint against Matthew Dunlap, the Secretary of the State of Maine (‘Secretary’), seeking declaratory and injunctive relief on an expedited basis. [...] The lack of access to such basic information about which candidates will be on the ballot and the match-up of candidates who will be on the ballot prevents Plaintiffs from choosing among candidates and casting their votes effectively, causing them irreparable injury under the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution. [...] Respectfully submitted, /s/ Lee E. Goodman Lee E. Goodman (pro hac vice pending) Andrew G. Woodson (pro hac vice pending) Eric Wang (pro hac vice pending) [...] Joshua A. February 2021: Josh Tardy Joined The RNC’s “Election Integrity” Committee, Which Advocated For Sweeping Voting Restrictions

February 2021: Josh Tardy Joined The RNC’s “Election Integrity” Committee. “The Maine Republican Party released the following statement regarding Maine’s National Committeeman Josh Tardy being named to the RNC Election Integrity Committee. Ensuring the integrity of Maine and the entire nation’s elections is a top priority for the Maine Republican Party and the Republican National Committee.” [Maine GOP, Press Release, 2/19/21]

The RNC “Election Integrity” Committee Recommended Eliminating Same-Day And Automatic Voter Registration. “ID Requirements For All Voting Methods” And “Clean[ing] Up” Voter Rolls. “‘The pandemic brought chaos and comprehensive changes to voting processes beginning in the spring primaries and lasting through the post-election process,’ said the 23-page report from the RNC’s Committee on Election Integrity, created by party Chairwoman Ronna McDaniel. [...] Many of the recommendations are common sense but opposed by some Democratic lawmakers who instead are using reforms to paint Republicans as proponents of limiting voting. The committee’s top recommendations: Clean up their voter rolls. Eliminate same-day and automatic voter registration. Enact ID requirements for all voting methods, while ensuring officials educate the public on ID requirements and provide free IDs to those few without one. Only use voting systems that produce a paper record of a voter’s selections that is reviewable pre-tabulation and auditable post-election. Prohibit ballot harvesting. Enact uniform and enforceable standards for rejecting and accepting absentee ballots.” [Washington Examiner, 8/19/21]

March 2021: Lee Goodman Testified To The Senate Committee On Rules And Administration Against The For The People Act

March 2021: Lee Goodman Testified To The Senate Committee On Rules And Administration Against The For The People Act, Which He Said Would Exacerbate “Cancel Culture.” “Thank you inviting me to speak about S. 1. Although the bill purports to support ‘the people,’ it ironically imposes significant burdens on the people’s core constitutional right to speak and associate. The most dramatic provisions of S. 1 would not regulate speech about elections, but speech about issues and public policy. Indeed, S. 1 proposes many restrictions on the right of the American people to speak about issues and politicians, hear ideas, and associate freely. It exposes Americans to an unprecedented system of mandatory public doxing and exposure when they desire to spend as little as $500 to discuss sensitive policy issues. It likewise imposes new civil and criminal liability on American media companies, which will push many media companies to eliminate low-cost online advertising platforms from populist organizations for political messages. [...] At a time of intense political polarization, when ‘cancel culture’ and ‘call out tactics’ and political polarization and intolerance are at their zenith, this bill exacerbates all of these social problems.” [Senate Rules And Administration Committee, Lee Goodman Testimony, 3/24/21]

August 2019 – August 2021: Poliquin Maintained That He Won The 2018 Election

8/4/21: Poliquin: “Head-To-Head, You Know, I Beat Golden In 2018, And God Willing, I Will Do It Again Next Year.” “Poliquin, who typically resides in Georgetown, said this year he’ll go into the race with his eyes wide open about ranked-choice voting, but in his radio interview he continued to maintain that he won the 2018 race.
‘Head-to-head, you know, I beat Golden in 2018, and God willing, I will do it again next year,’ Poliquin said. Poliquin lost the race by 3,509 votes. It was the first time since 1916 that an incumbent in Maine’s 2nd District went down to defeat.” [Portland Press Herald, 8/4/21]

- Poliquin: “I Won This Seat Three Times - 2014, 2016, 2018 - But Was Only Seated Twice Because Of Ranked Vote.” “Former U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin insists that he was the real winner of the 2018 race that he lost to Democratic challenger Jared Golden. Poliquin hopes to become the Republican nominee next year to take on Golden in Maine’s GOP-friendly 2nd District. There are at least two other contenders who may force a primary next June. Poliquin, though, doesn't accept that he ever lost the seat to begin with. ‘I won this seat three times - 2014, 2016, 2018 - but was only seated twice because of ranked vote,’ he said in a radio interview Thursday. In the interview with WVOM-FM in Bangor, Poliquin said this time around, his campaign is ready to deal with ranked-choice voting.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/6/21]

November 2020: Poliquin Said He Won The 2018 Election. POLIQUIN: “I remember having experienced this in a little way, Matt, two years ago in my second re-election in 2018 which I won and then nine days later they scammed it with this ranked voting. But it was my responsibility to take this to court to make sure everything was up to snuff but once the election was certified, it becomes very difficult to do that. So what Trump is doing is what he should be doing. It’s his responsibility, win or lose, to make sure he challenges these results because they are so close and it was so unconventional, the way we voted this way with mail-in voting, to give people confidence that their vote counted. So he’s got to go through this process. He should. It’s his responsibility. But he’s got an uphill climb.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/13/20] (AUDIO) 1:47

August 2019: Poliquin: “I’m Itching To Run Again To Right The Rank Voting Scam Which Gave My Win - Our Win - On Election Day To The Candidate Who Came In Second Place.”
2019 – 2021: Poliquin Continued To Criticize And Advocate Against Ranked-Choice Voting For Years After His 2018 Defeat

November 2019: Poliquin Claimed Ranked-Choice Voting Was A “Scam” That Resulted In Ballots Being Thrown Out In 2018 And Awarded Second-Place Finishers
Poliquin Said Ranked Choice Voting Was A “Scam” And A “Rip-Off” That Awarded The ME-02 Congressional Seat To The Race’s Second Place Finisher. POLIQUIN: “Ranked voting up here in Maine turned out to be the biggest voter rip-off in our state’s history. We’ve been using common sense one person, one vote, a constitutional way to do this, for 200 years up here and it worked just fine. No confusion, simple. The person that gets the most votes on election day wins, like myself. We won, but nine days later after this confusion of counting these votes again and again, this black box computer algorithm that gave the seat to the candidate that came in second. So I told them the truth. I said, you’ve got to look at this closely. The folks from the second district that I represented rejected it twice because it’s such a scam.” [WVOM, GHRT Rewind, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/18/19] (AUDIO) 1:47

Poliquin Discussed The Idea Of Finding Conservative Independents To Run In The ME-02 Congressional Race Who Would Tell Voters To Rank Poliquin Second. POLIQUIN: “Your thought process has to be something like this. Let’s find an independent who’s really a Republican and his or her only issue is the pro-life issue. Let’s make sure they get on the ballot and when people vote for them, make sure they vote for Bruce second. And let’s get someone whose only issue is the Second Amendment, and make sure when they vote for that individual, they vote for Bruce second, and so forth and so on. And on the Democrat side, Rick, it’s what they did in my election. Let’s get someone whose only issue is, pick an issue, animal rights, or the only issue is climate change. And so forth and so on and make sure they vote second place for the Democrat candidate.” [WVOM, GHRT Rewind, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/18/19] (AUDIO) 6:00

Poliquin Claimed There Were “Thousands And Thousands Of Ballots That Were Thrown Out” During The 2018 Congressional Election In ME-02. POLIQUIN: “There were thousands and thousands of ballots that were thrown out, spoiled ballots. We don’t know how many because they wouldn’t tell us. There were thousands of them. And in the end, the person who won this race did not get 50 percent of the votes cast. That’s what we were promised, you know, whoever wins is going to get 50 percent of the vote. Didn’t happen.” [WVOM, GHRT Rewind, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/18/19] (AUDIO) 7:54

November 2019: Poliquin Stated Ranked-Choice Voting System Yielded “Inherent” “Broken Promises, Confusion And Voter Fraud.” “The former congressman from Maine’s 2nd District, who lost his seat a year ago in the first federal race with ranked-choice voting, is speaking up in a bid to stymie the spread of an election system he views as ‘the biggest voter rip-off in Maine history.’ An outspoken critic of the system in Maine, Poliquin earlier this month urged a Massachusetts legislative committee looking into the possibility of adopting the system in the Bay State to ‘reject the broken promises, confusion and voter fraud inherent in rank voting. Don’t be hoodwinked like we were.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/19/19]

• Poliquin Claimed The 2018 Campaign Proved Ranked-Choice Voting Did Not Diminish Influence Of Money In Politics And Was “The Nastiest On Record Up Here.” “Poliquin said the arguments for the change, including assertions it would ‘get big money out of political campaign’ and that races ‘would become more civil’ proved untrue. Instead, the race wound up costing more than $30 million and proved, Poliquin said, ‘the nastiest on record up here.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/19/19]

2019 – 2020: Poliquin Called Ranked-Choice Voting A “Complete Scam” That “Was Introduced By Liberal Activists, Democratic Activists, To Make Sure They Win Elections Here In The State Of Maine”

April 2019: Poliquin Called Ranked-Choice Voting A “Scam” That Empowered Out-Of-State Interests. “Former U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin called ranked-choice voting a ‘complete scam’ puppeteered by out-of-state influences, speaking Tuesday evening in front of a Colby College audience. He shared his perspective on the process at a talk sponsored by Colby Republicans, a student organization. ‘It’s no longer the best candidate; it’s how you game the system,’ he said. Specifically, Poliquin said that the ranked-choice voting method gave the people who voted for the candidates with the fewest votes ‘a second bite of the apple.’ ‘You have more of a decision who gets seated in Congress even though you voted for people who are least representative of the district,’ he said.” [Kennebec Journal, 4/2/19]
Poliquin Claimed Ranked-Choice Voting “Was Introduced By Liberal Activists, Democratic Activists, To Make Sure They Win Elections Here In The State Of Maine.” “On Tuesday at Colby, Poliquin told a crowd of roughly 30 students and community members that John Arnold, a Texas billionaire, ‘funded a lot of initiatives, paid people to collect the signatures (to get ranked-choice voting on the ballot) and put the ads on.’ He emphasized that in 2016, when Maine voters approved ranked-choice voting, 26 percent of registered voters cast ballots on the referendum. The Committee for Ranked Choice Voting in Maine, which currently has 40 Republican endorsements on its website, lobbied for ranked-choice voting since at least 2015. ‘It was not introduced to get the best candidate,’ Poliquin said. ‘It was introduced by liberal activists, Democratic activists, to make sure they win elections here in the state of Maine.’” [Kennebec Journal, 4/2/19]

2020: Poliquin Said Ranked Choice Voting Was “Horrible,” “Unfair,” And Pushed By “Big Money, Out Of State Folks.” POLIQUIN: “I think it’s horrible. Here you see again ranked voting is a way for liberal candidates who pose as independents to harvest second place votes to push those second place votes, extra votes to the Democrat candidate so they can win close elections. This is not a Maine idea. Maine has always been one person, one vote. We did everything we could to deep six this thing but the big money, out of state folks come up here to influence how we live and how we vote, and they’re able to get this on the ballot. It is a real issue, and it’s unfair. Because all of a sudden it’s not head to head between the two best candidates. How do you game the system to scam a close election?” [WVOM, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 10/19/20] (AUDIO) 10:20

November 2020: Poliquin: “Rank Voting Was Designed By Out-Of-State Activists To Confuse And Discourage You From Going To The Polls And To Harvest 2nd Choice Votes To Win Close Elections For Liberal Candidates.” “Rank voting was designed by out-of-state activists to confuse and discourage you from going to the polls and to harvest 2nd choice votes to win close elections for liberal candidates. So, keep it simple and protect your vote by marking your choice for President Donald J. Trump in each of the columns 1-6 across the ballot left to right, as pictured below.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 10/22/20]

February 2020: Poliquin Claimed “Soros And These Other Billionaires Sent A Ton Of Money Up In Here” To Pass Ranked-Choice Voting. “This is not like in the past, where Soros and these other billionaires sent a ton of money up in here, and political activists were able to fool about 15% of registered voters in Maine. That’s how they passed this scam. Now everybody’s going to the polls during a presidential election and they can weigh in on this: repealrankedchoice.com.” [WVOM FM, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 2/17/20] (AUDIO) 4:02

2019 – 2020: Kennebec Journal Columnist And Ranked-Choice Advocates: Poliquin Lost In Ranked-Choice Voting Because He “Dismissed His Opponent’s Supporters”

Tom Waddell Column: Poliquin Lost In Ranked-Choice Voting Because He “Dismissed His Opponent’s Supporters.” “One thing Mainers like about ranked-choice voting is it encourages candidates to reach out to and understand their opponent’s base. We saw this process in action during the 2018 2nd District congressional election between Jared Golden, Bruce Poliquin and two independent candidates. Golden took the time to reach out to and understand his opponent’s supporters, but Poliquin dismissed his opponent’s supporters. The initial vote count showed Poliquin had a marginal lead, but when the two candidates with the least votes were eliminated and their supporters’ second choices were counted — the same process used in any run-off election — Golden earned more of those second-choice votes. Because Golden reached out to his opponent’s supporters and showed he understood their concerns, he won the election with more than 50% of the total votes cast. If Poliquin had recognized the benefits of ranked-choice voting and reached out to his opponent’s supporters, he may have won the election with the same voting system he wants to repeal.” [Kennebec Journal, Tom Waddell Column, 4/10/20]

FairVote President Rob Richie: Poliquin Lost In 2018 Because “He Didn’t Run A Campaign Designed To Get Over 50 Percent.” “And Rob Richie, president of the Maryland-based nonprofit FairVote that helped push the new method of casting ballots, added, ‘I hope that the congressman will reflect on what seemed to be true: He didn’t run a campaign designed to get over 50 percent.’ Richie said Poliquin ‘was publicly dismissive’ of the independents — Tiffany Bond and Will Hoar — and lost his chance to win over the nearly one in 10 voters who picked them first on Election Day. In a district ‘with more independent-minded swing voters than most,’ Richie said, ‘you need to do a better job seeking to represent more than half of them.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/19/19]

February – September 2020: Poliquin Supported A Republican Petition To Hold A Referendum On Maine’s Ranked-Choice Voting System For Presidential Elections

February 2020: Poliquin Supported A Republican Petition To Hold A Referendum On Maine’s Ranked-Choice Voting System For Presidential Elections. “The Maine Republican Party announced Tuesday that it is launching a petition drive to put a question on the November ballot asking voters whether they want to repeal the law that extends ranked-choice voting to presidential elections. [...] Poliquin said in a call-in radio show with Portland’s WGAN Tuesday morning that he supports his party’s petition drive. ‘I am really upset about how they monkeyed around with my one-person, one-vote right because of this rank voting scam, as I call it, because I really believe that,’ Poliquin said.” [Portland Press Herald, 2/4/20]

February 2020: Poliquin: “PUSH STARTS TO REPEAL RANK VOTING SCAM FOR MAINE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS [...] Spread The Good Word!” “PUSH STARTS TO REPEAL RANK VOTING SCAM FOR MAINE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS [...] The Maine Constitution prohibits the Governor and State Legislators to be selected by rank voting. However, a couple years ago, out-of-state political activists poured millions of advertising dollars into Maine to convince a small minority of voters (15%) to pass the convoluted rank voting fraud. The black box process is used to harvest extra votes and change the common sense one-person, one-vote system used in the Pine Tree State for 200 years. Last year, a survey of registered GOP voters who did not go to the polls in 2018 said confusion over rank voting was the number one reason (26%). It’s not fair to monkey around with our sacred right to vote, and to confuse and discourage seniors from casting their ballots. Here’s our chance to deep six the rank voting scam for the presidential election on November 3 and, at the same time, allow nearly 700,000 expected voters to decide once-and-for-all the fate of rank voting in future presidential elections in Maine. Spread the good word!” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 2/4/20]

May 2020: Poliquin Advocated For A Petition To End Ranked-Choice Voting In Presidential Elections, Which He Claimed “Target[ed] President Donald Trump With The Rank Voting Trickery.” “Against tremendous odds, common sense Mainers are closing in on collecting the 65,000 signatures needed to end the confusing ranked choice voting scam for November’s presidential election. Last year, Governor Janet Mills and her far left Democrat majority in Augusta quietly passed a new law targeting President Donald Trump with the rank voting trickery. Maine voters of all political stripes have become alarmed about losing their one-person, one-vote Constitutional right. The confusing rank voting fraud was brought to the Pine Tree State by outside political activists backed by millions of dollars of special interest funding.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 5/21/20]

September 2020: After The Maine Supreme Court Denied The Petition, Poliquin Wrote, This “Unfair Decision Denies Tens Of Thousands Of Mainers Their Voice.” “However, today, the Maine Supreme Court overruled that decision saying two signature collectors did not register to vote in their towns before starting to collect the signatures, even though they did register before turning in their petitions. This unfair decision denies tens of thousands of Mainers their voice, and serves as a painful reminder of the importance to vote in every election.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 9/22/20]

March 2020: Poliquin Claimed That Under Ranked-Choice Voting People Could Cast Multiple Votes, Not All Votes Were Counted, And Seniors And Others Were Discouraged By The Process

Eventually Counted, And Some Are Not.” “Under ranked voting, citizens rank candidates in order of preference on one ballot. The first-choice votes are tallied, and, if a candidate receives a majority of the votes cast in this round, that candidate wins. If nobody receives a majority in the first round, the last-place finisher is eliminated, and his or her votes are redistributed to the higher-performing candidates according to voters’ second choices. The process continues until more than 50% of the votes are assigned to one of the candidates. In other words, citizens can cast multiple votes. Some are eventually counted, and some are not.” [Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, Washington Examiner, 3/18/20]

3/18/20: Poliquin Editorial: “The Worst Unfairness Of Ranked Voting Is How It Confuses And Discourages Many Seniors And Others From Casting Ballots.” “The worst unfairness of ranked voting is how it confuses and discourages many seniors and others from casting ballots. After the 2018 election, a survey of GOP voters who decided not to go to the polls listed confusion over ranked voting (26%) as the main reason for not participating in the election. Our sacred constitutional right to vote should be easy, fair, and invite participation, not suppress it.” [Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, Washington Examiner, 3/18/20]

August 2020: Poliquin Claimed The Goal Of RCV Was “Harvest Second Place Votes For Liberal Candidates To Win Close Elections”

August 2020: Poliquin Claimed The Goal Of RCV Was “Harvest Second Place Votes For Liberal Candidates To Win Close Elections.” “Ranked choice voting is the confusing, complicated, black box vote tabulation system brought to Maine by out-of-state liberal activists, funded by far-left special interests. Their goal is to replace our Constitutional one-person, one-vote system used successfully for 200 years in order to harvest second place votes for liberal candidates to win close elections.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 8/11/20]

August 2021: Poliquin Said His Team Had “A Plan To Deal With” Ranked-Choice Voting And Said He Hoped Democrats “Won’t Game The System Again”

August 2021: Poliquin Said His Team Had “A Plan To Deal With” Ranked-Choice Voting And Said He Hoped Democrats “Won’t Game The System Again.” “Poliquin, though, doesn't accept that he ever lost the seat to begin with. ‘I won this seat three times - 2014, 2016, 2018 - but was only seated twice because of ranked vote,’ he said in a radio interview Thursday. In the interview with WVOM-FM in Bangor, Poliquin said this time around, his campaign is ready to deal with ranked-choice voting. ‘We're going into this with our eyes wide open,’ Poliquin said, adding that ‘we have a plan to deal with that.’ Poliquin, 67, also expressed hope that Democrats ‘won't try to game the system again’ this year. There is no evidence that anyone gamed the system in 2018, when Poliquin lost by 3,509 votes to Golden, 38, a former state representative from Lewiston.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/6/21]

Election Interference Allegations

November 2018: Poliquin Claimed Ballot Boxes Were Not Secured, But Never Filed A Complaint With Maine’s Secretary Of State Over The Allegation

Poliquin’s Campaign And Maine Republican Party Circulated Photos Of Ballot Boxes And Claimed They Were Unlocked. “Dunlap was responding to comments made Saturday by Brendan Conley, a spokesman for the campaign of U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, whose contest against Democrat Jared Golden was not conclusive on Election Day and instead will be resolved by ranked-choice voting tabulations. Conley said ballot boxes appear to have been mishandled during the ranked-choice process underway in the state capital. He sent several photos to the Portland Press Herald that he claimed showed unlocked ballot boxes.” [Kennebec Journal, 11/12/18]

Maine Secretary Of State Dunlap: “Rest Assured, All Ballot Boxes Containing Actual Ballots Are Not Only Locked But Also Have A Serialized Seal That Cannot Be Reconnected.” “Dunlap, who has not seen the photos, said he has not received any complaints about unpaddedlock ballot boxes. He said Saturday night the state has a ‘very rigorous’ chain of custody for ballots, ‘from the printing press to when they're sealed in a ballot box and beyond.’ He also said the boxes that arrived in Augusta without locks contained material irrelevant to the ranked-choice tabulation, such as voter lists. ‘Rest assured, all ballot boxes containing actual ballots are not only locked but also have a serialized seal that cannot be reconnected,’ the Secretary of State's Office tweeted Saturday night. ‘The chain of custody for Mainers’ ballots is very strict and anyone involved in the transport process must sign off on it.’” [Kennebec Journal, 11/12/18]

Maine Secretary Of State Said His Office Did Not Receive Any Complaints About Allegedly Unpadlocked Ballot Boxes. “Dunlap was responding to comments made Saturday by Brendan Conley, a spokesman for the campaign of Poliquin, R-2nd District, whose contest against Democrat Jared Golden was not conclusive on Election Day and instead will be resolved by ranked-choice voting tabulations. Conley said ballot boxes appear to have been mishandled during the ranked-choice process underway in the state capital. • Lewiston Sun Journal’s Bill Nemitz: Poliquin And The Maine Republican Party Did Not File Complaints About Alleged Breaches In Ballot Security “Because, As They Well Know, There Were None.” “Yet for all their rumor mongering about a system that in fact performed perfectly, Poliquin and the Republicans have yet to file a formal complaint laying out their allegations about breaches in ballot security. That’s because, as they well know, there were none.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Bill Nemitz Column, 11/16/18]

November 2018: Poliquin Claimed A Bangor Clerk Illegally Counted Absentee Ballots Without Supervision; Maine Secretary Of State Said No Such Complaint Was Filed

Poliquin Spokesperson Claimed A Bangor Polling Clerk “Was Tabulating Absentee Ballots On Her Own And Without Any Election Monitoring, Which Is Illegal.” “U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin's campaign on Saturday said it's clear the congressman won a third term in Tuesday's election and expressed concerns about the handling of ballots during the ranked-choice voting tabulation now underway in Augusta. Brendan Conley, a spokesman for Poliquin, said the concerns are related to the ballots and ballot boxes that arrived in Augusta, including some that were missing locks. ‘There is also a report of a clerk at the Bangor polling station who was tabulating absentee ballots on her own and without any election monitoring, which is illegal,’ Conley said in an email. ‘These are certainly concerning.’” [Portland Press Herald, 11/10/18]

• Maine Republican Party Executive Director Recorded Video Of Bangor City Clerk That Purportedly Showed Her Illegally Tabulating Votes. “[Executive Director of the Maine Republican Party Jason] Savage said he videotaped the clerk at the Bangor polling place on election night counting absentee ballots without election monitoring. He said the video was sent to the Secretary of State's Office.” [Kennebec Journal, 11/12/18]

Maine Secretary Of State Matthew Dunlap Stated He Did Not Receive A Complaint About The Bangor Polling Station. “Dunlap has said he received no complaints about the issue at the Bangor polling station.” [Kennebec Journal, 11/12/18]

November 2018: Poliquin Falsely Claimed Voting Tabulation Software Distorted Votes And Requested A Hand Recount Of Ballots, Then Retracted The Request With The Recount In Progress

Poliquin’s Spokesperson Claimed “Black Box” Elections Software Distorted Votes

Poliquin’s Spokesperson Claimed “Black Box” Elections Software Distorted Votes: “No One Is Able To Review The Software Or Computer Algorithm Used By A Computer To Determine Elections.” “[Poliquin spokesperson Brendan] Conley said Poliquin has ‘heard from countless Maine voters who were confused and even frightened their votes did not count due to computer-engineered rank voting. ‘Furthermore, we have become aware that the computer software and ‘black box’ voting system utilized by the secretary of state is secret,’ he said. ‘No one is able to review the software or computer algorithm used by a computer to determine elections. This artificial intelligence is not transparent.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/26/18]

Maine’s Secretary Of State Said The Software Had Been “Used For Years” And Denied The Election Results Had Been Distorted

Maine’s Secretary Of State Denied That Election Results Were Distorted By Software That The State “Has Used For Years.” “Dunlap scoffed at the secrecy argument. He said Poliquin’s campaign asked about the software used to count the ballots and was told the state had to keep details confidential for security purposes. ‘You don’t put something like that out there for hackers to use,’ Dunlap said. He said the state paid Nebraska-based Election Systems & Software, which the state has used for years, to come up with the software needed to count the paper ballots Maine relies on. Dunlap said the tabulators in past recounts have proven 99.9 percent accurate and he expects that will happen once again with the congressional recount.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/26/18]

December 2018: A Bates College Professor Used Publicly Available Raw Election Data To Recreate Maine Secretary Of State’s Vote Totals To One Hundredth Of A Percent. “The Maine secretary of state's office has published all the election results on its website — every ballot, every ranking in every town. It's all there in massive data files that can be inspected and downloaded. So [Bates College Chair of Economics Nathan] Tefft took that data and plugged it into Python, a program that allows users to write code that calculates the data — in this case, to simulate the ranked-choice election. Now, it's true that the software the state uses is proprietary. But the rules that are used by that software are just as public as the election results. ‘Because the rules are publicly available I could implement those rules myself and then replicate the process directly,’ he said. So that's what Teft did, plugging in rules for all the various ballot scenarios. After about six hours, Tefft came up with a final tally for the election and the runoff: Golden received 50.62 percent of the vote, and Poliquin received 49.38 percent. The state results? 50.62 percent for Golden, 49.38 for Poliquin. ‘Yeah, it's just math,’ Teft said.” [Bangor Daily News, 12/2/18]

11/26/18: Poliquin Requested A Recount Of The Election By Hand By Maine’s Secretary Of State To Avoid Maine’s “‘BLACK BOX’ Voting System”

11/26/18: Poliquin Requested A Recount Of The Election By Hand By Maine’s Secretary Of State, Citing Concerns With The “Transparency Of The ‘Computer-Engineered’ Ranked-Choice Voting Results.” “Secretary of state's office estimates hand recount could take up to 1 month Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin requested a recount Monday of results in Maine's 2nd Congressional District race, citing concerns about the transparency of the ‘computer-engineered’ ranked-choice voting results. To overturn the election results, Poliquin will have to erase a more than 3,500-vote lead Democrat Jared Golden holds after the nation's first use of ranked-choice voting to decide a congressional election. In a statement, Poliquin's campaign talked about ‘frightened’ voters as well as the use of ‘artificial intelligence’ and ‘black box’ voting systems to decide the outcome of Maine's historic election.” [Portland Press Herald, 11/26/18]

- 11/26/18: Poliquin: “The Computer Software And ‘BLACK-BOX’ Voting System Utilized By The Secretary Of State Is Secret. […] Today, We Are Proceeding With A Traditional Ballot Recount Conducted By Real People.” “BREAKING: We have heard from countless Maine voters who were confused and even frightened their votes did not count due to computer-engineered rank voting. Furthermore, we have become aware that the computer software and "BLACK-BOX" voting system utilized by the Secretary of State is secret. No one is able to review the software or computer algorithm used by a computer to determine elections. This artificial intelligence is not transparent. Therefore, today, we are proceeding with a traditional ballot recount conducted by real people. - Poliquin for Congress, the Poliquin campaign.”
11/27/18: Poliquin On Recount: “This Is Not About Who Wins Or Loses This Election.”  “Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin said Tuesday that a recount in his failed re-election bid is necessary to make sure every vote is counted by hand under Maine's new election system. A day after requesting a recount, Poliquin reiterated his distrust of the ‘black box computer algorithm’ that calculated the final election tally. He told reporters that ‘this is not about who wins or loses this election.’  ‘It would be a heck of a lot easier to walk away from this,’ Poliquin said.” [Associated Press, 11/27/18]

The Recount Could Have Prevented Maine’s Secretary Of State From Certifying Election Results Before Congressional Swearing-In And Left Maine’s Second District Seat Vacant. “Poliquin asked for the recount Nov. 26 after Golden was declared the winner. Poliquin also has filed a lawsuit in federal court challenging the constitutionality of the ranked-choice system. Courtney Parella, a spokeswoman in Washington, D.C., for the Committee on House Administration, said Thursday that Golden has been participating in new member orientation and was assigned an office suite but wouldn't be sworn in without an election certificate from the state.  ‘We swear in based on when we receive the certificate of election from the state, so until we receive that, the office will remain vacant,’ Parella said. But Kristen Muszynski, a spokeswoman for Maine Secretary of State Matthew Dunlap, said Dunlap would not issue an election certificate in the race until the recount was completed or ended -- a process that could take up to four weeks. However, the recount will break for the holiday week of Dec. 24, and resume on Jan. 3, the date when members of Congress will be sworn into office.” [Portland Press Herald, 12/7/18]

12/14/18: Poliquin Retracted His Request For A Hand Recount Of Election Results And Was Required To Reimburse The State $14,560.52 For The Costs Associated Since The Recount Did Not Alter The Results

Poliquin Will Be Required To Reimburse The State

Poliquin was required to reimburse the state for the costs associated since the recount did not alter the election results. Kristen Muszynski, spokeswoman for Secretary of State Matt Dunlap, said work on the recount halted around 11 a.m. Friday after her office received a call from Poliquin’s campaign. By that point, the recount teams from both campaigns as well as Dunlap’s staff had gone through 165,000 ballots from 320 municipalities, which represents more than 50 percent of the nearly 300,000 ballots cast on Election Day. Poliquin will be required to reimburse the state for the costs of the recount because it did not change the outcome, per state law. Muszynski said her office did not have a cost estimate yet.” [Portland Press Herald, 12/14/18]

- Poliquin Had To Pay $14,560.52 For The Recount, Including A $5,000 Deposit He Paid For The Recount Started. “Outgoing U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin will have to pay a balance of $9,560 for the 2nd House District recount, which concluded last week, Secretary of State Matt Dunlap said Thursday. […] The recount cost $14,560.52, which includes the $5,000 deposit Poliquin's campaign was required to pay before the ballot re-examination began, Dunlap said. The total amount covers pay for the time it took for Maine State Police troopers to retrieve roughly 296,000 ballots across the far-reaching district — $12,114.36 — and the more than six business days state staff spent overseeing the hand-counting those ballots, which was completed by Poliquin and Golden campaign volunteers — $2,446.16. Poliquin's campaign was also required to provide food for election workers each day of the recount, which amounted to about $150 a day, Dunlap said.” [Bangor Daily News, 12/20/18]

- Poliquin: Republican Voters Stayed Home Because They Were Confused About Ranked-Choice Voting In A “Glaring Instance Of Voter Suppression.” “Poliquin said the No. 1 reason why many GOP voters opted to stay home on Election Day last year was ‘rank vote confusion.’ “Not a day goes by without a fellow Mainer stopping me in the grocery store or at Dunkin’ Donuts to complain about the unfair and confusing process, and angry about his or her sacred vote not counting,’ he said. Poliquin called it ‘a glaring instance of voter suppression, unintended or not.’ Bond called the notion that votes were suppressed ‘absolutely stupid. I met no one who found it confusing.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/19/19]

- November 2018: Poliquin Claimed Ranked-Choice Voting Led To “Huge” Lines At The Polls And Long Wait Times. “And I think that’s one of the reasons it took so long to vote on Election Day. I was up at the Bangor polling station, the largest one in our district, from about seven in the morning til eight at night, in fact I was there from seven in the morning til eight at night. And the lines were huge, it took […] forever. Some folks were waiting one to two hours, some folks just gave up and left because it was so long. Now, one of the reasons is because voter turnout was so high. The second is because of this chaotic rank voice process that has never been used here in the state of Maine before.” [News Center Maine YouTube, 11/27/18] (VIDEO) 5:23

Portland Press Herald: Poliquin’s Campaign Could Not Provide Evidence For Its Claims Of Chaos At The Polls Other Than Social Media Comments. “However, Poliquin's campaign couldn't provide any evidence of chaos or confusion on Election Day other than to point to comments on social media and the campaign's Facebook page. “Maine’s secretary of state fired back at critics – including Poliquin’s campaign and his lawyers – for characterizing the process of gathering and preparing ballots for the ranked-choice tabulations as ‘confusing’ and ‘chaotic.’ The entire process was closely watched – and often videotaped – by attorneys from both campaigns as well as members of the media. ‘To characterize this, as it has been characterized, as ‘chaotic,’ ‘confusing’ and I believe the word ‘circus’ has been used … it just demeaned what the voters have done,’ said Dunlap, a Democrat. ‘And anybody who has doubts about this process is welcome to come to these public forums and watch us do our work.’” [Portland Press Herald, 11/15/18]

11/27/18: Poliquin Claimed “Thousands And Thousands” Of Ballots Were Set Aside On Election Day, Which Was “Very, Very Unusual.” “Poliquin on Tuesday tried to cast doubt on the election results. He said his campaign received reports from ‘hundreds of people’ about confusion with the new ranked voting system, including conflicting instructions to voters at the polls. Poliquin also claimed that ‘thousands and thousands’ of ballots were set aside. ‘That is very, very unusual,’ he said.” [Associated Press, 11/27/18]

These new Rank Votes, counted apparently with no observers using the computerized Rank Vote process, the Democrat Secretary of State said increases my political opponent’s Rank Vote total by hundreds of votes. What is still certain however is that I received the most votes under the ‘one-person, one-vote’ standard on Election Day. This is very concerning and casts further doubt and confusion over the entire Rank election process.”

Poliquin Claimed “Hundreds Of Additional Votes” Could Have Been Overlooked, Which Maine’s Secretary Of State Denied

11/26/18: Maine Secretary Of State’s Office Released Corrected Vote Totals After It Discovered 6,100 Ballots Had Been Fed Into An Incompatible Tabulation Machine In First Tally Of Votes. “When Secretary of State Matt Dunlap recently certified the results of the race, Democrat Jared Golden’s lead over Republican incumbent U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin was 600 votes more than the number announced Nov. 15 following the ranked-choice tally. The bump gave the victor a lead of more than 3,500 votes. […] The votes from six towns, though, were always there, state officials said. They hadn’t been counted properly because of a glitch in the system that elections workers didn’t discover until just before they went home for Thanksgiving vacation, according to Kristen Muszynski, Dunlap’s communications director. More than 6,100 ExpressVote ballots from the towns — Monroe, Blue Hill, Otis, Van Buren, Mars Hill and Brewer — had been mistakenly fed into a tabulating machine that couldn’t actually count them, she said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/27/18]

Maine Secretary Of State Spokesperson: “This Is Nothing New Or Different Than What We Do For Every Other Election.” “Dunlap's office on Monday sent out official results that included about 6,000 additional votes that weren’t included in that tally. Officials said the error occurred due to votes not uploading properly into election software at polling places in six cities. Maine's official results show Golden won with 142,440 votes and Poliquin with 138,931 votes. ‘This is nothing new or different than what we do for every other election,’ Muszynski said. ‘It’s part of the work to make sure everything's accurate.’” [Associated Press, 11/27/18]

All Claims Of Second District Ballots Distributed To The First District Surfaced After Election Day. “There is a varying degree of certainty in the affidavits and it doesn't seem as though any complaints were raised until after Election Day. Affidavits came from 17 voters who are certain to varying degrees that they had the wrong ballot.
Some signed form affidavits saying they ‘swear’ they voted for U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, who lost the 2nd District race to Democrat Jared Golden. Maine’s Secretary Of State Spokesperson: Tabulators In Maine’s 1st Congressional District Would Not Be Able To Read Votes Cast In Maine’s 2nd Congressional District Race. “I reached out to Secretary of State Matthew Dunlap's office for comment on this and whether or not such claims made any consequential impact on the results in Maine's 2nd Congressional District. Here is what spokeswoman Kristen Muszynski told me: ‘In the towns that use tabulators, (Boothbay and Boothbay Harbor) their memory sticks are programmed and tested to only accept the ballot style for that municipality (including, in these cases, only Congressional District 1). If the printing contractor had mistakenly included a few ballots that are the wrong ballot style for that municipality (occasionally it can happen when ballots are being cut and shrink wrapped), the tabulator would not accept it – it would be incapable of reading it – and would have given an error message on the screen and required the ballot to be returned.’” [Independent Voter Network, 12/6/18]

Poliquin Claimed The Ranked-Choice Voting System Caused A Sharp Increase In The Number Of Voters Failing To Select A Candidate In His Congressional Race

December 2018: Poliquin Claimed Ranked-Choice Voting System Resulted In More Voters Failing To Select A Candidate In His Congressional Race. “During a press conference last week at the Portland’s International Jetport, the two-term Republican, who is challenging his defeat, said one of his concerns is Maine’s new voting system caused a sharp increase in the number of ballots for which voters failed to pick someone in Maine’s 2nd District congressional race. ‘There are thousands and thousands of underballots that have been put aside,’ Poliquin said. ‘That is very, very unusual.’ The incumbent, who lost to Democrat Jared Golden of Lewiston, said in a typical race there ‘might be a few hundred’ ballots that are left blank. ‘But here, there’ve been thousands and thousands of underballots,’ Poliquin said. ‘And how do you deal with those? That’s an issue.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Steve Collins Column, 12/3/18]

The Lewiston Sun Journal Reported That Underballots In Maine’s 2nd District Were More Common During Poliquin’s Successful Elections Than The One He Lost In 2018

Lewiston Sun Journal’s Steve Collins: Underballots In Maine’s 2nd Congressional District Were More Common In Poliquin’s Successful 2014 And 2016 Elections Than In 2018. “The reality, though, is voters in this election cast more ballots indicating a preference in Poliquin’s race than they did in both 2014 and 2016, the two races the Oakland Republican won. Rob Richie, president of Fair Vote, a group devoted to overhauling the way American election operate, said numbers distributed by Maine’s Secretary of State’s Office showed there were more than twice as many blank votes in the 2016 congressional contest as there were this year. The numbers he cited for races in 2014, 2016 and 2018 match up with results released by the Secretary of State Matt Dunlap. Richie said statistics show in 2014, when Poliquin was first elected, 11,532 voters in the district who cast ballots but did not select anyone in the congressional race. Two years ago, there were 12,703 voters who did not make a pick in the congressional race when Poliquin defeated Democrat Emily Cain. This year, 6,018 ballots were cast by voters who left the congressional race blank on their ballots, Rich said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Steve Collins Column, 12/3/18]

Judge Lance Walker Discounted Testimony That Argued More Voters Failed To Choose A Viable Candidate

Judge Lance Walker Discounted Testimony That Argued More Voters Failed To Choose A Viable Candidate Since It Assumed “That Those Voters Are Cognitively Unable To Fill Out A RCV Ballot.”

“Further, I am not persuaded by Dr. Gimpel’s testimony which attributes inherent virtue in the forced simplicity of two-party access to the ballot, thereby making easier the voters’ choice. He testified to what he perceived as a troubling reality that Maine has a low threshold for non-party candidates to gain access to the ballot. His thesis, as I understand it, is that by allowing for choices among several non-major-party candidates, voter turnout is likely to be comprised of a greater percentage of low-information voters, which apparently makes more likely that those voters are cognitively unable to fill out a RCV ballot.” [Judge Walker Judgment, Barber et al v. Dunlap et al, First Circuit Court of Appeals, PACER, 12/13/18]

- Judge Walker: The Testimony Was “Not Grounded In Anything Approaching A Reliable Standard That May Be Informative Of The Constitutional Questions.” “In addition to being cynical, these conclusions are not grounded in anything approaching a reliable standard that may be informative of the constitutional questions. They are instead provocative reactions to a new system of selecting representatives to Congress, and such reactions often are the byproduct of change. Dr. Gimpel’s testimony left me with the impression of a panel debate among political scientists in a nascent field of study. To his credit, Dr, Gimpel conceded that he has not discussed the RCV experience with a single Maine voter but would like to conduct such a study. In the meantime, I simply am unable to credit his testimony any weight on the constitutional issues before the Court.” [Judge Walker Judgment, Barber et al v. Dunlap et al, First Circuit Court of Appeals, PACER, 12/13/18]
Poliquin’s Campaign Did Not Submit Any Complaints To Maine’s Secretary Of State Regarding The Issues It Claimed Compromised The 2018 Election

When Asked If The Campaign Would File Any Complaints With Maine’s Secretary Of State, Poliquin’s Spokesperson Directed Questions To The Maine Republican Party, Then Stopped Responding. “Asked whether the Poliquin campaign had concerns about ballots before heading into RCV or if the campaign planned to file a complaint with the Secretary of State’s Office, Conley referred questions to Savage. Savage said the party would let candidates file official complaints. Conley did not respond to a follow-up email asking whether the campaign planned to do so.” [Ellsworth American, 11/12/18]

- When Asked If The Maine Republican Party Would File Any Complaints With Maine’s Secretary Of State, The Party’s Executive Director Said It Would Let Poliquin’s Campaign File Them. “Jason Savage, executive director of the Maine Republican Party, said in an email that ‘We do not have evidence of vote tampering. We are not making an accusation of vote tampering.’ [...] Asked whether the Poliquin campaign had concerns about ballots before heading into RCV or if the campaign planned to file a complaint with the Secretary of State’s Office, Conley referred questions to Savage. Savage said the party would let candidates file official complaints.” [Ellsworth American, 11/12/18]

As Of November 12, 2018, A Spokesperson For Maine’s Secretary Of State Said The Office “Had Received No Correspondence From The Poliquin Campaign.” “‘We did have a few clerks forget to put the padlock on,’ said Maine Secretary of State’s Office spokeswoman Kristen Muszynski, ‘but the seal is a more important component.’ [...] Any resident can file a complaint with the Secretary of State’s Office, said Muszynski, who added that the office had received no correspondence from the Poliquin campaign.” [Ellsworth American, 11/12/18]

Maine Secretary Of State Matthew Dunlap Stated He Did Not Receive A Complaint About The Bangor Polling Station, Where Poliquin’s Spokesperson Alleged A Clerk Counted Ballots Without Monitoring. “Conley said ballot boxes appear to have been mishandled during the ranked-choice process underway in the state capital. He sent several photos to the Portland Press Herald that he claimed showed unlocked ballot boxes. He also claimed there was a report of a clerk at a polling station in Bangor who was counting absentee ballots without any election monitoring, which is illegal. [...] Dunlap has said he received no complaints about the issue at the Bangor polling station.” [Kennebec Journal, 11/12/18]

Maine Secretary Of State Said His Office Did Not Receive Any Complaints About Allegedly Unpadlocked Ballot Boxes. “Dunlap was responding to comments made Saturday by Brendan Conley, a spokesman for the campaign of Poliquin, R-2nd District, whose contest against Democrat Jared Golden was not conclusive on Election Day and instead will be resolved by ranked-choice voting tabulations. Conley said ballot boxes appear to have been mishandled during the ranked-choice process underway in the state capital. [...] Dunlap, who has not seen the photos, said he has not received any complaints about unpadlocked ballot boxes.” [Portland Press Herald, 11/11/18]

Maine’s Secretary Of State And Editorialists: Poliquin Damaged Faith In Elections Through His Lawsuit And Misleading Criticism Of Ranked-Choice Voting

Maine Secretary Of State Dunlap On Poliquin’s Election Interference Allegations: “It Could Get People Thinking There Is Something Wrong”

Maine Secretary Of State Dunlap On Poliquin’s Election Interference Allegations: “It Could Get People Thinking There Is Something Wrong.” “Maine Secretary of State Matthew Dunlap criticized the campaign of U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin on Sunday for its allegations about mishandled ballot boxes, saying the charges could cause voters to lose confidence in the voting system. ‘I feel like I should reach out to the campaign and say, ‘Let us do our work before you assume there is something nefarious happening.” Dunlap said.” [Kennebec Journal, 11/12/18]

- Dunlap: Poliquin’s Campaign Told Media Of Alleged Election Interference Instead Of Filing Complaints With His Office: “I Am Pretty Frustrated By This.” Dunlap said Sunday that Poliquin's campaign has raised no complaints or sent any photographs of the mishandling of ballot boxes to him. ‘Rather than ask questions, they are going to the media. My entire stock in trade here is based not on the outcome of the election but on voter confidence. I am pretty frustrated by this,’ Dunlap said.” [Kennebec Journal, 11/12/18]

Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: Poliquin Was “Undermining Democracy And The Rule Of Law For His Own Gain” By Claiming Victory In 2018 Race

Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: Poliquin Was “Undermining Democracy And The Rule Of Law For His Own Gain” By Claiming Victory In 2018 Race. “In other words, Maine voters wanted federal elections run with ranked-choice voting, and the Constitution doesn’t forbid it, so that’s the way it is. Everything else – including all the allegations pushed by Poliquin – is just noise. That includes the repeated assertion that because Poliquin received the most votes in the first round – that he got ‘more votes on Election Day’ – he was somehow entitled to the seat. With this claim, Poliquin is simply undermining democracy and the rule of law for his own gain. But those ‘Election Day’ numbers are essentially meaningless – Poliquin didn’t get the first-round majority needed to win. Besides, who knows how people would have voted if ranked-choice voting hadn’t been in play?” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 12/28/18]

Greg Kesich Editorial: Poliquin “Attack[ed] The Honesty And Trustworthiness Of The Election Process Itself.” Poliquin made a rare public appearance to declare that he “won the constitutional ‘one person, one vote’ election,” which is nonsense, not least because the phrase “one person, one vote” isn’t even in the Constitution. But we do have the 14th Amendment, which guarantees equal protection of the law. That’s a standard that this vote-counting system meets, whether you like it or not. Advertisement It’s easy to write off all the griping as the kind of thing that people say when their candidate loses a close election. But what’s happening here could be more sinister. Poliquin isn’t just challenging a controversial election reform. He’s attacking the honesty and trustworthiness of the election process itself.” [Portland Press Herald, Greg Kesich Editorial, 12/9/18]

Lewiston Sun Journal’s Bill Nemitz: Poliquin “Resorted To Seeding Groundless Doubt About The Integrity Of The Election”

Lewiston Sun Journal’s Bill Nemitz: Poliquin “Resorted To Seeding Groundless Doubt About The Integrity Of The Election” After Losing Under Ranked-Choice Voting System. “In other words, the man simply refuses to lose. What's worse, as his lawsuit careens toward a crash landing before Judge Walker sometime next month, Poliquin's campaign has resorted to seeding groundless doubt about the integrity of the election itself.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Bill Nemitz Column, 11/16/18]

Kennebec Journal Editorial Board Headline: “Poliquin Should Stop Trashing The Election”

- Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: “It Does No Good For Maine To Have A Member Of Congress Claim — Without Evidence — That Our Elections Are Rigged.” “We expect that Poliquin will lose his case, but he was right to bring this challenge, because unsubstantiated claims about the constitutionality of ranked-choice voting will be a distraction until the questions are decided in court. But it does no good for Maine to have a member of Congress claim — without evidence — that our elections are rigged. People need to accept that elections are honest, and that starts with the candidates who lose.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 11/29/18]

- Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: “It’s Time For Poliquin To Let His Lawyers Do The Talking And Go Back To Wherever He’s Been Hiding From Cameras And Reporters Since Taking Office Four Years Ago.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 11/29/18]

- Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: Poliquin Was “ Trying To Stir Up Public Panic About The Honesty Of Maine’s Elections” With “Hysterical Squawking” Because He Lost. “But Poliquin is not only suing, but also demanding a recount of every ballot and trying to stir up public panic about the honesty of Maine’s elections. The megaphone of the Maine Republican Party is amplifying Poliquin’s false alarms, claiming that his voters were confused and frightened by a ballot that asked whether they wanted to express a second choice. While the lawsuit seeks to resolve questions and create a predictable path forward, Poliquin’s hysterical squawking about ‘artificial intelligence’ and a secret ‘algorithm’ just sows chaos and distrust. Poliquin is a sophisticated, Harvard-trained investment banker, and he knows that there is no ‘algorithm’ at work, just simple arithmetic. He has a right to make sure that the election was honest, but the people of Maine also have rights, chief among them that Poliquin won’t use his position of trust to poison public confidence in the whole system just because he may have lost the election.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 11/29/18]

- First-Time Voter’s Editorial: Poliquin’s “Efforts To Change The Result Of Maine’s Second Congressional District’s Election Perilous For Our Democratic Process.” “Democracy requires fair voting processes and clear rules. It’s healthy and necessary to debate the best system for conducting elections, but it is unfair to change the rules once the outcome is known. For that reason, Bruce Poliquin’s recent lawsuit against ranked choice voting was misguided, and his efforts to change the result of Maine’s Second Congressional District’s election perilous for our democratic process.” [Emmett Shell Op-Ed, Lewiston Sun Journal, 12/16/18]

- Editorial: “Poliquin’s Efforts To Change The Results Of The Election Would Have Disenfranchised Me And Thousands Of Fellow Mainers Like Me Who Voted For [Independents] Bond Or Hoar.” “Poliquin’s efforts to change the results of the election would have disenfranchised me and thousands of fellow Mainers like me who voted for Bond or Hoar. Not only was Poliquin trying to change the rules after the game ends, but he was trying to change a good rule that was agreed upon by all four candidates and affirmed twice by the citizens of Maine.” [Emmett Shell Op-Ed, Lewiston Sun Journal, 12/16/18]

- Op-Ed: “Young Voters In Maine, Like Me, Need To Know That Our Elected Officials Are Doing Everything In Their Power To Make Sure Our Votes Count” And “Poliquin Should Be Among Them.” “In this election, more than any midterm in recent history, energized voters from both sides of the aisle sent participation skyrocketing. Young people like me were particularly engaged. The national voting rate among 18- to 29-year-olds increased from 18 percent to 29 percent, the highest percentage in a midterm for more than three decades for this age group. More than voting, we worked on campaigns, talked to our friends, and collectively played a bigger role than usual in deciding our own future. Our national focus now needs to be toward retaining this energy, not finding ways to suppress and discount votes. Young voters in Maine, like me, need to know that our elected officials are doing everything in their power to make sure our votes count. As our congressman, Poliquin should be among them.” [Emmett Shell Op-Ed, Lewiston Sun Journal, 12/16/18]

… But Claimed The 2020 Election Could Be “Determined By Liberal Vote Harvesting Schemes” And “Unsecured Universal Mail-In Voting”

9/22/20: Poliquin Warned Of A Contested Election Due To “Unsecured Universal Mail-In Voting.”

“Upcoming SCOTUS session starts in 2 weeks. President & Senate should abide by Constitution and replace late Justice Ginsburg as soon as possible. A full 9-member bench is needed to decide important issues like possible contested election due to unsecured universal mail-in voting.”

[Bruce Poliquin Twitter, 9/22/20]
• 8/18/20: Poliquin: Vote-By-Mail Sent Ballots To “People Who Have Died, Moved Away Or Don’t Want To Vote!” “Let’s [sic] stop pretending that absentee voting is the same as mail-in voting. One requires a request for a ballot, the other requires ballots to be mailed out to anyone on the voter rolls -- including people who have died, moved away or don't want to vote! https://t.co/bPxjIfq66G?amp=1”

[Bruce Poliquin Twitter, 8/18/20]

9/15/20: Poliquin Claimed The 2020 Election Could Be “Determined By Liberal Vote Harvesting Schemes” And Encouraged Republicans To Volunteer As Poll Watchers. “Pleased to see @mainegop and Trump Victory asking for volunteers to sign up to be trained as poll watchers on November 3. The future of our state and country should not be determined by liberal vote harvesting schemes like the one being pushed by Alliance for Retired Americans.”

[Bruce Poliquin Twitter, 9/15/20]

August 2020: Poliquin: “Mail-In Voting Is Simply Too Susceptible To Fraud.” “The media should start telling the truth about the big difference between secure time-tested absentee voting and unsecured universal mail-in
3/13/21: Poliquin Claimed Vote-By-Mail Access During The 2020 Election Led To Ballot Harvesting By “Political Activists” And Inaccurate Voter Rolls. “Before Election Day 2020, a number of states used their pandemic lockdowns as a reason to change the way residents were required to vote and how to count the ballots. Nevada politicians joined peers in other battleground states to blanket mail live ballots to reportedly inaccurate voter rolls even when residents did not request them. Political activists were allowed to go door-to-door to “harvest” those ballots and, presumably, turn them (or some of them) over to election officials. Swing states Michigan and Wisconsin used unmonitored ballot drop boxes. By passing H.R.1, Democrats in Congress want to allow, and encourage, every state to use this sloppy, unsecure process.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/13/21]

- Poliquin: The For The People Act Would Foster An “Election Circus” By Allowing Extra Time To Count Ballots. “Last November, some states permitted ballots to be counted long after Election Day. Pennsylvania kept counting for three additional days. The election circus unfolded as stakeholders challenged the safekeeping of uncounted ballots days after the polls closed. H.R.1 allows for 10 extra days of counting.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/13/21]

3/4/21: Poliquin Claimed Vote-By-Mail Allowed Election Officials “To Mail Live Ballots To Inaccurate Voter Rolls” And “Political Activists” To “Harvest” Ballots During The 2020 Election. “A number of states used the pandemic as a reason to mail live ballots to inaccurate voter rolls even if they were not requested. Political activists were allowed to go door-to-door to “harvest” those ballots and, presumably, turn them (or some of them) over to election officials. Now, the Democrats in Congress have passed H.R.1 to force this unsecure voting process on all states.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 3/4/21]

March 2021: Poliquin Attacked Measures To Facilitate Absentee Voting

3/13/21: Poliquin: Maine Democrats Pushed “Unsecure Mail-In Ballots, Extended Counting Days, Door-To-Door Ballot Harvesting, No Identification Required At The Polls, Exposed Ballot Drop Boxes, You Name It.” “Extreme liberal lawmakers in Augusta are not waiting to see if H.R.1 becomes a national mandate for all states to adopt. Like the far left Congress in Washington, right now, the Democrat majority in the Maine Legislature is crafting its own voting schemes for the Pine Tree State. Unsecure mail-in ballots, extended counting days, door-to-door ballot harvesting, no identification required at the polls, exposed ballot drop boxes, you name it. If you think ranked-choice voting is a mess, buckle up if the ‘voting reformers’ get their way.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/13/21]

Poliquin: “Common-Sense Mainers Of All Political Stripes Can Agree The Most Secure Way To Vote Is To Show Up At The Polls In Person On Election Day.” “Common-sense Mainers of all political stripes can agree the most secure way to vote is to show up at the polls in person on Election Day. It’s time-tested, simple, fair and accurate. If that’s not possible, straightforward early or absentee voting, requiring signature verification, has worked well in Maine for many years.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/13/21]

For The People Act

3/13/21: Poliquin Editorial: The For The People Act “Will Actually Lead To A Less Transparent, Nationalized System That Invites All Sorts Of Shenanigans.” “Last week, the top-priority H.R.1 bill passed by U.S. House Speaker Nancy Pelosi and her liberal majority aims to nationalize the election chaos millions of Americans witnessed last November. The U.S. Constitution clearly authorizes the states to determine how elections are conducted within their borders, as long as they are free and fair. Even so, Democrats claim their reforms will make it easier for eligible people to vote. The changes, however, will actually lead to a less transparent, nationalized system that invites all sorts of shenanigans.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/13/21]

3/13/21: Poliquin Claimed Vote-By-Mail Access During The 2020 Election Led To Ballot Harvesting By “Political Activists” And Inaccurate Voter Rolls. “Before Election Day 2020, a number of states used their pandemic lockdowns as a reason to change the way residents were required to vote and how to count the ballots. March 2021: Poliquin Claimed The For The People Act Would “Force The Government To Fund Political Campaigns For Federal Offices”

3/13/21: Poliquin: The For The People Act Would “Force The Government To Fund Political Campaigns For Federal Offices.” “Democrats are using this proposed legislation to force the government to fund political campaigns for federal offices. That means the government might pay for those nasty TV and radio ads that fill our cars and living rooms every two years. What a reckless way to add to the already horrific $28 trillion national debt.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/13/21]

3/4/21: Poliquin: The For The People Act “Means You Might Be Paying For Those Nasty And False Tv And Radio Ads Every Two Years At The Federal Level, Too.” “H.R.1 makes your tax dollars fund political campaigns for federal offices. (Maine already uses state taxes to fund campaigns for STATE office.) That means you might be paying for those nasty and false tv and radio ads every two years at the federal level, too.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 3/4/21]

March 2021: Poliquin Claimed The For The People Act Would Give Democrats A “Permanent Majority” Elected By “Government Union Workers” By “Allowing” DC Statehood

March 2021: Poliquin Claimed The For The People Act Would Give Democrats A “Permanent Majority” In The Senate Elected By “Government Union Workers” By “Allowing” DC Statehood. “H.R.1 makes your tax dollars fund political campaigns for federal offices. (Maine already uses state taxes to fund campaigns for STATE office.) That means you might be paying for those nasty and false tv and radio ads every two years at the federal level, too. Lastly, the Democrats aim to become the permanent majority in the U.S. Senate by allowing the District of Columbia to become our 51st state. Washington DC’s 700,000 residents regularly vote more than 90% Democrat. Our nation’s capital directly employs approximately 365,000 federal government union workers.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 3/4/21]

- New York Times: The For The People Act Endorsed The Concept Of DC Statehood But Did Not “Go Beyond That.” “The voting rights bill endorses the concept of statehood with language that declares ‘there are no constitutional, historical, fiscal or economic reasons why the Americans who live in the District of Columbia should not be granted statehood,’ but it does not go beyond that.” [New York Times, 3/26/21]
March 2021: Poliquin Criticized The For The People Act For “Allow[ing] Convicted Murderers And Rapists To Vote”

March 2021: Poliquin Criticized The For The People Act For “Allow[ing] Convicted Murderers And Rapists To Vote.” “Last night, the far left Democrat majority in the U.S. House of Representatives passed an extreme bill to force states to change the way its residents must vote and how the ballots are counted. The U.S. Constitution empowers the states to decide for themselves how voting occurs within their borders so long as it’s fair and accurate. However, Democrats want to nationalize the mess we lived through in November because they believe it would give them an advantage. A number of states used the pandemic as a reason to mail live ballots to inaccurate voter rolls even if they were not requested. Political activists were allowed to go door-to-door to ‘harvest’ those ballots and, presumably, turn them (or some of them) over to election officials. Now, the Democrats in Congress have passed H.R. 1 to force this unsecure voting process on all states. Maine’s two liberal voices in the House, Reps. Chellie Pingree and Jared Golden, joined far left California Congresswomen Nancy Pelosi and Maxine Waters and other extreme politicians to allow convicted murderers and rapists to vote.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 3/4/21]

March 2021: Poliquin Claimed The For The People Act Would “[Take] Away Our Ability To Decide For Ourselves How To Vote” For Democrats’ “Perceived Political Advantage”

3/13/21: Poliquin: The For The People Act Would “[Take] Away Our Ability To Decide For Ourselves How To Vote” For Democrats’ “Perceived Political Advantage.” “The Constitution rightly gives states the responsibility to decide how their residents will vote and the ballots counted. State government is always closer to We The People than the far-away federal government. Speaker Nancy Pelosi was joined by liberal Maine Reps. Chellie Pingree and Jared Golden in passing H.R. 1, taking away our ability to decide for ourselves how to vote. They did so for their own perceived political advantage. Let’s watch to see if the U.S. Senate also votes to take away this right to control our own voting destiny.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/13/21]

3/24/21: Poliquin: On The For The People Act “Democrats Want To Nationalize The Mess We Lived Through In November Because They Believe It Would Give Them An Advantage.” “DEMOCRATS PASS BILL TO NATIONALIZE 2020 ELECTION CHAOS Last night, the far left Democrat majority in the U.S. House of Representatives passed an extreme bill to force states to change the way its residents must vote and how the ballots are counted. The U.S. Constitution empowers the states to decide for themselves how voting occurs within their borders so long as it’s fair and accurate. However, Democrats want to nationalize the mess we lived through in November because they believe it would give them an advantage.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 3/4/21]

April 2021: Poliquin Claimed The For The People Act Insulted Black Americans

4/28/21: Poliquin Referenced “The Dangers Of #HR1 And How Insulting It Is To Black Americans To Suggest They’re Incapable Of Obtaining A Free ID To Protect Their Vote.” “Powerful testimony from @markrobinsonNC before the House Judiciary Committee last week about the dangers of #HR1 and how insulting it is to Black Americans to suggest they’re incapable of obtaining a free ID to protect their vote. Watch the clip here: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=98wsK7FzXn4&t=2588s”
April 2019: Poliquin Falsely Told Maine College Students That They Had To Obtain A Maine Driver’s License In Order To Vote In Maine And That They Should Not Vote In Local Elections.

April 2019: Poliquin Told Maine College Students That They Had To Obtain A Maine Driver’s License Within 30 Days Of Moving To The State In Order To Vote In Maine. “At Tuesday’s event, Poliquin addressed the issue of college students voting in local elections. ‘The United States Supreme Court has ruled that a Colby student or Bates student or Bowdoin student can use your dorm as your legal address, so that’s not for me — that’s not the legislative branch. The courts decide that,’ he said. ‘Here’s the additional comment I’m going to make: Maine law says … if you want to claim the dorm or any other place your residence so you can vote, within 30 days you need to change your driver’s license to a Maine driver’s license. That means you have to pay excise tax. … So I’m all for obeying the law and what the Supreme Court says. I’m also all about obeying the laws of the state of Maine, which means you have to change your driver’s license within 30 days, or you’re violating the law.’” [Kennebec Journal, 4/2/19]

- Kennebec Journal: New Maine Residents Were Required To Get Maine Driver’s Licenses Within Thirty Days Of Moving, But Driver’s Licenses Were Not Required To Vote In Maine. “No requirement of a Maine driver’s license is listed in the state laws for voter registration, though individuals with out-of-state driver’s licenses are required to get a new Maine license and register their motor vehicle in Maine within 30 days of becoming a resident. Voter legislation requires a person to have established an address in a Maine municipality as a ‘fixed and principal home to which the person, whenever temporarily absent, intends to return.’ To determine whether a person meets these criteria, a registrar of voters can use documents that include a Maine driver’s license but also include a Maine motor vehicle registration, current income tax return, mail sent to a residential address, hunting or fishing licenses or ‘any other objective facts tending to indicate a person’s place of residence.’ It states that ‘the registrar need not find all of these factors to be present in order to conclude that an applicant qualifies to register to vote in the municipality.’ The state law does specify that post office boxes cannot be used as proof of residency.” [Kennebec Journal, 4/2/19]

April 2019: Poliquin Agreed With Student Who Said College Students Should Not Vote In Local Maine Elections. “Several members of the Colby Republicans said they did not think students should vote in local elections. ‘Most of us are gone for the summer,’ said Jonathan Taylor, a sophomore from San Francisco who is a member of Colby Republicans and has a Maine driver’s license. ‘Constitutionally, we’re allowed to vote; but generally speaking, I think it’s incredibly sanctimonious for (students to vote in local elections). … I don’t think they should.’ When Taylor expressed that view to Poliquin at the talk — not using the word ‘sanctimonious’ — the former congressman said, ‘I would agree with that.”’ [Kennebec Journal, 4/2/19]

Voter ID

May 2021: Poliquin Called Voter ID Laws “The Best Way To Protect Our Elections”

5/7/21: Poliquin: “The Best Way To Protect Our Elections Is W/ Voter ID.” “Common sense Americans agree: make it easy to vote, but hard to cheat. The best way to protect our elections is w/ voter ID, a policy 80% of Americans support according to Gallup. Unfortunately, Maine’s Reps. Pingree & Golden voted to undermine voter ID by supporting #HR1.”

The Voting Rights Act

2015: Poliquin Voted For Blocking Restoration Of Federal Oversight To Protect The Right To Vote

Poliquin Voted For Blocking Restoration Of Federal Oversight To Protect The Right To Vote. In November 2015, Poliquin voted for: a motion to block consideration of a vote on the “Voting Rights Advancement Act, which would restore federal oversight to protect the most sacred right and responsibility of American citizenship; the right to vote.” The previous question carried, 241-178. A vote against the previous question would call for an immediate vote on the Voting Rights Advancement Act. [H Res 507, Vote #583, 11/3/15; Democratic Leader – Previous Questions, 11/3/15]

State Voting Rights Laws

April 2021: Poliquin Called Opposition To Georgia’s Voting Restrictions “Woke Politics” And Said The MLB “Caved To The Mob” And Said He Would Not Fly Delta After It Supported The MLB’s Decision

4/7/21: Poliquin Called Opposition To Georgia’s Voting Restrictions “Woke Politics” And Said The MLB “Caved To The Mob.” “Voting can be easy AND secure! MLB’s decision to jump into one of America’s least favorite pastimes (woke politics) will come back to bite them. Manfred didn't read the bill, just caved to the mob. @POTUS called it Jim Crow on steroids. Apparently he didn't read it either.”
Poliquin Said He Would Not Fly Delta If He Had Another Option Because They Supported Major League Baseball’s Decision To Move The All-Star Game Out Of Georgia After The State Put Voting Restrictions In Place. POLIQUIN: “There are a couple great companies, you know, Atlanta companies, Coca-Cola and Delta Airlines, that stepped in this thing and encouraging their patrons and their employees to boycott the state. I’ll tell you, when I fly from Maine, either Bangor or Portland, you usually have a couple other options. You’ve got United, which I have a problem with already, and you’ve got American. If I have an option, I’m not flying Delta anymore. I’m just not going to do it.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 4/9/21] (AUDIO) 3:11

<td>In May 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Burgess, R-Texas, motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and possibility of amendment).” According to the Democratic Leader’s office, “The Democratic Previous Question would help reduce the influence of big money in politics by establishing a small-donor matching system, permitting unlimited coordinated party expenditures from small donor sources, and by requiring disclosure by all bundlers of bundled contributions. Mr. Sarbanes’ bill is part of House Democrats’ Better Deal Agenda that will help make government more open and transparent.” A vote for the motion was a vote to block consideration of the bill. Poliquin Voted For Blocking Consideration Of The DISCLOSE Act. In May 2016, Poliquin voted for: blocking consideration of “the DISCLOSE Act, which would bring desperately needed transparency to the tidal wave of secret money unleashed by the Supreme Court’s wildly destructive Citizen’s United decision, requiring corporate CEOs to stand by their ads in the same way candidates do; and compelling corporations and outside groups to disclose their campaign spending to shareholders, members, and the public.” The previous question passed, 239 to 177. A vote against the previous question would have allowed the bill to be considered. [H Res 732, Vote #196, 5/17/16; Democratic Leader – 114th Congress Previous Questions, 5/17/16]

- The DISCLOSE Act Would Require Non-Profits That Make Political Contributions And Super PACs To Disclose Their Donors. “The Disclose Act, part of the bill, would require super PACs and nonprofit organizations that spend money in elections to disclose the names of donors who contribute more than $10,000. Democrats say such disclosure is broadly popular with voters across the political spectrum.” [New York Times, 3/8/19]

Poliquin Voted For Bill That Would Prohibit The IRS From Requiring Tax-Exempt Organizations To Disclose Donor Information

Poliquin Voted For Bill That Would Prohibit The IRS From Requiring Tax-Exempt Organizations To Disclose Donor Information. In June 2016, Poliquin voted for: bill that would amend “the Internal Revenue Code to prohibit the Internal Revenue Service from requiring a tax-exempt organization to include in annual returns the name, address, or other identifying information of any contributor. The bill includes exceptions for: (1) required disclosures regarding prohibited tax shelter transactions; and (2) contributions by the organization’s officers, directors, or five highest compensated employees (including compensation paid by related organizations).” The bill passed 240-182. [HR 5053, Vote #303, 6/14/16; CRS Bill Digest, 8/2/16]

- Bill Would Eliminate Requirement That 501(c) Organizations Disclose Gifts Larger Than $5K Along With The Donor’s Information; Proponents Argued That Bill Would Protect Personal Information Of Donors, Critics Contended Foreign Donations Would Not Be Prevented. “House Republicans took a step Tuesday aimed at limiting the reach of the Internal Revenue Service with a bill that would end a requirement for tax-exempt advocacy groups to list large donors as part of their annual tax returns. The [bill] … would eliminate the mandatory listing of gifts larger than $5,000, along with the names and addresses of donors, in the Form 990 for tax-exempt groups organized under section 501(c) of the tax code. … Speaker Paul D. Ryan of Wisconsin and other proponents said the measure was needed to prevent the inadvertent release of confidential data such as donor names and addresses, which are supposed to be redacted when the IRS releases public copies of the annual returns for tax-exempt groups. … Rep. Sander M. Levin … has argued Roskam’s proposal could open the door to donations from abroad to so-called social welfare groups that are organized under Section 501(c)(4) of the tax code. Such groups are authorized to spend unlimited amounts on political activity, so long as politics is not their main function.” [CQ Roll Call, 6/14/16]

- Obama White House: Bill Would Constrain IRS’s Ability To Enforce Tax Laws And Limit Transparency. “The Administration opposes H.R. 5053, the Preventing IRS Abuse and Protecting Free Speech Act, which would constrain the Internal Revenue Service’s (IRS) ability to enforce tax laws and reduce transparency.” [Executive Office of the President, Statement of Administration Policy, 6/13/16]

Poliquin Voted For Blocking A Constitutional Amendment That Would Overturn Citizens United

2015: Poliquin Voted For Blocking A Constitutional Amendment That Would Overturn Citizens United. would set statutory deadlines for considering permits on natural gas pipeline projects, and the bill (HR 36) that would create a nationwide ban on abortions performed at 20 weeks or later, with certain exceptions.” According to the Democratic Leaders’ office, “The Democratic Previous Question requires Congress to vote on a constitutional amendment to overturn the Supreme Court’s Citizens United decision and promote transparency in our political system.” A vote against the previous question would have allowed the bill to be considered. The previous question passed 238 to 182. [H Res 38, Vote #38, 1/21/15; Democratic Leader – Previous Questions, 1/21/15; CQ, 1/21/15]

Electoral College

2019: Poliquin Supported Preserving Maine’s Electoral College System

6/5/19: Poliquin: “IT IS WRONG TO: […] - Eliminate The Electoral College So Maine Loses Our Voice.” “IT IS WRONG TO: - Make Maine a Sanctuary State for Illegal Aliens - Eliminate the Electoral College so Maine Loses Our Voice - Give the Ability for Non-Citizens to Vote Politicians pushing these policies are trying to turn Maine into California. In Bangor on this WVOM radio interview yesterday I discussed this and other topics. Listen in here. Let me know if you agree.”
IT IS WRONG TO:
- Make Maine a Sanctuary State for Illegal Aliens
- Eliminate the Electoral College so Maine Loses Our Voice
- Give the Ability for Non-Citizens to Vote

Politicians pushing these policies are trying to turn Maine into a "National Popular Vote." They do not want Maine's 2nd Congressional District to have a strong voice. They want to eliminate Maine's 2nd District influence.

Poliquin: “Liberal Legislators In Augusta Are Trying To Weaken Maine's Voice By Sidelining The Electoral College.” “MAINE'S VOICE WILL BE LOST WITH A "NATIONAL POPULAR VOTE" - ESPECIALLY THE 2ND DISTRICT. Liberal Legislators in Augusta are trying to weaken Maine's voice by sidelining the Electoral College. Since 1787, when our U.S. Constitution was drafted, our nation has elected Presidents with the Electoral College. Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Wilson, Kennedy, and Reagan were all elected under this Constitutional process. WHY DOES THE SYSTEM WORK? Because small population states like Maine have a voice. Under this system each state gets electoral votes based on the number of their U.S. Senators and U.S. Representatives. Because every state, including small states, receive an equal number of 2 U.S. Senators we have a stronger voice in the selection of the President. With our state's ability to award Electoral Votes based on Congressional Districts, Maine's 2nd District has a VERY STRONG VOICE. It seems liberal politicians don't care. They do not want Maine's 2nd Congressional District to have a strong voice. They want to eliminate Maine's 2nd District influence.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 5/15/19]

Climate Change

2010 – 2012: Poliquin Denied That Climate Change Was Happening Or Human-Caused

2010: Poliquin: “Clearly Our Climate Is Changing; The Question Is, Is Man Responsible For That Climate Change? I Personally Am Suspect.” “In a recent MPBN debate, all seven of the Republican candidates for governor were asked this question by host Jennifer Rooks: ‘Do you believe global warming is in large part caused by human activities?’ […] And Bruce Poliquin, who studied economics at Harvard, questioned it. ‘Clearly our climate is changing; the question is, is man responsible for that climate change? I personally am suspect.’” [TendersInfo, 6/7/10]

There is evidence that humans are affecting this change. But we need a balanced approach to this. ### Pollution

Methane Rule

Poliquin Voted For Nullifying A Bureau Of Land Management “Methane Rule” To Limit The Release Of Methane From Oil And Gas Operations On Federal Land. In February 2017, Poliquin voted for: “a Congressional Review Act resolution to nullify the Bureau of Land Management’s rule to limit the release of methane from oil and gas operations on federal land. […] The Interior Department’s BLM finalized the venting and flaring rule - also known as the methane rule - in November. It requires oil and gas operators to control releases of waste methane - a potent greenhouse gas - by adopting new technologies, more frequently inspecting for leaks and replacing outdated equipment that discharges large amounts of natural gas.” The resolution was passed by a vote of 221-191. [HJRes 36, Vote #78, 2/3/17; CQ News, 2/3/17]

- Poliquin Voted For Prohibiting The EPA From Enforcing The “Methane Rule.” In September 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Mullin, R-Okla., amendment that would prohibit the use of funds appropriated by the bill to enforce rules relating to source performance standards for greenhouse gas emissions and volatile organic compound emissions from the oil and natural gas sector.” The amendment was adopted by a vote of 218-195. [H R 3354, Vote #488, 9/13/17; CQ, 9/13/17]

Clean Power Plan

Poliquin Voted For Resolution Disapproving Of The Clean Power Plan’s Regulations Forcing Steep Cuts In Greenhouse Gas Emissions From Existing U.S. Power Plants. In December 2015, Poliquin voted for a resolution that would “disapprove of the Environmental Protection Agency emissions rule for existing power plants issued on Oct. 23, 2015. The resolution provides that the rule will have no force or effect. The EPA rule sets different emissions targets for 49 states based on their existing energy profile and requires each state to reduce emissions by a certain amount by 2030. Under the rule, states are required to submit proposed plans on how to reduce emissions to the EPA by June 2016, with the agency evaluating whether the plans reduce emissions and are enforceable.” The resolution was adopted by a vote of 242-180: [S J RES 24, Vote #650, 12/1/15; CQ Floor Votes, 12/01/15]
December 2015: Poliquin Said He Was “Worried” That The Clean Power Plan “Is Far Too Overreaching And Harmful To Maine’s Hardworking Businesses And Employees.” “U.S. President Barack Obama hopes his Clean Power Plan, announced in August, will represent America's good faith contribution to controlling climate change. That plan seeks to cut carbon emissions in the U.S. by 32 percent by 2030 compared to 2005 levels, largely by requiring the states to each develop strategies to reduce dependence on coal plants and shift more to renewable energy sources. […] U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-Maine ‘Like many fellow Mainers, I believe that it's critical to protect the environment. A clean environment means better personal health and more jobs for Maine families. While I appreciate concerns about our state's great outdoors, I'm worried the proposal the president has put forward is far too overreaching and harmful to Maine's hardworking businesses and employees.’” [Bangor Daily News, 12/2/15]

Poliquin Voted Against Delaying Clean Air Standards

Poliquin Voted Against “Extend[ing] For Eight Years The Deadline For The EPA To Implement New National Ambient Air Quality Standards For Ground-Level Ozone.” In July 2017, Poliquin voted against: “Passage of the bill that would extend for eight years the deadline for the EPA to implement new National Ambient Air Quality Standards for ground-level ozone (the EPA issued such deadlines on Oct. 26, 2015). The bill would require the EPA to review the national ambient air quality standards for each pollutant every ten years, instead of every five, and would require the agency to evaluate possible adverse effects of standard changes, including effects related to public health, welfare and economics, prior to establishing or revising a national ambient air quality standard.” The bill passed by a vote of 229-199. [H R 806, Vote #391, 7/18/17; CQ, 7/18/17]

- League Of Conservation Voters Opposed HR 806, Saying It Gutted The Clean Air Act And Jeopardized Health By Undermining EPA Standards Related To Smog. “LCV urges you to vote NO on H.R. 806, the ‘Ozone Standards Implementation Act,’ a radical bill that jeopardizes the health of our families by undermining the EPA’s recently-updated standards for ozone pollution (a.k.a. smog) and eviscerating a central pillar of the Clean Air Act. […] For the first time ever, H.R. 806 would allow the EPA to consider factors unrelated to health, like technical feasibility in the initial standard setting process. States consider feasibility and cost when they implement the standards. This system has worked extremely well since 1970 as air quality has improved dramatically while the economy has grown.” [League Of Conservation Voters, 7/17/17]

Poliquin Voted Against A Motion To Prohibit Implementation Of New Air Quality Standards If Those Standards Could Pose Health Risks To Those Without Access To “Affordable, Comprehensive” Health Care. In July 2017, Poliquin voted against: “Cartwright, D-Pa., motion to recommit the bill to the House Energy and Commerce Committee with instructions to report it back immediately with an amendment that would prohibit implementation of the bill’s provisions if the Clean Air Scientific Advisory Committee, in consultation with the Congressional Budget Office, finds such implementation could increase various health risks for individuals without access to "affordable, comprehensive" health insurance.” According to the Democratic Leader’s Office, “Democrats’ Motion to Recommit would prohibit implementation of the underlying bill if the Clean Air Scientific Advisory Committee finds that application of the underlying bill could increase health risks to vulnerable populations including children, seniors, pregnant women, outdoor workers, and minority and low-income communities.” Motion rejected by a vote of 191-235. [...] The Senate bill has the backing of all 10 senators from coastal New England, and its House counterpart is backed by every House member from those five states, including both Democratic Rep. Chellie Pingree and Republican Rep. Bruce Poliquin of Maine. ‘I am opposed to oil drilling off the coast of our State of Maine,’ Poliquin said in a statement. ‘So much of our State's economy and tens of thousands of Maine jobs along our coast depend on our marine and tourism industries.’” [Portland Press Herald, 1/14/18]

Poliquin Voted For Lifting A 40-Year Crude Oil Export Ban

2015: Poliquin Voted For Lifting A 40-Year Ban On The Export Of Crude Oil Produced In The U.S. In October 2015, Poliquin voted for: a bill that would allow the export of crude oil produced in the United States by removing the export ban imposed by the 1975 Energy Policy and Conservation Act. “Most [Democrats], though, opposed Barton’s bill, arguing that its economic impact is overblown and that it will endanger jobs in the refining sector. They also cite environmental risks in pumping more oil for exports. ‘This legislation eagerly embraces short-term profits and benefits without understanding — or even considering — the cost of such a major action,’ Rep. Frank Pallone Jr. (D-N.J.) said.” According to the Wall Street Journal, “The White House has threatened to veto the bill, saying it ‘is not needed at this time.’” The bill passed 261 to 159. ### Poliquin Supported Domestic Fracking

2016: Poliquin’s Campaign Website: “Massive Natural Gas Deposits In New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, And West Virginia (The Marcellus Shale) Offer Exciting Opportunities For Our Country.” “Recent discoveries of massive natural gas deposits in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and West Virginia (the Marcellus Shale) offer exciting opportunities for our country. These vast resources are estimated to be able to produce at least a 100-year supply of natural gas. New technologies are extracting this energy in environmentally safe ways. Currently, we import less than 10% of our natural gas usage. It’s expected that the United States will become a net exporter of natural gas in a few short years.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/29/16]
October 2020: Poliquin Claimed Biden Would End The Natural Gas Industry

10/26/20: Poliquin: “Still Can’t Believe Joe Biden Confirmed His Plan To End The Oil/Natural Gas Industry During The Debate.” “Still can’t believe Joe Biden confirmed his plan to end the oil/natural gas industry during the debate. 70% of Mainers rely on oil, propane, natural gas or kerosene to heat their home. Biden plan would kill 10 million high-paying jobs w/ health care & benefits!”

2019: Poliquin Said He Supported Building Larger Natural Gas Pipelines Into Maine

2019: Poliquin Said He Supported Building Larger Natural Gas Pipelines Into Maine. POLIQUIN: “My opinion is very simple, is that we should not allow the state of Maine to create an extension cord from Quebec to Massachusetts to deliver hydroelectric energy from Canada to Massachusetts unless, unless the state of Massachusetts allows us to build larger natural gas pipelines up to Maine. They’re the people, the state of Massachusetts, that are preventing us from getting either natural gas pipelines up to Maine and that folks is one of the two reasons that Madison Paper failed.” [WVOM, GHRT Rewind, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/18/19] (AUDIO) 9:12

2018: Poliquin Claimed Golden Would Stop Mainers From Purchasing Gasoline, Which The Lewiston Sun Journal Rated A “Highly Exaggerated” Claim. “GOLDEN WILL TAKE AWAY YOUR HEATING OIL? An advertisement for Poliquin saying Golden would “stop Mainers from purchasing home heating oil, natural gas or even gasoline” is highly exaggerated. On the energy topic, Golden has said he would support a ban on new fossil fuel infrastructure in the state (new pipelines, etc.) as part of an effort to rely on green energy for all of Maine’s energy needs by 2050. A 32-year transition away from fossil fuels — which would be too slow to prevent catastrophic climate change, according to a recent United Nations report — does not mean Golden is against Mainers having heat for their homes or fuel for their cars, which is what the advertisement implies. Nor does it mean Mainers would no longer be able to buy fossil fuels.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/31/18]

“How much will it cost to heat your home this winter?” The Wall Street Journal published an article which reads, “U.S. natural gas futures ended Friday at $5.105 per million British thermal units. They were about half that six months ago and have leapt 17% this month.” Add this to concerns over the cost of home heating oil. Then we have other inflationary concerns including the increased cost to fill your tank with gas. Extreme Democrat policies under the guise of a green deal, actions like killing the keystone pipeline, and other liberal political pressures on the fuels we need to operate in Maine are harming our families and our small business economy.”

Poliquin Voted For Approving The Keystone XL Pipeline

Poliquin Voted For Approving The Keystone XL Pipeline. In January 2015, Poliquin voted for: approving the Keystone XL pipeline. “The House voted Friday to approve the Keystone XL pipeline, seizing on the momentum from a Nebraska Supreme Court ruling hours earlier that removed the last major legal obstacle to building the politically charged oil project.” The bill passed 266 to 153. [HR 3, Vote #16, 1/9/15; Politico, 1/9/15]

- Poliquin Said The Keystone XL Pipeline Would Mean “Our Families Will Have More Money, Have More Jobs And Enjoy More Freedom.” “Maine 2nd District Republican Rep. Bruce Poliquin says the Keystone Pipeline will increase fuel supplies and help keep prices lower. Poliquin says compared with last summer, Maine families are saving every time they fill up their gas tanks, and this winter they're also saving on average a $1,000 on home heating oil because of increased competition that has driven down prices. Poliquin says building the pipeline will allow that trend to continue. ‘Our families will have more money, have more jobs and enjoy more freedom when America increases production and transportation of all forms of domestic energy,’ he says, ‘and do it in an environmentally sensitive way.’” [Maine Public, 1/14/15]

2019: Poliquin Called On State Lawmakers To Change An Existing Law And Allow Maine To Buy Hydroelectric Energy From Canada. POLIQUIN: “Governor Mills and the legislature should change the law that allows the state of Maine to buy that clean cheap green energy from hydro in Quebec. Let us buy that energy. They won’t let us and they need to change the law. “ [WVOM, GHRT Rewind, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 11/18/19] (AUDIO) 10:19

Nuclear Power

January 2017: Poliquin Voted Against Excluding Any Rule Pertaining To Nuclear Reactor Safety Standards From Being Defined As A “Major Rule”

Poliquin Voted Against Excluding Any Rule Pertaining To Nuclear Reactor Safety Standards From Being Defined As A “Major Rule.” In January 2017, Poliquin voted against the “Nadler, D-N.Y., amendment that would exclude rules pertaining to nuclear reactor safety standards from the definition of a ‘major rule.’” The amendment was rejected in Committee of the Whole by a vote of 194-231. [HR 26, Vote #18, 1/5/17; CQ, 1/5/17]

- A “Major Rule” Is Any Rule The OMB Has Found Could Result In A Cost To The Economy Of $100 Million Or More, A Major Increase In Costs Or “Adverse Effects On Competition, Employment, Investment,” And Other Economic Functions. “A ‘major rule’ is any rule that the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs of the Office of Management and Budget finds has resulted in or is likely to result in: (1) an annual cost on the economy of $100 million or more (adjusted annually for inflation); (2) a major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, federal, state, or local government agencies, or geographic regions; or (3) significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or the ability of U.S.-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises.” [HR 26, Summary, 1/5/17]

Renewable Energy

Poliquin Voted For An Energy Appropriations Bill That Cut Renewable Energy Programs And Rolled Back Clean Water Protections
Poliquin Voted For A $146.5 Billion Energy-Water-Legislative Branch-Veterans Affairs Appropriations Bill For Fiscal Year 2019. In June 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill, as amended, that would provide $146.5 billion in discretionary funding for fiscal 2019 to various departments, agencies and legislative operations, including $44.7 billion for the Energy Department, the Army Corps of Engineers, the Interior Department’s Bureau of Reclamation; $98 billion for military construction activities and for VA programs and activities; and $3.8 billion for operations of the House of Representatives, joint House-Senate items and legislative branch entities such as the Library of Congress, the Capitol Police, and the Government Accountability Office. It would provide $11.2 billion for programs that maintain and refurbish nuclear weapons in the United States’ stockpile. As amended, it would provide $1.1 billion in funding for the Veterans Community Care Program.” The bill passed by a vote of 235-179. [HR 5895, Vote #257, 6/8/18; CQ, 6/8/18]

- The Bill Included Cuts To Renewable Energy Research, Funding For Yucca Mountain Nuclear Waste Repository, And A Rider To Repeal “Waters Of The United States” Rule. “House lawmakers want more money for nuclear weapon modernization efforts while introducing cuts to renewable energy research. It also would set aside funding for the Yucca Mountain nuclear waste repository in Nevada and continue funding for the mixed oxide fuel fabrication facility in South Carolina. The House bill includes controversial policy riders meant to ease the repeal of the EPA-Army Corps joint ‘Waters of the United States’ regulation. Democrats have called the measure a “poison pill” unlikely to survive Senate scrutiny.” [CQ, 6/8/18]

- Rep. Lowey: Republicans Attached Veterans Affairs Appropriations To Energy Appropriations To Force Through Cuts To Clean Energy Initiatives And Roll Back Clean Water Protections. “This broken process has a simple aim: Republicans are using America’s veterans as pawns to force through cuts to clean energy research and harmful policy provisions that weaken environmental safeguards. […] With gas prices approaching $3 a gallon, the bill cuts energy efficiency and renewable energy initiatives. It cuts transformational science efforts, such as the successful and popular ARPA-E program. Just as bad, it contains many harmful riders, including rolling back clean water protections, blocking the National Oceans Policy, further endangering salmon on the Columbia River, and weakening gun safety rules on public lands.” [Rep. Lowey Floor Statement, 6/7/18]

December 2019: Poliquin Called The Installation Of Solar Panels At The Maine’s Governor’s Mansion A Waste Of Tax Dollars

2016: Poliquin Said He Supported The “Unsubsidized Free Market Development” Of Renewable Energies

2016: Poliquin Supported “Unsubsidized Free Market Development Of All Domestic Resources Including Oil, Natural Gas, Hydroelectric, Nuclear, Wind, Solar, Tidal, And Geothermal.” “As Maine’s next 2nd District Congressman, I’ll fight to reduce the cost of energy for our families and companies. I’ll work for energy independence and lower costs through the safe, unsubsidized free market development of all domestic resources including oil, natural gas, hydroelectric, nuclear, wind, solar, tidal, and geothermal. Doing so will grow our economy, create more jobs, and keep us safer at home.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/29/16]

Biomass Energy

July 2016: Poliquin Applauded A Bill To Designate Biomass Energy As Carbon Neutral

July 2016: Poliquin Applauded A Bill To Designate Biomass Energy As Carbon Neutral. “Yesterday, the U.S. House of Representatives passed a bill that included important language to require federal regulators to consider biomass fuels as carbon neutral, supporting the production of clean and reliable energy and Maine’s critical biomass harvesting industries and their hundreds of jobs. Congressman Bruce Poliquin (ME-02) released the following statement: ‘As America’s wood basket, Maine is a major producer of clean and reliable biomass fuels,’ said Congressman Poliquin. ‘This clean energy production provides dependable power to businesses and homes in our State and supports hundreds of jobs in Maine’s harvesting industries.’” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 7/15/16]

Offshore Wind

November 2015: Poliquin And Pingree Applauded A $3.7 Million Federal Grant To Research And Develop Offshore Wind In Maine
November 2015: Poliquin And Pingree Applauded A $3.7 Million Federal Grant To Research And Develop Offshore Wind In Maine. “The federal Department of Energy has granted Maine $3.7 million to further research and development offshore wind technology in Maine. Representatives Chellie Pingree and Bruce Poliquin said this morning that a $3.7 million federal grant for further research and development of offshore wind technology in Maine is a big boost to the state's clean energy industry. Last month Pingree and Poliquin asked the Secretary of Energy to make a significant investment in the Maine technology after competing projects in other parts of the country were plagued with cost and regulatory challenges.” [Penobscot Bay Pilot, 11/16/15]

• Poliquin: “It's Critical That Our Researchers Are Given The Tools They Need To Explore More Efficient And Reliable Energy Production Methods.” “It’s critical that our researchers are given the tools they need to explore more efficient and reliable energy production methods,” said Congressman Poliquin. ‘We must find ways to lower the cost of energy to help save money for our hard-working Maine families.’” [Penobscot Bay Pilot, 11/16/15]

Carbon Tax

October 2014: Poliquin Said A Carbon Tax Would Kill American Jobs And Raise The Price Of Electric Bills. POLIQUIN: (3:22) “Now my opponent Miss Cain is supporting and supports a huge carbon tax. That would only increase the cost to heat our homes, it would increase what we pay for our electric bills. And it would also increase the cost of gasoline that would kill more jobs. And it would hurt our families here in the second district. We need to become energy independent. It’s a national security issue, as well as a jobs issue. So we need to increase production of all sources of energy, clean energy here in America and not impose a huge carbon tax that would kill jobs. […] She has a very extreme position of supporting a carbon tax, and that carbon tax would increase the cost of our employers to make it, it would drive up the price of your electric bills and to heat your home and cost us more gasoline. I just disagree with her. it you know, it's her choice and her belief to have that. But we need to drive down the price of energy, all forms of energy, not increase the price that is impart put these Mills out of business.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter General Election Debate, 10/14/14] (VIDEO)

2014: Poliquin Repeatedly Attacked Cain For Supporting A Carbon Tax, Which He Said Would Increase Energy Costs And Hurt Paper Mills. “Those were required after Poliquin, a former state treasurer from Oakland, repeatedly hit positions held by Cain, a state senator from Orono whom he called extreme and liberal. Echoing attacks in ads that he and Republican allies have run against her, Poliquin said Cain’s support of a carbon tax would drive up the cost of energy for families and make it harder for manufacturers to hire workers in the 2nd District, where three mills will have closed by the end of the year.” [Kennebec Journal, 10/14/14]

Paris Climate Agreement

Poliquin Said The United States Rejoining The Paris Accord “Screw[ed] The Little Guy” Since It Allowed The World’s Biggest Polluters To Keep Polluting. POLIQUIN: (2:36) “He thinks that climate change is a critical issue for us to deal with. OK. Let’s look at the data. The last 30 years, the United States has reduced the sulfur dioxide emissions by about 80 percent. This is stuff coming out of the smokestacks at power plants. And lead emissions are down about 80 percent. So when you join the Paris Accord, it means that we’re going to try and continue to reduce our pollution which we have been but China and India can go on their way, and they’re the biggest polluters in the world. So it screws the little guy.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 1/22/21] (AUDIO)

[…] Poliquin also criticized Obama for failing ‘to seek out and receive full U.S. Senate approval’ of the deal ‘with the full force of a treaty’ that would likely have held up over the long haul. ‘The former president's choice to bypass the Senate, and therefore to avoid engaging in a collaborative process, directly led to today's action,’ he said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 6/1/17]

Acadia National Park

October 2017: Poliquin Opposed Increasing Admission Prices At Acadia National Park

October 2017: Poliquin Opposed Increasing Admission Prices At Acadia National Park. “Maine’s congressional delegation is turning a critical eye on a U.S. Department of the Interior proposal to raise fees at national parks, including Arcadia National Park. Republican Sen. Susan Collins and independent Sen. Angus King sent a letter to the department after an announcement that it’s proposing increasing fees at 17 national parks. The peak season increases would help offset overdue maintenance costs. The senators say the proposal would nearly triple the cost of a park pass at Acadia to $70. They say the department should consider creating a National Park Service Legacy Restoration Fund or Conservation Service Corp to help address the backlog. Republican Maine Rep. Bruce Poliquin says the Acadia fee increase would be ‘unfair.’ Democratic Maine Rep. Chellie Pingree says visitors ‘shouldn’t go broke’ visiting national parks.” [Associated Press, 10/27/17]

2016 – 2017: Poliquin Introduced Legislation To Clarify Acadia National Park Borders To Allow Commercial Harvesting In Response To Concerns From Local Clammers And Worm Diggers, Which Former National Park Services Leadership Opposed

September 2016: Poliquin Introduced A Bill To Ease Restrictions On Acadia Park Which He Hoped Would Be Combined With A Senate Version That Retroactively Approved Of The Park’s Expansion

2015: Acadia National Park Accepted A Large Donation Of Land Without Congressional Approval By Citing A 1929 Law, Rather Than A 1986 Law That Last Drew The Park’s Borders. “Ever since 1986, when Congress set a limit on how much Acadia can expand, residents and officials of surrounding towns have felt reassured that their towns would not be swallowed up by an ever-growing national park. But since last fall, when officials say the 1986 law was circumvented to enable the park to absorb 1,441 acres on the Schoodic Peninsula that are located outside that boundary limit set 30 years ago, those anxieties have returned. [...] The justification cited by the park for not first getting congressional approval to accept the land is a prior law that Congress adopted in 1929. According to a letter sent by the Department of the Interior’s Office of the Solicitor to National Park Service officials on Jan. 24, 2014, the 1929 law permits the park to accept ownership of donated land, as opposed to purchasing it. The 1986 law, according to the letter, sets physical limits for lands the park service can purchase and for lands on which the park can acquire conservation easements, but it does not specifically set limits for donated land.” [Maine Public, 2/3/16]

August 2016: Poliquin Heard Complaints From Worm Diggers, Clammers, And Seaweed Harvesters Who Were Concerned With A New Ban On Harvesting At Mudflats On The Acadia National Park Shoreline.

“Just in time for the 100th anniversary celebration of the National Park Service, U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin (R-Maine) heard complaints from some three dozen worm diggers, clammers and seaweed harvesters about what appears to be a new policy at Acadia National Park to ban the traditional harvest of marine resources from the mudflats along the park’s shoreline.” [Ellsworth American, 8/30/16]

September 2016: Poliquin Introduced A Bill To Ease Restrictions On Acadia Park Which He Hoped Would Be Combined With A Senate Version That Would Negate The Park's Ability To Accept The Donated Land.

“Sen. Angus King has introduced a separate bill that retroactively would give Congressional approval to the expansion and would negate the ability of the park service to use the 1929 law as justification for acquiring land, or interest in any land, that lies outside the 1986 boundary limit. Aides to Poliquin said Friday that the congressman hopes his bill and the Senate version proposed by King will be combined to address both the intertidal harvesting and Schoodic expansion issues. Poliquin’s bill, according to his staffers, also would ease federal restrictions on two parcels of undeveloped land on Mount Desert Island — one in Tremont and one in Bar Harbor — that were to used for solid waste management, and would fulfill a 1986 financial commitment by Congress to give $350,000 to the Acadia Disposal District so area communities can improve their solid waste disposal and recycling.” [Bangor Daily News, 9/30/16]

Mary Foley And Michael Soukup Op-Ed: Poliquin’s Bill “Weaken’s The Park’s Role As A Haven For Species Widely And Intensively Exploited Elsewhere And Important In The Intertidal Food Chain.” “Rep. Bruce Poliquin and Sen. Angus King have introduced legislation, also co-sponsored by Rep. Chellie Pingree and Sen. Susan Collins, that would allow commercial harvesting of clams and worms in Acadia National Park. Poliquin’s bill — HR 4266 — was approved by the House Committee on Natural Resources, and it appears unstoppable at this point. It is being touted as a victory for the ‘little guy’ against an oppressive bureaucracy. Indeed, few have opposed it, though it weakens the park’s role as a haven for species widely and intensively exploited elsewhere and important in the intertidal food chain.” [Bangor Daily News, Mary Foley and Michael Soukup Op-Ed, 1/22/18]

Mary Foley And Michael Soukup Op-Ed: Poliquin’s Bill “Is A Dangerous Precedent And Should Be Opposed By All Those Who Value Leaving Special Places Intact For Now And For The Future.” “Poliquin’s bill does nothing to emphasize the responsibility of the National Park Service to ensure protection of the clam and worm populations. Neither does it consider any new financial support for park control of non-native, invasive crabs nor to monitor population changes because of the cumulative impact of harvesting pressures and climate change. His bill regrettably responds to emotional ‘traditional use’ arguments, in this case for commercial harvesting, that are poised to win over common-sense conservation as we face new threats. National parks and their resources belong to all of us as citizens. Changing the mandate of a 100-year-old law is not a victory except for a few, including those whose agenda is to unravel protection of federal lands across the nation. This bill is a dangerous precedent and should be opposed by all those who value leaving special places intact for now and for the future.”

March 2019: Poliquin Claimed Credit For The Passage Of A Bill That “Protects Clammers And Wormers Who Work Around Acadia National Park.” “THIS WEEK PRESIDENT TRUMP SIGNED A NEW LAW, BASED ON LEGISLATION I ORIGINALLY AUTHORED, TO PROTECT MAINE WORKERS. Specifically it protects clammers and wormers who work around Acadia National Park. In the last Congress I authored the legislation to accomplish this goal and got it successfully passed it in the U.S. House. Similar legislation is now law. I was proud to stand up and fight for Maine’s workers, many of whom come from families who have done this work for generations. We can never turn our back on Maine workers. (Below a video from the Ellsworth American newspaper when I visited some clammers and wormers to discuss this issue.)” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 3/15/19]

Katahdin Woods And Waters Monument

November 2015: Poliquin Co-Wrote A Letter To Obama Urging Against Designating Katahdin Woods As A National Monument Without Certain Conditions, And “Went On The Attack” When The National Park Service Director Responded

11/20/15: Poliquin, Susan Collins, And Angus King Wrote To Obama With “Serious Concerns” About Designating Katahdin Woods As A National Monument. In a letter to President Obama, Susan Collins, Angus King, and Bruce Poliquin wrote, “While we acknowledge the right of private land owners to donate their land, we have serious concerns about the executive branch using its power to unilaterally designate a national monument in our state. […] A national monument designation, however, would likely antagonize already divided local communities. The future of EPI’s property is just one part of a greater need to improve economic opportunity in the Katahdin Region.” [Letter to President Obama from Susan Collins, Angus King, and Bruce Poliquin, via Bangor Daily News, 11/20/15]

- The Letter Also Outlined Nine Conditions Under Which They Would Support A Monument Designation, Including The Continuation Of Forestry Management And Recreation On The Land. “But the delegation members also outlined nine ‘conditions’ that the Obama administration should consider if it went forward with a designation. Those conditions include ensuring that traditional recreational activities – including hunting, fishing, camping and use of snowmobiles and all-terrain vehicles – as well as forest management continue on the land. They also stated that any monument designation ‘must respect private property rights and ensure the federal government will never take any private land in the area by eminent domain.’” [Portland Press Herald, 11/23/15]

February 2016: National Park Service Director Jonathan Jarvis Responded To The Letter By Saying The Department “Looks Forward To The Opportunity To Better Understand These And Other Issues.”

“[National Park Service Director Jonathan] Jarvis responded for the president, and while he did not run down the list of the conditions, he didn't reject them either. Instead he conveyed an openness to explore them all. ‘The (Department of the Interior) looks forward to the opportunity to better understand these and other issues as you continue to solicit public input and lead this open dialogue about how to best protect important resources within your communities, while recognizing the economic needs in the region,’ he wrote. ‘We also appreciate you sharing your thoughts on what you believe would be critically important considerations ranging from public access to private property rights ... if the Federal government received a land donation for a park or similar use.’” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 2/14/16]

- Poliquin Said Jarvis’ Letter “Shows A Complete Lack Of Interest And Concern From The White House For The Residents Of The Katahdin Region.” “Poliquin, in a statement, said, ‘This letter is concerning on many levels. First, I was extremely disappointed that this letter came from Director Jarvis, rather than the president himself. It shows a complete lack of interest and concern from the White House for the residents of the Katahdin region.’ ‘I must emphasize that the designation of a national monument by the president, which bypasses the Democratic process and input from local constituents, is entirely separate from the actual creation of a national park, which allows for local officials and residents to weigh in before it is created.’” [Portland Press Herald, 2/11/16]

- Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: Poliquin “Went On The Attack” But Should Instead Accept “Jarvis’ Invitation For Dialogue And Keep Working Toward That Goal.” “In response, Poliquin went on the attack, saying the letter ‘shows a complete lack of interest and concern from the White House for the residents of the Katahdin region.’ […] Maine’s members of Congress were right in their November letter to lay out a path by which a significant natural resource could be preserved and a local economy boosted without disrupting traditional uses of the forest. They should accept Jarvis’ invitation for dialogue and keep working toward that goal.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 2/14/16]

March 2016: Poliquin Met With The Managing Director Of The White House Council On Environmental Quality To Oppose A Potential Executive Order Designating Katahdin Woods As A National Monument. “U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin met with a White House official in Washington on Monday to argue against any designation by President Obama of more than 100,000 acres in Maine's North Woods as a national monument. Poliquin, who represents Maine's 2nd District, and U.S. Sens. Susan Collins and Angus King have asked the president to back off from designating land in the Katahdin Region as a national monument, a threatened executive action that would bypass the national park process, which requires extensive public input and an act of Congress before a park can be established. In a statement released by his office, Poliquin said he met with Christy Goldfuss, managing director of the White House Council on Environmental Quality.” [Kennebec Journal, 3/21/16]

Poliquin Raised Concerns About Safety Of Local Roads, Damage To The Forest Products Industry, And Costs To Maintain The Monument. “Poliquin told Goldfuss there is strong local opposition to a national monument designation. His office said he also discussed with Goldfuss the negative impact such a designation could have on jobs in the forest products industry, concerns over the costs associated with maintaining a national monument, the safety of the region's road system, and the threat it poses to recreational access for private citizens. ‘Today's meeting is a critical step in conveying the interests and concerns of local residents and stakeholders,’ Poliquin said in a statement. ‘We raised serious issues that White House staff indicated they had not heard prior to today, including road safety concerns. We are continuing to urge the President to understand the grave consequences that his unilateral designation of a national monument would have on the local Katahdin Region now and for generations to come.’” [Kennebec Journal, 3/21/16]

- Poliquin: “We Made It Very Clear To The White House That There Is A Problem With Vacationing Automobiles Sharing Gravel Roads With Logging Trucks Traveling At 60 MPH.” ‘They warned Goldfuss, whose council is the president's primary adviser on environmental matters, that a national monument designation on Quimby's land would pose a public safety hazard, as logging truck and tourist traffic would be incompatible on the dirt roads in the forested area. ‘Access is a real issue when it comes to this property,’ Poliquin said. ‘We made it very clear to the White House that there is a problem with vacationing automobiles sharing gravel roads with logging trucks traveling at 60 mph as they deliver their products. ‘Our forest-products industry must continue to use these roads to continue to be productive,’ he added.” [Bangor Daily News, 3/21/16]

May 2016: Poliquin Requested A Field Hearing Regarding Katahdin Woods, Citing “The Strong Concerns From These Local Constituents” That The Obama Administration “Ignored Outright.” “A congressional committee will hold a ‘field hearing’ on June 1 in East Millinocket to hear from local residents about a divisive proposal to create a national monument in the Katahdin region. […] In his letter to Bishop requesting the field hearing, Poliquin wrote that the White House and National Park Service ‘seem determined to move forward with this proposal’ and that he fears ‘the strong concerns from these local constituents that I represent from the Katahdin Region are being ignored outright by the Obama Administration in this process.’” [Portland Press Herald, 5/18/16]

Rob Bishop And Bruce Westerman Of The Committee On Natural Resources At A Field Hearing Featuring Five Opponents Of The Katahdin Woods Monument. “Two members of a congressional committee heard from opponents of a North Woods national monument Wednesday afternoon during a field hearing that underscored the political tensions surrounding the proposal. All five invited speakers during the 90-minute field hearing held by the U.S. House Committee on Natural Resources - including Gov. Paul LePage - criticized the proposal to designate 87,500 acres of donated land east of Baxter State Park as a national monument. […] Committee Chairman U.S. Rep. Rob Bishop, R-Utah, and U.S. Rep. - 5/18/16: Bishop Said The Katahdin Woods Monument Designation “Would Be Another Abuse Of The Antiquities Act.” “Unlike the Obama Administration, the committee will not dismiss the legitimate concerns of Representative Bruce Poliquin and his constituents,’ committee Chairman U.S. Rep. Rob Bishop, R-Utah, said in a statement announcing the meeting. ‘The proposed monument designation in Maine's Katahdin region would be another abuse of the Antiquities Act, exercised unilaterally with complete disregard for local residents, businesses, and elected officials.’” [Portland Press Herald, 5/18/16]

- Poliquin: “This Is Not A Political Issue For Me […] This Is About The People Who Live In The Katahdin Region And The People Of The State Of Maine.” “This is not a political issue for me,’ Poliquin said. ‘This is about our families. This is about our jobs. This is about the people who live in the Katahdin region and the people of the state of Maine.’” [Portland Press Herald, 6/1/16]

- Poliquin: “With The Stroke Of A Pen – 87,000-Plus Acres Into A National Monument Which Would Take It Off-Line From Productive Economic Use Forever.” “On May 13, Representative Bruce Poliquin (R-ME) requested this hearing to listen to local voices, the voices of those who will be directly impacted by the designation. ‘It's so important that Congress hears our voices loud and clear as the President considers unilaterally designating – with the stroke of a pen – 87,000-plus acres into a national monument which would take it off-line from productive economic use forever,’ Rep. Poliquin stated.” [House Natural Resources Committee Republicans, Press Release, 6/1/16]

Bangor Daily News Editorial Board: Poliquin’s Hearing Was A “Sham” That Featured “Only Hand-Picked Witnesses” Opposed To The Monument

The Bangor Daily News Editorial Board Called Poliquin’s Hearing A “Sham” That Featured “Only Hand-Picked Witnesses” Opposed To The Katahdin Woods Monument. “In East Millinocket, the U.S. House Committee on Natural Resources held a ‘hearing’ on a proposed North Woods national monument on 87,500 acres of land just east of Baxter State Park. At the same time, the Maine Legislature’s joint Committee on Inland Fisheries and Wildlife held its own ‘hearing’ to consider allegations of misconduct by game wardens during undercover sting operations. Both hearings were shams. Only handpicked witnesses were called to testify, and they presented only one side of the story – national park opponents in East Millinocket and state officials in Augusta. Neither hearing allowed public comment. Neither featured adversarial questioning. Both led to preordained conclusions. […] The National Resources Committee hearing was U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin’s answer to a pair of public meetings with National Park Service Director Jonathan Jarvis that were organized last month by Sen. Angus King.” [Bangor Daily News, Editorial Board, 6/5/16]
Richard Schmidt Op-Ed: Opposers Of Katahdin Woods’ Monument Status Were “The Only Ones Invited To Testify” At Poliquin’s Hearing. “U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin recently hosted an altogether different meeting in the Katahdin Region. He invited congressmen from Utah and Arkansas to come and listen to witnesses who are opposed, the only ones invited to testify, to the economic opportunity. However, here, too, many of the values we hold dear and for which many of us have, in different ways, fought for, were on display.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Richard Schmidt Op-Ed, 6/19/16]

Op-Ed Writer On Poliquin’s Hearing: “All He Wants, And All He’ll Get, Is To Inflame People Further To Help His Campaign Along”

Alan Caron Op-Ed On Poliquin’s Hearing: “All He Wants, And All He’ll Get, Is To Inflame People Further To Help His Campaign Along.” “I give you, as a case in point, 2nd District U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin. While U.S. Sen. Angus King engineered two hearings that were open to all views, as part of a healthy and spirited debate, Poliquin immediately invited the chairman of the House Natural Resources Committee to come to Maine and lash out against the proposed project. King was looking for information and understanding. Poliquin isn’t looking for any of those things. All he wants, and all he’ll get, is to inflame people further to help his campaign along.” [Portland Press Herald, Alan Caron Op-Ed, 5/22/16]

Op-Ed Writer: The Public Spoke “In Overwhelming Numbers” In Favor Of The Monument When They Were “Eventually Allowed To Speak” After Poliquin’s Hearing

Portland Press Herald: Supporters Of Katahdin Woods Monument Were “Better Represented” After The Congressional Field Hearing. “Although no supporters addressed the committee amid political dueling over how and when they were invited, dozens of monument supporters as well as opponents sounded off afterward during a lengthy public forum held by Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-District 2. […] The two sides on the issue were better represented during an hours-long public forum held by Poliquin after the congressional field hearing adjourned. The audience was filled with people wearing “National Monument, Yes!” T-shirts as well as opponents wearing Maine Woods Coalition shirts for the organization opposing the monument proposal.” [Portland Press Herald, 6/1/16]

- Monument Supporters At The Hearing “Said That It Would Be A Needed Tonic To A Region Hard-Hit By Paper Products Industry Losses.” “Many proponents spoke during the forum hosted by Poliquin. Some said that it would be a needed tonic to a region hard-hit by paper products industry losses. Former Millinocket Town Councilor Anita Mueller said that in the last several years, Millinocket has acquired more than 100 tax-acquired properties, town property taxes are a shade under $30 per $1,000 of valuation — easily the highest in Maine — and unemployment runs at least double the state average. The monument, meanwhile, carries with it $40 million in an endowment and fundraising pledge — ‘a fantastic opportunity’ — to diversify the region’s economy without supplanting forest products industry jobs, Mueller said.” [Bangor Daily News, 6/1/16]

Richard Schmidt Op-Ed: When The Public “Was Eventually Allowed” To Speak At Poliquin’s Forum, They “Spoke In Favor Of The Monument -- In Overwhelming Numbers.” “Despite the structure of Poliquin’s meeting, when the public was eventually allowed to, we spoke in favor of the monument -- in overwhelming numbers. I kept track, as I hope Rep. Poliquin did, and there were about 50 people in favor, all of them from the Katahdin Region. There were only a dozen opposed and some of them had traveled to the region from Augusta, representing lobbying groups opposed to the economic diversity and conservation this proposal could bring to our communities, region and state.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Richard Schmidt Op-Ed, 6/19/16]

Richard Schmidt Op-Ed: Each Day That Poliquin Does “Not Step Boldly Forward And Tell The President That [Mainers] Support This Historic Gift” “Is Another Foreclosed Home” In The Region. “I thank Sen. King, Director Jarvis and even Rep. Poliquin for their meetings. But the time has come to take the next step. They have seen the support -- overwhelming doesn't really cover it -- in the Katahdin Region and throughout Maine. Every day that they do not step boldly forward and tell the president that their constituents throughout Maine support this historic gift, each day that they do not tell the president that they support this historic gift is another foreclosed home, another empty locker at the start of the next school year, another pothole we cannot afford to fill and another day they make a choice about Maine's future and their own place in history.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Richard Schmidt Op-Ed, 6/19/16]

July 2016: Poliquin Voted For To Pass The Department Of The Interior, Environment, And Related Agencies Appropriations Act. In July 2016, Poliquin voted for the passage of HR 5538, a “bill that would provide $32.1 billion in fiscal 2017 for the Interior Department, the EPA and related agencies. The bill would provide $12.1 billion for the Interior Department, $8 billion for the EPA, $5.4 billion for the Forest Service, $1.2 billion for the Bureau of Land Management and $5.1 billion for the Indian Health Service. The measure would prohibit the EPA from limiting greenhouse gas, methane, and air emissions from power plants and the oil and gas industry. The measure would also block the EPA from completing its ‘Waters of the United States’ rule-making to clarify which bodies of water are subject to regulation under the clean air act. As amended, the measure would prohibit funds from being used to finalize, implement or enforce new regulations on offshore Arctic energy exploration and development.” The bill passed, 231 to 196. [HR 5538, Vote #477, 7/14/16; CQ Floor Votes, 7/14/16]

- The Bill Prohibited Funding For Presidential Declarations Of New Monuments, Including In Penobscot County, Maine. “None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to make a Presidential declaration by public proclamation of a national monument under chapter 3203 of title 54, United States Code in the counties of Coconino, Maricopa, Mohave and Yavapai in the State of Arizona, in the counties of Modoc and Siskiyou in the State of California, in the counties of Chaffee, Conejos, Dolores, Moffat, Montezuma, and Park in the State of Colorado, in the counties of Carson City, Churchill, Clark, Douglas, Elko, Eureka, Humboldt, Lander, Lincoln, Lyon, Nye, Pershing, Storey and Washoe in the State of Nevada, in the county of Otero in the State of New Mexico, in the counties of Jackson, Josephine and, Malheur in the State of Oregon, in the counties of Beaver, Carbon, Duchesne, Emery, Garfield, Iron, Juab, Kane, Millard, Piute, San Juan, Sanpete, Sevier, Tooele, Uintah, Washington, and Wayne in the State of Utah, or in the county of Penobscot in the State of Maine.” [CQ Bill Text, HR 5538, 7/14/16]

- Jym St. Pierre Op-Ed: Poliquin’s Vote To Block Federal Funds For Katahdin Woods Served “Special Interests, Not The Broad Public Interest.” “The Maine Snowmobile Association has also collaborated closely with Poliquin. For example, the association wrote and Poliquin introduced language to block any federal funds from being channeled to the new Katahdin Woods and Waters National Monument in Maine. Polls show overwhelming public support for the monument, but SAM and the MSA care about their special interests, not the broad public interest.” [Portland Press Herald, Jym St. Pierre Op-Ed, 11/22/16]

Poliquin Spokesperson: Poliquin “Has Clearly Stated That Any Process To Incorporate Federal Land In Maine Must Have Strong Support From The Local Community.” “Poliquin favored the funding ban because of the local opposition to Quimby’s proposal, according to his spokesman, Brendan Conley. Poliquin ‘has clearly stated that any process to incorporate federal land in Maine must have strong support from the local community. A unilateral designation of a national monument would not take into consideration any of the serious concerns of the Katahdin region residents and surrounding communities,’ Conley said in a statement.” [Bangor Daily News, 7/15/16]

August 2016: Poliquin Said Obama Should Not Have Been Able To Designate Katahdin Woods As A National Monument And That It Should Not Be Controlled By “Washington Bureaucrats”

August 2016: Obama Designated Katahdin Woods As A National Monument, Which Poliquin Said He Should Not Have Been Able To Do. “President Barack Obama signed into law the creation of the Katahdin Woods and Waters National Monument on Wednesday, Aug. 24 beginning a new chapter in the history of a region in Maine that had been dominated by the forest products industry for more than a century. […] Collins, Poliquin and Maine state Legislature Republicans said the order should never have been issued, given the unpopularity of the monument proposal in northern Maine. The park service’s nearly $12 billion maintenance backlog, makes it questionable ‘whether the service can afford to manage this new federal acquisition,’ Collins said in a prepared statement.” [Bangor Daily News, 8/24/16]

- Poliquin: “Out Local Job Creators – Not Washington – Know Best How To Use Our Working Forests And Provide Proper Access For Industries To Create More Jobs. “‘All public officials must do everything humanly possible to help ensure local input as to how this new federal land will be managed. Our local job creators -- not Washington bureaucrats -- know best how to use our working forests and provide proper access for industries to create more jobs,’” Poliquin said.” [Bangor Daily News, 8/24/16]

- Poliquin Said He Opposed Katahdin Woods’ Monument Designation As A “Unilateral Decision” By Obama. “The news Wednesday that President Barack Obama has designated about 87,500 acres of Maine’s North Woods as a national monument has put the controversial issue front and center in the state’s 2nd Congressional District race. Of the two competing for the seat, incumbent U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, took the clearest stance Wednesday, saying in a prepared statement that he was opposed to such ‘a unilateral decision’ by the Obama administration, but adding that he will ‘continue to work with everyone to move this project forward in the right way in order to build a stronger economy that creates more and better-paying jobs in the Katahdin region and in Maine.’” [Kennebec Journal, 8/24/16]

February 2017: Poliquin Was The Only Member Of Maine’s Delegation Who Did Not “Urge LePage To Back Off” After He Asked Trump To Revoke Katahdin Woods’ Monument Status

have to guess where 2nd District U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin stands on the future of Katahdin Woods and Waters National Monument. If he has an opinion, he's not talking about it. We know where Gov. LePage stands – he's begging President Trump to act outside his legal authority to undo the monument designation and put the 87,500 acres back into private hands. Rep. Bruce Poliquin is the only member of the Maine delegation who won't say whether he wants President Trump to undo the Katahdin Woods and Waters National Monument designation. […] But the member of Congress whose district encompasses the entire parcel and whose constituents would be most affected by any change to its status has nothing he wants to add.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 2/27/17]

May 2017: Poliquin Said He Would Not Advocate For Or Against Katahdin Woods Retaining Its Monument Status, Which A Local Business Owner Criticized

May 2017: Poliquin Said He Would Not Advocate For Or Against Katahdin Woods Retaining Its Monument Status: “The Local People Need To Speak Up, Unfortunately, Like They Did A Year Ago.” “When asked repeatedly whether he would advocate for or against the monument in his district while it’s being reviewed by the Trump administration, Poliquin ultimately said he would not. ‘I have done my part. It’s in the hands of the executive branch,’ he said. ‘We’ll see what decision (Trump) makes.’ Poliquin said he’s focused on creating jobs in the Katahdin region, including logging and recreational jobs. He encouraged others, such as Gov. Paul LePage, who opposes the designation, to continue to speak out. ‘The local people need to speak up, unfortunately, like they did a year ago, but they have to do it again,’ he said.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/12/17]

June 2017: Katahdin Area Business Owner Criticized Poliquin For Having “Done Nothing” To Help Katahdin Woods Retain Monument Status And Save The Local Economy

June 2017: James Talbot, Longtime Katahdin Area Business Owner, Op-Ed: LePage “Misrepresented Public Opinion In Maine” And Told Trump Mainers Opposed Katahdin Woods Monument. “As a longtime business owner in the Katahdin region, I am shocked by the few people doing everything they can to tear down our communities and destroy the economic progress already made since the designation of Katahdin Woods and Waters National Monument. Katahdin Woods and Waters is under an Interior Department review ordered by President Trump to ensure what his executive order called ‘adequate public outreach’ was part of the designation process. However, our monument is in a class by itself regarding public outreach. We're on the review list only because Gov. LePage traveled to Washington and misrepresented public opinion in Maine, saying the majority of Mainers were opposed to the monument.” [Portland Press Herald, James Talbot Op-Ed, 6/7/17]

Talbot Op-Ed: “The Monument Has Given Our Communities Hope And Early Signs Of Economic Growth. Now Those Investments And Jobs Are In Doubt.” “After decades of decline and strife, the monument has given our communities hope and early signs of economic growth. Now those investments and jobs are in doubt. I want to grow my own business, but WSYY’s planned expansion will not proceed if the national monument designation is rescinded or changed - or, frankly, if the shadow cast by our governor isn't lifted.” [Portland Press Herald, James Talbot Op-Ed, 6/7/17]

• Talbot Said He Would “Have Little Choice But To Sell” His Business Without The Monument Designation. “If the designation is rescinded, banks have no reason to lend and I'll have little choice but to sell to a national religious broadcaster. Just as with Lincoln's WLKN years ago, this would mean that Red Sox broadcasts would never return, and there would be no local music, DJs, sports or CBS News. Another local station gone.” [Portland Press Herald, James Talbot Op-Ed, 6/7/17]

Chellie Pingree have come out strongly against this attack. Sen. Susan Collins has mildly opposed efforts to harm the monument. Rep. Bruce Poliquin has done nothing and says it’s up to the executive branch. That’s not how representation works. The people and businesses of the Katahdin region want Sen. Collins and Rep. Poliquin to protect our monument, our small businesses, our communities and the image of northern Maine.” [Portland Press Herald, James Talbot Op-Ed, 6/7/17]

June 2017: Poliquin Requested That Zinke Recommend State Control Of Katahdin Woods Regardless Of Its Monument Status

December 2017: Poliquin Pushed For A Proposal To Modify Katahdin Woods And Waters’ Monument Designation To Allow For “Active Timber Management”

Poliquin Supported Commercial Logging In Katahdin Woods And Waters And “Pushed [For It] In Talks With Zinke Over Several Months.” “U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin said the report advocates for commercial logging within the monument, an idea he pushed in talks with Zinke over several months. Landowners allowed that before St. Clair’s mother, Roxanne Quimby, bought the land, he said. ‘We must ensure that the hundreds of Mainers who make their living in the forest products industry are not impacted by this federal land acquisition,’ Poliquin, R-Maine, said in a statement.” [Bangor Daily News, 9/18/17]

- Zinke Said He And Poliquin Were Friends And Consulted Him About The Possibility Of Making Katahdin Woods A National Park. “A former Republican congressman from Montana, Zinke said he is friends with U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-Maine, and has discussed with him the possibility of making the monument a national park.” [Bangor Daily News, 6/15/17]

- Natural Resources Council Of Maine Executive Director Lisa Pohlmann: Commercial Logging “Could Cause Substantial Harm” To The Monument’s Natural Resources And Economic Benefits. “Commercial logging ‘could cause substantial harm to the natural resources protected by the monument and to the economic and recreation benefits’ Katahdin Woods and Waters is creating, council Executive Director Lisa Pohlmann said in a statement.” [Bangor Daily News, 9/18/17]

December 2017: Poliquin Supported Zinke’s Proposal For Trump To Modify Katahdin Woods And Waters’ Monument Designation To Allow For “Active Timber Management.” “The interior secretary submitted that report to the president in August, but only publicly released the report on Tuesday, although leaked copies have been circulating since September. Trump has yet to act on the other recommendations in the report. […] In the case of Katahdin Woods and Waters, the report recommends changing the proclamation creating the monument ‘to ensure compliance with the provisions and intent of the (Antiquities) Act while also prioritizing (promotion of) a healthy forest through active timber management.’ […] ‘The recommendation put forward by Secretary Zinke is a smart compromise that will help ensure traditional uses of the land and sustainable forest management are safeguarded, along with the jobs they support in the area,’ Poliquin said in a statement. ‘As I’ve said before, our goal should be to move this project forward in the right way to build a stronger economy that creates more and better paying jobs in the Katahdin Region and in Maine. Secretary Zinke’s recommendation strikes the right balance.’” [Portland Press Herald, 12/5/17]

- Natural Resources Council Of Maine Executive Director Lisa Pohlmann: Zinke’s Proposal Could Be A “Clear Violation Of The Laws That Determine How The National Park Service Manages Lands.” “Lisa Pohlmann, executive director of the Natural Resources Council of Maine, said managing timber to ‘restore a healthy, natural forest’ or for education purposes could be consistent with Katahdin Woods and Waters’ purpose. ‘If the secretary envisions commercial timber harvesting, then it would be a clear violation of the laws that determine how the National Park Service manages lands,’ Pohlmann said in a written statement. ‘Such a proposal would almost certainly trigger a lawsuit.’” [Portland Press Herald, 9/18/17]

2017: Trump Proposed Cutting The EPA’s Budget By 25 Percent, Reducing Funding For Maine’s Industrial Cleanups, Grants To Mitigate Radon, Water Quality Tests, And School Buses. “The Trump administration's proposal to impose deep cuts on the Environmental Protection Agency’s budget is raising fears that it would devastate Maine's environment and undermine its economy. The preliminary White House plan would trim the EPA's budget by 25 percent. It would cut nearly a third of state grant programs that fund the cleanup of abandoned industrial sites as well as protect air and water quality, and it would eliminate grants that help Maine and other states mitigate radon, conduct beach water quality tests and buy cleaner school buses.” [Portland Press Herald, 3/12/17]

Natural Resources Council Of Maine Advocacy Director Said The Cuts Would Be “Devastating To Environmental Protection In Maine” And Damage “Our Economic Prospects.” “‘These cuts would be devastating to environmental protection in Maine,’ said Pete Didisheim, advocacy director at the Natural Resources Council of Maine, the state's most politically active environmental group. ‘We're a state that depends very heavily on the health of the environment as a core foundation of our economy, so these cuts are cuts to our economic prospects, really.’” [Portland Press Herald, 3/12/17]

Poliquin Voted For Bills That Would Gut The EPA

Poliquin Voted For The EPA Science Advisory Board Reform Act. In March 2017, Poliquin voted for: “passage of a bill that would establish a selection process for members of the EPA’s Science Advisory Board. The bill would require the board’s members represent a variety of scientific and technical viewpoints. It would require board member nominees to disclose financial relationships that would be relevant to EPA advisory activities. It would require the board to generally avoid making policy determinations or recommendations to the EPA.” The bill was passed by a vote of 229-193. [HR 1431, Vote #208, 3/30/17; CQ, 3/30/17]

- NRDC Called The Bill A “Gift To The Chemical Industry” That Would Make It Much More Difficult To Hold Polluting Industries Accountable.” “Another gift to the chemical industry is being wrapped with a bow by the Republican Congress. The EPA Science Advisory Board is meant to provide scientific advice to the EPA, such as reviewing its chemical hazard assessments. But this new Republican Science Advisory Board Act (SAB Act) would instead invite the chemical and regulated industries to help characterize the science of harm about their own hazardous products. This, ultimately, would make it much more difficult to hold polluting industries accountable.” [NRDC, 3/30/17]

- NRDC Said The Bill Would “Encourage Industry Conflicts In The Review Of Scientific Materials” And Hamper The Work And Effectiveness Of The Board, “Undermin[Ing] Important Public Health, Safety And Environmental Measures.” “In short, due to these and other provisions, the ‘EPA Science Advisory Board Reform Act of 2017’ would alter the nature of the SAB, which has been largely successful in providing the EPA expert review of key scientific and technical questions, and would encourage industry conflicts in the review of scientific materials. It would also pile new and burdensome requirements on the Board, severely hampering its work and effectiveness. The result would be to further stall and undermine important public health, safety and environmental measures.” [NRDC, 3/30/17]

- Poliquin Voted For Providing For House Consideration Of The EPA Science Advisory Board Reform Act. In March 2017, Poliquin voted for: the “adoption of the rule (H Res 233) that would provide for House floor consideration of the bill that would establish a selection process for members of the EPA’s Science Advisory Board. The bill would require board member nominees to disclose financial relationships that would be relevant to EPA advisory activities.” The rule was adopted by a vote of 232-188. [HRes 233, Vote #204, 3/29/17; CQ, 3/29/17]

- Poliquin Voted Against An Amendment Prohibiting Any Member Of The EPA Science Advisory Board From Being Employed By Any Interests Before The Board During That Person’s Term, And For Three Years After. In March 2017, Poliquin voted against: the “Foster, D-Ill., motion to recommit the bill the House Science, Space and Technology Committee with instructions to report it back immediately with an amendment that would prohibit, both during and for three years following a term on the board, Science Advisory Board members from being employed by any entity with interests before the board.” The motion was rejected by a vote of 189-233. [HR 1431, Vote #207, 3/30/17; CQ, 3/30/17]

Poliquin Voted For The Honest and Open New EPA Science Treatment (HONEST) Act, Prohibiting The EPA From Proposing A Rule Unless The Scientific Information Backing It Up Is Publicly Available. In March 2017, Poliquin voted for: “passage of the bill that would prohibit the EPA from proposing, finalizing or disseminating a rule, regulation or standard unless the scientific and technical information on which the EPA’s decisions relied is publicly available for independent analysis. It would require any personally identifiable information, trade secrets or sensitive business information to be redacted prior to the publication of the scientific information.” The bill was passed by a vote of 228-194. [HR 1430, Vote #206, 3/29/17, CQ, 3/29/17]

- The HONEST Act Would Bar Many Kinds Of Scientific Evidence From Consideration, Including Studies That Included Medical Records, Which Cannot Legally Be Released, And Greatly Increase Costs To Enforce. “For example, it would would stop the EPA from crafting public health protections based on studies that use medical records, which are confidential and cannot be legally released. […] The aides I spoke to denied that the process would be unmanageable, noting that every federal agency already redacts plenty of confidential information. But the Congressional Budget Office estimated that old iterations of the HONEST Act would take $250 million a year to enforce, and the new version only allocates an extra $1 million to the added burden of redaction—all while Trump is planning to cut the EPA’s budget.” [The Atlantic, 3/15/17]

- Poliquin Voted Against An Amendment Exempting EPA Actions Related To Public Health Threats From The Bill’s Requirement That The Scientific Information Behind The EPA’s Actions Must Be Publicly Available. In March 2017, Poliquin voted against: the “McEachin, D-Va., motion to recommit the bill to the House Science, Space and Technology Committee with instructions to report it back immediately with an amendment that would exempt EPA actions taken in response to a public health threat from the bill’s requirement that the scientific information that influenced the EPA’s actions must be publicly available.” The motion was rejected by a vote of 189-232. November 2017: Poliquin Co-Sponsored A Bill To Make Sexual Harassment Prevention Trainings Mandatory For House Employees.

Poliquin is one of the three main co-sponsors of a measure introduced by California Democrat Jackie Speier that would require House members, congressional staff, and other employees of the House to complete sexual harassment prevention and response training every year, and then file a certification of completion with the House Committee on Ethics. [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/6/17]

Bruce Poliquin, a 2nd District Republican, said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/6/17]

- Poliquin: “There Can Be No Tolerance Of Any Kind For Sexual Harassment Anywhere — Period.” “Poliquin said in a prepared statement that Congress sets the laws and policies for executive branch employees to undergo required sexual harassment training. ‘How can we be expected to lead on those policies when we, ourselves, are so far behind?’ he asked. ‘There can be no tolerance of any kind for sexual harassment anywhere — period.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/6/17]

February 2018: Poliquin Claimed Measures Increasing Transparency In Harassment Proceedings For Hill Staff And Requiring Members Of Congress To Pay Sexual Harassment Settlements Passed “Under His Leadership.” “Following the leadership of Congressman Bruce Poliquin (ME-02) and a bipartisan group of lawmakers in the House and Senate, the U.S. House of Representatives today approved sweeping changes to reform the claims process for sexual harassment in the Legislative Branch to make it easier for victims to report abuse. […] Today, the House passed two separate measures by unanimous voice vote: (1) H.R. 4924 reforms the procedures provided under the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 to bring more transparency to the process while mandating stronger protections for employees; (2) H.Res. 724 requires Members of Congress to personally pay for any settlements to victims and creates an office where employees can seek guidance and counsel on employment issues.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 2/6/18]

February 2017: Poliquin Voted To Repeal A Rule Requiring Companies Bidding For Large Federal Contracts To Disclose Sexual Harassment Violations

Poliquin Voted To Repeal A Rule Requiring Businesses To Disclose Harassment Violations When Bidding On Large Federal Contracts. In February 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the joint resolution that would nullify and disapprove of a Defense Department, General Services Administration and NASA rule that requires companies that bid for federal contracts of more than $500,000 to disclose whether they have been determined in the previous three years to have violated certain federal labor laws and equivalent state laws.” The resolution passed 236-187 and was signed into law on March 27, 2017. [H J Res 37, Vote #76, 2/2/17; CQ, 2/2/17]

- Politico: A Vote For The Resolution Was A Vote To Endanger “Hundreds Of Thousands Of American Workers” By Repealing Safeguards Against Sexual Harassment. “Not long before a deluge of sexual harassment claims engulfed Capitol Hill, congressional Republicans and President Donald Trump quietly repealed safeguards to protect hundreds of thousands of American workers from such harassment. Their target was an August 2016 regulation issued by the Obama Labor Department that required businesses to disclose certain labor violations — including sexual harassment — whenever they bid on large federal contracts. The vote last year is especially relevant now that Congress, under immense public pressure, is weighing legislation to outlaw the very same secrecy agreements that it voted to keep legal less than a year ago.” [Politico, 1/2/18]

- Politico: The Obama Era Regulation “Required Businesses To Disclose Certain Labor Violations — Including Sexual Harassment — Whenever They Bid On Large Federal Contracts.” “Their target was an August 2016 regulation issued by the Obama Labor Department that required businesses to disclose certain labor violations — including sexual harassment — whenever they bid on large federal contracts.” [Politico, 1/2/18]

- Republicans Pushed Repeal Of The Protections In What They Characterized As Ending “Job-Killing Regulations.” “The regulation in question was one of 14 reversed by congressional resolutions that Trump signed into law last year as part of his much-touted war against ‘job-killing regulations.’” [Politico, 1/2/18]

- The Rule Also Barred Mandatory Arbitration Clauses Which Overwhelmingly Benefit Employers And Silence Survivors Of Sexual Harassment. “Besides requiring disclosure, the rule forbade the biggest federal contractors from forcing workers to take their grievances to arbitration, where employees are likelier to lose, than in the courts; in addition, the private proceedings are typically kept secret. Mandatory arbitration clauses played a key role in keeping secret the sexual harassment settlements that piled up over decades at Fox News and elsewhere. Gretchen Carlson, who in 2016 settled a sexual harassment complaint against the late Fox News chairman Roger Ailes for a reported $20 million, has made the elimination of mandatory arbitration clauses the centerpiece of a campaign against sexual harassment.” [Politico, 1/2/18]

Maine individuals, local businesses and organizations who have signed the pledge, now numbering nearly 300 in total, commit to a number of practices to foster and maintain respectful and harassment-free environments. […] Specifically, the #MaineCanDo pledge states a commitment to the following: Review workplace sexual harassment policies in light of #metoo and audit how they work in practice. Create and assure that appropriate and safe mechanisms are in place to report, measure and track complaints of inappropriate behaviors whether intentional or unintentional. Be proactive in developing respectful workplace cultures. Designate and ensure employees know of go-to members in organizational leadership who will ensure grievances are taken seriously, investigated fairly, and resolved quickly.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 6/15/18]

Poliquin Repeatedly Voted Against Or Did Not Vote On Considering The Paycheck Fairness Act

2015: Poliquin Voted For Blocking Consideration Of The Paycheck Fairness Act. In April 2015, Poliquin voted for: “Sessions, R-Texas, motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and possibility of amendment) on adoption of the rule (H Res 189) to provide for House floor consideration of the bill to exclude insurance paid at closing into escrow, as well as fees paid to lender-affiliated companies, from the three percent limit on points and fees imposed on qualified mortgages by redefining "points and fees" under the Truth in Lending Act. It also would provide for floor consideration of the bill to modify federal rules regarding high-cost-mortgages as they apply to manufactured housing. The rule also would take the fiscal 2016 Senate budget resolution from the Speaker’s table, adopt a substitute amendment consisting of the text of the fiscal 2016 House budget resolution, as adopted by the House, and would adopt the concurrent resolution, as amended.” According to the Democratic Leader’s office, The Democratic Previous Question demands the House vote on a key measure to end the pay gap between men and women and ensure equal pay for equal work: the Paycheck Fairness Act (HR 1619).” The previous question passed 239 to 183. - In 2017, Poliquin voted to reauthorize the National Flood Insurance Program without risk reduction programs or flood-risk mapping.

The bill would authorize $81 billion in aid for ongoing response and recovery from 2017 hurricanes and wildfires, and would authorize Puerto Rico to use surplus toll credits to cover the local share of federal highway emergency relief. The bill would remove a cap on federal highway assistance to U.S. territories for fiscal 2018 and 2019.” The bill passed 251 to 169. [HR 4667, Vote #709, 12/21/17; CQ, 12/21/17]

It would also exempt various forest management activities from filing environmental impact statements and would provide for expedited timber salvage operations and reforestation activities after catastrophic events. It would prohibit any court from issuing restraining orders or injunctions against salvage operations or reforestation activities undertaken in response to a large-scale catastrophic event.” The bill passed 257-166. On behalf of our millions of our members and supporters, we urge you to OPPOSE the Resilient Federal Forest Act of 2017 (H.R. 2936). This bill is extreme and unfortunately, instead of protecting and restoring our public forests, H.R. 2936 puts our forests, communities and wildlife at risk.” [NCPA, 10/31/17]
• NCPA: Wildfire Suppression Funding In The RFFA Was “Completely Inadequate, Leaving Unaddressed The Largest Part Of The Problem: The Growing Impact Of Wildfire Suppression On The Forest Service’s Annual Budget.” “The provisions offered in response to the wildfire funding crisis, even in this most recent version of the bill, are completely inadequate, leaving unaddressed the largest part of the problem: the growing impact of wildfire suppression on the Forest Service’s annual budget.” [NCPA, 10/31/17]

The total would include $7.4 billion for the Homeland Security Department’s Disaster Relief Fund, which will be used by the Federal Emergency Management Agency to support ongoing hurricane response efforts. It would also include $450 million for the Small Business Administration’s disaster loan program to assist small businesses and homeowners.” The motion passed, 419-3. [HRes 502, Vote #441, 9/6/17; CQ, 9/6/17]

Funding Tied To FAA Authorization

In September 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would extend through March 31, 2018, various expiring authorities, programs and activities for the Federal Aviation Administration. The measure would also extend multiple health care programs and would establish the basis for the development of a private flood insurance market. It would modify tax provisions for individuals living in areas impacted by Hurricanes Harvey, Irma and Maria, and would allow the federal government to reimburse the governments of Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands for any disaster tax relief that those islands provide their citizens.” The bill passed by a vote of 264-155. [HR 3823, Vote #542, 9/28/17; CQ, 9/28/17]

In September 2017, Poliquin voted against: “Nadler, D-N.Y., motion to recommit the bill to the House Ways and Means Committee with instructions to report it back immediately with an amendment that would require the secretary of the Treasury to pay to the U.S. Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico amounts equal to 400 percent of the loss in revenues from Hurricanes Harvey, Irma and Maria for the repair of infrastructure and the payment of health care costs on the islands. ### General Disaster Relief Funding

Oil Spills

2015: Poliquin Voted Against An Amendment To Increase Funding For Inland Oil Spill Programs. In July 2015, Poliquin voted against an amendment to increase funding for inland oil spill programs. The Amendment would reduce funding for Bureau of Ocean Energy Management by $5,434,000 and to increase funding for Inland Oil Spill Programs by a similar amount. According to the amendment’s sponsor, Rep. Lois Capps, “When it comes to oil spills, the damage gets worse by the minute, so ensuring that spill response teams are properly trained and prepared to respond quickly is essential to minimizing the impacts. This is precisely why the EPA has jurisdiction over the inland oil spill program. … Despite its scope and importance, this program has been seriously underfunded for years, and H.R. 2822 only makes things worse by funding this program at nearly 25 percent less than the President Requested. My amendment would simply increase funding for this program by 5.4 million, to match the President’s requested amount of $23.4 million for fiscal year 2016.” The amendment failed, 184 to 243. […] Others testifying in support of the bill said Mainers should take warning from the spilling of oil sands in other parts of the country, including into the Kalamazoo River in Michigan — dubbed the most costly inland oil spill cleanup in the U.S. to date at nearly $1 billion — and ask what the economic impact of a spill like that would be here. ‘A spill like this in the Sebago Lake watershed, or near any of Maine’s waterways, would be utterly disastrous,’ said Emily Figdor of Environment Maine.” [Bangor Daily News, 5/6/13]

Hurricane Relief

Poliquin Voted For Making $36.5 Billion In Emergency Supplemental Funding For Fiscal 2018 To Partially Cover Costs Of Natural Disasters. In October 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., motion to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H Res 569) that would provide that upon agreeing to the resolution, the House will have been considered to have concurred in the Senate amendment to the bill (HR 2266) with a House amendment that would make available $36.5 billion in emergency supplemental funding for fiscal 2018 to partially cover the costs of responding to multiple natural disasters, including hurricanes and wildfires. The measure would include $18.7 billion for the Federal Emergency Management Agency’s Disaster Relief Fund - $4.9 billion of which would be used for disaster relief loans to Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands. It would also cancel $16 billion of the Treasury debt incurred by FEMA’s National Flood Insurance Program, would release $1.2 billion in contingency reserves from the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program for use in Puerto Rico would provide $577 million in funding to fight wildfires.” The motion was agreed to 353-69. Poliquin Voted For Reauthorizing The National Flood Insurance Program Without Risk-Reduction Programs Or Flood-Risk Mapping

Poliquin Voted For Reauthorizing The National Flood Insurance Program Without Risk-Reduction Programs Or Flood-Risk Mapping. In November 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill, as amended, that would reauthorize the National Flood Insurance Program through fiscal 2022 and would make modifications to the program, including: raise annual surcharges and reserve fund assessments on federal flood insurance policyholders, raise rates on properties that incur multiple losses, establish an annual deductible for severe and extreme repetitive loss properties and end the requirement that flood insurance be purchased for commercial and multifamily properties located in flood risk zones. It would also require that flood insurance provided by private sector carriers be accepted by Federal Emergency Management Agency and considered as meeting the National Flood Insurance Program’s mandatory flood insurance purchase requirements, and would allow private insurers and any other interested party to review FEMA information regarding its assessments of flood risk.” The bill passed 237-189. [HR 2874, Vote #630, 11/14/17; CQ, 11/14/17]

- Nature Conservancy: “U.S. House Of Representatives Misses Mark In Reducing Nation’s Flood Risk.”

  “Unfortunately, this bill falls short of significant improvements needed to bolster risk reduction and flood-risk mapping efforts under the National Flood Insurance Program,” Murdock said. ‘The program has failed to achieve its intended goal of lessening our nation’s flood risk. Congress needs to place more emphasis on reforms that mitigate risk and promote using the best-available science and technology in mapping processes. It is particularly important that reforms enable the restoration of functioning floodplains and disincentivize development in areas of high flood risk.’” [Nature Conservancy, 11/15/17]

- Next City: November 2017 NFIP Reauthorization Would “Let Some Premiums Rise” And Deny Coverage To Homes That Flood Repeatedly. “It largely depends on the NFIP. On November 14, the U.S. House of Representatives passed the 21st Century Flood Reform Act, an attempt to reauthorize the program and simultaneously make it solvent. As part of the reforms, the bill would allow the NFIP to deny coverage to homes that flood repeatedly. It would also let some premiums rise, though it would cap those premiums at $10,000. Bruce Poliquin, the congressman from Maine’s 2nd District, voted in favor of the bill.” [Next City, 11/27/17]

- Rising Flood Insurance Premiums Could Determine The “Future Sustainability Of Communities” And “Decimate” The Housing Market In Maine, With Working-Class Mainers Bearing The Cost. “The perception gap that separates Tampa Bay and Gardiner is striking. People in Maine watch tropical storms lash the Florida coast on CNN and equate flooding with total destruction in the Sunshine State. Likewise, Floridians hardly associate central Maine with any serious flood risk at all. But in many ways, the threat of flooding — and of rapidly rising flood insurance premiums — holds similar consequences for the future sustainability of communities in both places. Maine and Florida are both ‘donor states’ that pay in more to the NFIP than they take out, and it’s working-class communities that will bear the brunt of premium spikes in each of them. Perhaps most critically, the ripple effect of such spikes could decimate each area’s housing market in similar fashion, pulling the rug out from under their respective economic recoveries.” [Next City, 11/27/17]

We supply changemakers with information that fuels their fight for low-income neighborhoods.” [Next City, accessed 10/26/21]
Poliquin Voted Against Requiring FEMA To Certify That Claims From Hurricane Sandy Were Resolved Before The National Flood Insurance Program Is Reauthorized. In November 2017, Poliquin voted against: “Pascrell, D-N.J., motion to recommit the bill to the House Financial Services Committee with instructions to report it back immediately with an amendment that would prevent the bill’s provisions from taking effect unless the Federal Emergency Management Agency certifies the resolution of all claims for losses resulting from Hurricane Sandy of 2012 that were covered under the National Flood Insurance Program.” The motion was rejected 236-190. [HR 2874, Vote #629, 11/14/17; CQ, 11/14/17]

Poliquin Voted For Considering The National Defense Authorization Act Of 2018 And Reauthorizing The National Flood Insurance Program. In November 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Adoption of the rule (H Res 616) that would provide for House floor consideration of the conference report to accompany the bill (HR 2810) that would authorize $692.1 billion for defense programs in fiscal 2018. It would also provide for consideration of the bill (HR 2874) that would reauthorize the National Flood Insurance Program through fiscal 2022 and would modify several aspects of the program. The rule would require the House clerk to not transmit to the Senate a message that the House has adopted the conference report to accompany the Fiscal 2018 Defense Authorization (HR 2810) until the House receives a message from the Senate that the Senate has passed a bill (HR 4374), without amendment, that would authorize the Food and Drug Administration to expedite consideration of certain medical products at the Pentagon’s request.” The rule was adopted 233-187. Wall Street Reform

Poliquin Voted Repeatedly To Roll Back Wall Street Reform

2018: Poliquin Voted For A Bill That Would Raise The Minimum Asset Level At Which The More Stringent Bank Regulation Provisions Of The 2010 Financial Overhaul Applied From $50 To $250 Billion. In May 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would apply the more stringent bank regulation provisions of the 2010 financial overhaul to banks with $250 billion in assets, instead of those with at least $50 billion in assets. It would also allow banks with less than $10 billion in assets to trade with depositors’ money. The bill would lift the threshold for disclosure requirements to $10 million for employee-owned securities and would allow venture capital funds to have up to 250 investors and be exempt from certain registering requirements. It would provide consumers with the right to request a ‘security freeze’ on their credit reports, which would prohibit a consumer reporting agency from releasing information from the consumer’s credit report without express authorization. It would define a ‘qualified mortgage’ as any residential mortgage loan held by a bank, removing the requirement that for a ‘qualified mortgage,’ a bank must determine that a mortgage recipient has the ability to repay.” The bill was passed (thus cleared for the president) by a vote of 258-159. [S. 2155, Vote #216, 5/22/18; CQ, 5/22/18]

- Critics Said The Bill Created Loopholes That Larger Banks Would Exploit. “Rothfus made his claim after voting in favor of the Economic Growth, Regulatory Relief, and Consumer Protection Act, S. 2155, which supporters said will lessen the Dodd-Frank burden on community banking institutions — defined as those with less than $10 billion in assets — and which critics argue creates wiggle room and loopholes that larger banks will exploit. The rollback was signed into law by President Donald Trump on May 24.” [PolitiFact, 5/31/18]

- The Bill Contained Policies Which Would Roll Back Or Eliminate Key Parts Of Wall Street Reform. “Late last year the Economic Growth, Regulatory Relief and Consumer Protection Act, which was sponsored by Banking Committee Chairman Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, with nearly 20 co-sponsors on both sides of the aisle, was introduced in the Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs […] The bill contains policies which would roll back or eliminate key parts from the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act.” [Housing Wire, 3/6/18]
2017: Poliquin Voted For The CHOICE Act To “Overhaul Financial Industry Regulations And Repeal Many Provisions Of The 2010 Dodd-Frank Law.” In June 2017, Poliquin voted for: “passage of the bill that would overhaul financial industry regulations and repeal many provisions of the 2010 Dodd-Frank law. It would convert the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau into an executive agency funded by annual appropriations and would modify operations at the Federal Reserve and at the Securities and Exchange Commission. It would repeal the prohibition on banking entities engaging in proprietary trading and would modify regulations governing the amount of capital that banks are required to maintain. It would also nullify the Labor Department’s April 2016 "fiduciary" rule regarding standards for individuals who provide retirement investment advice to act in the best interests of their clients.” The bill passed 233-186. [HR 10, Vote #299, 6/8/17; CQ Floor Votes, 6/8/17]

- HEADLINE: House passes Choice Act that would gut Dodd-Frank banking reforms [CNBC, 6/8/17]

- New York Times: CHOICE Act “To Erase A Number Of Core Financial Regulations,” Including Limits On Risk Taking Enacted After The Financial Crash, And “Would Weaken The Powers Of The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau.” “The House approved legislation on Thursday to erase a number of core financial regulations put in place by the 2010 Dodd-Frank Act, as Republicans moved a step closer to delivering on their promises to eliminate rules that they claim have strangled small businesses and stagnated the economy. [...] The Choice Act would exempt some financial institutions that meet capital and liquidity requirements from many of Dodd-Frank’s restrictions that limit risk taking. It would also replace Dodd-Frank’s method of dealing with large and failing financial institutions, known as the orderly liquidation authority — which critics say reinforces the idea that some banks are too big to fail — with a new bankruptcy code provision. In addition, the legislation would weaken the powers of the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau.” [New York Times, 6/8/17]

- Poliquin Claimed The CHOICE Act Would “End Big Wall Street Bank Bailouts” And “Create Stronger Safeguards For Consumers.” “Poliquin and all but one other House Republican voted for the Financial Choice Act. He said the legislation would ‘end big Wall Street bank bailouts, impose the most severe penalties in history for financial criminals, relieve Maine's community banks and local credit unions of smothering regulatory burdens and create stronger safeguards for consumers.’ [...] Poliquin also said the measure would keep ‘very strong’ protections in place for consumers, ‘while at the same time imposing the toughest penalties ever for fraud and inside dealings for folks that participate in this industry.’ He called it ‘a great bill for rural America’ that the huge banks and Wall Street oppose despite its reduction in regulations.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 9/18/17]

2017: Poliquin Voted For Consideration Of The CHOICE Act That Would Repeal Many Provisions Of The Wall Street Reform. In June 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Adoption of the rule (H Res 375) that would overhaul financial industry regulations and repeal many provisions of the 2010 Dodd-Frank law. It would convert the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau into an executive agency, modify operations at the Federal Reserve and at the Securities and Exchange Commission, modify regulations governing the amount of capital that banks are required to maintain, and repeal the prohibition on banking entities engaging in proprietary trading.” The rule was adopted, 231-188. [H Res 375, Vote #291, 6/7/17; CQ, 6/7/17]

2015: Poliquin Voted For A Bill To Deregulate Wall Street. In January 2015, Poliquin voted for: legislation that combined the text from eleven bills and would roll back or delay a number of regulations in the Dodd-Frank financial reform law. “The most serious attack of the bunch came in the form of a partial two-year delay of the Volcker Rule, which would ban banks from speculating in securities markets with taxpayer money. The bill would have allowed Citigroup and JPMorgan Chase to hold onto almost $50 billion in risky corporate debt packages known as collateralized loan obligations through 2019.” The bill passed, 271 to 154. [HR 37, Vote #37, 1/14/15; Huffington Post, 1/10/14]

to limit risky investments by banks, and make other changes.” The vote failed to reach a 2/3 majority, 276 to 146. [HR 37, Vote #9, 1/7/15; Bloomberg, 1/7/15]

December 2017: PoliquinIntroduced A Bill To Exempt Certain Financial Institutions From Stress Tests Mandated By Wall Street Reform

- Poliquin’s Bill Would Exempt Certain Nonbank Financial Institutions, Including Mutual Funds, From Stress Tests Mandated By Dodd-Frank. “Asset managers and other nonbanks would be spared from Dodd-Frank Act stress tests under legislation passed March 20 by the House, but the bill faces a much tougher path in the Senate. Lawmakers voted 395-19 for H.R. 4566, sponsored by Rep. Bruce Poliquin (R-Maine). The bill exempts nonbank financial institutions, such as mutual funds, that are not under supervision by the Federal Reserve and whose primary regulator is the Securities and Exchange Commission or Commodity Futures Trading Commission from Dodd-Frank stress testing requirements.” [Bloomberg Law, 3/20/18]

- Lewiston Sun Journal: Stress Tests “Try To Assess The Stability Of Assets Held By Managers And Banks.” “Complicated stress test scenarios that try to assess the stability of assets held by managers and banks, the lawmaker said Tuesday, do not fit every type of institution.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 3/20/18]

- Poliquin Said Current Stress Test Regulations Were “Costly, Cumbersome And Unnecessary” And Reduced Returns On Investments. “Calling the existing law ‘costly, cumbersome and unnecessary,’ Poliquin told colleagues that changing the ‘one size fits all’ law benefits everyone who relies on mutual funds and other places where people put their money besides banks. The extra testing adds costs that aren’t needed, he said. ‘The higher the expense, the lower the rate of return,’ Poliquin said. What that leads to, he said, is a smaller nest egg.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 3/20/18]

3/20/18: HR 4566 Passed The House By A Margin Of 395-19. [HR 4566, Vote #119, 3/20/18]

October 2016: Poliquin Touted His “More Than Yearlong Efforts In Opposing” A Move To Eliminate Paper Copies Of Mutual Fund Reports, Which He Said Would Hurt Seniors And The Paper Industry

October 2016: Poliquin Touted His “More Than Yearlong Efforts In Opposing” A Move To Eliminate Paper Copies Of Mutual Fund Reports, Which He Said Would Hurt Seniors And The Paper Industry. “In a victory for Maine seniors and Maine’s paper industry, Congressman Bruce Poliquin (ME-02) announced today that the federal government will not move forward with a proposed policy that would be encumbering to Maine’s paper manufacturers and seniors. After Congressman Poliquin’s more than yearlong efforts in opposing the initiative, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) declared today that they would strike a harmful provision of a newly adopted rule. The provision, known as Rule 30e-3, would hurt paper manufacturers and deny seniors and rural Mainers access to their investment statements. […] Rule 30e-3 would fully eliminate all paper copy versions of mutual fund reports for investors unless the individual independently elects to receive them.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 10/13/16]

Poliquin Voted Against Protecting The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau

Poliquin Voted For Limiting Funding For The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau. In April 2015, Poliquin voted for: a bill that limited funding for the CFPB. “Passage of the bill that would formally establish three advisory boards with which the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) that must consult on matters regarding small businesses, credit unions and community banks. The measure is offset by limiting funding for the CFPB in future years. As amended, the bill would encourage the CFPB to ensure the participation of veteran-owned small-business concerns as members of the Small Business Advisory Board.” The bill passed 235-183. [HR 1195, Vote #167, 4/22/15; CQ News, 4/22/15]

Poliquin Voted Against Prohibiting Individuals Or Companies Convicted Of Predatory Lending From Serving On CFPB Boards. In April 2015, Poliquin voted against: a motion that protected military bases and veterans from predatory lenders. [HR 3971, Vote #675, 12/12/17; CQ, 12/12/17]

- Maxine Waters: HR 3971 Could “Set The Stage” For Another Financial Crisis. “A bill opponent, Rep. Maxine Waters, D-Calif., said dropping the regulations would ‘set the stage for a return of the harmful practices of the subprime meltdown and the worst financial crisis since the Great Depression.’” [Concord Monitor, 12/17/17]

Poliquin Voted For Exempting Home Manufacturing Companies From Mortgage-Related Regulatory Requirements And Increasing Threshold For “High Cost Mortgages.” In December 2017, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would change the definitions of ‘mortgage originator’ and ‘loan originator’ to exempt companies that manufacture homes and sell manufactured homes from various mortgage-related regulatory requirements. It would increase the maximum allowable rates and fees that may be applied to a manufactured home loan before the loan is classified as a high-cost mortgage.” The bill passed 256 to 163. [HR 1699, Vote #651, 12/1/17; CQ, 12/1/17]

Poliquin Voted For A Bill That Created An Exception To Rules Meant To Reduce Risky, High-Cost Mortgages. In February 2018, Poliquin voted for: “passage of the bill that would exclude insurance paid at closing into escrow, as well as fees paid for related services to lender-affiliated companies, from the three percent cap on points and fees imposed on qualified mortgages by modifying the definition of ‘points and fees.’” According to the Center for Responsible Lending, “the Mortgage Choice Act would allow many more risky, high-cost loans to qualify as Qualified Mortgage (QM) loans by creating exceptions to the points and fees threshold.” The bill passed, 280-131. [H.R. 1153, Vote #64, 2/8/18; CQ, 2/8/18; Center for Responsible Lending, 11/13/17]

March 2018: Poliquin Signed A Brief Supporting Mick Mulvaney, Who Insinuated He “Would Like To Get Rid Of” The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, As Its Interim Director

March 2018: Poliquin Signed A Brief Supporting Mick Mulvaney As Interim Director Of The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau. “Late last week, a group of 113 congressional Republicans filed an amicus brief in English’s case, declaring their support for Trump’s authority to name Mulvaney as the interim CFPB director. […] The brief was submitted by the following Republicans: […] Representative Bruce Poliquin (R-Maine)” [HousingWire, 3/5/18]

- February 2018: Mulvaney “Pulled Back From A Full-Scale Probe Of How Equifax Inc Failed To Protect The Personal Data Of Millions Of Consumers” As Interim CFPB Director. “Mick Mulvaney, head of the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, has pulled back from a full-scale probe of how Equifax Inc failed to protect the personal data of millions of consumers, according to people familiar with the matter. Equifax (EFX.N) said in September that hackers stole personal data it had collected on some 143 million Americans. Richard Cordray, then the CFPB director, authorized an investigation that month, said former officials familiar with the probe. But Cordray resigned in November and was replaced by Mulvaney, President Donald Trump’s budget chief. The CFPB effort against Equifax has sputtered since then, said several government and industry sources, raising questions about how Mulvaney will police a data-warehousing industry that has enormous sway over how much consumers pay to borrow money.” [Reuters, 2/5/18]

- 2014: Mulvaney Called CFPB A “Joke” In A “Sick, Sad Kind Of Way” And Said “Some Of Us Would Like To Get Rid Of It.” “It’s a wonderful example of how a bureaucracy will function if it has no accountability to anybody,” Mulvaney, a former South Carolina representative, said in a 2014 interview with the Credit Union Times. ‘It turns up being a joke, and that’s what the CFPB really has been, in a sick, sad kind of way, because you’ve got an institution that has tremendous authority over what you all do for a living.’ In the same interview, he called the CFPB ‘extraordinarily frightening.’ He said that ‘some of us would like to get rid of it’ altogether but acknowledged that it was unlikely, instead proposing reforms such as replacing the single director with a five-person commission.” [Vox, 11/16/17]

April 2017: Kennebec Journal Editorial Board Called Poliquin One Of “The [Consumer Financial Protection] Bureau’s Biggest Critics” And Wrote That He Should Have Fought “Efforts To Defang The Bureau”

Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: Poliquin Was Among “The [Consumer Financial Protection] Bureau’s Biggest Critics” But Should Have Fought “Efforts To Defang The Bureau.” “Officials who credit their election to a wave of populist resentment are now doing their best to gut the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, which has won back billions of dollars for millions of bilked Americans. Some of the bureau’s biggest critics — including 2nd District Rep. Bruce Poliquin, who started attacking the bureau during his first term and hasn’t let up since — are Wall Street’s biggest champions, because they get a lot of money from the financial sector. But if they were truly committed to acting in the interest of the people who President Donald Trump has called ‘forgotten
Americans,’ these lawmakers would fight efforts to defang the bureau and work to strengthen it instead.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 4/7/17]

Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: Poliquin Would Benefit From A Weakened CFPB Since He “Received Hundreds Of Thousands Of Dollars In Contributions From The Financial, Insurance And Real Estate Sector.” “Who’d benefit from a neutered Consumer Financial Protection Bureau? Not just the financial sector but also the politicians who barraged Cordray with questions and often-vague accusations at what was supposed to be a routine Financial Services hearing Wednesday, including Committee Chairman Jeb Hensarling of Texas and Ann Wagner of Missouri, as well as Maine’s Poliquin. Hensarling, Wagner and Poliquin each have received hundreds of thousands of dollars in contributions from the financial, insurance and real estate sector. Undoubtedly, so have their committee colleagues, given how much all politicians depend on the finance industry to fund their campaigns. Everyone wins except ordinary Americans — and dismantling the bureau will take away the only champion they have in Washington.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 4/7/17]

2009: Poliquin Attacked State Lawmakers For Supporting The 2009 Stimulus Bill

2009: Poliquin Attacked State Lawmakers For Supporting The 2009 Stimulus Bill. POLIQUIN: “[I]t seems like the folks in Augusta really don’t understand the seriousness of this fiscal meltdown we have. If they did, they wouldn’t have accepted about $700 billion of so-called stimulus money, put it into social programs that were badly in need of reform.” [YouTube, Bruce for Maine, Remarks at the Portland Republican Convention, 10/8/09] (VIDEO)

Poliquin Repeatedly Introduced The Iranian Leadership Asset Transparency Act, Which Democrats Criticized As An Attempt To Undermine The Iran Deal And DOJ Said Was Unconstitutional

June 2016: Poliquin Introduced HR 5461, The Iranian Leadership Asset Transparency Act. [Congress.gov, HR 1638, 6/13/16]

- Poliquin Wrote That He Introduced The Iranian Leadership Asset Transparency Act “To Further Help Protect Our Families.” “To further help protect our families, in September 2016, I pushed legislation through the House to hold Iranian officials accountable for financing terrorism around the world. It passed with an overwhelming bipartisan vote of 282-143. After more than a year, the Senate still hasn’t acted, and our families are less safe.” [Bangor Daily News, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 9/27/17]

September 2016: Poliquin Voted For The Iranian Leadership Asset Transparency Act To Require The Treasury Secretary To Submit A Report To Congress On The Known Assets Of Top Iranian Officials. In September 2016, Poliquin voted for passage of a bill “that would require the Treasury secretary to compile and submit to Congress a report detailing the known assets of the top political and military leaders of Iran, and it would require an annual report for two years following the initial report. The report would need to be submitted in unclassified form and include a classified annex if necessary. It also would need to be published in English, Farsi, Arabic and Azeri.” The bill passed 282 to 143. [HR 5461, Vote #536, 9/21/16; CQ, 9/21/16]

September 2016: Obama Threatened To Veto The Iranian Leadership Asset Transparency Act, Citing
Potential Damage To The Iran Deal And Intelligence Missions On Iranian Finances

September 2016: Obama Threatened To Veto The Iranian Leadership Asset Transparency Act, Citing Its Potential Damage To The Iran Deal. “In addition, this bill's required public postings also may be perceived by Iran and likely our Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA) partners as an attempt to undermine the fulfillment of our commitments, in turn impacting the continued viability of this diplomatic arrangement that peacefully and verifiably prevents Iran from acquiring a nuclear weapon. If the JCPOA were to fail on that basis, it would remove the unprecedented constraints on and monitoring of Iran's nuclear program, lead to the unraveling of the international sanctions regime against Iran, and deal a devastating blow to the credibility of America's leadership and our commitments to our closest allies. […] If the President were presented with H.R. 5461, his senior advisors would recommend that he veto this bill.” [President Obama Statement of Administration Policy, via University of California Santa Barbara’s American Presidency Project, 9/21/16]

Obama: Poliquin’s Bill Would “Take Critical Resources” From “Work To Identify Iranian Entities Engaged In Sanctionable Conduct” And Could “Compromise Intelligence Sources And Methods.” “The bill requires the U.S. Government to publicly report all assets held by some of Iran's highest leaders and to describe how these assets are acquired and used. Rather than preventing terrorist financing and money laundering, this bill would incentivize those involved to make their financial dealings less transparent and create a disincentive for Iran's banking sector to demonstrate transparency. These onerous reporting requirements also would take critical resources away from the U.S. Department of the Treasury's important work to identify Iranian entities engaged in sanctionable conduct. Producing this information could also compromise intelligence sources and methods.” [President Obama Statement of Administration Policy, via University of California Santa Barbara’s American Presidency Project, 9/21/16]

December 2017: The Department Of Justice Told Congressional Leaders That Poliquin’s Bill Would Violate The Constitution, Which Poliquin Denied

December 2017: The Department Of Justice Wrote To Foreign Affairs Committee Leadership That The Bill “Would Unconstitutionally Intrude On The President’s Authority To Control The Dissemination Of National Security Information.” In a letter to House Foreign Affairs Committee leadership, Assistant Attorney General Stephen Boyd wrote, “This letter presents the views of the Department of Justice (‘the Department’) on H.R. 1638, the ‘Iranian Leadership Asset Transparency Act.’ […] However, the bill raises a constitutional concern. Section 3 of the bill would require the Secretary of Treasury to report on individuals in certain identified positions in Iran; the report is to be unclassified, but may have a classified annex, § 3(c). The Secretary would be required to include, among other things, estimates of assets held by those individuals in accounts at U.S. and foreign financial institutions; any equity stake such individuals have in sanctioned entities; a description of how assets or equity interests were acquired and used; and information on new methods to evade anti-money laundering laws. § 3(a)(l), (2), (3), & (4). This requirement would unconstitutionally intrude on the President's authority to control the dissemination of national security information.” [Department of Justice, 12/20/17]

• Poliquin Said Of The Department Of Justice’s Letter: “I Think They're Wrong.” “Poliquin said he also plans to keep pushing for public disclosure of the assets held by Iranian leaders, despite a letter from the Department of Justice that called a bill he sponsored unconstitutional. ‘I think they're wrong,’ the congressman said. He said the measure allows a president to hold back the disclosure of anything that might hurt national security. It’s not forcing the executive branch to do anything except to put the information it already has online so that anyone, including Iranians, can see it. The reality, Poliquin said, is that Iranians are ‘being ripped off’ by their leaders. If they were held accountable, funding for terrorism might dry up, he said, and Iran might wind up a more free and democratic country.” [Portland Press Herald, 1/5/18]

March 2017: Poliquin Reintroduced The Iranian Leadership Asset Transparency Act

- HR 1638 Would Require The Treasury To Issue An Annual Report Of Assets Held By Iranian Leaders.
  “H.R. 1638 would require the Department of the Treasury to report to the Congress on the financial assets held by specific Iranian political and military leaders in 2018 and 2019. The reports would describe how their assets were acquired and any unclassified portions of those reports would be posted on the Treasury’s website in multiple languages. The bill would require the department to provide recommendations on improving the effectiveness of financial sanctions against Iran.” [Congressional Budget Office, 12/1/17]

April 2017: Democrats Criticized Poliquin’s Bill As An Attempt To Undermine The Iran Deal And Divert Resources From Counterterrorism Operations

Rep. Jim McGovern (D-Mass) Called Poliquin’s Bill “Nothing More Than Another Attempt By Republicans To Undermine” The Iran Deal. “The Iranian Leadership Asset Transparency Act that Poliquin introduced recently continues his effort to have the Treasury Department come up with a list of the money and assets held by top Iranian politicians and military leaders. […] A similar bill from Poliquin passed the House last year, though U.S. Rep. Chellie Pingree, a Maine Democrat, opposed it. The measure stalled in the Senate after President Barack Obama threatened to veto it. U.S. Rep. Jim McGovern, D-Mass., blasted it in September as ‘nothing more than another attempt by Republicans to undermine the historic agreement the United States worked so hard to achieve to prevent Iran from obtaining nuclear weapons.’ McGovern said, ‘Preventing Iran from obtaining nuclear weapons is a big deal. I am sorry my colleagues on the other side of the aisle don’t share that view, but it is a big deal. The world will be safer with a nuclear-free Iran.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 4/3/17]

Rep. Denny Heck (D-WA): HR 1638 Would Divert Resources From Counterterrorism Operations. “A bill opponent, Rep. Denny Heck, D-Wash., said the time and effort used by Treasury employees to track down the leaders’ assets would take resources away from investigations into terrorist financing and money laundering.” [Concord Monitor, 12/17/17]

May 2021: Poliquin Criticized “The Disastrous Iran Nuclear Deal Which Provided $150 Billion To The Iranian Regime To Support Global Terrorism.” “Hamas hides and launches its rockets into Israel from apartment buildings, schools, hospitals and other dense civilian areas in Gaza. The lethal weapons are supplied by Iran, or their Iranian parts are assembled in the Gaza Strip by the Hamas terrorists. […] So, does our Congressional Delegation stand with our Israeli friends defending themselves against the Hamas terrorist attacks? And, does the Delegation support President Biden’s initiative to rejoin the disastrous Iran Nuclear Deal which provided $150 billion to the Iranian regime to support global terrorism?”
May 2018: Poliquin: “The Iran Deal Is A Disgrace Of Diplomacy.” “Share: The Iran Deal is a disgrace of diplomacy. It should have never been accepted. Never should pallets of cash be sent to any country that is the leading state sponsor of terrorism. This is common sense.”

2018: Poliquin Said He “Long Opposed” The Iran Deal. “‘Iran is the world’s leading state sponsor of terrorism and they cannot be trusted,’ said Congressman Poliquin. ‘This was a horrible deal that was rejected by a majority in Congress and that I have long opposed. This deal did not go far enough in ensuring Iran would eliminate their nuclear weapons program, while at the same time lifting critical economic sanctions on the regime and guaranteeing the freeing up of billions of dollars in assets. I have long feared that this deal would make Americans less safe.’” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 5/8/18]

April 2018: Poliquin: “The President Is Correct In Saying The Iran Deal Is Terrible.” “The President is correct in saying the Iran Deal is terrible. This is a country that chants ‘Death to America!’ Iran is the leading state sponsor of terrorism and we must treat them as such. Please Share.”
October 2016: Poliquin Campaign Website: “Since The Beginning, Congressman Bruce Poliquin Has Called The Iran Nuclear Agreement A One-Sided, Dangerous Deal.” “Since the beginning, Congressman Bruce Poliquin has called the Iran Nuclear Agreement a one-sided, dangerous deal. As more and more facts come out about this deal, the worse it gets. For example, Iran is one of the leading state-sponsors of terrorism. This deal unfreezes more than $150 billion in assets, which Secretary of State John Kerry has admitted that some of that money will go to terrorist organizations. This deal also allows Iran to buy, sell and trade ballistic missiles and weaponry [sic] within 10 years. That is why Congressman Bruce Poliquin voted AGAINST this disastrous deal.” [Poliquin for Congress, 10/11/16]

2015: Poliquin Voted Against A Measure Expressing Congressional Approval Of The Iran Nuclear Deal. In September 2015, Poliquin voted against: “a measure expressing congressional approval of the Iran nuclear agreement Friday, placing a majority of the chamber on the record against the accord. The measure … states simply that Congress favors the pact. The bill was likely to fail on the House floor, but in so doing put Democrats on the record in support of the deal.” The motion failed 169 to 269. [H.R. 3461, Vote #493, 9/11/15; CQ, 9/14/15]

- Poliquin: “I Find It Deeply Concerning That President Obama’s Administration Caved On Many Of Their Original Goals By Accepting This Iran Deal.” “Additionally, I find it deeply concerning that President Obama’s Administration caved on many of their original goals by accepting this Iran deal. Instead of ‘anytime, anywhere’ inspections, the Iranians can delay an inspection of an undeclared, but suspected site, from anywhere between 24 days to 3 months – which is insane – allowing enough time for Iran to remove any and all undeclared activities.” [Maine Wire, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 9/15/15]

- Poliquin: The Iran Deal “Does Not Dismantle Iran’s Nuclear Arms Program” And Will Reintegrate Iran “Back Into The World Economy.” “Second, it does not dismantle Iran’s nuclear arms program as repeatedly promised by the Administration. Rather, the deal freezes some work and allows other research to continue. It recklessly kicks the nuclear can down the street. In ten short years, anything goes. Third, instead of keeping the sanctions on Iran, which have proven successful, until they wind down their enrichment program, Iran will almost immediately receive $100 billion in assets. Also, in 5 short years, Iran will be allowed to buy and sell weapons and in 8 years Iran’s ballistic missile sanction will be lifted. The only reason you need a ballistic missile capability is to attack long range targets. After lifting these sanctions, Iran will be welcomed back into the world economy and allowed to sell its oil, trade with other countries, and use the global banking network to transact business. This, along with the $100 billion infusion, will revive its crumbling economy and generate the tax revenues needed to build nuclear arms.” [Maine Wire, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 9/15/15]

Afghanistan

September 2021: Poliquin Claimed Biden’s Afghanistan Withdrawal Would Lead To Unvetted Afghans Coming Into The United States Over The Southern Border

Poliquin claimed Biden’s Afghanistan withdrawal would lead to unvetted Afghans coming into the United States over the Southern Border. POLIQUIN: “I’ll tell you another problem that’s connected to Afghanistan is we have right now a wide open border with Mexico. It’s wide open. There are 14,000, right now 14,000 folks who have illegally entered the country who are encamped under a bridge in Texas. Let me repeat that. 14,000 under a bridge in Texas waiting to be processed and then bused throughout the United States. 18% of them roughly test positive for COVID and we’ve got this problem now with this Delta variant. We are setting records for overdose deaths in the state of Maine mostly because of fentanyl which is so deadly and the fentanyl is smuggled for the most part over the border with Mexico. So you have folks on terrorist watch lists that have been apprehended going through our border with Mexico, the war in Afghanistan which is a terrorist country with a huge land mass that is now onto the teat with our equipment and we have an open border with Mexico and the people are coming over willy nilly.” [George Hale Ric Tyler Show, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 9/20/21] (AUDIO) 11:02

August – September 2021: Poliquin Called The Withdrawal From Afghanistan A “Disaster”

September 2021: Poliquin: “The Implementation Of The Afghanistan Withdrawal Was A Disaster.” “Have you seen the testimony of America’s military leaders before Congress this week? They made it clear Biden was warned about Afghanistan. They made it clear military advisors gave the President contingencies including leaving a small force to bolster the Afghan military. But Biden went on national television and said exactly the opposite, falsely claiming it never happened. Let's be clear: the implementation of the Afghanistan withdrawal was a disaster. And, liberal empowering Members of Congress, like Jared Golden, failed to hold Biden accountable.”

August 2021: Poliquin Called U.S. Airlifts Out Of Afghanistan “Embarrassing.” “FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE FEBRUARY OF 2020, AMERICAN SERVICE MEMBERS DIED TODAY IN AFGHANISTAN. Twelve Americans were killed, along with scores of Afghan people, as a result of the botched pullout operation of the Biden Administration. In his press conference as he once again tried to shift responsibility, Joe Biden said that we were relying upon the Taliban to help us coordinate access to our embarrassing airlifts.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 8/26/21]

August 2021: Poliquin Accused Golden Of “Dangerous Incompetence” After He Said He “[Didn’t] Have Strong Emotions” About The U.S. Embassy In Afghanistan. “When radio host Mike Violette asked Golden how he feels about the American Embassy in Afghanistan being occupied by the Taliban approaching the 20th Anniversary of 9/11, Golden’s response was: ‘Um, it’s a building…’ [chuckle] ‘It’s a building…’ ‘I don’t feel strong emotions about the embassy.’ But, to millions of Afghan women, girls and men who were oppressed or whose family members were killed by the Taliban, our embassy is a symbol of American freedom and democracy. Our embassies are U.S. soil on foreign lands. Our embassies are also symbols to Islamic extremists and terrorists.
around the world […] This dangerous incompetence is part of the pattern of the extreme left-wing Democrats who now control Washington. Our borders being overrun with hundreds of thousands of illegal aliens, many of whom test positive for COVID. Surging crime caused in part by defunding the police. Trillions of dollars of additional spending to expand welfare and government dependency, causing the return of inflation.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 8/19/21]

August 2017: Poliquin Opposed “Fully Withdrawing Our Forces In Afghanistan”

August 2017: Poliquin Opposed “Fully Withdrawing Our Forces In Afghanistan.” “Republican U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin in the 2nd District said, ‘Our nation should remain forward-looking, address the serious security challenges we face, and stay on offense to defend our homeland, including putting pressure on partner actors in the region -- specifically Pakistan -- in combating our adversaries.’ He said that ‘fully withdrawing our forces in Afghanistan would be a mistake, as it would undermine our years-long efforts and create a breeding ground for hostile actors’ in the same way that the decision to yank troops from Iraq helped fuel the rise of the so-called Islamic state. ‘We must be wise about our foreign affairs and have clear objectives in mind,’ Poliquin said.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/22/17]

2017: Poliquin Voting Against Repealing The 2001 Authorization For Use Of Force

- The Trump Administration, Like The Obama Administration, Used AUMF To Justify Military Operations Against ISIS. “The 2001 war authorization is currently being used as a legal justification for the ongoing war against the Islamic State, and there’s a growing coalition of lawmakers who think the president needs a new war authorization for military operations against ISIS.” […] “The White House has yet to weigh in directly on the issue, but like the Obama administration, the Trump administration says it has the legal authority to conduct its ISIS campaign even without congressional approval.” [Huffington Post, 5/18/16; CNN, 3/29/17]

2015: Poliquin Voted Against Limiting Funds For Military Action Against ISIS Without New Congressional AUMF
2015: Poliquin Voted Against An Amendment To Limit Funds For Military Action Against ISIS Without Congressional Authorization For Use Of Military Force. In June 2015, Poliquin voted against: an amendment that would have “halted funding for the war against the Islamic State in Iraq and Syria, or ISIS, after March 31, 2016, unless Congress passes an Authorization for the Use of Military Force. The amendment, an effort to spur a war authorization debate and vote in Congress, would have given lawmakers nine months to produce an AUMF before funds get cut off.” The amendment failed 196-231. May 2021: Poliquin Questioned Whether “Our Congressional Delegation Stand[s] With Our Israeli Friends Defending Themselves Against The Hamas Terrorist Attacks.” “Hamas hides and launches its rockets into Israel from apartment buildings, schools, hospitals and other dense civilian areas in Gaza. The lethal weapons are supplied by Iran, or their Iranian parts are assembled in the Gaza Strip by the Hamas terrorists. […] So, does our Congressional Delegation stand with our Israeli friends defending themselves against the Hamas terrorist attacks? And, does the Delegation support President Biden’s initiative to rejoin the disastrous Iran Nuclear Deal which provided $150 billion to the Iranian regime to support global terrorism?” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 5/18/21]

Syria has become more than just an internal civil war, with the involvement of ISIS and other bad actors in the region.’” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 4/7/17]

2016: Poliquin Pledged To “Not Vote To Get Involved In The Bloody Syrian Civil War Because It Doesn’t Threaten Our National Security.” “Supporting and defending the Constitution will include many opportunities for good judgment. Article I, Section 8, states a chief purpose of the Constitution is to ‘provide for the common defense.’ Members of Congress are required to defend our country and its citizens and property. Before voting to commit our uniformed sons and daughters to military conflict, I will insist that the President as Commander-in-Chief explains the national security and military objectives of the action; when and how to exit the conflict; and what the financial cost is expected to be. I will not vote to get involved in the bloody Syrian civil war because it doesn’t threaten our national security.’” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/29/16]

America can lead, and we have the strength to do so, but currently lack the leadership. This Administration has allowed for ISIS to grow unchecked. It is terrifyingly clear that President Obama’s strategy to combat this barbaric group has not been effective. We must combat and decimate this enemy. Nations around the world have expressed a serious commitment to defeating them, and it’s time that America leads again.” [Maine Wire, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 11/17/15]

July 2021: Poliquin Accused Democrats Of “March[ing] Towards” Socialism: “With The Breathtaking Failure Of Socialism In Cuba And Elsewhere […] It’s No Wonder Liberals Are Silent About The Cries For Freedom And Human Dignity 90 Miles Off Our Shores.” “For many years, American liberals have romanticized about the Cuban socialist nirvana created in 1959 by the Marxist revolutionaries Fidel Castro and Che Guevara. But, they fail to acknowledge decades of savage executions of political opponents, lack or basic human liberties like free speech and assembly, and a bankrupt economy which is unable to feed or care for its people. […] With the breathtaking failure of socialism in Cuba and elsewhere, and the Democrat Party’s march toward similar policies here at home, it’s no wonder liberals are silent about the cries for freedom and human dignity 90 miles off our shores.” [Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 7/16/21]

Bruce Poliquin and Chellie Pingree have introduced a bill in Congress to allow planes bound for Cuba to stop and refuel at U.S. airports, such as Bangor International Airport. In a joint statement, Maine’s two U.S. representatives said Bangor’s airport loses out on refueling and restocking an estimated 200 flights originating from other countries and bound for Cuba each year. [...] Both lawmakers called the policy preventing such ‘technical stops’ at U.S. airports ‘outdated.’ Poliquin said that flights that might otherwise choose to stop in Bangor or other East Coast airports are landing instead at Canadian airports. ‘In many cases, airlines would prefer to use American airports for these stops, but are restricted because of current rules,’ Poliquin said. In their statement, they added that airlines tend to prefer using the same airport for their technical stops and many have moved those stops to airports in Canada.” [Bangor Daily News, 4/27/16]

POLIQUIN: “[6:55] I’m very proud to have the endorsement of the National Rifle Association. I also have the highest rating of the Sportsman's Alliance of Maine. I grew up in Maine. My opponent, Miss Cain is from Kentucky and New Jersey. And she clearly doesn't understand our heritage and our culture here in the state of Maine. There are thousands of our families that enjoy the great outdoors and enjoy the sport of hunting. So I just don't believe as Miss Cain does that we want to restrict our Second Amendment rights. As a member of Congress, I will support all of our constitutional rights, including our Second Amendment rights. And you know, the state of Maine has one of the highest percentage of our population with gun ownership. And one of the lowest excuse me incidents of crime with guns so it works up here in Maine. I'm sorry that my opponent Miss Cain wants to restrict our gun rights here in the state of Maine. I do not. I want to protect them because it works up here in Maine.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter General Election Debate, 10/14/14] (VIDEO)

2015 – 2018: Poliquin Did Not Vote For Any Restrictions On Guns While In Congress

October 2018: Bangor Daily News: Poliquin Did Not Vote For Any Restrictions On Guns Since His Election To The House Of Representatives. “Poliquin accused Golden during the Oct. 8 debate of conspiring to take away Mainers’ 2nd Amendment rights, and he touted endorsements from the National Rifle Association, the Gun Owners of Maine and the Sportsman's Alliance of Maine, against Golden's low or failing scores. Since he was elected, the 64-year-old hasn't voted for any restrictions on firearms.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/15/18]

March 2021: Poliquin Falsely Claimed HR 8, A Bill To Close Background Check Loopholes, Would “Turn Law-Abiding Gun Owners Into Felons” And Create A “National Registry” For Gun Confiscation
March 2021: Poliquin Claimed HR 8, A Bill To Close Background Check Loopholes, Would “Turn Law-Abiding Gun Owners Into Felons” For Loaning Their Guns To Friends And Family. “Yesterday, Democrats in Congress passed H.R. 8 which would turn law-abiding gun owners into felons, facing up to one year in prison and a $100,000 fine, simply by loaning a firearm to a friend or family member on a hunting trip without conducting a background check. Right now, to purchase a gun from a licensed dealer, individuals must pass the National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS) run by the FBI, which usually takes a couple hours. This point-of-sale law enforcement tool has kept millions of guns out of dangerous hands and saved countless lives.”

[Bruce Poliquin Facebook, 3/12/18]

Poliquin Claimed The Background Checks Bill Would Create A “National Registry” That Allowed The Government To Confiscate Legally-Owned Firearms. “There’s also a push, Matt, in one of these bills, to create a national registry, that means all gun owners in America are on a registry. And that means if they want to confiscate your firearms, that you legally own, there’s a way for them to do it.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 3/16/21] (AUDIO) 8:53
AP Rated The Claims That HR 8 Would Create A “National Registry” Of Gun Owners And Criminalize Legal Gun Owners For Loaning Out Guns As “False.” “CLAIM: Proposed federal gun legislation expanding background checks for firearms would create a ‘national registration of firearms’ and put gun owners in jail for transferring or handing their gun to someone, even if they are in a dangerous situation. AP’S ASSESSMENT: False. HR 8 prohibits using the bill to establish a national firearms registry and includes exceptions allowing temporary transfers between family members, or transfers between people for self-defense or for use at a shooting range.” [Associated Press, 3/9/21]

May 2019: Poliquin Led A Republican Rally Before Maine Legislature’s Debate On Bills To Expand Background Checks And Prohibit High-Capacity Magazines

May 2019: Poliquin Led A Rally Before The Maine Legislature’s Debate On Bills To Expand Background Checks And Prohibit High-Capacity Magazines. “Maine’s ousted 2nd District congressman spoke at a rally ahead of public hearings on gun control bills. Former U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin helped rally dozens of conservatives ahead of what’s expected to be a long 9 a.m. public hearing in the Legislature's criminal justice committee on 11 gun-related bills. All but one of them come from Democrats who lead the Legislature and the slate includes proposals to require background checks for all private gun sales except between family members, prohibit the sale of magazines that hold more than 10 rounds of ammunition and mandate a three-day waiting period before a gun sale. Rep. John Andrews, R-South Paris, is proposing a ‘stand-your-ground’ law like those in at least 25 other states.” [Bangor Daily News, 5/10/19]

• Poliquin Cited Maine’s “200-Year History Of Lawfully Owning Firearms And Safely Using Them.” “Speaking alongside fellow Republicans including former state Sen. 2018: Poliquin Voted Twice To Block Consideration Of Bills To Close Background Check Loopholes For

March 2018: Poliquin Voted For Blocking Consideration Of Three Bills To Close Background Check Loopholes For Gun Sales On The Internet, Classified Ads, And At Gun Shows. These four bills close the dangerous gun show, internet sale, and classified ad background check loopholes; prevent the sale of guns without a completed background check; ensure that people who are a danger to themselves or others can be prevented from purchasing or possessing a gun; and allow the government to sponsor scientific research on the causes of gun violence.” A vote for the motion was a vote to block consideration of the bills. October 2016: Poliquin Said He “Personally” Did Not Support Question Three And Added, “I’m Not Here To Tell People How To Vote,” After Previously Saying He Supported The Referendum. “Poliquin has refrained from commenting on Maine's five referendum questions, though in the past he did tell WMTW's Paul Merrill that he supports Question 3, which would implement universal background checks for gun owners. Poliquin declined to comment on the question Wednesday initially, but after being asked a second time by Merrill, one of three moderators of the debate, that he personally will not support Question 3 but ‘I'm not here to tell people how to vote.’” [Bangor Daily News, 10/19/16]

2015 – 2016: Poliquin Opposed Obama’s Executive Orders To Improve Background Checks And Voted For Blocking Consideration Of Background Checks For Gun Purchases

January 2016: Poliquin Called President Obama’s Executive Action On Gun Control “Irresponsible And Misguided,” And Said It “Would Not Have Prevented Any Of The Horrific Attacks On Our Soil.” “We Mainers have a long tradition of exercising our Second Amendment rights responsibly, having a large amount of gun owners and a very low amount of gun violence,’ Poliquin said. ‘I believe that enacting sweeping regulations on gun owners is an irresponsible and misguided reaction to real threats from terrorists. We need to better enforce the laws that are in place now and develop comprehensive strategies to keep Americans safe. The president’s proposed action would not have prevented any of the horrific attacks on our soil, infringes upon law-abiding citizens’ rights and does not make us any safer.’” [Ripon Advance, 1/05/16]

- President Obama’s Executive Action Would Strengthen Background Check Requirements For Firearm Purchases. “President Obama unveiled his new strategy to curb gun violence in America. His proposals focus on new background check requirements that will enhance the effectiveness of the National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS), and greater education and enforcement efforts of existing laws at the state level.” [National Conference of State Legislatures, 1/05/16]

January 2016: Poliquin Said Obama’s Background Checks Executive Orders Were “Continual Attacks On Law-Abiding Citizens And The Second Amendment.” “With his gun control agenda stalled in Congress, Obama announced a set of executive actions intended to increase the number of background checks conducted prior to gun sales and to increase states' reporting of people whose mental illness should disqualify them from buying a gun. Additionally, Obama plans to increase the number of federal agents helping process background checks and to take steps to overhaul the national vetting system. […] But U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, who represents Maine's 2nd District, echoed concerns from other Republicans in accusing the president of attempting to ‘circumvent the will of Congress and the American people in order to move forward with his continual attacks on law-abiding citizens and the Second Amendment.’ ‘As I've said before, we need to better enforce the laws that are in place now and develop comprehensive strategies to keep Americans safe,’ Poliquin said in a statement.” [Portland Press Herald, 1/5/16]

2010: Poliquin Said He Supported Mandatory Background Checks For Guns Purchased At A Licensed Dealer But Not For Those Purchased At Gun Shows Or Through Personal Sales. POLIQUIN: “[4:30] I am a very strong supporter of the Second Amendment. I always have been. But what is very clear is we do not need any new gun laws, period. As governor, I will veto any further restrictions that are attempted to put on our Second Amendment rights. Now, what I do support is the law on the books today which is what the NRA supports, which is a mandatory background check on any gun purchased at a licensed dealer. Beyond that, if I want to purchase a gun, if I want to purchase from you, Jim, don’t need a background check. Red Flag Laws

April 2021: Poliquin Insinuated He Opposed Red Flag Laws

April 2021: Poliquin Insinuated He Opposed Red Flag Laws. POLIQUIN: “[18:21] You’ve got to focus on mental health. Now, right now when you go through a background check if you’re a felon or you have any mental health problems you are not awarded or not allowed to purchase a firearm. That’s good. We need to keep doing that. But you’ve got to be careful on all these other things, like this red flag law. The red flag laws are a part of what Biden’s going to be pushing and what it means is if the police get word that a person is a danger to him or herself or someone else, they can go and confiscate their guns. Well, what if you have a problem with your wife or your neighbor and you call the cops and say, ‘This fella is flashing around his firearm and we need to’ – you know.” [WGAN, Interview with Bruce Poliquin, 4/9/21] (AUDIO)

In March 2017, Poliquin voted for “passage of the bill that would prohibit a Veterans Affairs Department determination that an individual is mentally incompetent from being used as basis for that individual’s inclusion in the National Instant Criminal Background Check System, which would thereby prevent the individual from purchasing a gun. Under the measure, an individual could not be considered to be mentally defective without a judicial authority’s finding that the Poliquin Voted For Blocking The Social Security Administration From Sharing Information With The National Instant Criminal Background Check System On People With Mental Disorders. In February 2017, Poliquin voted for “passage of the joint resolution that would nullify a Social Security Administration rule that outlines reporting of information by the agency for inclusion in the National Instant Criminal Background Check System for gun purchases about certain non-elderly individuals with mental impairments who receive disability insurance or Supplemental Security Income benefits and use a "representative payee" because they cannot manage their benefit payments.” The resolution was passed by a vote of 235-180. It was crafted as part of Obama’s efforts to strengthen the federal background check system in the wake of the 2012 massacre of 20 young students and six staff at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown, Connecticut.” [Associated Press, 2/15/17]

- The Resolution To Block The Rule Was Supported By The NRA. “President Donald Trump quietly signed a bill into law Tuesday rolling back an Obama-era regulation that made it harder for people with mental illnesses to purchase a gun. The rule, which was finalized in December, added people receiving Social Security checks for mental illnesses and people deemed unfit to handle their own financial affairs to the national background check database. […] The National Rifle Association ‘applauded’ Trump’s action. Chris Cox, NRA-ILA executive director, said the move ‘marks a new era for law-abiding gun owners, as we now have a president who respects and supports our arms.’” [NBC News, 2/28/17]

No Fly, No Buy
June 2016: Poliquin Refused To Answer Reporters’ Questions About His Stance On No Fly No Buy, But Said It “Could Be A Step In The Right Direction [If] Constitutional Provisions Remain Intact”

HEADLINE: “Poliquin Keeps Low Profile In Debate Over Gun Control.” [Portland Press Herald, 6/24/16]

- Portland Press Herald: Poliquin “Would Not Answer Questions And He Did Not Take A Firm Position On Any Of The Bills Aimed At Keeping Firearms Out Of The Hands Of Potential Terrorists.” “Three members of Maine’s congressional delegation have been at the forefront of efforts to enact some kind of gun control legislation, but the fourth, Rep. Bruce Poliquin, has been keeping a low profile. Poliquin’s office issued news releases this week on issues such as sea urchin harvesting and opiate addiction, but none regarding the debate over restricting some gun purchases that gripped the House and Senate. Poliquin’s office did provide a written comment on the issue in response to requests from the Portland Press Herald, but he would not answer questions and he did not take a firm position on any of the bills aimed at keeping firearms out of the hands of potential terrorists.” [Portland Press Herald, 6/24/16]

- Poliquin Refused An Interview To Discuss His Position On No Fly No Buy; His Press Secretary Provided “A Written Statement From The Congressman And Did Not Respond To Follow-Up Questions.” “Three of Maine’s members of Congress have publicly pushed for legislation to keep guns away from people on those [no fly] lists. […] Poliquin, a Republican, has kept a low profile on the gun issue that stands in stark contrast to the other Maine lawmakers. The Portland Press Herald requested an interview with Poliquin to discuss his position, but his press secretary would only provide a written statement from the congressman and did not respond to follow-up questions.” [Portland Press Herald, 6/24/16]

- Poliquin’s Written Statement: No Fly No Buy Proposals “Could Be A Step In The Right Direction As Long As Constitutional Provisions Remain Intact.” “The Portland Press Herald requested an interview with Poliquin to discuss his position, but his press secretary would only provide a written statement from the congressmen and did not respond to follow-up questions. ‘There have been proposals to limit the immediate purchase of firearms by anyone that has been the subject of a terrorist investigation. Some proposals immediately notify the FBI that a person who has been the subject of a terrorist investigation is attempting to purchase a firearm,’ he said. ‘Properly implemented, these may have stopped the killer in Orlando. Taken with meaningful due process protections, these proposals could be a step in the right direction as long as constitutional provisions remain intact.’” [Portland Press Herald, 6/24/16]

- Poliquin’s “Low Profile On The Gun Issue” Was “In Stark Contrast To The Other Maine Lawmakers,” Who “Publicly Pushed For Legislation To Keep Guns Away From People On [No Fly] Lists.” “Three quarters of Maine's congressional delegation have publicly pushed for legislation to keep guns away from people on those lists. U.S. Rep. Chellie Pingree, D-1st District, joined other Democrats for a 25-hour sit-in on the House floor to pressure Republican leaders allow debate on several bills that would make it harder to buy weapons. She held a news conference Friday in Portland to say she planned to continue the fight. Sen. Susan Collins has been working with fellow Republicans and with Democrats in the Senate to build support for a bipartisan bill that would prohibit suspected terrorists from buying firearms. […] Poliquin, who represents Maine's more conservative, rural 2nd District, has kept a low profile on the gun issue that stands in stark contrast to the other Maine lawmakers.” [Portland Press Herald, 6/24/16]

October 2017: Poliquin’s Spokesperson: “The Congressman Believes It’s Important To Make Sure That The ‘Bump Stock’ Modification […] Is More Closely Regulated.” “The Sun-Journal reports that independent Sen. Debate over the devices comes after 58 people were killed and nearly 500 people were injured during a Las Vegas music festival. King said the bump stock shouldn’t have been legalized. A spokesman for Poliquin said the congressman thinks the bump stock modification should be ‘more closely regulated.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/9/17]

2021: Poliquin Criticized Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives Director Nominee David Chipman For Supporting Proposals To Fine Owners Of High-Capacity Magazines. “During his confirmation hearing, Chipman told senators he believes the ATF standard is that all semi-automatic rifles larger than a .22-caliber should be banned. And anyone who already owns such a firearm, or any magazine that holds over 10 rounds, should be forced to pay $200 to the government for each item. An outdoorsman or woman who owns five rifles and five magazines would owe $2,000 to the government for property he or she already owns and lawfully purchased! Such extreme positions do not help Americans find common-sense balance between public safety and our constitutional right to own a gun. I fear that David Chipman, if confirmed as ATF director, will not be a neutral and unbiased enforcer of our important Second Amendment right.” [Bangor Daily News, Bruce Poliquin Letter to the Editor, 6/16/21]

The Sportsman’s Alliance of Maine also endorsed Poliquin earlier this year after the group criticized Golden for not returning its questionnaire. ‘I am the only person on this stage who has a proven record of standing up for our 2nd Amendment Rights. 10/17/18: Poliquin Called Golden’s Low NRA Rating “No Way To Protect Our Kids.” “Candidates were asked about school shootings and how best to work with gun owners and those wanting to limit guns. Significant Findings

✓ Poliquin voted at least 14 times to repeal, delay, defund or alter the Affordable Care Act, including at least seven votes to fully or partly repeal the ACA.

✓ Between 2012 and 2016, Poliquin stated he was “dead set” on repealing the ACA and listed “end[ing] Obamacare” as an “action item” on his campaign website.

✓ In 2018, Poliquin repeatedly denied that he voted to repeal the ACA or hurt Mainers with pre-existing conditions and removed language about the ACA from his website.

✓ Poliquin voted for the American Health Care Act after months of avoiding constituents and reporters, then downplayed its disastrous effects on Mainers with a variety of falsehoods.

✓ Poliquin did not hold a town hall for more than a month before his vote on the AHCA and dodged a reporter who asked him about the bill by walking into a women’s restroom.

✓ Poliquin waited until 30 minutes before the vote on AHCA to announce his support for the bill.

✓ Poliquin claimed the AHCA would affect “only the 7 percent of Maine residents who have Obamacare policies,” and that it would not hurt Medicaid or Mainers with pre-existing conditions.

✓ The AHCA would have weakened protections for people with pre-existing conditions, including more than half of the nonelderly population in Poliquin’s district, and cut funding for Medicaid, which covered 270,000 Mainers as of January 2017.

✓ Poliquin dismissed estimates that 23 million Americans, including 63,800 of his constituents, would have lost coverage under AHCA.

✓ AHCA “offer[ed] billions of dollars’ worth of tax cuts” for insurance and pharmaceutical companies.

✓ Poliquin opposed Medicaid expansion in Maine, supported allowing states to impose work requirements on Medicaid, and pledged to cut MaineCare benefits during his 2010 gubernatorial campaign.

Poliquin voted for the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act, “a major victory for pharma manufacturers,” and accepted nearly half a million dollars from the insurance, pharmaceutical, and health products industries over his career.

✓ Through at least 2014, Poliquin owned up to $15,000 of Teva Pharmaceuticals stock, which was managed in a fund whose contents he stopped disclosing after 2015.

✓ In 2019 and 2020, Teva Pharmaceuticals announced multi-million and multi-billion dollar settlements in lawsuits over its role in the opioid epidemic and was sued multiple times for allegedly inflating drug prices through illegal conspiracies to avoid competition.

Poliquin said “tough love” should be “part of the equation” for Mainers struggling with addiction.

Poliquin Voted For A Republican Conference Report On Budget That Began Process To Repeal Affordable Care Act. In April 2015, Poliquin voted for: “House and Senate Republicans agreed on a unified budget plan Wednesday that would allow them to bypass Democrats and send President Barack Obama legislation to repeal or revise his landmark health-care law. The budget proposal spells out the Republican Party’s priorities by calling for $5.3 trillion in spending cuts to reach balance in nine years.” An agreement to pass the Conference Report passed 226 to 197. Poliquin Voted For A Republican Budget That Repealed The Affordable Care Act. In March 2015, Poliquin voted for: “[The Republican budget] also includes parliamentary language, called reconciliation that orders House committees to draft legislation repealing the Affordable Care Act. Under budget rules, that reconciliation repeal bill cannot be filibustered in the Senate and would need only a majority vote to pass.” The resolution passed 228 to 199. [H. Con Res. 27, Vote #142, 3/25/15; New York Times, 3/25/15]

Poliquin Voted For A Budget Alternative That Repealed The Affordable Care Act. In March 2015, Poliquin voted for: a budget alternative known as Price amendment #2 offered as an amendment on the floor that would repeal the Affordable Care Act, slash Pell grants and alter Medicare while requiring no offsets for increased OCO defense spending. “Tom Price, R-Ga., also submitted an amended version that included increased defense funding without requiring cuts in other areas to offset the spending. Price’s plan increased funding to the Overseas Contingency Operations Fund by $2 billion over the committee plan, to $96 billion, and requires no offsets. The version that passed out of committee would have required offsets over $73.5 billion in the OCO fund, which pays for wars and other overseas activities and is not subject to sequester caps.” The resolution passed 219 to 208. Poliquin Voted For The American Health Care Act. In May 2017, Poliquin voted for a bill to repeal and replace major parts of the Affordable Care Act. According to the New York Times, the bill “would eliminate tax penalties for people who go without health insurance. It would roll back state-by-state expansions of Medicaid, which covered millions of low-income Americans. And in place of government-subsidized insurance policies offered exclusively on the Affordable Care Act’s marketplaces, the bill would offer tax credits of $2,000 to $4,000 a year, depending on age. [...] The nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office said the first version of the bill would trim the federal budget deficit considerably but would also leave 24 million more Americans without health insurance after a decade. Average insurance premiums would be 15 percent to 20 percent higher in 2018 and 2019, but after that, they would be lower than projected under current law.” The bill passed by a vote of 217-213. [HR 1628, Vote #256, 5/4/17; New York Times, 5/4/17]

Poliquin Voted For Overturning Obama’s Veto Of A Bill That Would Repeal Major Portions Of The Affordable Care Act. In February 2016, Poliquin voted for: “Passage, over President Obama’s Jan. 8 2016, veto, of the bill that would repeal portions of the 2010 health care law and block federal funding for Planned Parenthood for one year. The bill would zero-out the law’s penalties for noncompliance with the law’s requirements for most individuals to obtain health coverage and employers to offer health insurance. The bill would scrap in 2018 the law’s Medicaid expansion, as well as subsidies to help individuals buy coverage through the insurance exchanges. It also would scrap certain taxes included in the law, including the tax on certain high-value employer-sponsored health insurance plans.” A two-thirds majority was required to override the President’s veto. The motion was rejected 241-186. [HR 3762, Vote #53, 2/2/16; CQ Floor Votes, 2/2/16]

- The Bill Attempted “To Overturn President Obama’s Veto Of Legislation To Repeal Obamacare.” “House Republicans are moving on to a new round of budget fights after failing on Tuesday to overturn President Obama’s veto of legislation to repeal Obamacare and defund Planned Parenthood. Republicans were not able to rally the support of two-thirds of the House necessary to overturn the veto, leaving conservatives to turn their attention to a final year of budget fights with the president. The 241-186 vote, appropriately scheduled for Groundhog Day, was the 63rd time the House has voted to overturn all or part of Obama’s signature health care law.” [Washington Post, 2/2/16]

Poliquin Voted For Agree With Senate Amendment To Bill To Repeal Major Portions Of The Affordable Care Act, Including Individual Mandate. In January 2016, Poliquin voted for: “Price, R-Ga., motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the bill that would repeal portions of the 2010 health care law and block federal funding for Planned Parenthood for one year. The bill would zero-out the law’s penalties for noncompliance with the law’s requirements for most individuals to obtain health coverage and employers to offer health insurance. The bill would scrap in 2018 the law’s Medicaid expansion, as well as subsidies to help individuals buy coverage through the insurance exchanges. It also would scrap certain taxes included in the law, including the tax on certain high-value employer-sponsored health insurance plans.” The bill passed 240-181. - CNN: The Legislation Would “Repeal Obamacare.” “The GOP-controlled House of Representatives on Wednesday afternoon passed legislation that would repeal Obamacare, and after more than 60 votes to roll back all or part of the law, the bill dismantle it will finally get to the President’s desk.” [CNN, 1/6/16]

Poliquin Voted For House Passage Of A Bill To Repeal Major Portions Of Affordable Care Act, Including Individual Mandate. In October 2015, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would repeal portions of the 2010 health care law, including: the requirements for most individuals to have health insurance and employers with more than 50 employees to offer it or face penalties, the 2.3 percent tax on the sale of medical devices, the tax on certain high-value employer-sponsored health insurance plans, and the Prevention and Public Health Fund. The measure also would block, for one year, federal funding for Planned Parenthood and would increase funding for community health centers by $235 million in both fiscal 2016 and 2017.” The bill passed 240-189. • According To The CBO, The Bill Would Increase The Number Of Uninsured Americans By 32 Million. “The number of people who are uninsured would increase by 18 million in the first new plan year following enactment of the bill. Later, after the elimination of the ACA’s expansion of Medicaid eligibility and of subsidies for insurance purchased through the ACA marketplaces, that number would increase to 27 million, and then to 32 million in 2026.” [CBO, 1/2017]

• According To The CBO, The Bill Would Cause Health Insurance Premiums To Double. “Premiums in the nongroup market (for individual policies purchased through the marketplaces or directly from insurers) would increase by 20 percent to 25 percent—relative to projections under current law—in the first new plan year following enactment. The increase would reach about 50 percent in the year following the elimination of the Medicaid expansion and the marketplace subsidies, and premiums would about double by 2026.” [CBO, 1/2017]

• According To The CBO, The Bill Would Leave In Place Rules That Insurance Companies Could “Not Deny Coverage Or Vary Premiums Because Of An Enrollee’s Health Status Or Limit Coverage Because Of Preexisting Medical Conditions.” “Importantly, H.R. 3762 would leave in place a number of market reforms—rules established by the ACA that govern certain health insurance markets. Insurers who sell plans either through the marketplaces or directly to consumers are required to: Provide specific benefits and amounts of coverage; Not deny coverage or vary premiums because of an enrollee’s health status or limit coverage because of preexisting medical conditions; and Vary premiums only on the basis of age, tobacco use, and geographic location.” [CBO, 1/2017]

February 2015: Poliquin Voted Against Repealing The Affordable Care Act. In February 2015, Poliquin voted against: the “Passage of the bill that would repeal the 2010 health care overhaul. The bill would delay the repeal by 180 days after enactment and direct the House Education and the Workforce, Energy and Commerce, Judiciary and Ways and Means committees to submit alternative legislation with a number of provisions, including ones to increase economic growth by eliminating certain regulations; lower health care premiums through increased competition; overhaul the medical liability system; and provide states greater flexibility to administer Medicaid programs.” The bill passed 239-186. • The Hill: The Vote Was The Fourth Vote To “Completely Repeal” The Affordable Care Act; For The First Time, The Bill Included Instructions For Committees To Replace The Bill, But With No Deadline To Finish. “The GOP House on Tuesday voted for the fourth time to completely repeal ObamaCare, but this time with instructions for several committees to replace the healthcare law with new policies. […] This is the first time the House has coupled an ObamaCare repeal vote with instructions to write a replacement, but they included a significant caveat. The legislation doesn’t impose any deadlines on committees to finish their work.” [The Hill, 2/3/15]

• 2016: Poliquin Said He Voted Against Repealing The Affordable Care Act Because There Was No Replacement. POLIQUIN: “I was one of three republicans in the House that voted last year, not, not to, to replace the Affordable Care Act rather not to, to do away with the Affordable Care Act because there wasn't a

Poliquin Voted Against Republican Study Committee Budget That Repealed The Affordable Care Act. In March 2015, Poliquin voted against: the “Stutzman, R-Ind., substitute amendment that would provide for $2.804 trillion in new budget authority in fiscal 2016, not including off-budget accounts. The substitute would call for reducing spending by $7.1 trillion over 10 years compared to the Congressional Budget Office baseline. The proposal would call for capping discretionary spending at $975 billion in fiscal 2016, freezing it for two years, and then allowing it to grow with inflation. It would call for setting discretionary defense spending at $570 billion, non-defense discretionary spending at $405 billion and allowing for $58 billion in Overseas Contingency Operations. The measure would call for, after fiscal 2019, OCO spending being incorporated into (non-emergency) discretionary defense spending. The proposal would call for repeal of the 2010 health care overhaul, converting Medicaid and the Children’s Health Insurance Program into block grant programs and transitioning Medicare to a premium-support system. It would propose changing the inflationary index for Social Security benefits to ‘chained’ CPI for all government programs and gradually increases eligibility to age 70 for Social Security. It also would propose converting the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program into a block grant program and changing it to a discretionary program. The amendment would outline guidance for a tax overhaul, including stating that taxes should be revenue neutral based on dynamic scoring and that the alternative minimum tax be repealed. It also would propose that federal funding for transportation be limited to core federal duties, such as the interstate highway system.” [H Con Res 27, Vote #138, 3/25/15; CQ, 3/25/15]

Poliquin Voted For Eliminating The Independent Payment Advisory Board. “The House easily passed a repeal of Obamacare’s Independent Payment Advisory Board, with a handful of Democrats voting with Republicans against a part of the law aimed at checking the growth of Medicare spending. The Independent Payment Advisory Board has never been used. It consists of 15 members and was included in the law to control the rate of Medicare growth and to help the program come up with savings. The law said the board would make savings recommendations if Medicare spending was projected to exceed a certain target rate, but so far, spending hasn’t grown fast enough to trigger the IPAB. The 244-154 vote occurred days before an expected Supreme Court ruling on the legality of Obamacare subsidies.” The bill passed, 244-154. [HR 1190, Vote #376, 6/23/15; National Journal, 6/23/15]

- Poliquin Voted For Increasing Definition Of Full-Time From 30 Hours To 40 Hours Under Affordable Care Act. [HR 30, Vote #14, 1/8/15; Político, 1/8/15]
Poliquin Voted For A Bill Blocking Federal Funding For Abortion, Including ACA Tax Credits For Small Businesses Providing Healthcare That Includes Abortion Coverage. “The House did easily pass H.R. 7, the No Taxpayer Funding for Abortion and Abortion Insurance Full Disclosure Act of 2015, sponsored by Rep. Chris Smith (R-N.J.). White House advisers said they would recommend a veto should the bill reach the president’s desk. The Hyde Amendment already prevents the use of federal funds to pay for abortion, except in cases of incest, rape and life endangerment of the mother. That is passed every year as part of an appropriations bill, but this bill would make that permanent law. The House bill would also restrict small businesses from getting an Affordable Care Act tax credit if they purchase employee health plans that include abortion coverage on the Small Business Health Options Program, or SHOP exchange.” [HR 7, Vote #45, 1/22/15; Politico, 1/22/15]

Poliquin Voted For Increasing The Definition Of Full-Time From 30 Hours To 40 Hours Under Affordable Care Act. “The House will vote again on Thursday to lengthen Obamacare’s full-time workweek definition to 40 hours, but the Senate has work to do before it can hope to get its first anti-Obamacare bill to the president’s desk.” The bill passed, 252-172. So that’s the first thing we’re doing. The governor has a plan for this. Mary Mayhew has just been appointed head of HHS and had a couple businesspeople working underneath her and we need to make sure we tighten eligibility requirements to get the cost of delivering these services down. The problem is the governor is handcuffed, because Maine has been so generous with our MaineCare that now we’re way above the national average and if we want to drop down, they say ‘nope! 2014: Poliquin Said He Opposed The “Expensive Mandates” That The ACA Put On Businesses, Including Requiring Employers Offer Health Care Plans To All Employees Who Work Over 30 Hours Per Week. POLIQUIN: “However, there were job killing parts of Obamacare, we should kill, we should replace those job killing parts, including, if you hire 50 or more employees, then you suffer the mandates the expensive mandates of Obamacare. And also if you have employees that are working over 30 hours now I would like to take exception with my with my opponent, Mr. Raye, even before Obamacare became law, he voted for a democrat plan to introduce a single payer government run health care plan here in the state of Maine that is way beyond Obamacare. So we need someone who's going to stand up to these big government programs, and not go down the path of these government run programs, or he participates in a study to implement that.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter GOP Primary Debate, 5/28/14] (VIDEO) 13:00

• Poliquin Claimed The 30 Hour Employer Mandate Was “Crippling Our Small Businesses.” “As your Representative, Congressman Poliquin will continue to listen to people of the 2nd District and fix misguided policies, such as the Medical Device Tax and the 30-Hour Workweek Employer Mandate, that are crippling our small businesses.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, captured 12/22/18]

January 2015: Poliquin Voted For Increasing Definition Of Full-Time From 30 Hours To 40 Hours Under Affordable Care Act’s Employer Mandate

Poliquin Voted For Increasing Definition Of Full-Time From 30 Hours To 40 Hours Under Affordable Care Act. In January 2015, Poliquin voted for a bill that would lengthen the Affordable Care Act’s definition of a full-time work week to 40 hours from 30 hours. “The House will vote again on Thursday to lengthen Obamacare’s full-time workweek definition to 40 hours, but the Senate has work to do before it can hope to get its first anti-Obamacare bill to the president’s desk.” The bill passed, 252-172. [HR 30, Vote #14, 1/8/15; Politico, 1/8/15]

- Bill Would Increase Deficit By $53.2 Billion And Cut Healthcare For About 1 Million Workers. “The independent Congressional Budget Office said Wednesday that the House’s bill would add $53.2 billion to the deficit from 2015 to 2025. That’s because fewer businesses would pay fines and because some of the employees who would have been covered at work will instead get subsidies to buy plans on the Obamacare exchanges. The CBO estimated that about 1 million people would lose their work-based coverage, a fact that Democrats intend to highlight.” [Politico, 1/8/15]

2014 – 2016: Poliquin Said He Supported Repealing And Replacing the ACA While Keeping Protections For Pre-Existing Conditions

2014: Poliquin Said He Supported Repealing And Replacing The ACA. POLIQUIN: “No. Repeal it and replace it with something that’s better that’s based on the free market. […] And no, I would not drop by current insurance, which by the way has already been cancelled once and then re-instated my premium 30 percent higher, but I was able to keep a plan that I wanted to insure myself and Sammy with a high deductible to keep my premiums low, and we’re actually paying out of pocket.” [YouTube, Maine 02 RawFootage, WAGM Raye Poliquin Primary Debate, 5/30/14] (VIDEO) 47:35

2014: Poliquin Said He Supported Keeping Pre-Existing Conditions Protections In An ACA Replacement Plan. POLIQUIN: “Now there are a couple things that in the in the in Obamacare that are certainly worth holding on to, for example, preexisting conditions, my son, who's now 23 is asthmatic. We have to make sure when Sammy gets a health care plan down the road that he's able to insure himself for that. Also portability. If Sam wants to change jobs, he ought to be able to take that that health care plan with him.” [ME-02 Voice of the Voter GOP Primary Debate, 5/28/14] (VIDEO) 13:00

2016: Poliquin Claimed He Supported Keeping The Affordable Care Act’s Protections For Pre-Existing Conditions. “Let me give you an example. We need to keep our pre existing conditions. My son is asthmatic. I think Sammy ought to have the opportunity to buy a health insurance policy, that he can not only take from job to job but insures him for that pre existing condition.” [CSPAN, 2018 Maine Public ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/19/16] (VIDEO) 31:00

2016: Poliquin Questioned Why A “65-Year-Old Male Should Be Required To Pay For Pediatric And Maternity Coverage” Under The ACA And Pledged To “End Obamacare”

October 2016: Poliquin Campaign Website On The ACA: “Why Should A 65-Year-Old Male Be Required To Pay For Pediatric And Maternity Coverage?” “It’s a bad idea for the federal government to take over our free market health care industry. Although promised otherwise, millions of frightened Americans are seeing their health insurance plans cancelled because they do not include unwanted and expensive coverage mandated by the new one-size-fits-all health care law. Why should a 65-year-old male be required to pay for pediatric and maternity coverage? Millions of Americans are also losing their doctors and hospitals of choice because they don’t fit into the Obamacare-mandated health care systems.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/29/16]
2016: Poliquin’s Proposed Alternative For The ACA Allowed Sales Of Health Insurance Across State Lines, Federal Tax Credits For Health Saving Accounts, And Portability Of Insurance Across Jobs

One alternative to Obamacare is to allow families to shop across state lines to buy the health insurance that fits our needs at a price we can afford, just like purchasing automobile insurance. Small businesses should also be allowed to band together to buy coverage. Our purchasing power would incentivize insurance companies to offer plans with varying coverage, co-pays, deductibles, and lower monthly premiums. The cost of this private insurance could be paid by expanding tax-free health savings accounts using federal tax credits. Instead of sending Uncle Sam, say, $15,000 per year in taxes, a family could use that money to buy health insurance. Any amount left over would remain in the health savings account to buy insurance the next year. […] It’s important that health insurance plans are portable and cover pre-existing medical conditions so workers are not tied to a specific job or employer in order to retain the insurance.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/29/16]

January 2017: Poliquin Voted Against Protecting The ACA’s Rule Prohibiting Insurance From Eliminating Coverage For Dependents Younger Than 26, Then Pledged To Support ACA Repeal If Its Replacement Kept 26-Year-Olds And Under On Their Parents’ Insurance A Week Later

1/5/17: Poliquin Voted Against Exempting From HR 26 Any Rule Prohibiting Insurance From Eliminating Health Coverage For Dependents Younger Than 26. In January 2017, Poliquin voted against the “Murphy, D-Fla., motion to recommit the bill to the House Judiciary Committee with instructions to report back immediately with an amendment that would exempt from the bill any rule prohibiting an insurance issuer from eliminating health coverage for dependents younger than 26 years old.” The motion was rejected by a vote of 190-235. [HR 26, Vote #22, 1/5/17; CQ, 1/5/17]

- HR 26 Was A Bill Requiring Congress To Approve All New Major Regulations. “This bill states that its purpose is to increase accountability for and transparency in the federal regulatory process by requiring Congress to approve all new major regulations. The bill revises provisions relating to congressional review of agency rulemaking to require federal agencies promulgating rules to: (1) identify and repeal or amend existing rules to completely offset any annual costs of new rules to the U.S. economy…” [HR 26, Summary, 1/5/17]

1/12/17: Poliquin Vowed To Support ACA Repeal “If The Replacement Includes Coverage For Pre-Existing Health Conditions And Keeping Those 26 Years Old Or Younger On Their Parents' Plans.” “U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, a Maine Republican, said he will support the reconciliation measure when it comes before the House on Friday. Looking ahead, Poliquin said, ‘I will support the actual repeal of the Obamacare law if the replacement includes coverage for pre-existing health conditions and keeping those 26 years old or younger on their parents' plans.’ He added, ‘Any replacement law must also eliminate job-killing taxes and regulations such as the medical device tax. I will thoroughly and carefully evaluate every proposed replacement law with these in mind.’” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 1/12/17]

October 2017: Poliquin Claimed ACA Exchanges Were “On The Verge Of Collapse” After Anthem Left Maine’s Individual Insurance Market

October 2017: Poliquin Claimed ACA Exchanges Were “On The Verge Of Collapse” After Anthem Left Maine’s Individual Insurance Market And Added That “Doing Nothing Is Not An Option.” “Poliquin, however, has defended his vote and pointed out that the recent decision by Anthem to quit Maine’s individual insurance market shows that his warnings about the flaws in Obamacare remain true. He said recently that he has offered market-based solutions to the law's failings and called on the Senate to take action quickly ‘to fix the law.’ ‘The Obamacare exchanges are on the verge of collapse in many states,’ Poliquin said in a prepared release.
‘The reality is that significant changes must be made; doing nothing is not an option.’ ‘It is unacceptable to do nothing. I continue to stand ready to work with anybody and everybody to act in Congress so that Mainers can be provided relief from the serious flaws of the Obamacare health care law,’ he said.” [Kennebec Journal, 10/5/17]

- Poliquin Attributed Anthem’s Exit From Maine’s Individual Insurance Market To “Serious Flaws In The Obamacare Law.” “Poliquin, R-2nd District, said in a written statement that the ACA needs a solution. ‘We need a fix, and the first place to accomplish that is going to be in the Senate,’ said Poliquin, who voted to repeal the ACA in May. ‘Insurers like Anthem have continuously warned that they would pull out of the marketplace if nothing was done to fix the serious flaws in the Obamacare law, and Anthem has specifically cited support for legislation in Congress to do so.’” [Portland Press Herald, 9/27/17]

| 2018: Poliquin Repeatedly Denied That He Voted To Repeal The ACA Or Threatened Pre-Existing Conditions, Selectively Highlighted His 2015 Vote Against ACA Repeal, And Removed Language About His Opposition To The ACA From His Website |

November 2018: Poliquin Dismissed Attacks On His Health Care Record As “The Craziest Thing I’ve Ever Seen.” “Poliquin argued on WGAN radio on Friday that criticism of his health-care record is ‘the craziest thing I’ve ever seen.’ He insisted he supports Medicaid, Medicare and coverage for those with pre-existing conditions. He also pointed to his 2015 vote to keep President Barack Obama’s ACA until an acceptable alternative could be found. That is true. But his vote last year would, by all accounts, have repealed the ACA and cut Medicaid assistance. It also would have opened the door for insurance companies to charge older Americans more for their coverage.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/2/18]

October 2018: At A Candidate Debate, Poliquin “Framed His Vote To Repeal The Affordable Care Act As A Move To Replace It With A Market-Based Alternative.” “On the issues, Poliquin continued to defend his votes on health care. He framed his vote to repeal the Affordable Care Act as a move to replace it with a market-based alternative -- but was vague when asked about his plan to make health care more affordable for Mainers. He dismissed as too expensive Golden's Medicare-for-all approach, which would lower the eligibility age, allowing people 55 and older to buy into the plan.” [Bangor Daily News, 10/17/18]

The Lewiston Sun Journal Rated The DCCC’s Claim That Poliquin Would Take Away Protections For People With Pre-Existing Conditions As “Partly True And Partly False” Since He Voted For ACA Repeal. “POLIQUIN IS AGAINST COVERING PRE-EXISTING CONDITIONS? Democrats, including Golden, have ripped into Poliquin for allegedly failing to protect the availability of health insurance for those with pre-existing conditions. In a Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee advertisement, someone asks whether Poliquin would ‘take protections away for people with pre-existing conditions?’ and then answers, ‘Yes.’ Advertisement Poliquin calls it a lie. It’s actually partly true and partly false. The reality is that Poliquin has always defended the need for coverage of pre-existing conditions, pointing out that his son has asthma, but he voted in 2017 for a health care plan that experts said would have made it difficult for many people with pre-existing conditions to pay for health care.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/1/18]

The Lewiston Sun Journal Rated Poliquin’s Emphasis On His 2015 Vote Against ACA Repeal “Less Than Genuine” Since He Voted For Repeal In 2017. “POLIQUIN SUPPORTS THE AFFORDABLE CARE ACT? Poliquin routinely talks about his 2015 vote in opposition to repeal of the Affordable Care Act. What he doesn’t mention often is his House vote in 2017 in favor of repeal of the same law, which sent the issue to the U.S. Senate, where Republican Susan Collins of Maine voted against repeal, retaining the program. For that reason, his comments on the campaign trail about his 2015 vote are less then genuine.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 10/31/18]

October 2018: Poliquin Denied That He Voted To Repeal The ACA: “I Voted For A Replacement Plan.” “After being one of only three House Republicans to vote against a 2015 bill that would have repealed the Affordable Care Act, Poliquin in May 2017 was the only member of Maine's congressional delegation to vote to repeal the health insurance program, also known as Obamacare. Poliquin denied his vote to repeal as recently as last week in a story from WMTW-TV. When asked if he voted to repeal, he said, ‘No, I voted for a replacement plan.’” [Bangor Daily News, 10/15/18]

2018: Poliquin Framed Himself As A Defender Of The ACA By Only Highlighting His Votes Against Repeal In 2015

October 2018: During Candidate Debate, Poliquin Only Mentioned His Vote Against Repealing The ACA In 2015, Not His More Recent Vote To Repeal It In 2017. “Poliquin’s 2017 vote to repeal the Affordable Care Act came up often — but not when he was talking. The only mention he made about the ACA was to note that in 2015 he was one of three Republicans to vote against its repeal.” [Portland Press Herald, 10/9/18]

- October 2018: Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: Poliquin “Mostly Remains Silent” On His Decision To Vote For ACA Repeal. “Poliquin also voted to repeal the Affordable Care Act in ways that would have been devastating, stripping 24 million Americans of health insurance by 2026, including more than 100,000 Mainers. And while Poliquin has become an ardent supporter of protecting Americans with pre-existing conditions since he got on the campaign trail, his votes say otherwise. Poliquin chooses not to explain his position. Other members of Maine's congressional delegation frequently comment on the most important issues facing the country, while Poliquin mostly remains silent.” [Portland Press Herald Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 10/28/18]

September 2018: Poliquin Removed Language Advertising His Opposition To The Affordable Care Act From His Website. “So Democrats say it’s noteworthy that Poliquin has overhauled his campaign website for the Nov. 6 election to downplay his opposition to the health care program that many residents depend on for insurance. The language he used in 2014 and 2016 is gone. Instead, the two-term Republican vows to ‘continue to work on improving access to affordable, quality health care in Maine.’ […] Though Vice President Mike Pence and House Majority Leader Kevin McCarthy, R-Calif., have both said in recent days they intend to continue to try to repeal the ACA, some of the most vulnerable Republicans, including Poliquin, are no longer pushing the issue on the campaign trail.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 9/7/18]

- 2016: Poliquin’s Campaign Website Listed “End Obamacare” As An “Action Item. “ACTION ITEMS: Eliminate unnecessary job-killing regulations Lower heating oil, gasoline, electricity costs End Obamacare […] Ending Obamacare and allowing Americans to shop across state lines to buy health insurance will lower unaffordable monthly premiums.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/29/16]

- 2018: Poliquin’s Campaign Website Did Not Mention The Affordable Care Act Nor The American Health Care Act In Its “Health Care” Section. [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/5/18]

October 2018: Poliquin Repeatedly Denied That He Voted To Repeal Protections For Those With Pre-Existing Conditions Because His Son Had Asthma

10/4/18: Poliquin Facebook: “The Latest Propaganda From The Democrat Party, Specifically Mentions Asthma As A Pre-Existing Condition. Bruce’s Own Son Has Asthma!” “Beware: The latest lie, one of many, that Jared Golden and the Maine Democrat Party are pushing, is again on topic of healthcare. Bruce has always supported covering pre-existing conditions, his own proposed plan from years ago makes it a priority. The latest propaganda from the Democrat Party, specifically mentions asthma as a pre-existing condition. Bruce’s own son has asthma! Of course, Bruce has always stood up for coverage of pre-existing conditions and this is just another lie, flat out lie, from Jared Golden. We expect to see more of these lies based on his campaign so far and his biggest supporter, Nancy Pelosi.”
10/10/18: Poliquin: “I Would Never Vote Against Pre-Existing Conditions, My Own Son Has One!” “If you watched the debate it is clear that I’m passionate about working hard and standing up for Maine. Jared Golden has repeatedly lied about his record and mine and I believe he should be exposed for his lies. Jared votes against the Second Amendment but hides behind that with a slick deceptive commercial. He has lied about my record on healthcare. I would never vote against pre-existing conditions, my own son has one! His radical scheme to alter Medicare will drive up taxes and end Medicare as we know it, that’s not fair to our seniors who have paid into it their whole life. Jared is a extreme radical backed by other extreme radicals, like Nancy Pelosi, Elizabeth Warren, and even Hillary Clinton, he simply cannot be trusted. Please Share so people know the truth.”

September 2018: Poliquin: “I Have ALWAYS Advocated For Pre-Existing [sic] Condition Healthcare Coverage. ALWAYS As Your Congressman. My Own Son, Sam, Has A Pre-Existing Condition.” “BREAKING NEWS: I have ALWAYS advocated for pre-existing [sic] condition healthcare coverage. ALWAYS as your Congressman. My own son, Sam, has a pre-existing condition. I do not support eliminating this coverage. Out-of-state special interests trying to trick Mainers into voting for Jared Golden are sending FALSE messages saying I oppose this coverage. Also they claim I want to hurt Social Security and Medicare WHEN MY OWN MOTHER relies on them. Please see the article from all the way back in 2016 when I laid out my 14-points on healthcare including coverage for pre-existing conditions. PLEASE SHARE.

American Health Care Act (AHCA)

2017: Poliquin Voted For The AHCA After He Avoided Questions On It For Months

March 2017: Poliquin Called The AHCA A “First Step” And Said That “Obamacare Will Continue To Implode” Without Action, But Denied He Endorsed The Bill

3/6/17: Poliquin Said The AHCA “Will Bring Much Needed Health Insurance Relief To The American People.” “Today, Congressman Bruce Poliquin (ME-02) released the following statement on the American Health Care Act, legislation to repeal and replace the rapidly failing ObamaCare health care law and bring relief to tens of thousands of Maine families: ‘Tens of thousands of Mainer are suffocating under the spiking ObamaCare monthly premiums, co-pays, and deductibles while other health insurance options continue to shrink. Congress must act to fix this,’ said Congressman Poliquin. ‘This new plan will bring much needed health insurance relief to the American People while keeping the promises made to them.’” [Bruce Poliquin Press Release, 3/6/17]

- 3/9/17: Portland Press Herald Editorial Board: Poliquin “Stepped Forward As An Early And Enthusiastic Proponent Of A Bill That Looks Like It Was Drawn Up To Hurt The People He Represents.” “In addition, the Republican plan would stop adjusting the size of health insurance tax credits by region, so people who live in places where health coverage is expensive – like rural Maine – would take the biggest hit. The plan has taken heat from those on the left, right and center, but it has one surprising cheerleader: 2nd District U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin. Poliquin, who has had nothing to say on other matters of national importance, has stepped forward as an early and enthusiastic proponent of a bill that looks like it was drawn up to hurt the people he represents.” [Portland Press Herald, Editorial Board, 3/9/17]

3/17/17: Poliquin Op-Ed: “If We Do Nothing, Obamacare Will Continue To Implode And More Maine Families Will Lose Their Health Insurance.” “The largest Obamacare health insurance provider in Maine is Community Health Options in Lewiston. Last year, it lost $88 million. Anthem is one of only two other health insurance companies doing business in Maine. Last week, it announced it would begin the process to stop writing Obamacare coverage in 2018 if the collapsing law is not changed. Advertisement Many fellow Mainers pushed out of health insurance by the ACA law have no other option but hospital emergency rooms when they get sick or have an accident. This is not fair, and this is not right. If we do nothing, Obamacare will continue to implode and more Maine families will lose their health insurance.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/17/17]

Poliquin Called The AHCA “A First Step” That Included “Number Of Successful Common-Sense Reforms” In His Op-Ed. “The proposal introduced last week is a first step. This proposal includes a number of successful common-sense reforms, some of which Maine has already used, including making sure nobody is denied health insurance if they want it; no lifetime caps on coverage; family members up to age 26 can be covered on their parents’ plans; and coverage for pre-existing health conditions.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/17/17]

Poliquin Denied He “Endorse[d] This First Draft Of The House Republican Proposal In Its Entirety” And Said He Was “Thoroughly And Carefully Studying The Bill.” “It shouldn’t surprise you that the media claims that I endorse this first draft of the House Republican proposal in its entirety. Like every proposal that comes before me, I am thoroughly and carefully studying the bill, looking for ways to improve it.” [Portland Press Herald, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 3/17/17]

March 24, 2017: Poliquin Refused To Say Whether He Planned To Support The AHCA Hours Before A Vote On It Was Called Off

3/24/17: Poliquin “Refused To State His Position” On The AHCA Hours Before A Vote On It Was Called Off. “Poliquin refused to state his position on the House health legislation before the vote was called off March 24. In a statement days beforehand, Poliquin said he had met with Trump at the White House and urged him and House leadership to push for increased benefits for those nearing retirement and families living in rural areas. Poliquin said at the time that he wanted “to ensure that rural Mainers and those ages 50 to 64 will be able to buy policies under the American Health Care Act,” the name of the health care overhaul proposed by Republicans.” [Portland Press Herald, 4/5/17]

- Poliquin’s Spokesperson Did Not Comment To Media And His DC Office Did Not Pick Up Maine Reporters’ Calls The Day The Vote Was Scheduled. “Leading up to a historic health care system overhaul vote that ultimately was canceled Friday, U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, wouldn't take a formal stance on the legislation. [...] Conley didn't respond immediately to request for comment Friday on whether Poliquin had an official stance on the GOP bill. Multiple calls Friday afternoon to Poliquin's office in Washington received automated replies saying the voicemail was full.” [Portland Press Herald, 3/24/17]

- Colby College American Government Professor Sandy Maisel: Poliquin Was “Conspicuously Absent From This Debate” Leading Up To The Cancelled AHCA Vote. “But in some ways, Poliquin also has boxed himself into a corner and been ‘has been conspicuously absent from this debate,’ said Sandy Maisel, Goldfarb professor of American government at Colby College in Waterville. ‘The Republican alternative to the Affordable Care Act obviously hurts people like the elderly in rural Maine. Senator Collins could always say that, and she has been outspoken on the issue,’ Maisel said. ‘But congressman Poliquin is trying to be loyal to the Republican Party. I think his greatest hope was that it would never come to a vote.’” [Portland Press Herald, 3/24/17]

April – May 2017: Poliquin Avoided Reporters And Constituents In The Months Leading Up To The AHCA
Poliquin Did Not Hold A Town Hall Of Any Kind For More Than A Month Leading Up To His Vote For The AHCA. “A Poliquin spokesman, asked why the lawmaker has not conducted a town hall, said Poliquin prefers ‘telephone town halls,’” since his district is so large. He last held one of those at the end of March.” [Boston Globe, 5/15/17]

- May 2017: Asked If Poliquin Would Host Town Halls After Voting For The AHCA, Poliquin’s Spokesperson Said He “Has Been Actively Hearing From ALL 664,000+ Constituents Of Maine’s 2nd District.” “Asked whether Poliquin plans any town hall-style meetings in the 2nd District or other means of explaining the bill to constituents, Conley said via email, ‘The Congressman has been actively hearing from ALL 664,000+ constituents of Maine’s 2nd District and will continue to do so and work to best serve ALL 664,000+ Mainers he represents.’” [Kennebec Journal, 5/5/17]

May 2017: When A Reporter Asked If He Planned To Vote For The AHCA, Poliquin “Said Nothing And Made A Beeline To The Restroom,” Accidentally Entered The Women’s Restroom, Then “Scurried Away.” “As House Republican leaders claim they’re getting ever closer to acquiring the votes they need to pass the American Health Care Act, pressure is mounting on a number of still-reluctant, vulnerable GOP members of Congress to fall in line. As such, those members want to go into hiding. Here is a taste of what it’s like trying to pin down an undecided Republican member of Congress on his or her possible Trumpcare vote this week. Maine Rep. Bruce Poliquin has yet to declare either his support or opposition for the bill. As he was walking out of the House Republican conference’s morning meeting Tuesday, I asked him if he had arrived at a decision. He said nothing and made a beeline to the restroom. Unfortunately it was the door to the women’s restroom that he had first run to, so he corrected himself and went into the men’s room. When he emerged several minutes later, he was wearing his earbuds and scurried away.” [Slate, 5/2/17]

Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: Poliquin “Ducked Questions On The Issue For Months” Then “Stuck With His Party's Leaders And Supported The Bill, Even Though Thousands Of His Constituents Would Suffer.” “Poliquin, on the other hand, stuck with his party's leaders and supported the bill, even though thousands of his constituents would suffer. Poliquin ducked questions on the issue for months until he had no choice but to cast a public vote.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 7/18/17]

In The 48 Hours Before The Vote On AHCA, Poliquin Returned To Maine Because His Father Suffered A Stroke. “In the last 48 hours my father suffered a stroke and I had to rush back home from Washington to help him.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 5/4/17]

May 4, 2017: Poliquin Announced His Support For The AHCA Thirty Minutes Before He Voted For It During A 15-Minute Conference Via Phone At Which “Only Selected TV Reporters Could Ask Questions”

5/4/17: Poliquin Announced He Would Support The AHCA Thirty Minutes Before Voting For It. “Poliquin, a Republican who represents Maine’s 2nd District, has long said he opposed former President Barack Obama's signature 2010 legislation, the Affordable Care Act, but it wasn't until a half-hour before Thursday's House vote that Poliquin finally announced his support after dodging earlier questions from reporters. During the call, Poliquin sought to minimize the bill's effect in his home state, incorrectly saying that it would affect only 7 percent of Mainers.” [Kennebec Journal, 5/5/17]

- 5/4/17: Bill Nemitz Column: Poliquin Announced His Support For AHCA Over A Press Conference Via Phone That Lasted 15 Minutes Where “Only Selected TV Reporters Could Ask Questions.” “Then, rather than follow up with a full-fledged news conference, Poliquin opted for a phone call with the members of Maine's media. Some only learned of it indirectly and at the last minute on Twitter. For those who managed to patch into the call came this twist: Only selected TV reporters could ask questions. The rest were instructed beforehand to keep their traps shut. […] Poliquin's phone chat lasted all of 15 minutes. In keeping with his the-less-I-say-the-better approach to representing Maine's oldest and poorest region, it was just enough to let him off the hook.” [Kennebec Journal, Bill Nemitz Column, 5/7/17]

5/4/17: Poliquin Announced Support For AHCA In A Press Release: “There Are Powerful Special Interest Groups In Augusta And Washington Trying To Scare Us Into Doing Nothing.” “There are powerful special interest groups in Augusta and Washington trying to scare us into doing nothing. They say if we change the imploding ObamaCare law, millions of Americans will lose their health insurance. Families are already losing coverage because their plans have been cancelled by insurance providers. The special interests say those approaching retirement and the poor won’t be able to afford health insurance if ObamaCare is changed. That’s not true. They can’t afford it now due to high deductibles and increasing premiums. If the few providers in Maine offering ObamaCare go under or pull out due to continued massive financial losses, we will have no ObamaCare policies in Maine at all. That is not acceptable. I was elected to Congress to fix our serious problems. That’s exactly what I’m doing. If we don’t fix this ObamaCare problem, it’s going to get worse.” [Rep. Bruce Poliquin, Press Release, 5/4/17]

5/4/17: Poliquin Voted For The American Health Care Act. In May 2017, Poliquin voted for repeal and replace major parts of the Affordable Care Act. According to the New York Times, the bill “would eliminate tax penalties for people who go without health insurance. It would roll back state-by-state expansions of Medicaid, which covered millions of low-income Americans. And in place of government-subsidized insurance policies offered exclusively on the Affordable Care Act’s marketplaces, the bill would offer tax credits of $2,000 to $4,000 a year, depending on age. [...] The nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office said the first version of the bill would trim the federal budget deficit considerably but would also leave 24 million more Americans without health insurance after a decade. Average insurance premiums would be 15 percent to 20 percent higher in 2018 and 2019, but after that, they would be lower than projected under current law.” The bill passed by a vote of 217-213. [HR 1628, Vote #256, 5/4/17; New York Times, 5/4/17]

Boston Globe: Poliquin “Played A Pivotal Role” In House Passage Of The AHCA. “Amid it all, Poliquin opted not to conduct any town meetings in his vast, rural district during last week’s House recess. Poliquin’s office said he was not available for an interview. Poliquin played a pivotal role in passage of the House bill. He rushed back to Washington from a family medical emergency in Maine to help the measure pass by just two votes. So his failure to step forward and explain his vote in detail has angered more than a few people in his district, including specialists who say the bill would decimate health care programs for low-income Maine residents, especially in impoverished rural townships.” [Boston Globe, 5/15/17]

Poliquin Claimed The AHCA Would Affect "Only The 7 Percent Of Maine Residents Who Have Obamacare Policies,” Downplaying Disastrous Effects For Mainers Who Were On Medicaid, Had Pre-Existing Conditions, Or Were Over 60 Years Old

Poliquin Claimed The AHCA Would Affect “Only The 7 Percent Of Maine Residents Who Have Obamacare Policies”

On A Call With Reporters Just Before His Vote For The AHCA, Poliquin Repeatedly Claimed The Bill Only “Affects Only The 7 Percent Of Maine Residents Who Have Obamacare Policies.” “In a conference call with reporters before the vote, he said the bill represents the best parts of several previous attempts at reform and Republican efforts to undo former President Barack Obama's signature 2010 legislation, the Affordable Care Act. ‘This affects only the 7 percent of Maine residents who have Obamacare policies,’ he said. ‘People sent me to Congress to solve serious problems that are affecting Maine people.’ In his 15-minute exchange with Maine reporters, Poliquin repeated the same point multiple times about the small percentage of Mainers who would be affected, the roughly 80,000 people in the state who have insurance under the Affordable Care Act.” [Kennebec Journal, 5/4/17]
May 2017: Poliquin Claimed “Folks Who Are On Obamacare Policies, They Continue To Have Those Policies” Under The AHCA. “Poliquin also said that people will be able to keep the health plans they have under the ACA, as long as insurance companies continue to offer them. ‘Folks who are on Obamacare policies, they continue to have those policies, but those that are looking for something different, we are bringing the insurance marketplace back in to hopefully lower the price and make sure we have protections for people with pre-existing conditions and guaranteed issuance,’ he said. Brostek was skeptical of that promise, especially since Obama made a similar claim when selling the ACA, which turned out not to be true. ‘It seems like a pretty dangerous claim, based on what we saw with Obama,’ she said.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/12/17]

Kennebec Journal: Poliquin’s Claim Was “Instantly Exposed As False” And Did Not Account For 270,000 Mainers On Medicaid And Mainers With Pre-Existing Conditions Who Would Be Affected By The AHCA

Kennebec Journal: Poliquin’s Claim Did Not Account For 270,000 Mainers On Medicaid And All Mainers With Pre-Existing Conditions Who Would Be Affected By The AHCA. “In May, Poliquin joined a majority of Republicans in voting to pass the American Health Care Act, which the congressman said would affect ‘only the 7 percent of Maine residents who have Obamacare policies.’ However, that isn't true because the House bill also included cuts to Medicaid programs for low-income people, something that the House's Freedom Caucus insisted upon, and Maine had about 270,000 people enrolled in the program, known as MaineCare, as of January. There also is a provision in the House health bill that would allow states to let insurers charge more for customers with pre-existing medical conditions.” [Kennebec Journal, 7/12/17]

Kennebec Journal Editorial Board: Poliquin “Repeated Republican Talking Points That Were Instantly Exposed As False,” Including That His Vote Would Only Affect 7 Percent Of Mainers. “Then he repeated Republican talking points that were instantly exposed as false - claiming, for example, that the bill would affect only the 7 percent of Mainers who buy insurance on the individual market, and not the tens of thousands of Mainers on Medicaid, including thousands of his constituents, who would be direct losers. It's important to remember that what Poliquin and the others support is not just an attack on the Medicaid expansion created by the Affordable Care Act, an aspect of the law in which Maine does not participate. But roughly a fifth of Mainers get their health care through traditional Medicaid - and tearing that apart is central to both the House and Senate attempts to repeal the ACA. Both bills cap federal contributions for the states for their Medicaid programs, rather than paying a share of the costs of caring for each program enrollee. As health care costs climb, the federal share will shrink as a portion of the whole cost, forcing states to cut services.” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 7/18/17]

American Health Care Act Would Create An Age Tax On Older Americans

American Health Care Act Allows Insurers To Charge Older Customers Five Times More Than Younger Adults. “Raises premiums for older people. The Affordable Care Act limited insurers from charging older customers more than three times what they charge younger adults. The House bill would raise that to five times. This may enable younger consumers to find cheaper coverage, but older policyholders would face higher rates.” [Huffington Post, 3/6/17]

New York Times: ACHA Achieved Lower Premiums Not Through Increased Choice And Competition, But By Making Health Insurance So Unaffordable For Many Older Americans They Would Leave The Market. “There are a lot of unpleasant numbers for Republicans in the Congressional Budget Office’s assessment of their health care bill. But congressional leadership found one to cheer: The report says that the bill will eventually cut the average insurance premiums for people who buy their own insurance by 10 percent. […] But the way the bill achieves those lower average premiums has little to do with increased choice and competition. It depends, rather, on penalizing older patients and rewarding younger ones. According to the C.B.O. report, the bill would make health insurance so unaffordable for many older Americans that they would simply leave the market and join the ranks of the uninsured.” [New York Times, 3/14/17]

AARP: Under AHCA, Premiums For 60 To 64-Year-Olds Would “Increase By An Average Of $3,200.” “Under the AHCA: Average premiums would increase for all ages starting at about age 46. Premiums for 60- to 64-year-olds would increase by an average of $3,200, amounting to average unsubsidized premiums of almost $18,000 per year. Meanwhile, 20- to 29-year-olds are expected to see significantly smaller average savings, of only $700 per year, giving them average unsubsidized premiums of $4,010 per year.” [AARP, 5/4/17]

May – July 2017: Poliquin Claimed The AHCA Would Not Hurt Mainers With Pre-Existing Conditions, Who Made Up More Than Half Of His District, Which PolitiFact Dismissed As False

Poliquin Claimed The AHCA Would Not Hurt Mainers With Pre-Existing Conditions

July 2017: Poliquin Claimed The AHCA “Ensures Everyone Will Have Access, Even Those With Pre-Existing Conditions ... At A Price They Can Afford.” “A major concern with the new Republican health care bill is how it would affect people with pre-existing conditions. Poliquin said one of the biggest reasons he will support the new bill is because he's convinced it 'ensures everyone will have access, even those with pre-existing conditions ... at a price they can afford.'” [Kennebec Journal, 7/12/17]

- 2018: Poliquin: “Everything I Have Ever Supported Is To Drive Down The Cost Of Health Insurance, Make Sure Everybody Is Protected When They Have A Preexisting Condition.” HOST: “The affordable care act is the law of the land. Although clearly a lot of people would make the argument that healthcare is anything but affordable under a lot of circumstances. In Congress what could you do to make sure people have access to affordable healthcare?” POLIQUIN: “Everybody in this country needs to have healthcare and everybody needs to be able to afford health insurance in order to get that care. One of the first votes I cast in Congress in 2015 was -- and I was one of only three republicans in Congress -- to vote against repealing the Affordable Care Act because there was no replacement. Let me tell you, I got some criticism about that, but it was the right thing to do. Since that time I have introduced a 14 point plan, in part based on the Maine model that drove down the cost of health insurance and gave us more choices. It was called PL-90. My mother is a nurse. She's 90 years old now. Doesn't practice of course. But she's a nurse. I grew up with healthcare in our family. My son has a preexisting condition. Everything I have ever supported is to drive down the cost of health insurance, make sure everybody is protected when they have a preexisting condition. But I will tell you what I don't think is a good idea is a 100% government run healthcare that Jared Golden supports, that will drive up taxes, cost 32 trillion dollars and end Medicare as we know it.” [C-SPAN, 2018 ME-02 General Election Debate, 10/16/18] (VIDEO) 24:59

May 2017: Poliquin On The AHCA: “If You Have Pre-Existing Conditions, Like My Family, You Are Going To Be Covered.” “Poliquin, who reportedly ducked into a bathroom last week to avoid discussing his position on the American Health Care Act ahead of the House vote, said Friday he personally met with President Trump in the Oval Office to discuss the legislation's potential impact on rural Maine, which makes up the bulk of his 2nd District. He said $138 billion has been allocated over a 10-year period to help people in so-called high-risk pools afford coverage. ‘We passed (a bill) that is better for more people and it guarantees that you will have access to health insurance,’ he said. ‘You will not be denied. If you have pre-existing conditions, like my family, you are going to be covered. And tax credits allow you to buy the plan you want, and as you get older those tax credits go up.’” [Portland Press Herald, 5/12/17]

- Poliquin Evoked His Son, Who Has Asthma, To Defend His AHCA Vote: “I've Seen Health Care Up Close.” “In the debate over replacing the Affordable Care Act, U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, brought up his asthmatic adult son, Sammy, and the importance of protecting people with pre-existing conditions. ‘My own son has an asthma condition, a pre-existing condition,’ Poliquin said in a statement Thursday. ‘I've seen health care up close. We need to do the best job we possibly can when it comes to health care so Maine people get the care they need.’ But the American Health Care Act -- the Republican House bill approved 217-213 on Thursday -- would result in millions losing health care coverage, and it undermines protections for pre-existing conditions.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/5/17]
PolitiFact Found That The AHCA “Would Weaken Protections” For Those With Pre-Existing Conditions.

“An ad by the American Action Network says that under the American Health Care Act ‘people with pre-existing conditions are protected.’ The only kernel of truth here is that the amendment has language that states insurers can’t limit access to coverage for individuals with pre-existing conditions. However, the ad omits that the House GOP health plan would weaken protections for these patients. The legislation would allow states to give insurers the power to charge people significantly more if they had a pre-existing condition. While Republicans point to the fact that those patients could get help through high-risk pools, experts question their effectiveness. Current law does not allow states to charge people with pre-existing conditions significantly more. We rate this claim Mostly False.” [PolitiFact, 5/24/17]

Center For American Progress Estimated That 266,500 Of Poliquin’s Constituents Under 65, Or 53 Percent Of The District’s Nonelderly Population, Had Pre-Existing Conditions.

The Center for American Progress estimated that 266,500 constituents of Maine’s 2nd Congressional District under age 65, which totaled 53% of the district’s nonelderly population had a pre-existing condition as the district was drawn during the 115th Congress. [Center for American Progress, 4/5/17]

- Graham-Cassidy Plan Repealed The ACA And Funded State Policy Changes With Federal ACA Taxes.

  “With the prospects for passing the current Senate Republican health care bill still in jeopardy. Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-South Carolina, and Sen. Bill Cassidy, R-Louisiana, are working with their GOP colleagues on an alternative approach to replacing Obamacare: keeping much of the federal taxes in place and sending that money to the states to control. ‘Here is what will happen,’ Graham said in an exclusive interview with CNN’s Kate Bolduan. ‘If you like Obamacare, you can re-impose the mandates at the state level. You can repair Obamacare if you think it needs to be repaired. You can replace it if you think it needs to be replaced. It’ll be up to the governors. They’ve got a better handle on it than any bureaucrat in Washington.’” [CNN, 7/13/17]

7/25/17: Poliquin: “Once Again, I Cannot Support The Repeal Of The ACA (In The House) Without A Viable Replacement.” “In light of what we have seen over the last several months, once again, I cannot support the repeal of the ACA (in the House) without a viable replacement,” Poliquin said. ‘Changes in insurance markets are complex. Many fellow Mainers are impacted either as policyholders or due to the ACA regulations on their private individual or employer coverage. We shouldn’t forget that thousands of Maine families were forced into Obamacare either because of the threat of an IRS penalty, or because their own policies were canceled under Obamacare’s red tape regulations. We simply cannot tell these people they will now have no access to insurance because of inaction by the U.S. Senate.’” [Kennebec Journal, 7/25/17]

September 2017: Poliquin’s Spokesperson Would Not Say Whether He Planned To Support Graham-Cassidy Plan To Repeal The ACA.

“An email sent by a spokesman for Rep. Bruce Poliquin did not expressly say whether the Republican representing Maine’s 2nd District supported Graham-Cassidy. But Brendan Conley said Poliquin would not support repeal ‘without a viable replacement.’ Poliquin said he has a 14-point plan he would use as a ‘guideline’ if a bill reached the House and came up for a vote. ‘Congressman Poliquin has consistently discussed his 14-point plan to help fix the Obamacare ACA law, which has caused Maine people to lose their choice of health plans while premiums and deductibles continued to rise, and also expressed that he will not support a repeal of the law without a viable replacement ready,’ Conley said in the email. ‘His focus remains on those 14 points, and he will use those as a guideline for any plan which reaches the House.’” [Portland Press Herald, 9/18/17]
November 2017: Poliquin’s Spokesperson Claimed He Would Not Support ACA Repeal Without “A Viable Replacement Ready.” “Congressman Poliquin has consistently discussed his 14-point plan to help fix the Obamacare ACA law, which has caused Maine people to lose their choice of health plans while premiums and deductibles continued to rise, and also expressed that he will not support a repeal of the law without a viable replacement ready,” Conley said in the email.” [Portland Press Herald, 9/18/17]

Poliquin Dismissed Estimates Of Americans Who Would Lose Health Insurance Under The AHCA; Center For American Progress Estimated 63,800 Of His Constituents Would Lose Coverage

Poliquin Declined To Comment On CBO Estimates That Thousands Of Mainers Would Loser Health Insurance Coverage Under The AHCA

May 2017: Poliquin’s Spokesperson Declined To “Directly Respond” To CBO Estimates That Thousands Of Mainers Would Lose Health Insurance Coverage Under The AHCA. “A spokesman for Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, declined Thursday to directly respond to the CBO score on the health bill or to estimates that millions of people, including tens of thousands in Maine, would lose coverage. Poliquin voted for the bill when it passed the House on May 4. Instead, Brendan Conley said in a written statement that Poliquin is ‘committed to keeping his promise to his constituents by working with Democrats and Republicans to fix the failing health care law. He looks forward to the Senate’s review of the legislation and will continue to work on further improvements to the bill.’” [Portland Press Herald, 5/25/17]

Poliquin Said “Special-Interest Groups” Drove The Claim That AHCA Would Cause Millions To Lose Their Health Insurance”

Poliquin Dismissed The Claim That The AHCA Would Cause Millions To Lose Their Health Insurance As “Special-Interest Groups In Augusta And Washington Trying To Scare Us Into Doing Nothing.” “Poliquin said, ‘There are powerful special-interest groups in Augusta and Washington trying to scare us into doing nothing. They say if we change the imploding Obamacare law, millions of Americans will lose their health insurance.’ That is also what the CBO said about an earlier version of the bill. It predicted there would be 24 million fewer Americans covered by health insurance by 2026 if the Republican plan were approved.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 5/4/17]

CBO Estimated 23 Million Americans Would Lose Health Insurance Coverage Under AHCA; Center For American Progress Estimated That Included 63,800 Of Poliquin’s Constituents And 117,000 Mainers

CBO Estimated 14 Million More People Would Be Uninsured In 2018; 23 Million By 2026 Under The AHCA. “CBO and JCT estimate that, in 2018, 14 million more people would be uninsured under H.R. 1628 than under current law. The increase in the number of uninsured people relative to the number under current law would reach 19 million in 2020 and 23 million in 2026 (see Table 4, at the end of this document).” [CBO, 5/24/17]

• CBO Found Increase In Uninsured Would Disproportionately Impact Older People With Lower Income. “Although the agencies expect that the legislation would increase the number of uninsured broadly, the increase would be disproportionately larger among older people with lower income—particularly people between 50 and 64 years old with income of less than 200 percent of the federal poverty level (see Figure 2).” [CBO, 5/24/17]

• CBO: Even In States Without Waivers, More People Would Be Uninsured Than Under Current Law. “CBO and JCT expect that under the current version of the legislation, the effects on health insurance coverage would be similar to those previously estimated for the half of the population that resides in states that would not obtain a waiver from the EHB or community-rating requirements. In general, under H.R. 1628, as passed by the House, fewer people would have coverage through the nongroup market, Medicaid, and employment-based coverage, and more people would be uninsured in those areas than under current law.” [CBO, 5/24/17]
Kennebec Journal Editorial Board Condemned Poliquin’s Vote For “Millions Of Low And Moderate Income Americans Losing Their Health Insurance To Pay For A Tax Cut For The Wealthy.” “But regardless of what happens next, Mainers should remember where Collins and Poliquin stood when their voices mattered most. When the question was, ‘Should millions of low and moderate income Americans lose their health insurance to pay for a tax cut for the wealthy?’ Collins said ‘no,’ and Poliquin said ‘yes.’” [Kennebec Journal, Editorial Board, 7/18/17]

Center For American Progress Estimated That 117,000 Mainers Would Lose Their Health Insurance Under AHCA. “A Washington, D.C.-based progressive think tank estimates that more than 117,000 Mainers would lose health insurance under the House GOP bill to replace the Affordable Care Act. The Center for American Progress estimates that over the next decade, 57,000 people on Medicaid in Maine would lose coverage, as well as 47,000 people in the individual market. About 12,000 people are estimated to lose employer-based coverage.” [Maine Public, 5/26/17]

November 2018: The Lewiston Sun Journal Rated The Claim That Poliquin Voted To Take Health Care Coverage From 117,000 Mainers As “At Least Partly True” But “Speculative.” “The claim by Democrats that Poliquin voted to repeal the Affordable Care Act, push 117,000 Mainers off the health-care rolls and hike the cost of coverage for those 50 and older is rooted in the Republican lawmaker’s support in 2017 for a bill that sought to revamp Obamacare. […] How many of those losing coverage would hail from Maine was never specifically addressed except by outside experts, who came up with a variety of numbers. There doesn’t appear to be any dispute that under the measure that Poliquin favored, at least tens of thousands of Mainers would have lost health-care coverage over time. So the Democrats’ assertion has a basis in truth. […] But his vote last year would, by all accounts, have repealed the ACA and cut Medicaid assistance. It also would have opened the door for insurance companies to charge older Americans more for their coverage. The Democrats’ claim is at least partly true, but the specific number of Mainers who might have lost insurance had the bill passed is speculative.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 11/2/18]

Center For American Progress Estimated That 63,800 Of Poliquin’s Constituents Would Lose Health Insurance Under The AHCA. The Center for American Progress estimated that 60,500 nonelderly And 3,300 elderly constituents of Maine’s 2nd Congressional District would lose health insurance as the district was drawn during the 115th Congress. [Center for American Progress, 5/25/17]

Poliquin Denied That He Voted To Cut Medicaid By Voting For The AHCA, Which Would Have Cut Medicaid By More Than $800 Billion And Made 57,300 Mainers On Medicaid Lose Coverage

August 2017: Poliquin Denied That He Voted To Cut Medicaid By Voting For The AHCA In Leaked Audio. “Poliquin has detailed many health care issues he would like to see Congress address, and considered the House vote a necessary step toward resolving them. He told Maine Heritage Policy Center supporters -- which was detailed in a secret recording of the talk provided to the Maine People's Alliance -- that with the House passage, it became the Senate's turn to act. But it refused to support any alternative offered, stalled in the end by the opposition of three senators, including Maine's Susan Collins, a Republican. ‘How can anybody vote not even to start debate on an issue this important?’ Poliquin asked. ‘We've got to fix this and we did in the House,’ he said. ‘The Senate couldn't get it done. That is shameful.’ ‘We have done what we needed to do in the House. Pray for our senators. Reach out to whoever you think you should,’ Poliquin said. Poliquin appeared to take aim at Collins in particular. ‘Now, for some people to say, 'Well, the reason I can't support this, Bruce, is because it cuts Medicaid,' that is a flat-out untruthful statement,’ the congressman alleged.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 8/25/17]

CBO Estimated That The AHCA Would Cut Medicaid Funding By $834 Billion Over Ten Years And That 14 Million Americans On Medicaid Would Lose Coverage. “The Congressional Budget Office projects that by instituting caps and halting expansion, the AHCA to will cut $834 billion in federal Medicaid funding over 10 years and reduce Medicaid coverage by 14 million in 2026.” [Center for American Progress, 5/26/17]

AHCA Protected The Profits Of Pharmaceutical Companies And Insurers, From Which Poliquin Accepted Nearly Half A Million Dollars Over His Career

AHCA Would Allow Insurance Companies To “Charge People Significantly More,” Especially Seniors, And “Offer[ed] Billions Of Dollars’ Worth Of Tax Cuts” To Insurers And Pharmaceutical Companies

PolitiFact Found That AHCA “Would Allow States To Give Insurers The Power To Charge People Significantly More.” “An ad by the American Action Network says that under the American Health Care Act ‘people with pre-existing conditions are protected.’ The only kernel of truth here is that the amendment has language that states insurers can’t limit access to coverage for individuals with pre-existing conditions. However, the ad omits that the House GOP health plan would weaken protections for these patients. New York Times: AHCA “Offers Billions Of Dollars’ Worth Of Tax Cuts To Health Insurers, Pharmaceutical Companies, Investors And Even Tanning Salon Operators.” “But there are two certainties. Their health care plan provides a tax cut for the wealthiest Americans. And it will make it easier for Republicans to pass more tax cuts this year. It could also be viewed by some people as a break from some of the populist campaign promises President Trump made to lift up the country’s “forgotten men and women.” The Congressional Budget Office analysis of the Republican plan released this week revealed the full scope of the windfall that the legislation would bring. It offers billions of dollars’ worth of tax cuts to health insurers, pharmaceutical companies, investors and even tanning salon operators. The cuts amount to nearly $1 trillion over a decade. The beneficiaries would be the richest Americans who for years have complained that the Affordable Care Act unfairly burdened them with the responsibility of subsidizing insurance for the poor.” [New York Times, 3/15/17]

Poliquin Accepted Nearly $500,000 From The Insurance And Pharmaceutical Industries Over The Course Of His Career

Poliquin Praised The AHCA For Replicating A Short-Lived Maine Policy To Subsidize A High-Risk Pool For People With Pre-Existing Conditions That Its Critics Called “Drastically Underfunded”

Poliquin Praised The AHCA For “Bipartisan Maine Reforms At [Its] Center” And Incorporation Of “Maine’s Models For Welfare Reforms.” “Poliquin pointed out that ‘Maine is in a unique position’ in the health care debate because its reforms ‘have become the core model of this new health care legislation, which includes some of Maine’s models for welfare reforms as well.’ He said he agreed to back the measure ‘with bipartisan Maine reforms at the center of this new bill, and with Maine having ensured essential health benefits and pre-existing conditions are covered under state laws.’ ‘I have studied this health care issue carefully with one thing in mind: the people of Maine. I do not work for the Democrats, Republicans, or Washington bosses,’ the congressman said. ‘I work only for the people of Maine and my focus has been solely on the Maine people.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, 5/4/17]

- The AHCA Incorporated The Model Of The Maine Guaranteed Access Reinsurance Program, Which Subsidized A High-Risk Pool Of Insures With Pre-Existing Conditions. “A LePage administration health insurance program that inspired a key component of the latest Republican proposal to replace the Affordable Care Act was only in place 18 months before being supplanted by the Affordable Care Act. Critics say that wasn't long enough to gauge its effectiveness. Supporters, meanwhile, say the program was working well at lowering premiums. The Maine program, called the Maine Guaranteed Access Reinsurance Program, or MGARA, was superseded by the Affordable Care Act in 2013. […] But critics of Maine's high-risk pool say that to achieve lower premiums, Maine permitted insurers to offer plans with fewer benefits. For instance, Maine did not require plans to offer maternity care, a significant and expensive benefit used by many. […] LePage's program redistributed money to the individual marketplace in Maine by charging a $4 per person, per month fee on individual, small- and large-group plans.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/1/17]

- The Maine Guaranteed Access Reinsurance Program Existed For 18 Months Before It Was Supplanted By The ACA. “A LePage administration health insurance program that inspired a key component of the latest Republican proposal to replace the Affordable Care Act was only in place 18 months before being supplanted by the Affordable Care Act. Critics say that wasn't long enough to gauge its effectiveness. Supporters, meanwhile, say the program was working well at lowering premiums. The Maine program, called the Maine Guaranteed Access Reinsurance Program, or MGARA, was superseded by the Affordable Care Act in 2013.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/1/17]

- 2018: Poliquin Campaign Website On High-Risk Pools: “I Continue To Advocate For This Solution As A National Model For Reform.” “Advocating for Maine solutions like the invisible risk pools created by the Maine Legislature which guaranteed coverage for pre-existing conditions while holding down and lowering health insurance costs for Maine people. I continue to advocate for this solution as a national model for reform.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/5/18]

Funding For The High-Risk Pool Under The AHCA Was “Drastically Underfunded And Would Have Minimal Impact On Rates” According To Its Critics Like The Center For American Progress. “Meanwhile, the Maine-inspired portion of the ACA replacement proposal is drastically underfunded in the House bill, and would have minimal impact on rates, critics say. […] Stein said there’s nothing wrong with the structure of a reinsurance program like MGARA, but the key is how well it’s funded. ‘In the end, it all comes down to how much money is put in,’ Stein said. Nationally, the AHCA would fund the Maine-like program to the tune of $15 billion over 10 years, plus states could draw from a $115 billion fund over 10 years that could be used for a number of programs, including reinsurance. Critics, including Topher Spiro, vice president of health policy for the Washington-based Center for American Progress, said the amount devoted to reinsurance programs is a tiny fraction of AHCA funding, and would have little impact on rates.” [Portland Press Herald, 5/1/17]

The AHCA Would Have Hurt Maine Hospitals To The Point That Susan Collins Said Rural Hospitals “Would Have A Very Difficult Time Even Staying In Existence”

Poliquin’s Vote For ACA Repeal Included Coverage Cuts, Which Susan Collins Said “Would Affect Our Rural Hospitals And Nursing Homes, And They Would Have A Very Difficult Time Even Staying In Existence.” “Poliquin voted for coverage cuts in the same bill, which Sen. Susan Collins said ‘would affect our rural hospitals and nursing homes, and they would have a very difficult time even staying in existence.’ His top opponent this year, Democrat Jared Golden, opposes Poliquin's votes and supports Medicaid expansion. Golden also sponsored successful legislation focusing on health care issues affecting veterans and others, doing so with bipartisan support.” [Bangor Daily News, Amy Fried Op-Ed, 10/31/18]
Amy Fried Op-Ed: Poliquin’s Vote For ACA Repeal Included $117 Billion In Cuts From The Medicare Hospital Insurance Trust Fund, Which Funded Hospitals. “For instance, the Affordable Care Act guarantees people with pre-existing conditions insurance coverage at the same rate as everyone else. Rep. Bruce Poliquin voted to do away with that guarantee but says he supports coverage for pre-existing conditions. With that same vote, Poliquin also decreased hospitals’ funding. According to data cited by the nonpartisan Committee for a Responsible Federal Budget, Poliquin voted for cutting $117 billion from the Medicare Hospital Insurance Trust Fund. The cut undermined Medicare's solvency as it gave a tax cut to the rich, repealing a 0.9 percent surtax on individuals making over $200,000 and couples making $250,000 that supported the trust fund. Other, larger tax cuts for wealthy people were also included.” [Bangor Daily News, Amy Fried Op-Ed, 10/31/18]

Poliquin Voted For The Republican Tax Scam Bill – “A Major Victory” For Big Pharma Investors

Poliquin Voted For The Republican Tax Scam Bill

Poliquin Voted For Final Passage Of The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act. [HR 1, Vote #699, 12/20/17; CQ Floor Votes, 12/20/17]

Tax Cuts And Jobs Act Included A “Major Victory For Pharma Manufacturers”

Político: Repatriation Provision In Tax Bill Was A “Major Victory For Pharma Manufacturers.” “The bill, H.R. 1 (115), lowers the corporate tax rate and would offer a one-time reduction on profits U.S.-based multinational companies earn and keep abroad. The repatriation provision is seen as a major victory for pharma manufacturers who store boatloads of cash in countries where tax rates are lower.” [Político, 12/4/17]

• Pharmaceutical Companies Were “One Of The Biggest Beneficiaries” Of The Provision, And Were Seen As Likely To Return Money To Their Shareholders, Rather Than Invest In Research And Innovation.
“U.S. drugmakers will be one of the biggest beneficiaries of the repatriation portion of the bill. They’ve been sitting on billions of dollars in overseas earnings and can now bring home that cash at a reduced rate. While the tax bill has been promoted by Republicans as a job creator, the reality is that drug companies are more likely to return the money to shareholders, or use it to make acquisitions.” [Bloomberg, 12/20/17]

- Tax Bill Was Estimated To Save Top Five Pharmaceutical Companies $42.7 Billion. “The tax proposal supported by President Donald Trump and congressional Republicans would give five top pharmaceutical corporations a $42.7 billion tax break.” [Public Citizen and ITEP, 11/20/17]

Pharmaceutical Companies Worked To Benefit Shareholders, Rather Than To Bring Down The Cost Of Drugs Or Invest In New Research And Development

Pharmaceutical Companies Were Predicted To Use Savings From Tax Bill To Invest In Mergers And Acquisitions In An Effort To Preserve Patents And Prevent Competitors From Producing Cheaper, Generic Drugs. “Blue-chip drugmakers holding $200 billion in cash, mostly overseas, will start investing more of it in mergers and acquisitions after President Trump’s tax overhaul slashed the cost of spending the money in the U.S., debt-ratings firm Moody’s predicts. […] Amgen, Pfizer, Gilead, and Celgene are the most likely to seek deals, Moody’s projects, as they grapple with challenges from a shrinking market for some medications to the expiration of patents on others that will enable rivals to produce cheaper generic versions.” [Washington Examiner, 1/9/18]

Nine Pharmaceutical Companies Announced $50 Billion In Share Buybacks After Tax Bill Passed, “A Sum That Towers Over Investments In Employees Or Drug Research And Development.” “The pharmaceutical industry is using a large portion of its windfall from Republicans’ corporate tax cuts to boost its stock prices. Nine drug companies are spending a combined $50 billion on new share buyback programs, a sum that towers over investments in employees or drug research and development. The bottom line: All of those buybacks were announced during or after the passage of the Republican tax bill. That money is enriching hedge funds, other Wall Street investors and top drug company executives, but it isn’t necessarily helping patients.” [Axios, 2/22/18]

2016: Poliquin Voted To Raise Prescription Drug Prices For Medicare Recipients By Voting For ACA Repeal

2016: PolitiFact Rated The Claim That Poliquin Voted To “Force Seniors To Pay More For Prescription Drugs” As Half True. “End Citizens United's ad says Poliquin voted to ‘force seniors to pay more for prescription drugs.’ It gives the misleading impression that he voted on that specific issue when, in fact, he was voting to repeal the 2010 health care law. If the repeal bill had become law - it didn't - it would have removed provisions phasing out a prescription drug doughnut hole for Medicare recipients. End Citizens United's claim is partially accurate but takes things out of context. We rate it Half True.” [PolitiFact, 8/30/16]
• PolitiFact: Poliquin Voted For A Bill To Repeal The ACA That “Would Have Removed Provisions Phasing Out A Prescription Drug Doughnut Hole For Medicare Recipients.” “There was another vote on repealing Obamacare on Jan. 6, 2016. Poliquin voted in favor of it. His spokesman, Michael Byerly, said that wasn’t really a vote to repeal "as it technically only repealed the harmful taxes and provisions that have caused prices to go up.’ [...] To sum it up, Poliquin never voted to raise drug prices directly. He voted to repeal the health care law — a show vote that could have resulted in drug prices going up for Medicare recipients. Our ruling End Citizens United’s ad says Poliquin voted to ‘force seniors to pay more for prescription drugs.’ It gives the misleading impression that he voted on that specific issue when, in fact, he was voting to repeal the 2010 health care law. POLIQUIN: “When it comes to access to healthcare, I believe that it's a good idea to allow people to buy experimental drugs, if they are terminally ill. May 2019: Teva Pharmaceuticals Settled For $85 Million With The State Of Oklahoma Over Its Role In The Opioid Crisis. “An Israel-based pharmaceutical company has agreed to an $85 million settlement with the state of Oklahoma over its alleged role in fueling the opioid crisis. Oklahoma Attorney General Mike Hunter had accused Teva Pharmaceuticals of creating a public nuisance through its production and marketing of opioids. In a statement announcing the settlement, Teva said the agreement ‘does not establish any wrongdoing on the part of the company.’ Teva also said it ‘has not contributed to the abuse of opioids in Oklahoma in any way.’” [NPR, 5/26/19]

October 2019: Teva Pharmaceuticals Settled For $23 Billion After A Coalition Of Municipalities And States Sued It And Other Drug Companies For Its Role In The Opioid Crisis. “Teva Pharmaceutical shares surged Monday after announcing a $23 billion settlement it said would resolve allegations against the company for its role in helping to fuel the nation’s opioid crisis. […] More than 2,000 counties, cities and states have sued more than a dozen drug companies, distributors and pharmacies, alleging the industry helped create the nation’s opioid epidemic. A ‘bellwether’ trial was set to begin this week involving two Ohio counties. But four drug companies, including Teva, reached a last-minute deal.” [CNBC, 10/21/19]

2019 – 2020: Teva Pharmaceuticals Was Sued Multiple Times For Allegedly Inflating Prices Through Illegal Conspiracies To Avoid Competition

August 2020: The Department Of Justice Indicted A Teva Pharmaceuticals Executive For Allegedly Engaging In Three Conspiracies To Fix Prices, Overcharging Consumers More Than $350 Million. “The U.S. business of Teva Pharmaceutical Industries Ltd. was indicted Tuesday on charges the generic drugmaker fixed prices on cholesterol medication and other drugs. The Justice Department’s antitrust division brought the case in a Pennsylvania federal court, alleging Teva Pharmaceuticals USA engaged in anticompetitive conduct that resulted in at least $350 million in overcharges to consumers. Prosecutors accused the company of fixing prices, rigging bids and allocating customers in three different conspiracies, including for pravastatin, a commonly prescribed cholesterol drug, whose brand name is Pravachol. A second conspiracy involved price fixing on medications used to treat arthritis, seizures, pain, skin conditions, and blood clots, the Justice Department alleged. The third alleged conspiracy involved drugs used to treat brain cancer, cystic fibrosis, arthritis, and hypertension, the department said.” [Wall Street Journal, 8/25/20]

May 2019: 44 States Sued Teva Pharmaceuticals For Allegedly Inflating Prices “Sometimes By More Than 1,000%” Through “Illegal Conspiracies To Divide Up The Market For Drugs To Avoid Competing.” “U.S. states filed a lawsuit accusing Teva Pharmaceuticals USA of orchestrating a sweeping scheme with 19 other drug companies to inflate drug prices — sometimes by more than 1,000% — and stifle competition for generic drugs, state prosecutors said on Saturday. Soaring drug prices from both branded and generic manufacturers have sparked outrage and investigations in the United States. The criticism has come from across the political spectrum, from President Donald Trump, a Republican, to progressive Democrats including U.S. Senator Elizabeth Warren, who is running for president. The 20 drug companies engaged in illegal conspiracies to divide up the market for drugs to avoid competing and, in some cases, conspired to either prevent prices from dropping or to raise them, according to the complaint by 44 U.S. states, filed on Friday in the U.S. District Court in Connecticut.” [CNBC, 5/11/19]
Poliquin Voted For Sentencing Guidelines For Distributing Synthetic Opioids That Democrats Warned Would Impose Mandatory Minimums For Low-Level Offenders, Rather Than Expanding Treatment

Poliquin Voted For Creating Sentencing Guidelines For Manufacturing Or Distributing Synthetic Opioids. In June 2018, Poliquin voted for: “Passage of the bill that would create a new category of controlled substances, "schedule A," for drugs or substances that have similar chemical structures or effects as controlled substances in schedules I through V. It would immediately classify certain fentanyl analogues as schedule A drugs. The bill would establish maximum penalties for the manufacture, distribution or dispensing of schedule A drugs, but possession of such substances alone would not constitute a basis for criminal or civil penalties.” The bill passed, 239-142. [H.R. 2851, Vote #268, 6/15/18; CQ, 6/15/18]

- Democrats Warned The Bill Would Impose Mandatory Minimum Sentences, Filling Prisons With Low-Level Drug Offenders. “The House on Friday passed Rep. John Katko’s bill aimed at combating the opioid epidemic by making it easier for the federal government to stop the importation and distribution of synthetic drugs. But Democrats who opposed the bill warned the law would also impose mandatory minimum sentences, filling up the nation’s prisons with low-level drug offenders rather than expanding treatment options […] House Democratic Whip Steny Hoyer said before the vote that the bill could have unintended consequences. ‘This legislation lacks clarity that could result in thousands of Americans being incarcerated, potentially for life sentences, thus exacerbating an already over-populated prison system,’ Hoyer said. ‘Those suffering from opioid addiction need treatment and proper medical care, not more laws that will simply put them behind bars.’” [Syracuse Post-Standard, 6/15/18]

Poliquin Voted Against Considering An Amendment To Prohibit Restrictions On Medical Malpractice Lawsuits For “Grossly Negligent” Prescription Of Opioids

Poliquin Voted Against Consideration Of An Amendment To The Underlying Legislation That Would Prohibit Restrictions On Medical Malpractice Lawsuits For “Grossly Negligent” Prescription Of Opioids. In June 2017, Poliquin voted against: “Kuster, D-N.H., motion to recommit the bill to the House Judiciary Committee with instructions to report it back immediately with an amendment that would modify the bill’s definition of ‘health care lawsuits’ to not include a claim or action related to the ‘grossly negligent’ prescription of opioids.” The motion was rejected, 235-191. April 2016: Poliquin Said “Tough Love” Was “Part Of The Equation” For Helping Mainers Struggling With Addiction Who Told Him They Needed More Access To Post-Treatment Counselling

April 2016: Poliquin Held A Round Table Discussion At Good Will-Hinckley, Which Provided An Outpatient Program For Young People Struggling With Drug Addiction. “Hendrickson hasn't been home for eight months. Now he's one-third of the way through a six-month program at Day One, which has three Maine residential centers and provides outpatient services and counseling to young people who are mostly battling drug abuse. Hendrickson, 18, said he likes the structure and strict program at the home near the Good Will-Hinckley campus. ‘I don't want to get back into my old ways,’ he said. Hendrickson spoke Tuesday as U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, visited the program at Good Will-Hinckley. Poliquin, who is a member of the Congressional Bipartisan Task Force to Combat the Heroin Epidemic, toured the Day One program as part of a swing through central Maine. Poliquin also held a roundtable discussion and did a ride-along Tuesday afternoon with the Franklin County Sheriff's Office to get an idea of what people on the ground are facing in the drug crisis.” [Portland Press Herald, 4/5/16]

When Poliquin Asked Patients What They Needed To Recover After Leaving Good Will-Hinckley’s Program, They Said Increased Access To Post-Treatment Counselling. “When asked by Poliquin what could make it easier for them, both said that having more post-treatment counseling available near their homes would help a lot in terms of keeping them sober and healthy. Day One has only one outpatient location, in South Portland, a hard place to visit for someone who doesn’t have a permanent place to live or a car.” [Portland Press Herald, 4/5/16]

After Leaving Good Will-Hinckley, Poliquin Told Reporters That “Tough Love” Was “Part Of The Equation” For Helping The Patients After They Left The Program. “Poliquin, in an interview after the meeting, said the issues highlighted by Grant and residents at Day One were troubling. ‘How do you hold people accountable when they leave here?’ Poliquin said. Part of the equation was making sure people could find a job and make a living when they leave the program, he said, but another part was ‘tough love.’ ‘When they get out, make sure there are programs to hold them accountable for staying healthy,’ he said.” [Portland Press Herald, 4/5/16]

January 2018: Poliquin Blamed The Opioid Crisis On Lack Of Border Security

January 2018: Poliquin Blamed The Opioid Crisis On Lack Of Border Security. “First, our external borders, both north and south, must be controlled so we know what is crossing our borders and who’s entering our Homeland. We must stop those who seek to harm our families with violence and/or deadly drugs. According to the Drug Enforcement Administration’s annual National Drug Threat Assessment, more than 80 percent of the cheap heroin that finds its way into the United States crosses the Mexican border. Border security must be addressed to successfully tackle the heroin and opioid epidemic that is killing our kids and destroying American families.” [Lewiston Sun Journal, Bruce Poliquin Op-Ed, 1/16/18]

June 2016: Poliquin Said He Was Involved In The Fight Against Opioids “In Part, Because My Brother Is No Longer With Us”

June 2016: Poliquin Said He Was Involved In The Fight Against Opioids “In Part, Because My Brother Is No Longer With Us.” “For Rep. Bruce Poliquin, the battle against opioid addiction is personal. ‘I’m involved in this, in part, because my brother is no longer with us,’ he said Tuesday night during the Operation Community SAFER (Supporting Area Families to Enable Recovery) forum at Eastern Maine Community College. ‘Here was a great guy with a big heart. A great musician,’ a man who died too young because of his drug addiction. Poliquin, who hosted the congressional town hall event, said that his brother, Jim, is just one of the casualties of opiate addiction.” [Bangor Daily News, 6/28/16]

2018: Poliquin Campaign Website: “I Lost A Brother Who I Loved Due To Substance Abuse. Substance Abuse, And Especially The Opioid Crisis, Is Impacting Nearly Every Citizen In The State Of Maine.” “I lost a brother who I loved due to substance abuse. Substance abuse, and especially the opioid crisis, is impacting nearly every citizen in the State of Maine. […] As someone who’s family has been directly impacted by the death of a loved one due to substance abuse I will not give up on this fight. We can’t give up.” [Poliquin for Congress, captured 10/5/18]

May 2016: Poliquin Co-Sponsored A Bill To Study Responses To Fetal Opioid Exposure

May 2016: Poliquin Co-Sponsored A Bill To Study Responses To Fetal Opioid Exposure, Which He Said Would Gather Information “Such That We Can Fill In The Gap With Medicaid Funding.” “One bill, co-sponsored by U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin, a Republican who represents Maine's 2nd District, would launch a study by the Government Accountability Office to report on how to better treat newborns suffering from fetal opioid exposure. The House passed the bill Thursday. It ‘makes sure that we get the information we need as to how hospitals and other medical facilities are currently treating these addicted babies such that we can fill in the gap with Medicaid funding,’ said Poliquin Wednesday on the House floor.” [Bangor Daily News, 5/13/16]
September 2017: Poliquin Opposed Maine’s Medicaid Expansion Referendum

September 2017: Poliquin Opposed Maine’s Medicaid Expansion Referendum. “The parties on both sides of the debate over expanding Medicaid eligibility in Maine dug new trench lines Wednesday, as the state careens toward a referendum in November that some see as a potential national barometer on health care and conservative principles. The question of whether to expand the taxpayer-funded health care system here comes to the Nov. 7 ballot by citizen initiative after at least six legislative expansion attempts under Republican Gov. Paul LePage have failed. [...] Countering expansion proponents will be many Maine Republicans, most notably LePage, U.S. Rep. Bruce Poliquin of the 2nd Congressional District, and Brent Littlefield, a behind-the-scenes political strategist who has long worked for LePage and Poliquin.” [Bangor Daily News, 9/7/17]

July 2017: Poliquin Made “Hasty Retreat” From An Event At A Senior Living Facility After A Mainer Whose Child Had Disabilities Asked About His Support For Cutting Medicaid

July 2017: Poliquin Made A “Hasty Retreat” From Event At A Senior Living Facility After A Mainer Whose Child Had Disabilities Asked About His Support For Cutting Medicaid. “Rep. Bruce Poliquin (R-ME) was forced to make a hasty retreat from a senior living facility when he was confronted by citizens about his vote for the Republican health care repeal bill. Poliquin told attendees that he would answer questions after his press conference, but as soon as the reporters turned their cameras off, he ignored their shouted questions and left the building. Video of the encounter recorded by Maine People's Alliance shows Valerie Walker attempting to ask Poliquin how she will address the health concerns of her son, who has a disability, if the cuts to Medicaid he voted for become law. Instead of responding to her, Poliquin complained about her presence, asking, ‘If you’re not a resident — I think this is just for residents, isn’t that correct?’ And a woman accompanying him actually tried to physically block the camera recording the exchange, when Poliquin was told that the room is a public space and Walker was free to be there. So he simply walked away from her to give his presentation to the broadcast cameras.” [American Independent, 7/13/17] (VIDEO) :00

- Poliquin Stated He Would Stay For Questions From Mainers After Speaking To The Press But “Instead, He Headed For The Nearest Exit.” “After Poliquin gave his speech and spoke to the press, he was pressed to ‘keep his promise’ and answer Walker's questions. Instead, he headed for the nearest exit, disregarding the voices of his constituents. Kathy Record, also in attendance, told the Beacon, ‘He was ignoring those questions, he wasn’t even responding to them. Hundreds of thousands of people are going to be affected by this if it goes through. He’s really screwing people over and it’s not right.’” [American Independent, 7/13/17]

May 2017: Poliquin Supported The “Welfare Agenda” Of A Trump Budget That Cut Medicaid, Citing Unfairness To “Middle-Class Taxpayers”

May 2017: Poliquin Supported The “Welfare Agenda” Of A Trump Budget That Cut Medicaid By Nearly Half Over 10 Years, Citing Unfairness To “Middle-Class Taxpayers.” “About 265,000 Mainers have Medicaid, and thousands would be at risk of having their services reduced or eliminated if the cutsbacks that Trump proposed are approved. Medicaid funding would be scaled back by nearly 50 percent at the end of the 10 years. [...] But Rep. Bruce Poliquin, R-2nd District, supported Trump's welfare reform agenda, but opposed cuts to heating assistance and environmental programs. ‘It is unfair for middle-class taxpayers to be burdened with funding for able-bodied adults when there are so many others at risk who could be receiving this important support instead,’ Poliquin said in a statement. ‘Simply put, we should use our tax dollars to help those who need the support most, like the elderly and disabled, and not to those who are capable of working, joining a job training program, or doing community service.’” [Portland Press Herald, 5/23/17]

May 2017: Poliquin Supported Allowing States To Impose Work Requirements On Medicaid

May 2017: Poliquin: "We Want To Save Medicaid For Those Who Are Blind, Disabled, Elderly, Sick. We Need To Give The States The Options Of Having A Work Requirement." “During the interview Friday, Poliquin defended a provision that would require able-bodied people without children on Medicaid to work, participate in job training or do community service in exchange for the public benefit. ‘We have a limited amount of money,’ he said. ‘We want to save Medicaid for those who are blind, disabled, elderly, sick. We need to give the states the options of having a work requirement.’” [Portland Press Herald, 5/12/17]

March 2017: Poliquin Said He Met With Trump To Push For Medicaid Block Grants And Work Requirements For Non-Disabled Medicaid Recipients Without Children

March 2017: Poliquin Said He Met With Trump To Push For Medicaid Block Grants And Work Requirements For Non-Disabled Medicaid Recipients Without Children. “BREAKING NEWS: Welfare reform and Meeting with the President - - Congressman Poliquin met with the President at the White House today to urge changes to the healthcare bill to improve provisions for those nearing retirement, ages 50-64, and for those living in rural areas. Also he expressed support for new changes to protect states like Maine who had not expanded Medicaid to non-disabled people without kids, by giving block grants so states could help the most needy. Finally Bruce noted Maine's welfare reforms are working and pushed support for welfare Medicaid changes so states could have flexibility to impose work requirements for those who are not disabled and don't have children. Requirements would include working, job training, or a volunteer provision if able to work.”
